A SAD FATALITY AT STONY LAKE.

A Son of Mr. Robt. Miles, of Dummer, Drowned Whilst Bathing.

First Accident Which Has Occurred at the Lake in a Long Time—Funeral on Tuesday.

A very melancholy occurrence, by which Hubert, the 14 year old son of Mr. Robert Miles, lost his life, took place between two and and three p.m. on Monday, at Stony Lake.

The day being very warm, Hubert, with his younger brother Archie, aged 10 years, went down to the lake, which is only a short distance from the house, to have a bath. Neither could swim. The eldest boy waded out into the lake until the water reached his armpits, while the younger brother remained close to the shore. Presently the older boy was either seized with cramps or got beyond his depth and began to smother. The younger boy tried to help him, but finding that he could not reach him began to call for help and then ran to the house to call his mother. The mother hastened down, but was too late to save the boy's life. Meanwhile Stella, a sister older than the younger boy, who had come down to the spring to get some water, having heard the cry for help, hastened to the spot and waded out almost to within reach of her brother when he disappeared under the water and did not rise again. A few minutes later a boat arrived from Crowe's landing and the body was raised and taken to the parental home.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon. A short service was held at the home, and was conducted by Mr. James Robb and Rev. A. W. Torrie. The remains were then conveyed to Warsaw where Rev. H. McQuade performed the last sad rites.

DANGEROUS DYNAMITE.

(Campbellford Herald)

On Wednesday of last week, a young man named Fred Post, of the Oak Lake settlement, son of Mr. Aaron Post, of Chandos township, was seriously injured as a result of using a quantity of dynamite in a gun he was carrying.

The accident occurred on the shores of Koshabogamog Lake, several miles from his home, the victim at the time having been in company with a man named Alva Lawrence.

It seems that Lawrence advised Post to try a small quantity of dynamite with powder and put it in the gun as an experiment, and he thoughtlessly consented. The gun was loaded and Post fired left-handed, and was knocked down, falling upon a stump where the stick of dynamite was laid. The thumb of his right hand was nearly torn off, a piece of the barrel of the gun having cut the flesh nearly all the way around close to the hand, and broke the bone below the second joint. Two fingers were also cut, and the wonder is that the injury was not greater than it is.

The explosive force of the dynamite broke the barrel of the gun in two near the breech, and split the entire length, while the stock was blown to pieces.

The wounded hand was bandaged and Post returned to his home and was conveyed to Havelock where he now remains under treatment of a physician who feared lockjaw would result.

The "rattle-brain" who advised the use of dynamite in the gun witnessed the experiment and escaped injury and is still at large.

JUDGMENT GIVEN

In the Reid-O'Neil Assault Case This Afternoon—$5 and Costs.

County Magistrate Edmison this afternoon delivered judgement in the assault case of Reid vs. O'Neil arrising out of a contract the complainant alleged to hold with the Owen Sound Cement Co.

The accused was found guilty of assault and was fined $5 and $4.65 costs.

Magistrate Edmison said that he had looked into the evidence very carefully and searched up precedents as to the matter of trespass and he could not see that it had any bearing on the case. There was no dispute about the property; there had been an assault committed and there was nothing to justify it.

Mr. O'Connell, who was present on behalf of Mr. O'Neil, held that there was not even evidence to prove that Reid had been struck by O'Neil. However, the Magistrate held that there was.

FROM CLEAR LAKE.

Y.M.C.A. Camp,

The camp is desirous of keeping the readers of the Examiner posted with all the exploits, etc., and for that reason we drop you another line.

Our last letter related all that occurred up to Thursday night. We will now try and tell you what has taken place up to the present date. Our daily routine of camp life is about as follows: Rise at six, when most of the boys take a cool dip in the lake, which greatly increases the appetite for breakfast, which we have at 7 a.m. After breakfast half an hour is devoted to Bible study, which in the minds of the boys is one of the best half hours in the whole day. After that the camp breaks up. Some may be seen sauntering away with books, others go for a fish, and some play ball. Thus the time is passed till lunch, when we have something cool to eat. After lunch the boys will form into bands, and one crowd will walk to Burleigh, and another go to Juniper Island, etc.

At six o'clock we have a great, big blow out, which is got up as only our cook can do it, the menu being equal to that served in first-class hotels. However, it is quickly and eagerly devoured by the boys in a way that is peculiar to them, after having been traversing the country for miles around during the day. The tales that are told around the camp fire at night are to say the least most thrilling.

Every evening an informal concert is held, accompanied by the orchestra. The programme consists of songs, speeches, cakewalks, etc. This is the winding up of a very pleasant day. The best of feeling exists in the camp. Everyone is well, and no accidents have happened, excepting that one of the leaders had his nose caved in at a game of ball.

Now, Mr. Editor, as we hope to read this in Thursday's evening's paper, and have a row of three miles ahead of us, we are compelled to make a hurried ending in order to catch the mail. However, we hope we have given you some idea of the very pleasant time the boys are having. You may expect to hear from us a little later on in the week, when we hope to have some more news for you.

NAVIGATION NOTES.

There were four of the local boats in port last night. The "City" came in with the Sunday school excursion, the Beaver was in with a scow load of hogs for the George Matthews Co, the Water Lily brought up a scow load of wood, and the Star had returned from her trip down the river.

The Star and Beaver had their boilers inspected this morning by Inspector Thompson. The Star was detained an hour and a half as a result. The Water Lily and the Beaver went down at noon.

BEER GARDENS.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — Visitors to Victoria Park during the past two weeks have been considerably annoyed by an aggregation comprising the tough element of the town, who frequent the park during the day, holding carousals and making themselves offensive to the many ladies and gentlemen who visit this beautiful spot to spend an hour or so. The members of the gang, who are well known characters about town, have been noticed carrying pails of beer to the park nearly every day, and their presence there has been the means of driving many ladies of the town from passing what should prove to be a delightful afternoon in Victoria Park. Here is an opportunity for our police to get a little exercise and earn the gratitude of the community.

Yours, etc.,

TRACKMEN HOLD A MASS MEETING.

Mr. Wilkinson, of Toronto, Addressed the Gathering.

LOCAL MEN ALSO SPEAK.

The Position of the Trackmen Clearly Set Forth—Rev. Dr. O'Brien's Interesting Remarks.

A rousing meeting in the interests of the C.P.R. striking trackmen was held in the Town Council Chamber last night, at which stirring speeches were delivered on the strike situation by Mr. Wilkinson, chairman of the Local Committee, Toronto; Rev. Dr. O'Brien, George Ball, Ed. Brown, John Green, Major Miller, of town, and Wm. Anderson of Otonabee. The Council Chamber proved to be far too small for the audience, and those present included a number of Peterborough's prominent business men—great enthusiam prevailed and the remarks of the speakers struck a very responsive cord.

CHAIRMAN BATTEN.

The chair was occupied by Alderman Joseph Batten, who in opening the proceedings, said that he was acting in the capacity of chairman in the absence from town of His Worship, Mayor Denne. He further expressed the pleasure that it gave him to do so. He then introduced to the audience Mr. Wilkenson, who was greeted very cordially.

MR. WILKINSON.

Mr. Wilkinson, the chief speaker, held the undivided attention of his hearers for upwards of an hour. He is a trackman himself and is a man of more than ordinary intelligence. While not pretending to be an orator his address was well connected, and the alleged grievences of the trackmen were forcibly put forth. Mr. Wilkenson began by saying that it is always customary when a body of men or a corporation of any kind appeared before a municipal council or a government to ask for anything they ask, if anything, for slightly more than they really expected to receive. Thus he said it was with the trackmen when they appealed to the head officials of the C.P.R. He then mentioned a few of the preliminary concessions that they had demanded of the company. One of these was that when a man was dismissed from the service that he be given a chance to defend himself. Again they ask for seniority in promotion, for they cannot see how a man who has worked on the road for 30 years at $1.15 a day should be stepped over over by a man who has perhaps never done a hard day's work in his life; yet an inexperienced man is given the position of a foreman.

Turning to the question of wages the speaker said that when the Head Committee of the trackmen waited upon the Assistant General-Manager of the C.P.R., in Montreal, that gentleman asked that he be given six weeks to consider the matter with the other officials of the road, but he had not the slightest intention of keeping faith with them. From that very moment the conflict between the trackmen and the company was on. What reason had he to think so? The order came to the foreman of each section to double the force, fix up the road, put in new ties, etc., as there were to be a great many heavy and fast trains run over the line. These trains have

NOT MATERIALIZED.

The committee was once more sent for, and they were told to prepare another schedule of wages, that the company might consider it, but the committee had been once fooled, and hesitated. Had the company met that committee and offered them the same terms as they did individually to certain trackmen there would have been no strike to-day.

Mr. Wilkinson here read an agreement, or rather a circular, which the C. P. R had issued, or is alleged to have issued, offering certain concessions to the strikers, but the same had not been signed; it was worth nothing, as the company was afraid to attach their names to it. Had they acknowledged the Trackmen's Union in Montreal, and made the same offers to the general committee the strike would have been prevented. Continuing, the speaker quoted the wages of the Trackmen on the Intercolonial, the Grand Trunk Railway and the C. P. R., which were as fellows:

Intercolonial — Trackmen, $1.20; foreman, $1.70.

G. T. R. — Trackmen, $1.10; foremen, $1.60.

To all appearances the C. P. R. was paying more to the trackmen than the other companies, but Mr. Wilkinson proceeded to show that such was not the case. They are not paying as much for the maintenance of the road on the whole as the G.T.R., which he endeavoured to show by stating that for thirty miles of road on the Grand Trunk it costs the company for trackmen's wages $29.40; whilst on the C.P.R. it costs only $26.00, a saving each day of $3.40. This was done by giving the C. P. R. men more ground to cover than the trackmen of the other road.

It had been said that Mr. Wilson was a Yankee and had come over to this country to cripple the C.P.R. to the advantage of the American lines. This was false. Mr. Wilson was sent for by the trackmen of this country, said the speaker. Why could not the same argument be used against Mr. Van Horne, and all the other gentlemen who have come from the States to manage the same line of railway? There are five other unions in connection with the C.P.R. employees, and each one of them has an American at the head of the order, but as soon as the poor trackmen do this they are committing an outrage. Yet only thirty miles from here, a trackman was removed a few days ago for being incompetent and his place was filled by a Yankee. These are the men that say that Mr. Wilson their head organizer should not be retained because he is an American.

Speaking of the difficulties that they had to contend with, Mr. Wilkenson told of the alleged manner in which the press had been corrupted and were publishing false statements. From Toronto to Windsor is the only place where they have lost ground and this has been owing to the misrepresentation through the press. He also told how that in the same section officials of the road had visited the houses of section men along the track and worked on the feelings of the women by intimating to them that they would be homeless unless their husbands returned to work. The reports that the men are returning to work, the speaker characterized as false in the extreme. Reverting to the subject of false reports in the newspapers, he proceeded to read a great many letters that had been received from chairmen along the line in which the men were reported to be all standing firmly together. These letters were from Port Arthur, Quebec, Moose Jaw, North Bend, B. C., Winnipeg, and he proceeded to read a great many letters that had been received from the various local chairmen along the line from the Atlantic to the Pacific in other places at which places the out-look for the strikemen was very hopeful. The attitude of the Toronto Globe towards the strikemen was highly praised in many of the letters.

The next feature taken up was the rates of wages in the different branches of the C.P.R. service during the past 20 years, showing that they had all advanced proportionately excepting the wages of the trackmen. He also referred to the letter of Chairman Pope of the Railway Engineers Union which he claimed was the reason that the strike had not been settled long ago. There was never a body of men that conducted themselves better than have the trackmen during the present strike and he resented the insinuation that they were train wreckers as had been alleged. In closing, Mr. Wilkinson said that he would be pleased to answer any questions in his power that might be asked of him.

A gentleman then asked him how it was that the Globe and the Mail had been tied to the Company.

The speaker in reply said that such was not the case with the Globe. It had given them four good editorials and very fair reports. The trackmen were all reading that paper.

MR. ED. BROWN.

Mr. Ed. Brown was called upon, and on rising was cordially received. He assured the meeting that he would not inflict any lengthy speech on them, but he merely wished to express his sympathy with the strikers. No man could live and keep a family on the wages the trackmen had been paid. He wished to let the trackmen know that he was with them.

MR. W. RUDKINS.

Mr. William Rudkins also spoke in favour of the strikers. He considered that Mr. Wilkinson had very ably placed the position of the trackmen before the meeting. Mr. Rudkins then went on to speak of the good behaviour of the strikers during the recent troubles, which speaks volumes. The travelling public are really those who should be more interested in the strike, as it is the travellers who are taking the chances. The strikers had his support.

MR. BALL'S SPEECH.

Mr. George Ball received a very hearty welcome. He wanted to know where was the Minister of Labour in the matter? Why was he not acting? Mr. Ball did not think that the strikers could look to the press for much sympathy, as had been instanced on more than one occasion in Peterborough. Referring to the large salaries railway managers get and the low wages of the ordinary employees, the speaker said that as long as a man had the pull he did not require the brains. He compared the $50,000 salary of the president to the $300 salary of the trackman, and held that it was most unfair. Proceeding with a very witty speech, the speaker advocated Government ownership of public franchises, claiming that railways and the like should be controlled by the people, who really owned them. Then they say that the roads are only paying five per cent. This is, however, after they have been pumped out and are existing on water. The promoters get their bonus, and the capitalists then sell out, and expect the railway to exist on wind. Such, he considered, was downright robbery. Workingmen should know no nationality, and the speaker went on to criticize the manner in which the ordinary poor man is tried in this country, which should not be styled British justice. In conclusion, he expressed the belief that the strike appealed to everybody. Should the company win, then the strikers will have received a set back; if they loose the trackmen will be lifted a step forward.

MR. GREEN'S VIEWS.

Mr. John Green said that he merely came down to show his sympathy with the men. He thought that Mr. Wilkinson had given a very concise account of the trouble and he was more than ever convinced of the justice of the strike. He considered that any man can do as good a day's work in eight hours as he can in ten. He would like to know why the Minister of Labour had not put the Alien Labour Law into motion.

Major Miller gave a very stirring address in which he critized the C.P.R. for the manner in which they paid their trackmen. He referred to the expense the average trackman had in raising a family and sending them to school and still he was expected to do so on $1.15 a day. He condemned Andrew Carnegie for the manner in which he made wealth out of the poor man and then when he is getting near the grave and finds that he cannot carry his wealth with him, he pretends to be giving great donations to public institutions. He urged unity and hoped that the public would stand by them. The remarks of Mr. Wilkinson ought to arouse enthusiasm, and all should show the great interest felt in the matter by giving them hearty support.

REV. DR. O'BRIEN.

Perhaps no speech was listened to more attentively than that of Rev. Dr. O'Brien who was present throughout the entire proceedings and has shown much sympathy in the trackmen's grievences. He claimed that he did not come down to the meeting to speak but to show the interest he took in the same. He would not go into the history of the strike as this had been ably done by Mr. Wilkinson, but there was no one, he felt, in the hall who could not be in sympathy of the strikers after such an earnest address. Why should trackmen be responsible for all alleged acts of train wreckers? He claimed that it was the ordinary tramp who was responsible for this and he felt sure that no trackman would do such an act. He found that it was not only a question of wages but the Company refuse to acknowledge the Trackmen's Union. Why should the trackmen not have a union when the two Railway Companies could combine and raise the price of tickets to St. Anne's this year by $2? In union there is strength, the Rev. Father reminded his audience, and he urged the citizens to stand by the trackmen. As to the condition of the track, those who have come up from the east say that it is in an unfit condition, and if all are in sympathy with the strike, don't travel on the C.P.R. (Applause.) Rev. Father O'Brien referred to the manner in hich Mr. Shevlin was put off the Company's tracks for alleged trespass which he charecterized as mean and contemptible. Strikes are to be deplored, but he thought this a most just one, for why should a trackman be asked to work for $1.15 a day in the burning sun that even beasts are dying in, and in weather so cold that the average man can not be out in. Andrew Carnegie's wealth was attacked by the speaker, who closed a very earnest address by eulogizing Mr. Wilkinson for the honest and straight forward manner in which he put forth the trackmen's side of the case.

Mr. Wm. Anderson, of Ottonabee, expressed himself in hearty sympathy with the strikers, but owing to the lateness of the hour would not make a speech. Mr. R. F. McGreggor also expressed the sympathy he felt in the trackmen's strike.

A resolution expressing sympathy with the striking trackmen was passed on motion of Rev. F. A Leitch, seconded by Major Miller.

A vote of thanks was passed to the chairman and the speakers and a most successful meeting was brought to a close by cheers for the trackmen.

BLOOD POISON

If you ever contracted any blood disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. At times you see alarming symptoms, but live in hopes no serious results will follow. Have you any of the following symptoms? Sore Throat, Ulcers on the Tongue or in the Mouth, Hair Falling Out, Aching Pains, Itchiness of the Skin, Sores or Blotches on the Body, Eyes Red and Smart, Dyspeptic Stomach, Sexual Weakness—Indications of the second stage. Don't trust to luck. Don't ruin your system with the old fogy treatment, —mercury and potash—which only suppresses the symptoms for a time, only to break out again, when happy in domestic life. Don't let quacks experiment on you. Our New Method Treatment is guaranteed to cure you. Our guarantees are backed by bank bonds, that the disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over twenty years. No experiment, no risk—not a "patch-up," but a positive cure. The worst cases solicited. THE COMPANY'S SHARE OF IT.

Plan Followed by a Conductor in Dividing Up Cash Receipts.

"I've heerd it said," remarked the rural traveler to the conductor of the suburban train, "thet, in spite of what folks sez about big combinations and syndicates grindin down the laborin man and swindlin the poor, the company don't always get the best of it."

"No; not always," said the conductor.

"But how kin a conductor—well, now, not bein pussonal, but you, fer instance—how could you get the best of the company just takin up tickets of which the company knows how many is issued?"

"You can't get the best of it on tickets," replied the conductor, "but sometimes a passenger boards a train in such a hurry that he hasn't time to purchase a ticket, and we collect his fare in cash. I knew a conductor once—Bill Scruggins was his name—who made considerable out of cash fares, and yet Bill claimed that he always gave the company its proper portion."

"How's thet?" asked the rural traveler.

"Well, Bill had a good route for cash fares—he used to run an accommodation—and when he came near his last station he'd take all the money he had collected and throw it up in the air. Whatever part of it stuck to the bell rope he gave to the company. The rest was his."

"I expect the wear and tear on thet there bell rope didn't amount to a great deal."

"I expect you're right about that. And yet they do say that a $10 note got caught on to it one day."

"Then I suppose he turned thet in to the company?"

"Well, I believe Bill did intend turning in that note, but when he took it down he found it was folded so derned peculiar that it just had to stick to that bell rope if it came anywhere near it, and so he didn't think he'd had a square deal."

"What did he do about it?"

"Had a passenger change the note into silver and threw it up again'."

YOUR TEETH.

Without good teeth there cannot be good mastication.

Without thorough mastication there cannot be perfect digestion, and poor health results.

Hence the paramount importance of sound teeth.

Clean teeth do not decay.

The importance of a sound first set of teeth is as great to the child as a sound second set is to the adult.

Children should be taught to use the toothbrush early.

Decay leads in time to pain and the total destruction of the tooth.

The substance of the following rules should therefore be impressed constantly upon all children:

1. The teeth should be cleansed at least once daily.

2. The best time to clean the teeth is after the last meal.

3. A small toothbrush with stiff bristles should be used, brushing up and down and across and inside and outside and in between the teeth.

4. A simple tooth powder or a little soap and some precipitated chalk taken up on the brush may be used if the teeth are dirty or stained.

5. It is a good practice to rinse the mouth out after every meal.

6. All rough usage of the teeth, such as cracking nuts, biting thread, etc., should be avoided, but the proper use of the teeth in chewing is good for them.

When decay occurs, it should be attended to long before any pain results. It is stopping of a small cavity that is of the greatest service.

Gladstone In a Huff.

Max Muller told me about a curious experience he had when staying in Gladstone's own home at Hawarden. The conversation naturally turned to matters Hellenic, and in the course of it Gladstone made a grammatical mistake in Greek. His learned guest mildly tried to correct him, but Gladstone rather haughtily maintained that he was perfectly right. After another fruitless attempt of Max Muller, Gladstone became so imperative in his assertion that his guest quietly answered: "Well, we can easily solve the difficulty. No doubt you have a Greek grammar in the house. Let us look into it!"

Thereupon Gladstone rose in a huff. No Greek grammar was brought down, nor did the great statesman appear himself any more on that occasion. It was a most painful scene for Max Muller. Mrs. Gladstone tried her best, in the meantime, to apologize for her husband's behavior. "I am sorry to say," she remarked, "that he cannot brook contradictions. I hope you won't mind it."

Quaint Old Custom.

Some quaint old sayings regarding Whitsuntide have come down to our times. Perhaps one of the most curious of all is the one to the effect that a child born on Whitsunday is fated either to kill or to be killed. In some country districts it was customary at one time to go through a mock form of burial. The infant was laid in a small grave and sprinkled lightly with clay, while sod, supported by twigs, was placed over him. He was then taken out and by virtue of this resurrection was considered quite free of the taint. There was an idea, too, that "whatsoever one asked of God on Whitsunday morning at the instant the sun rose was sure to be granted."—London Chronicle.

Education.

"Why, I can put my baby to sleep with one punch in the solar plexus!" exclaimed the young mother, glowing proudly.

Secretly we envied her her savoir faire, but still we felt it incumbent upon us to affect misgivings as to the expediency, not to say propriety, of the higher education, so called, for women.

AN OPTICAL ILLUSION.

One of the Tricks Performed by the Fakirs of India.

The fakirs of India perform some remarkable tricks. The following one was witnessed by an Englishman who was himself an excellent prestidigitateur:

The apartment being filled, the magicians began their performance. The audience sat on the floor about the fakirs, so that they had no way of concealing themselves or of hiding anything. At their request I examined them and satisfied myself that they had nothing about them. Then one of the women stepped into the inclosure, the rest remaining behind the spectators, who formed a close ring about them. The light was now turned down a little, and in a moment the woman's face began to be illuminated by a ghostly light that extended quickly over her entire body.

She then began to move around and around, uttering a low, murmuring sound the while, gradually quickening the pace until she was whirling about like a top. A moment of this, and the light that had clung about her seemed to be whirled off by centrifugal force and assumed a pillarlike form beside her. As soon as this was accomplished she stopped, turned and began to mold the light with her hand, and, though I could distinctly see her hands move through the light as if it were a cloud, it began to assume human form. We saw the arms, hands and legs all molded and finally the face and headgear. She next called for a light, and, the candles being relighted, there stood an utter stranger, a native seemingly, evolved out of cloudland. He stepped forward and grasped me by the hand. His hands were moist, as if with perspiration, and he was a very healthy spirit.

After he had talked and drunk a glass of arrack he took his place beside the woman again and began to whirl about. The lights were dimmed, but not so that we could not see, and in a few minutes the figure began to fade, soon assuming the appearance of a pillar or form of light and then attaching itself to the woman and seemingly being absorbed by her. All this was done in a very short space of time before the eyes of at least 50 people and not ten feet from myself. The girl appeared greatly exhausted afterward.

TWO MORE WITNESSES.

It is surprising to note how many people are commending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets nowadays. They are winning new friends everywhere. The work goes on continuously.

Throughout the length and breadth of Canada are thousands of people, who after every meal take a Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablet. They are a large proportion of the vast majority, the greater part of the population that suffer from weak stomachs and faulty digestion.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the greatest tonic for a weak ailing stomach, ever compounded. They are composed of the finest digestants found in nature, pepsin among others. They do the stomach's work, and let that tired-out over-worked organ take a holiday.

That's all the stomach wants — a rest. At once it will begin to save its strength and grow strong again. Hundreds of people have been cured of heartburn and pain after eating, by using only one box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Thousands of people have been permanently cured of chronic Dyspepsia of long standing, by three or four boxes, and that after every other means had failed. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets act on the only rational principle in the treatment of Digestion Troubles—Rest for the stomach.

"I consider our cures miraculous," writes Mrs. Coletti Arseneau, of Russeau Le Blanc, Que. "My daughter Marie and myself suffered miserably with Dyspepsia. We employed all the remedies possible, but they were all useless. Having heard Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets spoken of, we took four boxes between the two of us, and I am happy to say we are cured. I recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets highly to all sufferers from Stomach Troubles."

Cast From Molds.

Molds for casting iron can only be made in sand. Iron or other metallic molds chill the iron, and it does not fill well. The great heat at which iron melts will burn any other material or will stick so as to break the mold.

Indefinite Instructions.

CARE OF LACES.

When putting lace away, fold as little as possible. A good plan is to wind it round a card, as they do in the shops.

Use cornflour instead of ordinary starch for stiffening laces. This makes them firm and does not detract from the lacy appearance.

Laces and other delicate trifles should be placed in a muslin bag before being boiled. This prevents their getting lost and torn in the wash.

After "getting up" laces do not leave them to air in a damp place—round the fire when the kettle is boiling, for instance. This robs them of their freshness and makes them look limp.

All laces before being ironed should be carefully pulled out, each point receiving attention. You will be repaid for your trouble, as the lace will look twice as nice and last clean a much longer time.

Cramps are Like Burglars

they come unexpected, and when they are least welcome. Be armed with a one minute cure for cramps and keep Polson's Nerviline handy, it acts instantaneously. Nerviline's anodyne power is unique, for its composition expresses the highest medical progress of the age. Polson's Nerviline is a true comfort in the family for in all dangerments of the stomach and bowels it is an absolute specific. Nerviline has five times greater medicinal value than any other remedy and is sold in large 25 cent bottles. Try it.

Near the Popping Point.

"Mary," said her father, "you have been keeping company with that Mitchell fellow for more than a year now. This courtship must come to a termination."

"Oh, father, how can you talk so? He is, oh, so sweet and nice!"

"Ah!" And the fond father arched his eyebrows. "Sweet and nice, eh? Has he proposed?"

"Well, father, not exactly." And the girl hung her head and fingered the drapery of her dress. "He hasn't exactly proposed; but, then, last evening when we were out walking we passed by a nice little house, and he said, 'That's the kind of cottage I'm going to live in some day,' and I said, 'Yes,' and then he glanced at me and squeezed my hand. Then, just as we got by, I glanced back at the cottage, and—and I squeezed his hand!"

"Oh, ah, I see!" said her father. "Well, we'll try him another week or two."—London Answers.

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increases the weight of thin babies and delicate children also.

TELLTALE PICTURES.

PAINTINGS THAT HAVE DONE THE WORK OF DETECTIVES.

Instances Where the Canvas of an Artist Has Led to the Confession of a Criminal—A Portrait and a Stolen Diamond Pendant.

An artist who had suddenly become almost famous by his production of a painting exhibited at the Royal academy was one day called upon by a man whose visit was productive of the most extraordinary and undreamt of consequences.

The picture represented a lonely stretch of beach, upon which the sea was beating in long, creamy rollers. In the foreground, bending over a dead body, was a man with a wild expression on his face and with a naked knife in his hand. A ship's boat, evidently just beached, was also in the picture, and by the side of the murdered man was a bag of gold. The picture portrayed the advent of two castaways upon a friendly shore. The one had murdered the other so that the treasure might be his.

The painter's visitor was a gray haired, wild eyed man.

"In heaven's name, sir," he gasped out, "how did you learn the dreadful story that you painted? I see you know all. I murdered my mate Bill to get the money that was his. I threw his body into the sea. I don't know what impulse led me to the Academy. The first thing I saw was your picture representing the scene that took place 30 years ago."

Needless to say, the picture had been the outcome of imagination. Yet murder will out, and the guilty conscience of the man who had killed his comrade for lust of gold had convinced him that the painting was no coincidence, but was indeed the actual portrayal of a dastardly and unwitnessed crime.

There is probably no picture better known in England than "The Doctor," by Mr. Luke Fildes, yet there are probably very few people aware of the fact that that selfsame masterpiece was the means of bringing to light the perpetration of a crime that would otherwise never have been known.

A certain doctor in a large town committed suicide, and among his papers was a letter which ran as follows: "I have today seen Luke Fildes' 'Doctor.' The picture represents a medical man watching by the bedside of a child. It has so haunted me that I am going to take away my own worthless life and make a confession at the same time. When Arthur's"—his brother's—"boy died, I came into money that my dead brother had settled on him. He died as all the world thought of acute pneumonia. Yet his life might have been saved had I acted, as Fildes' 'Doctor' is so evidently doing, with the use of all the skill that lay in my power. I hastened the boy's end and so got the money. I can bear it no more."

A well known artist was commissioned to paint the portrait of a lady in exalted circles, who boasted the possession of a most unique jewel in the form of a pendant. The lady was very anxious that this heirloom should be included in her portrait. The artist, of course, complied with her request.

Shortly after the painting had been completed a daring burglary was perpetrated, with the result that the lady lost her heirloom, and no trace of the thief or thieves was forthcoming. Years passed by, and the lady gave up all hope of ever seeing the precious heirloom again.

Now, it so happened that the artist who had painted the portrait of the lady mentioned had occasion to travel in India.

In the course of his wanderings he came to Bombay and, as every visitor to that place does, strolled through the native bazaar.

Suddenly his attention was riveted by a piece of jewelry in a jeweler's shop that seemed familiar to him. It was a diamond and ruby pendant. Where had he seen it before? He ransacked his brain, but could not remember.

He returned to his hotel and happened to take from his portfolio a sketch of the portrait he had made years ago of the lady with the pendant.

In a moment the enigma was solved. The piece of jewelry he had seen was the peculiar pendant that his fair sitter had been so anxious he should include in his portrait.

He hurried off to the chief of police, and told that worthy what he suspected, namely, that the bazaar he had visited contained the long lost jewel of the English lady. Inquiries were at once set on foot with extraordinary results. The jeweler in the bazaar confessed to having given years ago a quite insignificant sum for the jewel, which he had bought from a stableman in the employ of a neighboring rajah. The stableman was sought for, and turned out to be none other than a famous English cracksman, who had apparently turned honest, but who, nevertheless, confessed to having been the thief of the jewel that had been so miraculously discovered.

There's Nothing "Just as Good"

As Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for womanly diseases. No one knows this better than the woman who has tried local doctors and many medicines and found no cure until she began the use of "Favorite Prescription." It establishes regularity, stops weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I was troubled for three years with ulceration and female weakness and my doctor gave me but little relief," writes Mrs. Lulu Hunter, of Allenton, St. Louis Co., Mo. "I saw an advertisement in the paper of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I began the use of it about a year ago. I took five bottles of it, and one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and my health is better now than it was for years. I have also recommended these medicines to some of my friends, who suffered from female weakness, and good results have followed."

YOUR WATCH.

In laying aside a watch be sure that it rests upon its case.

A watch should be wound up every day at the same hour.

Avoid putting it on a marble slab or near anything excessively cold.

If suspended, the action of the balance may cause oscillation, which will interfere with its going.

The cold also coagulates the oil, and the pivots and wheels work less freely and affect the regularity of the timekeeping.

To keep your watch clean take care that the case fits closely and see that the watch pocket is kept free from fluff, which is so often given off by linings.

Avoid sudden jars and falls, for even if it does not seem to affect it at the moment, a watch will resent rough handling by becoming gradually "out of order" without apparent cause.

How Banana Trees Grow.

It is a peculiar fact that but one bunch of bananas grows on a tree. After the fruit has been cut the tree is then cut down to the ground, and from the stump another tree sprouts which bears another bunch the following year. The greatest trouble of farmers is to keep the farms clear of sprouts. They shoot up from the roots of the tree for a radius of ten feet and grow like weeds.

As the fruit is cut from the trees it is placed on the backs of little pack donkeys and transported in this way to the coast. One donkey can carry from three to six bunches, according to the size of the bunches and the distance from the coast. In the season at Baracoa there are more than 3,000 donkeys that stretch along in a line for miles, plodding toward the coast with their loads of bananas.

Don't Dine Alone.

How many people dine alone? The restaurants all number solitary diners among their regular clientage. How many thousands of people, men or women, will eat a lone dinner or supper tonight in the cities and towns and hamlets of Christendom? The evil of eating alone is the subject of an earnest although cheerful warning from the London Lancet. The hygienic value of gregarious dining is insisted upon. The necessity of taking food in social fashion is an inherent racial sort of thing, and those who go against it for years usually have to pay for it with some of the ills of indigestion. Breakfasting alone is not bad for a busy generation, but dining alone is not a habit to be long continued, in civilization or out of it, without disastrous results.

It Works Both Ways.

"You are an ungrateful child! If it hadn't been for you, I could have gone to the mothers' congress."

"If it hadn't been for me, you couldn't have gone, because you wouldn't have been a mother."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE MAN BEHIND THE PEN.

And the Comment of the Man Who Received His Letter.

I knew it was a mean letter when I wrote it, but afterward I concluded that I must have written a good deal meaner than I knew. I was counsel for a large manufacturing company. One of their customers, always an unsatisfactory man to deal with on account of his constant fault finding and objections to paying his bills on various absurd pretexts, finally refused point blank to settle a bill for some $5,000 on the ground that the goods were not just as ordered. The company then instructed me to write him the worst letter that I could indite, threatening him with all possible pains and penalties, legal and otherwise, with good measure of abuse thrown in, since they had little hope that he would pay and less desire for his custom in the future. Accordingly I bent myself to the task. I hope I'm an honest man, but I can't help saying that that letter was a stinger. I suspect that it was the meanest thing that ever went into a mail bag.

A few days later a messenger from the manufacturing firm called and asked me to step over to their place of business, as there was a man there who wished to meet me. I am about 5 feet 4 inches, and my weight averages 110 pounds.

When I reached the firm's place, I was ushered into the private office. The first thing I saw, and about the only thing visible, was a big man who must have weighed fully 300 pounds. "Mr. Blank," said the president, "this is Mr. Dash, who wrote you that letter."

Mr. Blank arose, shutting off the light from two windows. For a full minute he stood looking down at me with open mouth and bulging eyes. Then he turned to the others and with an expression of mingled astonishment and disgust on his face said:

"Well, smitten Cæsar! If I had known it was such a little, insignificant, sawed off cricket who wrote me that letter, I never would have paid that bill!"

Of Two Evils the Lesser.

Papa—Didn't I tell you, Willie, if I caught you playing with Tommy Jink again I would whip you?

Willie—Yes, sir.

Papa—Then why were you playing with him?

Willie—Well, I got lonesomer than I thought a lickin would hurt, so I just went over and played with him; that's why.

On Saturday last the Club, a couple of 'bus loads strong, left the smoky and grimy atmosphere of the town for the annual Stony Lake trip. This trip is given through the kindness of Mr. Rupe. Donell, who each year puts his beautiful yacht, the Mayflower, at the service of the Club.

After arriving at Lakefield where the yacht was in waiting, the party boarded it and the trailers and started north. The yacht was steaming rapidly up the stream when suddenly rounding a bend in the river she came upon the Empress under a full head of steam. She was comming down. The wake of the large steamer caused the end trailer to dance a "devil's hornpipe" on the waves, to the great amusement of the party on the boat, and to the extreme terror of the young man in the canoe who showed the effects of the situation by the great change of color in his face and the upward motion of his hair. While in another canoe Andy Patterson could plainly be seen on his knees with his hands clasped as though in silent prayer.

Nothing more occurred to mar the pleasure of the voyage until almost half way up Clear Lake when the interest of the party was centred on a small boat which was making frantic efforts to head off the yacht. The captain immediately rang the engineer to slow down the boat. On arriving it proved to be a boat from a large camp on the west shore. One of the occupants of the boat appeared to be in a starving condition and implored to be taken on board. On his explaining the condition of the camp larder the sympathy of the party was aroused, and he was tenderly lifted aboard. He afterwards proved the truth of his story by the ravenous manner in which he put "Cook Trombly's" viands down the cavity in his face.

After an interesting sail among the beautiful islands of Stony Lake, the party was put ashore at "Kick-a-Poo's Landing," otherwise known as White Lake Portage. After seeing the sights here the party embarked in small boats and sailed to the lower end of White Lake where possession was taken of the shanties owned by the genial proprietor of the Brock street livery, Mr. Jack Fitzgerald, who had kindly put them at the service of the Club. After a short delay a sumptious supper was served in a manner only known to Mr. Jack Trombly, and after the usual smoke and yarn telling around the camp fire, the party retired to the hayloft there to spend the night in blessings on the mosquitoes, which the boys will take their oath were the size of craw-fish.

About 4 o'clock in the morning the boys were kindly awakened from their slumbers by a shrill cry of fear, which upon getting their eyes pried open were found to proceed from Mr. Joe Begley, who informed them there was a large sized wild cat or tiger in a tree a few feet from the open end of the loft. After an examination by Naturalist Harry Westbrook, he declaired it to be a small porcupine which was taking his morning observation, and after an unfruitful effort by Mr. Geo. Mulligan (who was shot full of toothpicks) to dislodge him, retired to allow Mr. Andy Patterson to advance boldly to the attack with his six-shooter, and after a half hour's cannonading he quietly remarked that he didn't have his other pistol with him, and quietly stole off among the trees. "Moral."—The porcupine is probably there yet.

Three young men while playing Christopher Columbus, on the beautiful Indian river, on turning a bend were suddenly drawn into the rapids The current being too swift to stop they heroicaly steered their craft to the foot—a half mile below. Their return was rather picturesque being observed by a party from the camp, coming up the rapids clothed in nature's garb, with the exception of a belt by which they were bound together and towing the cance.

After a pleasant day spent in sailing, rowing, etc., the party started for White Lake portage where the Mayflower was in waiting, and after a beautiful evening's sail arrived at Young's Point. Here an appropriately worded address was presented to Mr. Donell. The party then boarded the 'busses and started for home a tired, happy, good-natured crowd.—Com.

BASEBALL.

Townspeople in general are asked to bear in mind the game of baseball on the P.A.A.A. grounds to-morrow afternoon between the Kingston Ponies and the locals. The Ponies are a pretty smart team, and are generally looked upon as winners, but look out for the locals—they are in the pink of condition. They had another splendid practice last night. The game starts at 3.30.

McCabe and Kehoe, p; Connors, 1b; Mulhall, 2b; Scott, 3b; Parnell, ss; Grady, lf; Earls, cf; Sheridan, rf; Graham, c. The above team will represent the locals to-morrow against the Kingston team on the P.A.A.A. grounds.

The Port Hope Guide gives the following account of a game of baseball in that town.

"The Young Nationals of Peterborough, came in yesterday afternoon and played the Young Sports of this town, and although the final score was very one-sided, still the game had its good features, one of them being the magnificent pitching of E. Flaherty for the visitors, who struck out no less than 20 of the Sports. Every Port Hoper fanned wind, some got fooled three times, and if the visiting fielders had supported their twirler in the last three innings, the score would have been very much smaller. On the other hand the Sports played well together, giving Pilling encouraging support all through and he did not exert himself, only striking out 5 men. The infield had lots of work, but the outfielders were not busy, only on a few occasions, when the ball was hit out of their reach. The game was good until the seventh inning, when the Sports lit on to Flaherty's delivery with a will and then the visitors got badly rattled, while Port Hope piled up 15 runs, and the side was only retired when the pitcher regained his nerve and struck out three players. Three more came in the eighth, and in the ninth the fireworks again started, 13 runs being tallied. It was at the request of the visitors that Port Hope batted first, and they refused to allow the Sports to forfeit the ninth innings, hence the 13 runs. The Peterborough boys were game and desired to suffer for their folly, which they thought at first to be advantageous. Mr. Jack Rosevear umpired the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

No Higher Pay for Soldiers

London, July 27.—In the House of Commons last night Mr. Brodrick, the War Secretary, during the debate on the war vote, replying to suggestions that Great Britain ought to adopt the higher rates of pay in force in the United States, said: "The United States call for only one man to every one thousand of the population for military service. Great Britain calls upon one in every hundred of her population. There is no proof that the pay which attracts one in every thousand would draw one in every one hundred." Mr. Brodrick added that recruiting, though not so high as during the excitement of last year, was still higher than formerly.

KING EDWARD PRESENTS MEDALS.

Thirty-two N.C.O. and Men Refused to Attend While Their Families Starved.

London, July 27. — King Edward presented medals to 3,000 returned Yeomanry at the Horse Guards parade here yesterday. The ceremonial was the same as observed at the former presentation of medals, but the inclement weather robbed the function of its brilliance. Queen Alexandra and Prince Edward, son of the Duke of Cornwall and York, were present. Considerable comment has been aroused by the refusal of 32 non-commissioned officers and men to attend the ceremony, on the ground that their pay was in arrears. These men have addressed letters to King Edward, pointing out that they cannot submit to be decorated, while their wives and families and some of their number are starving. The claims of the men, who say they have not yet been paid, vary from £63 to £127. Some of the claimants allege that they have had to pawn some of their earlier medals in order to procure food for their families.

Matthews Falsely Accused.

Toronto, July 27. — William H. Matthews, the Huntsville private banker, who was accused by John R. Whitesides of the same town with forging his name to notes amounting to over $9,000, which he discounted at the Molsons Bank here, came back yesterday from New York, where he had been spending his honeymoon, and surrendered himself to Sergeant Reburn. He appeared in the police court but it did not take five minutes to settle his case. The complainant admitted that the signatures on the notes were genuine, and that he had made a mistake when he had repudiated them. Mr. Matthews was very much annoyed over the notoriety the case has given him, but his reputation was completely cleared by the police court proceedings yesterday.

Drowned Near Coboconk.

Coboconk, July 27.—On Tuesday evening, at Moore's Lake, 12 miles north of here, Miss King of Pittsburg, aged 14, was drowned. Miss King, accompanied by another girl, went to bathe. She could not swim, so stayed near the shore. She left the water and sat on a sloping rock, which jetted out into the deep water. In some way she slipped from the rock into the water and disappeared. Her companion swam to her assistance, grappled with her, but was unable to rescue her. The deceased was one of a party of Pittsburg people who annually camp at Moore's Lake.

After Mr. McIntosh.

Dresden, July 27. — Some days ago Allen McIntosh, proprietor of the Clifford House, discovered that an attempt had been made to burn his barn, but his timely arrival prevented the destruction of the barn. The next morning a quantity of Paris green was found in the feed box of the horse stall, evidently put there with the idea that the oats would be thrown in upon it.

COLLISION ON G. T. R.

International Limited Plays Havoc With Freight Cars.

NO ONE SERIOUSLY INJURED.

A Narrow Escape for Trainmen and Passengers—How the Accident Occurred at Toronto—The Mile-a-Minute Train Capably Handled—An Awful Crash When the International Overtook the Yard Freight.

Toronto, July 27.—The Grand Trunk Railway crossing at Eastern avenue was the scene yesterday afternoon of a collision which was attended by considerable damage to rolling stock and in which several people narrowly escaped with their lives. Yesterday it was decided to move some old cars from one siding to another siding. The work of removing the cars was commenced about 3.00 o'clock, and was being performed by a crew from the local yards when the accident occurred. Yard Engine No. 657, in charge of Engineer Hutton, was backed into the siding and was coupled to the cars and the removal commenced under the direction of Yardman O'Donaghue. In pulling out of the siding the train reached the main line tracks, and after clearing it commenced shunting the cars to the other siding.

About this time the International Limited from Montreal, due to arrive at 4.15 o'clock at the Union Station, was heard to whistle and then rapidly approaching. The train of cars was on the same tracks as the "flyer," and Engineer Hutton, realizing his position, decided to try and make the siding where he was to leave the empty cars. Hardly had the freight train started to move when around the bend appeared the flyer, coming fast.

Engineer Ireland, in charge of the International Limited, quickly took in the situation, and at once reversed and applied the air brakes. He was then less than 100 yards from the freight train, and although slackening up he knew that a collision was unavoidable.

Engineer Hutton opened wide the throttle of his engine and attempted, if possible, to reach the siding and get clear of the main line.

Despite all efforts of Engineer Ireland his train still ran on, and when just at the crossing crashed into the locomotive attached to the freight cars with tremendous force. All was excitement. Passengers on the "flyer" were thrown out of their seats, both engines were off the tracks, and seven of the freight cars were thrown down the embankment. The crash was heard for many blocks and soon people were hurrying to the wreck from all points.

Notwithstanding the danger the crews of both engines remained at their posts until the collision. Passengers made hasty exits from the the coaches, some crawled through the windows and others gained an entrance through the doors. Inside of a few moments all passengers had left the cars.

The force of the collision threw one freight car over another, breaking one in two parts, leaving the trucks of several and tossing one on top of the house occupied by the gate man at the crossing, and carrying it down the embankment.

The engine on the freight train had broken away in the collision, and was badly damaged. The front of the locomotive on the "flyer" was also demolished, but the passenger cars remained on the tracks.

Word was sent to the Toronto yards, and soon a wrecking train was at the scene. About 9 o'clock the tracks were cleared, and the line was once more open for traffic. It was necessary to replace two rails, which were twisted out of place.

The damage occasioned by the collision will be considerable. The seven freight cars wrecked will be a complete loss, excepting the trucks, which will be saved. The other damage was done to the two engines, rails and gate man's house.

According to Mr. White, the engineer and crew of the freight train will be held responsible for the accident. He says that they had no right whatever to run onto the main line tracks at the time they did. The main line is supposed to be clear at the crossing ten minutes prior to the arrival there of the International Limited. An investigation into the cause of the accident will be held by Superintendent Jones.

Big Fire in Laprairie.

Laprairie, Que., July 27. — This town was visited by a disastrous conflagration about 11 o'clock Thursday night. About 50 families were turned out, and among the principal buildings destroyed are the convent, Beauvais' dry goods store, Beauvais' implement factory and dwelling, Lefeyre's jewelry store and dwelling, Bourasse & Potvin's and 26 dwellings. The Montreal fire brigade arrived in time to save the Roman Catholic Church, the roof of which had caught fire.

OUR MINES.

The manner in which the Ontario Government is administering its policy as relating to encouragement to the development of mineral properties, is amply vindicated by the wonderful progress, which is being made in mining enterprise during the last four years :

The tenth annual report of the Bureau of Mines and the first since the appointment of T. N. Gibson as director, has just been issued, and it is a most comprehensive volume, dealing with every form of mining and metallic production. The amount of scientific information furnished as regards the yet unexplored mining regions renders it a valuable work to all taking an interest in this important and growing industry.

The principal exception to a steady progress is the decline in the production of gold, many of the mines having been closed, some only temporarily. But any falling off in this line is more than made up in the substantial advances made in iron, nickel and copper mining.

The total value of the output of minerals for 1900 amounts to $9,298,624, as compared with $8,416,083 in 1899, an increase of about ten per cent. The number of employees was 10,934, an increase of nine per cent. over the working force in 1899, and the amount paid in wages was $3,366,601, an increase of fifteen per cent. The iron mining industry has made the greatest advances. The total product of iron ore was 90,302 tons, an increase of 73,391 tons over the output of 1899, the value of which was $111,805, an increase of $80,854. The working force has been increased from 100 to 438 men and the wages paid from $26,700 to $107,583. The opening and extensive development of the Helen Mine in the Michipicoten district has in fact revolutionized the iron industry as a continually increasing proportion of the pig iron made at the Ontario blast furnaces is now the product of native ore. The quantity of pig iron manufactured in 1900 was 62,386 tons, valued at $936,-000, an increase in value of $127,909. Of the ore used in the process 22,887 tons, or twenty-three per cent. was from Ontario mines, the remainder being imported. Statistics for the prior three months of 1900, however, show that during this period the percentage of native ore used had risen to forty-three per cent. of the whole. It is altogether probable that before long none but the Ontario product will be employed. The number of employees at the blast furnaces was 419, or more than double the number for 1899, and the wage bill amounted to $97,915.

Gold production, as has been intimated, has fallen off, the yield being 18,767 ounces, value $297,861, as against 27,594 ounces, value $124,568, in 1899. The silver output showed a substantial increase, the figures being for 1899,105,467 ounces, value $65,-575; 1900, 160,612 ounces, value $96,-376. There was likewise a notable increase in the yield of nickel and copper in the form of matte. The nickel output was 3,540 tons of the value of $756,626, as compared with 2,872 tons worth $526,104 in 1899. Copper yielded 3,364 tons, valued at $319,681, as against 2,884 tons worth $176,236. The value given are those of the The values given are those of the state. There were 1,444 men employed in the nickel and copper mining, drawing aggregate wages amounting to $728,946.

Petroleum products have increased in value to the amount of $121,693, while natural gas has decreased to the extent of 848,081, owing to the diminution of the supply. Two non-metallic products which have risen in importance as factors of the mining output are cement and mica. The production of the former was valued at $698,015, while mica is experiencing something of a boom by the opening up of large deposits in Frontenac and Lanark counties. The value of the output has risen from $38,000 to $91,750.

Three new products appear on the list for the first time, steel, corundum and felspar. The production of steel aggregated 2,819 tons of the value of $46,380. Corundum has only been produced in small quantities as yet, but operations undertaken at several points are likely to result in a large output before long.

The number of companies chartered under provincial law for mining purposes was forty-eight, having an authorized capital of $35,8118,999, as compared with seventy-four companies with $87,382,994 capital in 1899.

Nine companies with $6,585,000 capital also took out licenses to carry on business in the province. Mining lands amounting to 30,972 acres, were sold and 28,127 acres leased during the year. The total receipts from the mining lands was $108,952. In addition to the full details of the various mining enterprises furnished by the mining inspectors, there are several interesting reports by Prof. A. P. Coleman, Prof. W. G. Miller and others, dealing with the mineral regions of New Ontario, which will be of practical value to investors and prospectors.

PROCURING THE HARVESTERS.

All That Is Now Troubling the Farmers of Manitoba.

Winnipeg, July 27.—General Manager McNicoll of the C. P. R. returned yesterday morning from a trip west and northwest. In reply to an inquiry regarding the harvest prospects, he said: "The crops promise a splendid yield. I found the business men and farmers everywhere in high spirits, as well they may be."

One thing troubling them is the probable scarcity of harvest hands. The Canadian Pacific Railroad Company, the Manitoba Government and the Government at Ottawa are doing all in their power to secure harvesters, but wages in the east are very high, and it may not be as easy to get as many as are required.

"Another thing the farmers and grain buyers are anxious about is whether we shall be able to move the immense crop to Lake Superior before navigation closes. I may say on that point that we are making very large additions to our rolling stock and motive power and will be in a position to take care of the traffic, provided we are given a fair chance.

"I have just wired Mr. Kerr to run harvesters' excursions two weeks this year instead of one. The excursions will be running from Aug. 5 to 17."

Pierced by a Fork.

Stratford, July 27. — A distressing accident occurred yesterday afternoon in the Gore of Downie, as a result of which Michael O'Connor, a young farmer, lies at the point of death. He was on a load of grain when the wagon tipped, throwing him to the ground. The prongs of a fork passed through his body, just below the heart. The young man is not likely to recover.

Only Doubled Annual Fee.

Toronto, July 27.—The Orange Mutual Benefit Fund has not increased its assessment as stated yesterday. The fee has been increased from $1 to $2. Thus it is only the annual fee that has been doubled, and the assessment remains as it was.

Had $15,000 in the Bank.

New York, July 27. — Mrs. Catharine Griffin, a dependant upon charity, died yesterday in a wretched hovel she had occupied for ten years. In the house was found a bank book showing deposits amounting to $15,000.

THANKS TO THE PREMIER.

A Letter From Major-General Baden-Powell—He Appreciates the Worth of the Canadians.

Ottawa, July 27.—The Premier has received a letter from Major-General Baden-Powell, dated Zuurfontein, Transvaal, of which the following is a copy:

"Will you forgive my writing you a short note to tender my gratitude for all that you have done in assisting the development of the force with whose organization I am charged? By your good offices the Canadian contingent has been added to our establishment, and with the excellent material of which it is formed it will be a valuable addition to our strength. I have learned in the recent campaign to admire and to appreciate the worth of the Canadians in the field, and am, therefore, truly glad to welcome your contingent to our corps. Comprising, as it does, men from every one of our great colonies, as well as from the home country, the South African Constabulary is par excellence an Imperial corps, and as such I hope it will typify the empire itself as working honestly and harmoniously in the great work of bringing peace and prosperity over the territories now added to our rule. And in this good work the Canadians will have a prominent share. I trust the connection thus commenced between Canada and South Africa is but an augury of a close and profitable connection in the future. I am, sir, yours faithfully (signed) R. Baden-Powell, Inspector-General, South African Constabulary."

SOMETHING FOR THE DEAF.

Deafness is so common an infirmity among all classes that it will be of interest to those of our readers so afflicted to know that a curative treatment, based chiefly on external application, has been lately discovered, and is giving some wonderful results in England, where it is now extensively applied.

The discovery is now some years old, and is due to a French aurist, Dr. Drouet, of the Faculty of Medicine, Paris. We will try to explain in what the new treatment consists.

When the anatomy of the organ of hearing is studied, we noticee that all its delicate parts—the labyrinth or inner ear, and the tympanic cavity—are carefully sheltered inside the skull. And it is always there that the chronic maladies from which deafness result are situated. Without the operation of trepanning, it is impossible to reach these essential parts, and for a long time there was a question of discovering by what means remedies for restoring their functions could be applied. The most strange and ingenious processes have been successively employed; catheterism or inflation of the Middle Ear, application of liquids or vapours through the nose, syringing, blistering.

The effects of electricity have, of course, been tried, and general treatment has been assiduously resorted to. But it must be owned that no lasting results have been obtained by these means, and on account of the difficulty of treatment, Deafness has been looked upon by all as a nearly incurable complaint.

But Drouet hit one day on the idea of utilising the well-known absorbent properties of the skin and tissues. He reflected that this was, in point of fact the way always employed of treating an internal disorder locally, and setting out from this principle, he drew up a formula of a preparation in the form of a crescent-shaped plaster, which is applied to the mastoid process, the swollen part of the skull behind the ear, exactly underneath which are situated those internal parts of the auditory organ of which we have just been speaking. To these external applications an auxiliary treatment is generally added, whenever there is any inflamation of the nose or throat or where antiseptic precautions are necessitated by some discharge from the ear. The curative treatment, therefore, differs in nearly every case, but external applications are always the foundation of it.

Drouet's first experiments in his method were made at Paris, at the Institute bearing his name (Institut Drouet), and the results that he obtained there were so remarkable that two establishments of the same kind have lately been founded, one at Brussels, and the other at London. The curative power of the new treatment is really marvellous. With the exception of cases which have been rendered completely incurable by previous surgical operations, it may be asserted that a radical cure is usually obtained, no matter what may be the nature or duration of the affection which has caused the deafness. Old people of eighty years have been completely cured, as well as patients who had been pronounced incurable by eminent aurists.

It is to be desired that Drouet Institutes may be speedily founded in Canada and America, but, meanwhile, deaf persons and those suffering from serious auricular affections will be glad to learn that they can undergo the Drouet treatment immediately if they wish. They need only to write to the Drouet Institute, 72, Regent's-park-road, London, England, and the secretary will promptly send them all needful information, together with a pathological report form, which will enable them to give a detailed description of their case, and thus place the consulting surgeon in a position to prescribe the treatment necessary for their cure.

Tiger's Make Believe Eyes.

Mr. Beddard of the London Zoological society calls attention to a peculiarity of the ears of tigers which he thinks may be classed under the head of "protective markings." On the back of each ear is a very bright white spot, and when the ears are directed forward these spots are conspicuous from the front. Mr. Beddard suggests that when the tiger is sleeping in the dim light of a cave or thicket the spots on its ears may appear to an enemy, looking in, as the gleam of its watchful eyes, and thus save the sleeper from an unexpected attack.

The weak, fluttering heart becomes strong and regular when Miller's Compound Iron Pills are used. Sold by Wm. Madill.

Praises Pyramid Pile Cure.

Mrs. Aaron Medron, of Savannah, Ga., writes, "I had piles and rectal trouble for years, until it was was unbearable any longer. As I had often seen Pyramid Pile Cure advertised, I determined to try it, and for two years have never ceased to congratulate myself that I did so, for I have been entirely cured of rectal troubles and two packages of the Pyramid did it."

The Pyramid Pile Cure contains no cocaine, opium, nor any injurious drug whatever, and is absolutely safe, painless, and never fails to cure piles in any form.

SAVING A BABY.

Hot weather is a little baby's worst enemy; babies can't be philosophical about it, as we grown-ups can; they swelter and fret and sicken and die by the hundreds in hot weather.

Powley's Liquified Ozone will prove many a baby's life-preserver this summer if you use it in time and wisely.

In a pint of milk put a teaspoonful of Powley's Liquified Ozone and stir it thoroughly. The milk will be perfectly sterilized; the baby will thrive on it; the bowels will be kept in order, and general conditions will be kept right.

Powley's Liquified Ozone has a definite action on all catarrhal conditions of the mucous membranes. Summer colds, catarrh of the bowels, "summer complaint," dysentery, Powley's Liquified Ozone does wonders with them, given internally in this way.

Well diluted as an injection it almost immediately corrects bowel troubles of infants.

It is astonishing what this new method of cure does. Nature can do almost anything if you give her a chance. We believe that Powley's Liquified Ozone is all the chance she needs.

Druggists have it; 50c. and $1.00 a bottle. Booklet about it free.

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Is Justly Popular Because of Its Many Health Advantages.

In summer time it is wise to avoid cereal foods that have a tendency to heat the blood, irritate the stomach, and bring on digestive derangements. If you would go forth to the duties of the way with a full measure of health and vigour use delicious and appetizing Malt Breakfast Food, easy to digest, and unequalled as a system nourisher. It requires the use of but one package of Malt Breakfast Food to convince sensible people of its great superiority over all other grain foods. All grocers and general stores.

Rev. Dr McKay's Death.

Montreal, July 27. — Great regret is felt on all sides at the dreadfully sudden death of the pastor of the Crescent street church. A despatch yesterday from Cap a l'Aigle says: Dr. McKay left Cap a l'Aigle about two weeks ago in his yacht, intending, if weather permitted, to go as far as Anticosti. He was heard from at several points along the north shore, and news came last night of his sudden death at Seven Islands, and that the body was on board the coasting steamer Duero, and would be taken to Quebec, where she is due to arrive to-morrow. Dr. McKay was accompanied by his youngest son and one or two other friends.

A despatch from Seven Islands says that Rev. Dr. McKay was in good health yesterday morning. He went to visit the wreck at St. Olaf and took sick on his return from there and died suddenly, after about half an hour of illness. Mr. S. P. Ross, Hudson Bay agent, claims that Rev. Dr. McKay died of apoplexy.

TRACKMEN'S STRIKE.

INFLUENCE ON WESTERN CROPS

Strike May Prove Injurious to the Farmers of the Northwest—A Sympathetic Meeting Held at Peterboro—Strikers in the West Are Taking up Other Employment—The Present Condition of Things.

Winnipeg, July 27.—Speaking concerning the trackmen's strike in the west, General Manager McNicoll said yesterday:

"As matters stand just now, the trackmen's strike in the old provinces is practically over; but in Manitoba and the Territories our old trackmen who want to go back and the new men whom we are employing are intimidated and driven off at many points. The intimidation is carried on by a few strikers whom nothing can satisfy, and by irresponsible persons in the smaller towns, who, I am sure, in no way represent the true state of public opinion. Then again meetings are being held, and wild resolutions passed by the irresponsible persons, which are telegraphed all over the continent to the immense injury of Manitoba, outsiders being led to believe that this part of the Dominion is in a state of anarchy, and that it will be impossible to get the present magnificent crop to market. The intimidation to which our trackmen are subjected extends to other labor which we are bringing in, the upshot being that we are prevented from building certain branch lines and extensions that are sorely needed. I venture to think that if the farmers and stock keepers at the places referred to would calmly reflect on the situation, they would perceive that they are quite as much interested in getting the strike settled in order that the crop may be promptly moved and the general business of the country handled as it ought to be in this period of prosperity."

What a Striking Foreman Says.

One of the striking C. P. R. foremen trackmen, seen in the city yesterday, said that nearly all the foremen, as well as ordinary trackmen, were now engaged at other work. The committee in charge of affairs had been changed so as to give the members an equal opportunity of earning money on which to keep their wives and children. He did not think there was any possibility of the men returning to work under the terms proposed by the company.

REPUDIATE UNION LABOR.

National Tube Works Ask Men to Sign Contracts to Checkmate Strike.

Pittsburg, July 27. —The National Tube Works Company at McKeesport has made an unsuccessful move, intended to checkmate the Amalgamated Association. Their skilled workmen have been asked to sign individual contracts to practically repudiate any union labor, and they have been given but a short time to think the matter over. It is understood that should they not sign the contracts they will find their positions vacant, and the ax is expected to fall to-day. Late on Thursday evening the 600 welders of the mills were paid off and then taken into the office of the general superintendent, where they were presented with individual contracts to be signed for at least a year. Some demurred, while others signed the contracts. It is intimated that all will sign.

It is definitely announced that the American Sheet Steel Company will start the Dewees mill at McKeesport as a non-union plant on Monday.

Violent Storm in London.

London, July 27.—A thunderstorm, one of the most prolonged if not the most severe that has visited the country for years, was experienced yesterday, and London and the neighborhood had the full share of it.

Traffic for a time was seriously interrupted. Outdoor amusements and public functions were stopped. House basements and even the underground railway of the Metropolitan Company were flooded. But for all that, no serious damage up to the present has been reported. Mrs. Langtry's new theatre, the Imperial, was flooded, and men of the fire brigade were employed to pump the water out.

Relief for Temiscaming Settlers.

Toronto, July 27.—A. N. Campbell will go to the Temiscaming district on Monday to get the colonization road work, for which the Legislature appropriated $7,000, started at once to afford an income of immediate relief to settlers needing employment in consequence of the recent fire destroying their crops.

The Cabinet Council on Tuesday will probably deal with the question of relief for the Temiscaming settlers.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST

To Hay Fever Sufferers.

Sufferers from hay fever and summer catarrh will be interested to learn that there is a new, simple, inexpensive, but effective home treatment for this obstinate and baffling disease, and that a little booklet fully describing the treatment will be mailed free to anyone by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

Doubtless this statement of a cure and positive preventive of hay fever will be received with skepticism by the thousands who have found the only relief every year was a change of climate during the summer months.

But whether skeptical or not, it will cost nothing to investigate this new treatment. Simply send name and address on a postal card to F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., for the booklet, which besides describing the treatment contains a concise treatise on the cause and character of this peculiar disease.

AGAINST EXPECTORATION.

The Tuberculosis Congress and Its Final Resolutions—No Relaxation in Milk and Meat Inspection.

London, July 27. — At the final meeting of the British Congress on Tuberculosis, held yesterday, under the presidency of Lord Derby, resolutions were adopted in favor of legislation towards the suppression of expectoration in public places, and recommending the notification of the proper authorities in cases of phthisis and the use of pocket spittoons, asserting that these sanitary provisions were indispensible in order to diminish tuberculosis.

A resolution was adopted, expressing the opinion of the congress that the health officers should continue every effort to prevent the spread of tuberculosis through milk and meat, and that, as the doubts concerning human immunity from bovine tuberculosis raised by Dr. Koch were of vital importance to the public health and the agricultural interests of the country, the government should immediately institute a rigid inquiry into the identity of human and bovine tuberculosis.

INSURRECTION IN MANCHURIA.

Whole Province in State of Unrest and Many Chinese Killed.

Victoria, B. C., July 27. —Advices from the Orient by the steamer Duke of Fife include details of a rising in Manchuria. The whole province of Shing Kung is in a state of insurrection, rebels are pillaging, burning and killing, and whole villages have been burned. The Russian forces are entirely inadequate to maintain order. Several thousand rebels have possession of Antung and Kiu Lien Ching. Chinese insurgents crossed the border into Corea, but were driven back by the Corean troops.

The pirates, who recently appeared along the coasts of Shang Tung and Liao Tung, were pursued by a Chinese transport, and a number of them were decapitated.

Li's Son to Succeed Wu.

Pekin, July 26.—A messenger from Hsiang Fu states that the Empress has degraded the Heir Apparent, which makes his succession impossible.

Wang Wen Sao and Lu Chuan Lin, both anti-foreign in their sentiments, are losing favor, and their removal from the Cabinet in the near future is considered probable.

Li Chin Fang, Li Hung Chang's adopted son, is mentioned as likely soon to succeed Wu Ting Fang at Washington.

Caught in a Buggy Wheel.

Roseville, July 27. — A serious accident happened near here yesterday, as a result of which Frank Clemens, the 10-year-old son of Mr. D. W. Clemens of this place, now lies in an unconscious condition at his home and may die. The little fellow was entangled in the hind wheel of the buggy in which he was riding, which made a number of revolutions before the horse could be stopped. The boy and his clothing had become wound up in such a way that the wheel had to be removed from the buggy in order to extricate him. Slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

A True Nerve Tonic.

acts not so much upon the nerves themselves, as upon the digestive functions, and the abundment formation of rich, red blood. The nerves cannot be fed on medicine. They can be fed and strengthened by digested and assimilated food. Ferrozone's marvellous action arises from its power over the digestive and assimilative functions of the body. You take it, the blood grows richer, redder. You feel strength and vigor, digestion comes to be noticed, for it has become good. Work is easier, for you have the strength to do it. In a short time you have health. Use Ferrozone. Sold only by Ormond & Walsh.

Big Electric Amalgamation.

Buffalo, July 26.—Henry Everett of Cleveland is negotiating for the amalgamation of the International Traction Company with the Everett-Moore syndicate that controls the radial lines at Cleveland, Port Huron, Detroit, Cincinnati and other cities. He is now in Buffalo. Should the amalgamation take place, Niagara Falls would be the centre of the union, and the source of power.

Engine Fell on Him.

Woodstock, July 26. — Charles Hughes, a farmer from near Salford, was nearly killed in an accident at Whitelaw's foundry Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Salford had a thresher at the foundry which he was having repaired. He was putting on the wheels of the engine himself when the engine toppled over on him, pinning him down to the ground.

Wants Lynchers Found.

Rome, July 26.—Signor Prinetti, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in acknowledging the note from Washington regarding the lynching of two Italians at Erwin, Miss., declared his conviction that the search for the guilty persons should be instituted by the proper authorities so that the crime might not go unpunished as in previous cases.

Rev. Dr. McKay Drowned.

Montreal, July 26.—The city was shocked last night to learn that Rev. Dr. McKay, the Crescent street Presbyterian Church pastor, was drowned while yachting at Seven Islands, below Quebec. Dr. McKay came from Montreal, and was one of the ablest and best known men of the Canadian Presbytery.

Boy Killed by a Bus.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, July 26. — John Richardson, the little five-year-old son of William H. J. Richardson, builder, of this place, was run over by a bus, driven by H. Longhurst, on Queen street yesterday afternoon, and so seriously injured that he died a few hours later.

Sir John Thompson's Grave.

Halifax, July 26.—Lady Thompson, widow of Sir John Thompson, has written to parties here to have the lot of land in which the remains of the ex-Premier are interred, in Holy Cross Cemetery, covered with granite slabs.

Kidney Irritability.

Causing Frequent Rising at Night, is Completely Cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets

Many people are troubled with an irritable condition of the kidneys and bladder that compels frequent attention during the day and frequent rising at night.

For such an annoying and serious kidney trouble, there is no remedy so beneficial as the modern kidney medicine, Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They allay all irritability, regulate the kidney action and permit undisturbed rest at night.

Mr. Isaac Hutel, an old and highly respected resident of Mount Forest, Ont., has this to say:—"For some ten years past, owing to hard work in my younger days on the farm, I have had a constant pain in my back that ran at times up into my shoulders. The kidneys bothered me very much and my liver somewhat also. I tried a good many remedies with only indifferent success, until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets at Yeoman's drug store in this town. The result of using these Tablets has been beyond my expectations. They stopped the pain and soreness in the back and allayed the kidney irritation, so that I can now rest well at night. They have also regulated my bowels and stirred up my sluggish liver, so that I am only too pleased to give this testimonial as to the good the remedy accomplished in my case."

The Band Concert.

The 57th Regimental band appeared in Victoria Park last evening and rendered another of their excellent programmes. The attendance, while not up to that of some of last year's concerts, was much larger than the attendance of last week. A couple of cake walk selections put the assemblage in good humour, for nothing appears to take with a Peterborough crowd like cake walks. Mr. Harry Clarke rendered a trombone solo entitled, "Because," which was enthusiastically received.

HIS LEG BROKEN.

Foreman Jackson, of the Rathbun Co's Drive, Met With an Accident.

Word was received in town to-day that George Jackson, foreman of the Rathbun Co. drive of logs, which is now passing Burleigh, had his leg broken. The accident is said to have occurred through the tug striking a timber on which Jackson was standing.

HULL IN TROUBLE.

A Brother of the Celebrated Bill Hull Charged With Theft.

Mowat Hull, of Stony Lake, a brother of the late noted "Bill" Hull, was arrested at Lakefield last night on the strength of a warrant that was issued by County Magistrate Edmison, charging him with stealing oil cups from a steam yacht engine.

Hull has been wanted on this charge for some time, but it was only yesterday that he was located. Constable Archie Moore telephoned down to Hight County Constable Cochrane and that officer went up to Lakefield last night and brought the prisoner to town. He was remanded until Tuesday.

Mr. Langley of Lindsay represented the accused. A warrant is also out for Hull's father.

The boat will leave the Wolfe street wharf at 2 o'clock sharp. Tickets, Gentlemen, 35c.; ladies, 25c.; children under 14, 20c.

To Stony Lake.

The Methodist Sunday school of Millbrook have arranged with the G. T. R. and the steamer Sunbeam, for what promises to be the most delightful outing of the season, on Tuesday next, through Katchewanooka, Clear and Stony Lakes. Ample accommodation has been made for 600 or 700 people, so that there is no fear of over-crowding. Stoppages will be made at Burleigh for dinner, and at other points. As the excursion will return by special train which will not leave Lakefield until 8.30 p.m., one hour longer will be spent at the lakes than has heretofore been given. Fare from Peterborough, 70c., for adults; and 35c. for children.

The Dickson Company.

Lakefield News—The Dickson Co. is doing a rushing business. This week Mr. Thompson has shipped 108 cars of 1 x 12 pine lumber to Ottawa for shipment to South America. The Company is also shipping lumber to Boston and other ports. There are about 80 men now working in the mill but the Company expects to keep on sawing till November, and judging from the size of the drives tied up on Katchewanooka Lake and those at present coming down from Burleigh, even with the extraordinary facilities the Company possesses it will find its hands full to get through by that time.

THE CORDAGE CO.

Many of the towns possessing a good surrounding farming country, where stock in the Canadian Cordage Company sold readily, were anxious to secure the headquarters of the big concern for themselves, and when the announcement was made that Peterborough had been chosen for the location of the factory at the nominal consideration of a free site, considerable surprise was expressed in many places. In this connection the Bowmanville Statesman says:

"Peterborough has offered the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company a free site and exemption from taxation. Buildings and plant to cost $60,000 will be erected and 75 hands employed. Capacity 5 tons of binder twine and 3 tons cordage and rope a day. All this for a cash outlay of $4,500 is a pretty good investment for that town."

And it is a good investment.

All the town is asked to do is to buy a site for the factory at a cost of $4,500, and before the money is paid down for the land the company is bound over to expend $60,000 on buildings and plant. In addition the bylaw expressly provides, that if manufacturing is not carried on for ten years, the town will have a first lien on the property to recover the $4,500, so that the municipality is secured in every way. The property is to be assessed at its present full value, $4,500, for the next ten years, so that the town is not losing anything, and at the end of the ten years the entire property can be assessed at the increased value occasioned by the establishment of the plant and the erection of the buildings thereon.

Further, the company binds itself to employ 75 hands for the first year, and the management confidently expects to double its output the second year of its operations, necessitating the increase of the number of hands to 150.

The lots which have been owned and held by the town for several years for the purpose of offering them to manufacturers seeking a location are not of a size sufficient to accommodate the Cordage Company, hence the necessity of purchasing a larger piece of land. The lot which has been indicated as one suitable for the purpose is 200 x 380 feet in size. The town lot is only a little over half as large, and is too irregular in shape to be of service.

That the company is acting in good faith is shown by the fact that the stock book shows that $125,000 worth of shares are already subscribed for and the cash deposit in the Ontario Bank is up in the tens of thousands.

The town is getting a great deal of free advertising in the best possible quarters through the medium of the Cordage Company and the fact that Peterborough has been selected as headquarters is known in every county in Canada, as the shareholders are distributed throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion. The trade journals and agricultural papers of the United States have commented freely on the methods adopted by the company in refusing to sell its stock in larger blocks than eight shares, and every such mention brings the name of Peterborough prominently before the public eye, giving the town such advertising as it never received before.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.

Mr. William Elliott, of Belmont, Passes Away at a Ripe Old Age.

On Monday morning, Mr. William Elliott of Belmont, who has been ill since about the middle of March, was released by death from his sufferings, and on Tuesday afternoon his remains were interred in the Norwood cemetery.

The deceased was one of the pioneers of the south-easterly portion of Dummer, having located there on Lot No. 3 in the 12 concession, in 1835, on which time he continued to reside up to the time of his death. Mr. Elliott was a native of County Cavan, Ireland, and came to Canada about 60 years ago. He was a tailor by trade, and for several years after his arrival followed that occupation, working in Cobourg and Warkworth. At the latter place he was married in 1851 to Sarah Smith, and four years later removed to Dummer. In 1878 Mrs. Elliott died, and in 1882 he married again, his second wife being Emeline Wood of Prince Edward county. By his first marriage he had nine children, five boys and four girls, all of whom, with the exception of one boy, Thomas, who lives in Nebraska, reside near or within easy driving distance of the homestead. Their names are John, George, Thomas, Harry, Matthew, Mrs. Albert Wigmore, Mrs. Ridley Wood, Mrs. Faucet Wood, and Ella, who with the step-mother still reside at home.

The funeral on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended. The services at the house and at the grave were in the absence of Rev. J. McKee McLennan, conducted by Rev. E. R. James, of Hastings, the deceased having been a life long member of the Church of England.

The bearers were his four sons, Messrs. George, John, Harry and Matthew, and his two sons-in-law, Messrs. Ridley Wood and Faucet Wood.

ACCIDENT AT HASTINGS.

Mr. Ed. Wilcox Broke His Arm—Mr. Anderson's Injuries.

Mr. D. W. Anderson, of Hastings, the popular traveller for the Scotch Thread firm of Brooks & Co., Glasgow, yesterday met with a very painful accident. He and his wife were leaving for Scotland and when getting out of a 'bus at the Hastings station to catch their train the horses became frightened by a shunting engine and upset the vehicle. Mr. Anderson and his wife were thrown out and he was badly cut and bruised. They had to return home and a physician was summoned. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson had tickets to leave by the Tunisian from Montreal, but it is doubtful if he will be able to go.

Mr. Ed. Wilcox had the misfortune to break his arm on Tuesday when trying to stop a runaway.

WITH THE "Y" BOYS.

Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp,
Clear Lake, July 26.

As promised you in our last communication we will again attempt to give you some items of camp news which we hope will be of interest to you. The weather has been very fine—nice, warm, sunny days, with an odd shower during the week.

The boys are thoroughly enjoying themselves, not the slightest thing having happened to mar their enjoyment. Great excitement prevails at the present time over a drive of logs belonging to the Dickson Company. The drive has been four months coming from Cavendish. It consists of about forty thousand logs. At time of writing the boys are coming in, dripping wet, they having attempted certain feats on the logs and fallen in; but they rig themselves up and go out and tackle it again.

A party of boys hooted it to Burleigh, headed by the pattern maker, who, by the way is quite a pedestrian. One section went to see the falls, but the C.G.E. student from the tool department, who can smell a pie forty rods, ferreted out a river drivers' camps and got next to the cook for a couple of pies. On the way home we made a call at the store, but were quickly ordered off the property, by the old lady in charge, whereupon the tool maker wanted to buy her out right away, but his money was no good there.

We are very fortunate in having four lawyers in the camp, and, as a result, peace and quietness prevails, they doing all the fighting among themselves. One has proven himself to be quite a trapper, he having cornered up a ground hog on the (Wild Moore) of Burleigh, and brought it home and skinned it as a memento of that adventure.

The boys are making the best of the few remaining days left to them, and the good thoughts presented to them, and the good examples they have seen will all go to make up the ideal men that the Y.M.C.A. are making every day.

A new game has been invented which is a sort of land hockey. It is a hot game. The camp leader was so taken up with it that he was not long in finding a shinny. Rolling up his trousers he was soon in the thick of it; but on account of living so high since he came up, he was naturally not in the pink of condition, so had to content himself with sitting under a tree coaching us along and getting off his Scotch jokes which are very witty and to the point.

Our representative from Norwood High School is at present suffering from sore lips as a result of a picnic which landed here for a short time from Boosterville, and which had on board some of his fair friends.

A Clever Scholar.

In speaking of the Public School system of Pasadena, the Evening Star says the following high tribute to Mr. J. D. Graham, son of Mr. R. Graham, of Lakefield. "J. D. Graham is at the head of the Public School system in Pasadena, and the best testimony as to his popularity is the fact that nobody wants a change. Eleven years ago Prof. Graham came to Pasadena and for two years he was principal of the High School. Then other duties and honours were placed upon his shoulders; he was made also supervising principal of the district. A capacity for work is one of the things that Prof. Graham glories in and he has borne the burden and heat of the day, through the time when the local educational system was in its formative period. He piloted it through the financially dark days of the early nineties and has brought it to a nearness to perfection. Not a high school in the State in a city the size of Pasadena is ranked in the same class; only one other in the whole State outranks it. Prof. Graham is a native of Toronto and a graduate of the University of Toronto.

The London, (Eng.,) Daily Mail says "There are signs and symptoms of a revived interest in the game of bowls, one of the oldest out-door pastimes. heydey bowls ran archery very closely—so close, indeed, that in the interests of national defence it was deemed essential to discourage the game. But in spite of the ban of bygone centuries, the bowling green has survived, more especially in the north of England and in Scotland. Nor can there be any more delightful game than bowls for a summer evening, more especially for those who have attained to an age where such lively physical exertions as are involved by cricket and tennis become a little unwelcome. Golf, there is no question, owes much of its recent popularity in England to the circumstance that it is an old man's as well as a young man's game. In this respect bowls is a distinctly competitive pastime, for in village bowling clubs — and, for the matter of that, on municipal bowling greens, for such places exist — it is invariably the older men who are the more expert, as well as the more zealous players. Of all historical games of bowls, the most celebrated was that which was in progress on Plymouth Hoe when news came of the Spanish Armada. Such is the confidence which the pastime begets that Sir Francis Drake continued to bowl at the jack, merely remarking that there was time to finish the game, and to beat the Spaniards as well. The incident is worth recalling, if only as showing that the northern counties had no monopoly of the game."

REV. DR. McKAY DROWNED.

Prominent Montreal Pastor Who Was Known Here.

A Montreal despatch to the Toronto Globe says:

"Rev. Dr. Mackay, pastor of the Crescent street Presbyterian Church, Montreal, died suddenly on board a yacht on the Lower St. Lawrence. The exact time of his death is not known, nor can any tidings be ascertained. The body should arrive at Quebec to-morrow.

Rev. Dr. Mackay has spent his summer holiday for a number of years at Cap a l'Aigle, near Murray Bay, where he kept a small yacht, on which he made short excursions. This summer he had a desire to see Anticosti Island, and left Cap a l'Aigle about two weeks ago for a cruise along the north shore and if weather permitted, to go as far as Anticosti. He was heard from at several places along the coast, and all was well up to yesterday, when news came of his death, at Seven Islands, but no particulars were given. The body was put on board the coasting steamer Duro, bound for Quebec, where it is due to arrive to-morrow afternoon. Dr. Mackay was accompanied by his younger son, Eric, and one or two friends."

The reverend doctor was well known here, having on more than one occasion occupied the pulpit in St. Paul's Church. His many friends here will be grieved to learn of the unfortunate occurrence.

SELECTING A DEGREE.

A prominent university once invited a distinguished bishop to be present at its commencement exercises and to deliver an address. After he had signified his acceptance of the invitation the university authorities thought that it would be a very graceful act on their part to show their appreciation of his presence by conferring upon him an honorary degree, and so in order to arrange the matter in proper form they delegated one of their number to visit the bishop and notify him of their intentions.

The person selected for this mission was a callow young professor who had not long occupied his chair and who still regarded his university as representing pretty nearly all the world that counts and a portion of the rest of the universe besides. He was immensely impressed with the importance of this mission and with the general tremendousness of the honor which he was going to announce. Reaching the city where the bishop lived, he went to the episcopal residence and after sending in his card was ushered into the bishop's study. With bated breath and many circumlocutions, lest the bishop should be too much overcome if the news were sprung upon him without a certain amount of preparation, he delivered the message with which he had been charged.

"I have also to inform you," he added, "that the university will consult your preference in the matter of the degree and will confer upon you the one that you would most desire to have."

"Oh!" said the bishop. "Let me see. What particular degree did they have in mind?"

"Of course the very highest, one which belongs to the doctorate—LL. D., D. D., S. T. D. or D. C. L."

"Well," said the bishop, looking out of the window and then at his watch, "suppose you make it a D. C. L. I think I have fewer of those than of the other kinds."

It took the callow young professor a long while to recover from the shock, but when he came to think it over it probably taught him something he had never known before.

TWO MORE WITNESSES.

It is surprising to note how many people are commending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets nowadays. They are winning new friends everywhere. The work goes on continuously.

Throughout the length and breadth of Canada are thousands of people, who after every meal take a Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablet. They are a large proportion of the vast majority, the greater part of the population that suffer from weak stomachs and faulty digestion.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the greatest tonic for a weak ailing stomach ever compounded. They are composed of the finest digestants found in nature, pepsin among others They do the stomach's work, and let that tired-out over-worked organ take a holiday.

That's all the stomach wants — a rest. At once it will begin to save its strength and grow strong again. Hundreds of people have been cured of heartburn and pain after eating, by using only one box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Thousands of people have been permanently cured of chronic Dyspepsia of long standing, by three or four boxes, and that after every other means had failed. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets act on the only rational principle in the treatment of Digestion Troubles—Rest for the stomach.

"I consider our cures miraculous," writes Mrs. Celetti Arseneau, of Russeau Le Blanc, Que. "My daughter Marie and myself suffered miserably with Dyspepsia. We employed all the remedies possible, but they were all useless. Having heard Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets spoken of, we took four boxes between the two of us, and I am happy to say we are cured. I recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets highly to all sufferers from Stomach Troubles."

CHEESE MARKETS.

Vankleek Hill, Ont., July 25.—There were 1015 boxes of cheese boarded here to-day, all sold at 9⅝c. It was about the price, the salesmen were expecting, and the cheese went rapidly when 9⅝c was bid. Birdsell made the price, and got the first call of the board. He got 468 boxes; Fraser, 64; McRae, 372, and Pitt 111.

Crispi Still Improving.

Naples, July 26. — The improvement in the general condition of Signor Francesco Crispi is maintained. The former Premier passed a fairly quiet night last night.

Had Teeth Knocked Out.

Hamilton, July 24.—Last night a lad who gave his name as George Woods walked into police headquarters and told a pitiable story of his treatment by a farmer to whom he had been indentured by the Local Children's Aid Society. He said he had been terribly beaten and had some of his teeth knocked out by the farmer. He ran away yesterday morning and walked to the city. Woods was in the Boys' Home prior to last November. Inspector Hunter will prosecute.

Russia Presses the Sultan.

London, July 24. — "Russia demands of the Porte two coaling stations on the Persian Gulf," says the Constantinople correspondent of The Daily Mail, wiring Sunday. "And she is using the strongest pressure to induce the Sultan to yield. One or more stations have also been demanded in Asia Minor."

Fell Beneath a Wagon.

Ottawa, July 24. — Eugene Charette, a five-year-old Hull boy, climbed upon a wagon yesterday, and was jolted off, falling beneath a wheel, which crushed his chest. The boy soon died.

CHECKERS ON THE FARM.

The checkerboard is all worn out
From use each winter night;
The checkers have become begrimed,
Which once were shining bright,
But still the game goes straightway on,
Although the squares are blurs,
While Oysthy pens up Reuben's men
Or Reuben captures hers.

Sometimes the old man takes a hand
To show his practiced skill,
And then the farmhands circle round,
While every one is still.
They would not say a single word
That would distract his play;
So breathless they observe him drive
Young Reuben's men to bay.

Ah, what would winter evenings be Without the checkerboard,
With double corners, jumps and moves
And fun which they afford!
Our dissipation oft consists
In too much checkers here,
Which makes the gossips tell about
Our checkered life's career.
—Arthur E. Locke in Boston Globe.

BAIT FOR SUNFISH.

One Man's Method of Going Fishing With His Boots.

There is about as much sport in catching the big sunfish as in lifting out the crappie if you can get the former in one of its savage moods. Pelker is a great grafter on sunfish. He has got a dozen different kinds of bait, but he says that it is all nonsense to trouble about digging worms. He declares that beef run through a hamburg steak grinder is just the proper paste for the sunfish at Creve Cœur lake. The tougher the beef the better, as it will cut in long strips like angleworms.

"When the sunfish are biting right smart, it is about all that I can do to be kept in the shop," said Pelker. "I believe me and the sunfish are the most cheering things out. Do you know, I have noticed old time fishermen at Breese's lake wading around in the shallow water, where the sunfish are found at spawning time, as carefully as if they were fishing for trout. Now, it is different with me when I go out with my hamburg steak to feed the golden bellied beauties on. I just tie the line to each leg of my boots, take a little short rod in my hand and stride into the water and go ahead. On the bootleg lines I use red flies. Why, the sunfish come up and get stuck on my fly hooks three or four at a time. That's the way to catch a mess of fish in a few hours.

"I can catch crappie with crawfish tails to beat the band if I cannot get minnows. Crickets are great sunfish and bass bait, while the katydids will make a crappie leave its bed at midnight. Just let your hook sing once with a green katy on, and if there is a crappie within a radius of 10 or 15 feet it will come like a hound at a coursing match. If you get no bite, you can pull your freight up a few car lengths and try a new place. I caught all those big crappie last week with craw tails. I could get no minnows for love or money, so I chased up some crawfish and went in to win. When it comes to catfish bait, just try tripe. It is tough and cannot be pulled off the hook easily."

A Forgotten Genius.

The history of wireless telegraphy would not be complete without some mention of Joseph Henry, America's greatest scientist, for it was he who first, in 1842, discovered the oscillatory character of certain electric discharges and who showed that these oscillations produced disturbances which could by suitable receivers be detected at distances of many rods and through intervening buildings, writes Professor Joseph Ames in The Review of Reviews. He even arranged an apparatus on this principle to respond to the lightning discharges of distant storms. The great genius of Henry was never more apparent than in his investigation of electrical discharges and their oscillatory nature. It is a lasting testimony to the ignorance among Americans of their own great men that the name of Joseph Henry was not included in the first 50 selected for the Hall of Fame of the nation.

Wholesale Bathers.

As regards facilities for bathing, which every Filipino demands, there is the open bay, with its miles of clean salt water, ready at any time of the day or year for a free bath. The genuine Filipino is half amphibious, loving the water and swimming like a fish. An example of this may be seen in the large tobacco factories of Binondo, with their 10,000 employees. When the day's labor is done, the thinly dressed workmen, men, women and children, speed laughingly to the bay, plunge into the waiting waves and come out clean, cool and refreshed.—Ledger Monthly.

Was It a Compliment?

It was at the end of her first week in the new school, she having been transferred from down town, that the teacher asked little Wilhelmina how she liked the new school. The little one's face brightened up as she answered:

"Oh, I like it first rate, and I like you too."

"That's very nice; but why do you like me?" queried the teacher.

"Oh, you see," said the little pupil, "I always did like a bossy teacher."

Buttons.

Towne—For goodness' sake, what are you so cranky about?

Browne—Oh, I asked my wife to sew a button on my coat.

Towne—And wouldn't she do it?

Browne—Yes, but I've just discovered that the button she sewed on my coat she cut from my vest.—Exchange.

HELPLESS.

The man trussed up so that he can neither move hand nor foot is in his helplessness a fair type of many a man affected by rheumatism. Often the disease only partially disables, and with crutch and cane the sufferer hobbles painfully about.

Rheumatism can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This great blood purifying medicine eliminates the poisons which cause the disease. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and so increases the purity and abundance of the blood supply, thus giving vigor and vitality to all organs of the body which depend for their health on plenty of pure blood. It builds up the body with firm flesh instead of flabby fat. The "Discovery" contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

"I had been troubled with rheumatism for twelve years, so bad at times I could not leave my bed," writes Mr. R. J. McKnight, of Cades, Williamsburg Co., S. C. "I was badly crippled. Tried many doctors, and two of them gave me up to die. None of them did me much good. The pains in my back, hips and legs (and at times in my head), would nearly kill me. My appetite was very bad. Everybody who saw me said I must die. I took five bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of the 'Pellets,' and to-day my health is good after suffering twelve years with rheumatism."

CARD PLAYERS' CRAMP.

What Once Happened to an Old Faro Dealer's Hand.

"Were you ever paralyzed?" said the old timer.

"No, and may the"— began the other.

"Well, you see that right hand? It looks pretty good and strong and it is, but for about three days once it was deader than a frostbitten tomato plant.

"You know of course that I used to make my living playing cards, chiefly dealing bank. There wasn't a day I didn't deal bank or in other games six to eight hours a day. Many a time I have dealt or played longer.

"One night I was dealing bank. It was a good, big game. All at once when I went to slip a card this old right refused to work. I looked at it and the fingers were kind of twisted inward and the hand from the wrist was bent downward.

"This stopped the deal for me, and I told the lookout 'to get busy,' for the players were getting a little 'queered.' He took my place, and I watched the bets.

"I rubbed my right, but it wouldn't straighten out and it kept this way until the next day, and then I went to a doctor. He didn't know me as well as you do, but the first question he asked was:

"'Deal cards a great deal, don't you?'

"'Yes.'

"'Do you deal with an elbow movement or with finger and wrist movement?'

"'Why, I don't work my elbow.'

"'That explains it. You have card players' paralysis.'

"This hit me center, and I showed it, but the doctor was good and said:

"'Now, don't get flurried. I'll straighten you up. Just quit dealing awhile, and I'll give your hand a few doses of electricity, and you'll be all right.'

"He did it, and in about three days my hand was straight as a string. But I haven't dealt so much since. There's many an old timer whose dealing hand has quit him. And you say you were never paralyzed?'

"No."

"Well, you ain't played cards much."

Military Pyrotechnics.

"Under cover of darkness the enemy advanced." Not any more, if French military experiments prove what they promise. The war department is now firing an illuminating shell that bursts in the air and emits a fiery body of globular shape which vividly lights up a large area for a considerable time.

The experiments are for the purpose of improving and perfecting bombs that are now made for the purpose of exposing the position of an enemy at night and to reveal the character of defenses to be attacked. These projectiles explode on impact, liberating a flaming compound. One compound, consisting of sulphur, saltpeter and a hydrocarbon, is a blue light mixture. The illumination lasts as long as the saltpeter supplies the oxygen to maintain combustion.

Experiments are also under way for a reverse sort of bomb which in bursting liberates dense clouds of smoke for the purpose of concealing the movements of troops in the field. This is to be an antidote to the former bane.

An Indigestible Man.

Kitty—But he is such an indigestible man.

Jane—Indigestible?

Kitty—Yes; he always disagrees with me.

It was a quarter of a century before the signing of the American Declaration of Independence that the first theater was opened in New York.

Too Suggestive.

An English clergyman had married a young woman with a reputed dowry of about £10,000, while he himself had "great expectations." Needless to say, every soul in the village knew about it. It was the first Sunday after their return from the honeymoon, and when the sermon was finished the parson proceeded, as usual, to give out the hymn, verse for verse, to his rustic congregation.

All went well until the fifth verse was reached, and the parson began, "Forever let my grateful heart," when suddenly and with some confusion he exclaimed, "Omit the fifth verse!" and immediately began to recite aloud the sixth verse instead. Those who had hymnbooks promptly read the fifth verse:

Forever let my grateful heart
His boundless grace adore,
Which gives ten thousand blessings now
And bids me hope for more.

Pursuing an Elephant.

Any one who has once followed a traveling elephant will not show any undue haste to repeat the amusement. They sail along at an average pace of six miles an hour, regardless of the country, and stop for a bath or a short siesta perhaps once every three days. Anything more exasperating than following very fresh spoor at a dog trot, hour after hour in a blazing sun, only to find at a late hour in the afternoon that one was 40 miles from camp, with no food or water, and that the elephant had increased his lead from one mile to ten, it would be difficult to imagine.

Four Good Habits.

There are four good habits—punctuality, accuracy, steadiness and dispatch. Without the first of these time is wasted; without the second mistakes the most hurtful to your own credit and interest and that of others may be committed; without the third nothing can be well done, and without the fourth opportunities of great advantage are lost which it is impossible to recall.

It is a curious fact that mayonnaise dressing will disagree with delicate people, whereas the same ingredients put together without an egg (French dressing) will be easily digested.

SMITH.

A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent at the residence of Mrs. John Young, on the beautiful shore of Chemong Lake, on July 25th, it being the occasion of a social gathering held in honour of her mother, Mrs. Pennington Alexander, an old and highly respected resident of Peterborough, who was present, and who enjoyed the sweet and refreshing breezes of Chemong. Mrs. Alexander is eighty-six years of age. The relatives gathered to the number of about fifty, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent in social conversation, fishing and boating, while children amused themselves in many ways. The enjoyment of the afternoon was increased amongst the children when Mr. Roy, Peterborough's photographer, landed at the shore and it was learned that he intended taking a picture of the scene. After this the tables were spread, and all enjoyed a general picnic.

Among those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hopkins and son, Walter, North Monaghan; Miss Aikins, Peterborough; Mrs. Wm. Hopkins and family, North Monaghan; Mrs. R. Polson, Peterborough; Mr. Chowan, Haliburton; Mr. and Mrs. P. Alexander, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. W. Evans, Peterborough; Mrs. Joseph Hopkins, Peterborough; Mrs. George Winch, Bertie and Percy, of Texas.

Mrs. Winch is a daughter of Mrs. Alexander, and has been a resident of that warm climate for a number of years; she has never seen snow for over twenty years.

LACTATED FOOD

IS THE BEST IN THE WORLD.

It Makes the Infant Healthy and Strong When All Other Foods Fail.

Lactated Food surpasses all other foods for infants because it saves life when the weak stomach has rejected all other forms of nourishment.

Lactated Food has more nutritive value than other foods and is the most easily digested.

Lactated Food has a corrective influence in all cases of irritability of the stomach and bowels.

Lactated Food guarantees protection to the infant from all forms of hot weather troubles, such as cholera infantum, diarrhoea and dysentery.

Mothers, give Lactated Food an immediate trial if your baby is sleepless, restless and peevish; it will cause the little one to thrive well and sleep sweetly. At all druggists.

Put Paris Green in Kettle.

Morrisburg, July 27. — While Mrs. A. Macpherson's family were away from home a few days ago, the hired man put Paris green in the tea kettle, with the supposed purpose of poisoning Mrs. Macpherson and robbing the house. Mrs. Macpherson noticed some of the poison on the stove and examined the kettle. When the hired man was accused of the attempt, he left the house and has not been seen since.

TAMING A PIANIST.

The Effective Trick That Was Once Played on Franz Liszt.

The famous pianist and composer Franz Liszt was once made the victim of a good practical joke.

It happened in Rome at the house of a certain princess who had invited a number of guests to meet Liszt and assured them that they should have an opportunity of enjoying his playing. The princess was well acquainted with two of Liszt's peculiarities. He was so passionately fond of playing that it was difficult for him to keep his fingers away from the keys; but, nevertheless, like many other pianists, he expected to be urgently entreated and coaxed before he would condescend to perform.

On this occasion his hostess was determined to make him play without a word of entreaty. It was agreed by the whole company not only that Liszt should not be asked to play, but that the subject of music should not be mentioned. The piano was even closed and locked and the key hidden. Liszt came and soon saw that he was not to conquer. His usual triumphant expression vanished as he perceived that for once he was not apparently regarded as the lion of the hour.

Not a word was spoken of music, and Liszt became visibly uneasy in mind. As the evening wore on he grew more and more excited. That his fingers were itching with the desire to play was obvious to all, but nobody helped him out. At last, when he could stand the strain no longer, he took advantage of a lull in the conversation, seated himself unbidden at the piano and attempted to raise the lid.

The laughter and applause that followed the unsuccessful attempt showed Liszt that he was the victim of a conspiracy. But his love for playing was too strong for his resentment. The key was brought and Liszt played, to the delight of his enraptured audience.

A Sparrow's Borrowed Notes.

Very remarkable is the instance of a sparrow imitating the stridulation of the grasshopper. One spring a cage containing a sparrow was hung side by side with another in which were grasshoppers. No notice was taken by the sparrow of his neighbors, but next year, when he was again in the same society, he essayed the grasshoppers' chant. And for the rest of his life, when the grasshoppers had long been dead, the sparrow was accustomed to utter a polyglot song combining the notes of the insect and those of other birds. The fact that young linnets will sometimes learn the song of the nightingale instead of their own is mentioned. And it is also stated that several kinds of birds in Thuringia sing much better than the members of their own species dwelling in the Hars mountains.

No "H" There.

A young tenor singer of London was asked recently at a "smoker" to favor the company with a song. He gave a very fair rendering of the once popular "Happy Be Thy Dreams," but did not aspirate the letter "h" once. When he had finished, he resumed his seat, which was next to one occupied by a baldheaded old man, who bluntly remarked:

"You have a good voice, young man, but you didn't sound one single 'h,' and the song's full of 'em."

"I beg your pardon, sir," retorted the vocalist, with dignity, "you are mistaken. It doesn't go any 'igher than G."

Neither Caught On.

Pat—Are you good at arithmetic, Mike?

Mike—I am.

Pat—Well, if you had 10 shillings and I asked you for the lend of five, how much would you have left?

Mike (strongly)—Ten shillings.

Pat—Ah, you don't seem to ketch on to my idea.

Mike—No, and you don't seem to ketch on to my 5 shillings.

The Invention of Spectacles.

The honor and credit of pointing out the benefit of glasses to aid defective vision belongs to Roger Bacon, who lived from 1214 to 1292. Spectacles were actually invented in the year 1280, the man who conferred this great blessing on suffering humanity being Alexander Spinia, a monk of Pisa, who died in 1313.

No Danger.

Fond Mother—John, do look at that child. He has your watch in his mouth and will swallow it.

John (who is a bachelor brother-in-law and very fond of babies)—Oh, don't be the least alarmed. I have got hold of the chain. It can't go far.

Taxation in Italy.

What annoyances Italians are subjected to by the taxgatherers is shown by a recent scandalous case in the courts. General Cosens, one of the heroes of the liberation of Italy, Garibaldi's chief of staff in the conquest of the two Sicilies and later chief of the general staff of the Italian army, died some time ago, leaving the military decorations he had won to his heirs. The treasury department demanded death duties on these and fixed the amount of the tax at $16.80. The heirs refused to pay, and the civil court at Rome has just decided that "decorations and medals are part of the historical and patriotic patrimony of the country and are therefore not subject to the inheritance tax."

THE GHOST IN THE INN

HE WAS THE MEANS OF AVENGING HIS OWN ASSASSINATION.

A Vision and a Finger Ring That Impressed the Comte de Fersen—A Persistent Spirit That Was Bound to Have Justice Done.

In "The Story of My Life," by Mr. Augustus J. C. Hare, are told some thrilling ghost stories.

One of the most remarkable of the stories is that which Lord Ravensworth made Mr. Hare write down. It was originally related by Comte de Fersen, the devoted adherent of Marie Antoinette, who, when the royal family escaped to Varennes, drove the carriage. After Marie Antoinette's execution he went to Italy, and one afternoon in November he drove up to what was then, and is still, the most desolate, weird, ghastly inn in Italy—the wind stricken, storm beaten, lava seated inn of Radicofani. As he was unable to secure post horses Comte de Fersen was obliged to stay all night. When he went to bed, he took two precautions.

He drew a little round table that was there to the head of the bed and put two loaded pistols upon it, and, according to the custom of that time, he made the courier sleep across the door on the outside. He went to bed and he fell asleep, and in the middle of the night the comte awoke with the indescribable sensation that people have that he was not alone in the room, and he raised himself against the pillow and looked out.

From a small latticed window high in the opposite whitewashed wall the moonlight was pouring into the room and making a white silvery pool in the middle of the rough boarded oak floor. In the middle of this pool of light, dressed in a white cap and jacket and trousers, such as masons wear, stood the figure of a man looking at him. Comte de Fersen stretched out his hand over the side of the bed to take one of his pistols, and the man said: "Don't fire. You could do no harm to me; you could do a great deal of harm to yourself. I am come to tell you something."

Comte de Fersen looked at him; he did not come any nearer; he remained just where he was, standing in the pool of white moonlight, half way between the bed and the wall, and he said: "Say on. Tell me what you have come for."

And the figure said: "I am dead, and my body is underneath your bed. I was a mason of Radicofani, and as a mason I wore the white dress in which you now see me. My wife wished to marry somebody else; she wished to marry the landlord of this hotel, and they beguiled me into the inn, and they made me drunk, and they murdered me, and my body is buried beneath where your bed now stands. I died with the word 'vendette' upon my lips, and the longing, the thirst that I have for revenge will not let me rest. And I never shall rest, I never can have any rest, till I have had my revenge. Now, I know that you are going to Rome; when you get to Rome, go to the cardinal commissary of police and tell him what you have seen, and he will send men down here to examine the place, and my body will be found, and I shall have my revenge."

And the Comte de Fersen said, "I will."

But the spirit laughed and said: "You don't suppose that I am going to believe that? You don't imagine that you are the only person I have come to like this? I have come to dozens, and they have all said, 'I will,' and afterward what they have seen has seemed like a hallucination, a dream, a chimera, and, before they have reached Rome, the impression has vanished altogether and nothing has been done. Give me your hand."

The Comte de Fersen was a little staggered at this. However, he was a brave man, and he stretched out his hand and he felt something or other happen to one of his fingers, and he looked, and there was no finger, only the moonlight streaming in through the little latticed window.

In the morning, when he got up and had begun to wash his hands, he found on one of his fingers a very curious, old iron ring, which was certainly not there before.

Comte de Fersen went to Rome, and when he arrived there he went to the Swedish minister, who then was a certain Count Lowenjelm, who was very much impressed with the story. But a person who was much more impressed was the minister's younger brother, for he had a valuable collection of peasants' jewelry, and when he saw the ring he said, "That is a very remarkable ring, for it is a kind of ring only made and worn in one place, and that place is in the mountains near Radicofani."

The two Comte Lowenjelm went with Comte de Fersen to the cardinal commissary of police. The cardinal was very much struck, and he said: "It is a very extraordinary story, and I am quite inclined to believe that it means something. But, as you know, I am in a great position of trust under the government, and I cannot send a body of military down to Radicofani upon the faith of what may prove to have been a dream. At any rate, I could not do it unless Comte de Fersen proved his sense of the importance of such an action by being willing to return to Radicofani himself."

Not only was Comte de Fersen willing to return, but the Count Karl Lowenjelm went with him. The landlord and landlady were excessively agitated when they saw them return with the soldiers, who came from Rome. They moved the bed and found that the flags beneath had been recently upturned. They took up the flags, and there, not sufficiently corrupted to be unrecognizable, was the body of the mason, dressed in the white cap and jacket and trousers as he had appeared to the Comte de Fersen.

Then the landlord and landlady, in true Italian fashion, felt that Providence was against them, and they confessed everything. They were taken to Rome, where they were tried and condemned to death, and they were beheaded at the Bocca della Verita. The Count Karl Lowenjelm was present at the execution of that man and woman, and he was the person who told Lord Ravensworth, who told me. In 1879 I repeated the story to the crown prince of Sweden and Norway, who took the trouble to verify the facts and dates as to the Lowenjelms, etc., and found everything coincide.

Her Invitation.

"Why, Clara, you look radiant! What has happened?"

"I've just received an invitation to a wedding."

"Yes, but it happens to be my own," and she showed the new engagement ring.

A Truly True Dog Story.

Here is an Australian dog story from the back blocks: A sheep dog had been brought from a station into a small township and fretted after the sheep. One day not a child was to be seen about the place, and as evening came the township became alarmed. Search was made, and the juveniles were found huddled up in the corner of a paddock, where the dog had rounded them up. He had no sheep to look after, so he took the children. The narrator of this lie guarantees it as a fact.

It cured his little boy like magic, and he has been quite free from Catarrh ever since. Catarrhozone cures all forms of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Irritation Coughs and Colds. No remedy like it. Quick to relieve, pleasant to use, guaranteed to cure. Clears throat and nose at one breath. Try Catarrhozone, 25 cents and $1.00. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

MORCAN AND SHAFFER CLOSETED

Amicable Ending of Steel Strike Expected Next Week—Another Meeting of the Rivals to Be Called for Tuesday—President Schwab Was There and Conferance Lasted Five Hours.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 29. — The strike of the steel and tin workers of the Amalgamated Association against the U. S. Steel Corporation will probably be settled this week. The conference held in New York Saturday between the officials of the United States Steel Corporation and President Shaffer and Secretary John Williams of the workers' organization has resulted in paving the way for a renewal of negotiations between the two conflicting interests. President Shaffer and Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated Association returned from New York this morning.

Secretary Williams was found at his home last evening and admitted that he had been with President Shaffer in New York and had seen J. P. Morgan, but as to what had taken place there, he said with firmness that he was pledged to secrecy and could not talk. If there was anything to be given out it would have to come from President Shaffer. When asked if he regarded the situation hopeful for a settlement, he declined even to offer an opinion. It is learned here that a meeting of the Executive Board had been called for Tuesday.

Additional information regarding the New York meeting of the industrial leaders was afterwards picked up from reliable sources. It was stated that the two amalgamated officials left Pittsburg late on Friday night and when they arrived in New York went direct to the private offices of J. P. Morgan, in the banking house in Wall street. The meeting between the Pittsburg men and Mr. Morgan lasted from 11 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

During the conference President C. M. Schwab and Judge E. H. Gary were present most of the time. Another conferer was Mr. Dawkins, one of Mr. Morgan's partners. The amalgamated officials directed their attention almost entirely to Mr. Morgan and Mr. Schwab. They went over the ground on which the strike began and discussed a settlement basis. After getting the views of the steel officials and giving theirs in return, Mr. Shaffer and Mr. Williams left the office and spent their time away from public places, avoiding hotels and taking their meals in restaurants.

It is believed that before the end of the week the mills will be all ready to run again, providing repairs are completed that have been undertaken since the strike began. Should the whole project fail of coming to an amicable end, however, the fight promises to be more bitter than ever. For this reason those back of the present negotiations are extremely anxious to have everything kept as quiet as possible, and that nothing should be made public regarding the basis or a conference until it had been accepted by both sides.

Feels Confident.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 29. —Vice-President Walter Larkins of Martin's Ferry of the Amalgamated Associations, local district, stated to the Associated Press last night that he was in receipt of a call from President Shaffer for a meeting of the National Executive Board of the Amalgamated Associations, to be held on Tuesday morning in Pittsburg. Speaking of the call Mr. Larkins exhibited great elation, and said that it meant that another conference would be held by the board with the representatives of the steel combine Tuesday at Pittsburg. He feels confident that the strike will be settled at this conference.

THE PUBLIC ARE REALIZING

When Sutcliffes advertise a special line, that time is the time to expect to get it, and that values such as they frequently offer are not to be had at all times.

The Silks which we put on sale a few days ago had a hearty response, and we would like to know why they shouldn't. For value—we never saw the like—and desirability is stamped on every piece. Variety is great, quantities of most of them limited. You might as well share the pick as some one else. It's possible to select a two dollar and a half Silk for ninety-eight cents, and a dollar and a half Silk for seventy-five cents.

We'd like to be able to show you photographs of these silks with the prices on them—that's impracticable.

Sorry! If we happen to be interesting one who is in the habit of buying at a credit store, but if your allowance does not come due until next month, pop in, make your selection, pay only a small amount on it, and we'll lay it aside for you.

CONDITION OF THE ROAD.

The C.P.R. on the North Shore in Bad Shape.

Toronto, July 29. — A correspondent of The Globe, who has spent the past couple of weeks along the north shore of the Georgian Bay, states that the efforts of the Canadian Pacific Railway officials to minimize the effect of the trackmen's strike are not consistent with the actual state of affairs. The long absence of the trackmen has caused the road to get into a very rough condition, and fears are expressed that it will not be properly repaired in time for the fall traffic. The spikes holding the rails are gradually working out, and in the yards of the railway at Sudbury spikes were seen which had pulled out two and three inches. This makes traveling unsafe, and in one week two smash-ups occurred owing to bad track, of which the company said nothing to the outside world.

The lateness of the trains has become so chronic and so irritating as to be proverbial. This is largely because the trains have to proceed slowly on the doubtful track.

More Machinists on Strike.

Toronto, July 29. — The strike of the brass moulders, which was inaugurated several weeks ago, in about six large machine shops, continues to spread. On Saturday, 35 machinists in the employ of the Northey Manufacturing Company refused to work, taking this action out of sympathy to the striking finishers, moulders, pattern makers and coremakers, now out. The firm expects that there will be a settlement of the grievance at an early date. The other firms remain steadfast, and refuse to grant the increases in wages demanded by the brass moulders. In all, about 250 men are out.

Steamer Bigelow Sank

Kingston, July 29. — The steamer Bigelow, owned by Capt. John Davis of Alexandria Bay, struck a stump up the Rideau near High Banks Saturday afternoon and sank in 20 minutes. The Calvin Company sent a wrecker to the scene of the accident, and it is expected the Bigelow will arrive here to-morrow night. She will be placed in Davis' dry dock for repairs.

Panama Insurrection.

Kingston, Ja., July 29.—Newspaper reports received here from Panama assert that the insurgents are operating in large numbers in the vicinity of the city, and that an order has been issued by the Government calling upon the citizens to concentrate in order to repel attacks and to protect property. Panama is guarded from the sea by a gunboat.

West Indians for Coronation.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 29.—Preparations have already begun to send a joint West Indian contingent from British West Indian possessions to the coronation of King Edward in London next year.

KITCHENER RUMORS.

Pretoria Report That He Will Give Up His Command Aug. 31.

BRITISH FOUGHT THEIR WAY OUT

Small Garrison Compelled to Evacuate Bremersdorp—Attacked by a Superior Force of Boers—Fighting All the Way to Lobombo, 16 Miles Distant—Casualties 10, a Few Missing.

London, July 29.—The Cape Town correspondent of The Standard, confirming the rumors which have been in circulation for a fortnight in London, says: "Mail advices say it is reported in Pretoria that Lord Kitchener will give up his command on Aug. 31 and proceed to England, where he will remain five months, then taking over the supreme command in India, and that Sir Bindon Blood is expected to succeed him in South Africa."

General Neville G. Lyttleton.

London, July 29. — It is freely rumored that Major-General Neville G. Lyttleton will succeed Lord Kitchener as Commander-in-Chief of the forces in South Africa.

Victory for Boers.

"Stephenson reports that a detachment of Steinacker's Horse was forced to evacuate Bremersdorp (in Swaziland, Southeastern Transvaal) last Wednesday by a superior force, probably the Amsterdam and Rellef commandos from the south. Our men fought their way 16 miles to Lebombo. We had ten killed and wounded, and there are a few missing."

Spruyt Killed.

Prisoners Fight.

Jamestown, St. Helena, July 29.—Bad blood among the Boer prisoners in St. Helena over the question of taking the oath of allegiance to King Edward has led to so much disorder that it has been necessary to remove those who have taken the oath to a separate enclosure. There were several severe encounters, and the Vigilance Committee of the irreconcilables subjected those who had taken the oath to indescribable indignities. The ringleaders have been imprisoned in the fortress.

Threw Away Medals.

London, July 29. — The drinking places in the Strand Saturday evening were filled with members of the Imperial Yeomanry, some of whom astonished their friends by throwing their war medals upon the floor and stamping upon them. These medals were given by King Edward to the Yeomanry Saturday morning. In explanation of their anger the Yeomen alleged that the government was in arrears with their pay and referred to the blunders of officials. One Yeomen said: "Our names are misspelled and our rank and command are wrong in six cases out of ten. We supposed the medals would be worth something to our friends and posterity, but mine is not worth anything but to chuck away."

The example of this man was followed by many others.

Not to Visit Kruger.

London, July 29. — The latest peace rumor, to the effect that Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador, had gone to Holland to act as an intermediary between Great Britain and the Boers at the request of Mr. Kruger, is altogether without foundation. Mr. Choate is attending to his business in London.

In Touch With Boers.

Rotterdam, July 29. — There was received yesterday private information from an authoritative source to the effect that Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds are in secret daily communication with the Boer forces in South Africa.

It is also asserted that the ex-president and his plenipotentiary receive the British War Office telegrams as quickly as the British authorities themselves. From this it is inferred that there is a leak somewhere within the British lines.

Mr. Kruger's health is very unsatisfactory.

Scouts Coming Home.

Quebec, July 29. — Lieut.-Col. Pelletier, D.O.C., has been notified that 44 officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Canadian Scouts, are on board the SS. Numidian, due here this morning, en route to their homes from South Africa. One of the staff of the brigade office will meet the returning heroes on arrival and arrange for their transport westward.

Payment of War Gratuity.

Ottawa, July 29.—The accountant of the Militia Department has issued 1,800 cheques for the payment of the Imperial war gratuity to Canadians. There still remain about 700 Canadians to be paid. In the case of the death of the soldier entitled to receive it, the money goes to the next of kin.

THE PORK MARKET.

The high prices that have ruled for live hogs this year have greatly stimulated the raising of this class of stock for the export market. It would be impossible to state in a word all the conditions that have contributed to the maintenance of the inflated market during recent months, and it is very evident that these conditions cannot last forever. Raisers of live stock must be prepared, therefore, for a turn that will mean a decline from the present ruling of the market. The English market has shown decidedly weak tendencies, and a lowering of prices there would not cause any surprise. This would mean an inevitable drop in the prices of live hogs here. In general terms, this is the present condition of the market.

The point to which we desire to draw the special attention of the farming community is that the satisfactory prices could not have been maintained had not the Canadian bacon, on account of its excellent quality, found favour with the English consumers. That means that the farmers have been alive to their own interests and have raised the article that has been in demand in England. A few years ago the result that has been achieved this year would have been impossible, simply because the farmers of this country did not raise the class of hogs that are suitable for the export trade. Some of the pork packers undertook to educate the farmers in this regard, taking the ground that the interests of the packers and of the farmers were identical in their endeavours to meet the exacting demands of the English people. At that time a few of the breeders of stock were under the impression that the new ideas which the packers were advocating were simply a fad, enunciated very largely in their own interests. But now it is admitted that their ideas were the result of commendable foresight, and it is due to the packers to state that their anticipation of new conditions has placed the farmers in a position to profit—and profit very largely — by being able to meet advantageously the state of the market in times like the present. Had the farmers adhered to the old breeds of hogs, and to the old methods of preparing them for the market, the prices which have prevailed lately would not have been realized. In this district the hogs are generally of a good type and are suitable for the making of Wiltshire Bacon, but there are other parts of Canada which are considerably behind in this respect. There is still much room for improvement, and attention to the breeding and raising of hogs amply repays for all the time and trouble expended. The nearer the hogs come to the standard of perfection the higher will be the price of Canadian bacon relatively to that of other countries. The ability of Canadian producers and shippers generally to adopt their products to the exacting demands of the English market is an important feature of the commercial life of this young country.

TO IMITATE JAPAN.

Chinese Court Has Instructed the Regency Court to That Effect.

Pekin, July 28. — The court has instructed the Regency Board, which has been constituted to consider reforms, to aim at reform and harmonious relations, to escape poverty and become strong in sincerity, energy, prudence and unselfishness, and yield their private opinions to the will of the majority. These instructions have been received by Prince Ching, Li Hung Chang and Kung Kang, who are members of the board.

The communication directs that the board shall select subordinates for their ability and integrity, without regard to rank; rectify abuses with firmness and moderation; examine all suggestions for reform; divide the board into committees; follow the good laws of the Old Country and adopt the good ones of other countries; remove useless expenditures, and in order to pay the debt devise new sources of revenue; imitate Japan and western countries; abandon past methods in recommendations for propositions; begin promptly the reform of abuses; and select good men and yourselves act with sincerity and zeal.

While the instructions laid down are good, it is thought the men who compose the board are avaricious and selfish and cannot grasp the situation. Li Hung Chang, the best of the lot, is too old to attempt to make thorough reforms.

BELLE ISLE BLOCKED WITH ICE.

Father Point, Que., July 29.—Captain Baxter of the S. S. Manchester Commerce, from Manchester, which passed inward at 11.05 p. m. Saturday, reports that the Straits of Belle Isle are blocked, and he could not get through. He sighted a three-masted steamer fast in the ice. The captain says he turned and came south, by way of Cape Race, and when between St. Pierre and Cape Ray picked up a dory with two men in it. They had been three days and three nights in it without food or water, and were pretty well exhausted when picked up. They were then about 50 miles from land. The men belong to a schooner called Ohio, hailing from Great Bank, Fortune Bay, and say they left the schooner in a fog to pick up their lines and could not find their way back.

Europe's Sick Man.

Constantinople, July 29.—Saturday the Sultan agreed to comply with the demands made by the Russian Government for the release of Servians recently arrested in Albania, together with the restoration of the arms taken, and for the recall of Djemal Bey, the Mutessarif of Prishtina, the instigator of the arrests.

France is pressing for a settlement in connection with the French-owned docks, the contract calling for their purchase by Turkey.

All the legations are making representations against interference by the Porte with the decisions of the Sanitary Council.

Prof. Osler Creates a Sensation.

"Right through the sittings of the British Congress on Tuberculosis there has not been anything like the sensation of the opening day, which was not printed in the daily reports. An American delegate, Prof. Osler, ripped out a good round oath, followed by an apology to the Duke of Cambridge and the ladies in the gallery. He contrasted the altruistic attitude of the members of the Congress with the egotistic attitude of Amerian trusts. He said the motto of one was Pro Bono Publico, while the other adopted the motto Damn the Public."

Virchow on Koch.

Berlin, July 29. — Professor Virchow says: "I am emphatically against Dr. Koch's deductions. He ignores everything we owe to the investigations and experiments of the Copenhagen school. The commission of the Danish Government conducted the most thorough experiments, the results of which are most flatly contradicted by Dr. Koch. You cannot say, 'Rome has spoken,' because Dr. Koch is far from Rome, and the matter as far from settled."

POWLEY'S LIQUIFIED OZONE.

Before very long you will find Powley's Liquified Ozone an established stand-by in every household; the best and most perfect antiseptic, cleansing, healing, useful in a hundred little ways; a preventive of disease and a cure for it. For example:

For a burn, cut or bruise, wet the part thoroughly in Ozone, clear; takes the soreness away like magic, heals by "first intention" promptly and perfectly.

For a sting or poisonous insect's bite, wet it with Ozone, clear; you will be surprised at the quick relief.

For croup, diphtheritic sore throat, and the like, use Ozone as a spray or on a swab; apply it as a compress; take it internally. It will cure like magic.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is oxygen in a stable form; liquid: it does what you would naturally expect oxygen to do; antiseptic, stimulating, healing.

This letter evidences the many uses it has:

I must congratulate you in being so fortunate as to possess such a wonderful remedy for humanity's ills. I think it is the acme of perfection. Your remedy seems to cure every disease in the body. It goes directly to the weak place and fixes it up. I was used up generally—felt exhausted on the least exertion. Ozone has removed every vestige of the trouble. I now feel splendid and give Ozone the praise of it all. I trust you will have success as your reward for such a fine medicine. (Signed) JOHN N. GILLION, Markham, Ont.

DEATH NOT TERRIBLE.

Tolstoi Tells of His Impressions During His Recent Illness.

Paris, July 29.—A despatch to The Temps from Moscow says Count Tolstoi, who has partially recovered from his illness and is able to sit up, yesterday told a friend the impressions he gained. He said:

"I did not recognize those around me distinctly. I seemed to be slipping softly but surely into beatitude. Now there is the painful impression of returning through bogs and quagmires to terrestrial existence. I regret every moment of the time between this world and the next. I will write something on this subject to teach men that death is not terrible, because there is another and better life."

Chicago-European Ships Don't Pay.

New York, July 29.—It is said that the ocean-crossing freighters of the Northwest Steamship Company, plying between Chicago and European ports, are not earning dividends for their owners. Their tedious trips through lake, canal and river before reaching the open sea make them expensive. Since the return of the first ships of the fleet to Chicago there has been an impression that they were unprofitable. The Northam, the Northeastern, the Northwestern and the Northtown will nevertheless sail for Europe again, to see if they can't do better.

Bank of Italy Scandal.

Rome, July 29.—If the leading financial newspaper of Italy can be trusted this country is about to witness an exposure of one of the worst scandals of modern times. The Economista declares that the Bank of Italy for years has declared a dividend which it has never earned, and that the books of the bank have been systematically falsified. Other newspapers are calling for the prosecution of the incriminated officials and it is difficult to see how the Government can resist the demands.

Mad Mullah Routed.

Aden, Arabia, July 29.—In a fight between the Mad Mullah and the British, July 17, the former was routed, losing 70 killed. The British casualties were Lieut. Fredericks and 12 men killed and Lieut. Dickson and 20 men wounded.

Going to West Africa.

London, July 29.—Lieut. W. Gregory of the 7th Fusiliers has been appointed to the West African Constabulary. Before joining the 7th he was drill sergeant at Wolseley Barracks, and was sent for a special course at Aldershot.

Alleged Counterfeiter Caught.

Woodstock, July 27.—Albert Kipp of Princeton is in the County Jail on a very serious charge, that of uttering counterfeit coin. He passed a bad quarter on his brother-in-law, a man named Gum, who runs an ice cream parlor, and Gum turned it over to the police. Later Kipp returned and wanted the quarter back. The police are investigating Kipp's movements, it having been learned that he and another young man were engaged in suspicious operations on Horner's Creek on July 17. They had a fire, and since then molten metal has been found lying around where the fire was.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS is the best known remedy for dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness, and will cure all blood diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrufulous sore. m

THE NAVIGATION QUESTION.

Ottawa, July 29.—The Premier leaves town again this afternoon, this time with the object of making a trip down the St. Lawrence as far as the gulf. Sir Wilfrid is not in the habit of parading his movements or making known his intentions beforehand, but it would not be surprising if he contemplated something more than a mere holiday jaunt. The Premier likes to be fully informed upon all subjects that come before the Government for consideration, and not infrequently satisfies himself by personal inquiry as to the merits or demerits of a particular question. A trip down the St. Lawrence affords the opportunity of looking into the navigation question, which is still prominently to the fore, and perhaps Sir Wilfrid has some such purpose in view.

NEGLECT OF CANADA.

R. Harmer of Massey-Harris Co. Complains of British Press.

Ottawa, July 29.—The Department of Trade and Commerce Saturday morning received a letter from R. Harmer of the Massey-Harris Company, which is in part as follows: "I have recently returned from an extended trip through Great Britain and the Continent of Europe, and it is with much regret that one who is interested in the welfare of Canada should see so little information concerning ourselves as a country in the press of Great Britain, while matters of the very smallest moment occurring in the United States are always given much prominence in the London papers. Surely there is some reason for this, and one would almost think that the London papers were muzzled by the Americans."

Mr. Harmer takes it for granted that the department is doing its best to spread the news in Great Britain of the great crop in Manitoba and the scarcity of farm hands there. He says that undoubtedly large numbers of hands could be persuaded to come from Great Britain if inducements were offered in the way of special low steamer rates and they could arrive in time if cabled for.

A True Nerve Tonic.

acts not so much upon the nerves themselves, as upon the digestive functions, and the abundment formation of rich, red blood. The nerves cannot be fed on medicine. They can be fed and strengthened by digested and assimilated food. Ferrozone's marvellous action arises from its power over the digestive and assimilative functions of the body. You take it, the blood grows richer, redder. You feel strength and vigor, digestion ceases to be noticed, for it has become good. Work is easier, for you have the strength to do it. In a short time you have health. Use Ferrozone. Sold only by Ormond & Walsh.

"King of Canada, Australasia, South Africa, and all the British Dominions beyond the seas."

The other colonies, however, preferred the title which was finally selected.

Men's Meeting.

The Men's Meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall yesterday afternoon at 4.15 was fairly well attended in spite of the down pour of rain. Rev. F. A. Leitch, M.A., of Portland, Me., gave a very helpful address on the subject "Esau's Bargain."

Police Court.

At the police court this morning Albert Kearns was charged with stealing a watch from Mr. W. J. English at the National Hotel, on June 22nd. He pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until Monday, bail in the meantime being accepted.

The Royal Art Co. has opened their studio at 348 Water street, where they will be pleased to have their patrons call and inspect their work. They also carry a very large assortment of frames. An invitation is extended to the general public to visit this studio, as it is very interesting.

Good Fishing in the River.

Mr. Jack Stephenson, Ashburnham's canoe builder, accompanied by Mr. Russell, went below the locks a few miles Friday morning, leaving at 4 a.m. and returning at 8 a.m. with a nice feed of bass, the largest one weighing 5 1-2 lbs., also one 'lunge about 7 lbs., a very good morning's fishing.

Will You be There?

Of course you are going to the picnic, (we mean the Printers' Picnic) because everybody will be there with their sisters, and their cousins and their aunts, not to speak of their best girl. Don't forget the boat leaves the wharf at 2 o'clock, on Saturday afternoon, and that gentlemen's tickets cost only 35c.; ladies' tickets, 25c.; and children's, 20c. The committee have limited the number of tickets to 250, so there will be no over-crowding.

At George Street Church.

At George Street Methodist Church yesterday evening the anthem "Praise Him" was sung with tenor obligato by Harley Goldie. The trio was taken by Messrs. Goldie and Mulligan and Mrs. Walden. Mr. George Mulligan rendered two solos, "Saved by Grace," and "Live for Him," very acceptably. In the morning the anthem was entitled "Sing of his Services."

To Stony Lake.

The Methodist Sunday school of Millbrook have arranged with the G. T. R. and the steamer Sunbeam, for what promises to be the most delightful outing of the season, on Tuesday next, through Katchewanooka, Clear and Stony Lakes. Ample accommodation has been made for 600 or 700 people, so that there is no fear of over-crowding. Stoppages will be made at Burleigh for dinner, and at other points. As the excursion will return by special train which will not leave Lakefield until 8.30 p.m., one hour longer will be spent at the lakes than has heretofore been given. SUNDAY UP THE LAKES.

The Heavy Downpour of Rain Made it Disagreeable for Campers.

Sunday was a rather disagreeable day at the Lakes. However, the Peterborough people did not anticipate this and a great many went up on both the noon and evening boats on Saturday. The various resorts and the many cottagers had their share of visitors. Sunday was, of course, spent in quietness under cover.

The young people of the lake enjoyed a delightful hop in the pavilion on Friday evening. The affair was very informal but proved to be a great success.

Viamede, the popular resort under the management of Mrs. Graham, of Lakefield, has had a very successful season. Every day parties are leaving, but other parties are at once taking their places. The Rothester people are very fond of Viamede, and throughout the season many from that city enjoy the beauties of this resort. The latest arrivals at Viamede are Mr. E. T. Fox and wife, Miss Emma Fox and Mr. E. C. Fox, Toronto, A. B. Holmes, New York; Cora M. Coote, Rochester; Frank P. Hayes, New York; Geo. W. Stone, Toronto; A. Moyle, and Master A. Moyle, C. W. Barrie, Akron, O.

Amongst those who have been enjoying the summer at Viamede are Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Curry and children, of Toronto; Mr. Curry is one of Toronto's well-known bankers and brokers, and managing director of the Crown Corundum and Mica Co., Limited. The mines of this company are known as the Blue Mountain property and Mr. Curry speaks very enthusiastically of the prospects of his company. They are pushing active operations and a great quantity of mica and corundum is being shipped out. Mr. Curry is therefore able to combine business with pleasure when he comes to Stony Lake, and a more genial visitor one seldom runs across.

Messrs. Norman Bell, Harold Armstrong and Walter Robinson have been camping near Viamede. They have had a jolly time and are returning to town to-morrow.

The steamer Empress on Saturday night backed up on a rock near Boschink and smashed her screw. It was necessary to call into service the alligator which was near by, and she was taken off the rock. Another screw was placed on the shaft, and the Empress was able to make her regular trip this morning.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum spent Sunday as the guest of Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

Messrs. Robert Elliott and Fred Clark went up this morning to spend their holidays. They will join Eko camp on Saturday evening next.

Professor John Rondulf, of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, has been camping just east of Viamede for the past two months. He leaves this week to join a party of Americans who are spending a while at Algonquin Park.

Mr. Fred Dixon was a guest at Tecumseh Lodge, the summer home of Mr. J. B. McWilliams, over Sunday.

TRAINS DELAYED.

A washout occurred at the bridge just one mile north of Port Hope station, on the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, early this morning, and no trains from the south have reached Peterborough so far to-day.

The express which leaves Peterborough at 11.40 a.m., went south as usual, and the passengers will be conveyed on to the town in carriages. Quite a number of summer visitors to the back lakes went south at noon and they were very anxious that they should make connections with their respective trains and boats.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

The members of Court Langton, No. 344, Canadian Order of Foresters, passed the following resolution of condolence to Mrs. Huston, mother of the late George Huston, at the last regular meeting of the court,

The crow will follow Willie all around, and is a good alarm clock, as it starts to caw every morning at 3 a.m.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

LACROSSE.

Toronto Telegram — In lacrosse, as in other sports, the time has come when more attention must be paid to the appointment of officials. Incompetent referees, goal umpires and timers have caused trouble for years and are still causing it, and although this year there is an improvement in referees in the C.L.A., at least there is a crying demand for the spread of this improvement to the other officials of the game. To be sure, the umpire is not so important as he was before the introduction of the goal nets. Still there has been several instances of disputes this season and several times the referee has been called upon to change the umpires. The general rule for the appointment of these officials is for each team to name one. And the team generally names a man who will try to give them the best of it under all circumstances. As for the timers, they are generally picked up after the time for starting the game has arrived and the first men to hand are taken. As a general rule they know as much about keeping time as it does about them. Result— more disputes.

The facts show that no appointments of officials in association matches should be left to the clubs. The referee has entire charge of the game. Let it be his duty to select the umpires and the timers. In important matches let all be outsiders; and let the association provide suitable watches for keeping the time. The O.H.A. moved along somewhat similar lines to these last winter and it must be admitted by all who attended their games that they were better conducted in all ways than these of any other sporting association.

Another thing that should be required of the goal umpire is that he should watch the goal crease and be given the power to rule off any player who persists in encroaching on it. This would do away with a lot of exhibitions such as that given by Hess in last Saturday's game. It would also have done away with the scrap between Greatrix and Broderick, as that really resulted from the trouble started in the goal crease.

THE PONIES WON SATURDAY.

They Could Play Ball too Fast For the Locals.

Peterboroughs Poor Work in the Field Responsible for Much Run Getting.

The Peterborough Baseball Team was defeated in a fairly good game of ball on Saturday by the Ponies of Kingston, the score being 15 to 5. The visitors are reported to be the fastest amateur team in Canada, and they clearly demonstrated the fact on Saturday that they know the game perfectly. With the exception of two men, they do nothing else but play ball in the summer, being teachers, students, etc.

The Ponies trimmed Lindsay's hot air aggregation on Friday by 10 to 3, and were in fine fettle for fast ball. The score here sets forth the fielding qualities of both teams, for that the locals are playing a wretched game in the field cannot be denied, while on the other hand it was a difficult matter to get a hit through the visitors' infield.

The battery work of both teams was good, and had McCabe and Kehoe received the support McCammon had, a very close game would have resulted. In the catching department neither Graham nor Elliott had an error, and in base stealing the visitors only managed to get three on Chris., while the locals purloined 12, a fact that "Chaucer" don't like, as that is one of his strong points in cutting off runners.

It was thought as there was no sun shining in the fielders' faces, that they would take care of anything coming their way, but Sheridan and Grady both dropped nice flys with men on bases, helping the Ponies to run up a big score. It has been a regular occurrence lately after one or two men have been put out for the locals to "go up in the air," and commence throwing the ball over the fence, missing easy grounders, flys, etc., while the opposing team has run up five or six runs. Saturday was no exception, and in the 5th innings, with three men on bases, Connors, intending to throw the ball to Graham to catch Young at the plate lined it over against the fence. When the dust had settled, three men had crossed the plate.

Most of the Ponies' hits went between short stop and second, neither Parnell nor Mulhall being able to get near them. Elliott and Scott both put long drives over the left field fence for homers, with no men on bases either time.

Ed. Davies umpired in a satisfactory manner.

The following shows how it was done:

NOTES.

Duquette, who played left field, is a college pitcher of Potsdam, N. Y. Elliott says he is going to be better than Sullivan of the Torontos, who graduated from the Ponies.

Sheridan stole second and third base while McCammon was wrangling with the umpire, and was loudly cheered.

Graham made a determined rush for home in the second innings, but was nailed by a fast throw of Young.

SUMMER RESORTS.

LOVESICK.

The summer season is at its height all are in their glory and as happy as a toad in a mud puddle. The cottagers at and around this place are far ahead of last year's record, and we thought it was good. Without a doubt there will be several new cottages built for next year. Among the cottagers we notice Mr. and Mrs. LePlante of Peterborough; Mr. Letellier, Peterborough; accompanied by his son, and daughter, Miss Olive. Rev. Mr. McCallum and family of Toronto, is camped on the island, Lovesick.

Mrs. McPherson and son, Peterborough, Mr. White, Lakefield, Revd Father Fitzpatrick, and Chas. Young, visited the picturesque cottage on the hill, Domum Dulce Domum, Latin for Home sweet home.

YOUNG'S POINT.

Mr. A. Robinson is erecting a nice dwelling house, on his lot here, and expects to brick it in the near future.

Mr. Edward Whatley is building a large sawmill at the bend of the river above the locks and intends to have it in running order in about three weeks. He will have the mill operated by steam power.

Mrs. Jas. Carroll was visiting her sister at Belleville the past week.

The Rev. Father Fitzpatrick paid a visit to his father in Norwood last week.

Ven Archdeacon Casey and Rev. Father O'Brien, of Peterborough, accompanied by the altar boys of St. Peter's Cathedral, had an outing at the Point on Thursday last. They went up to South Beach and spent the day in games and sports.

The following guests registered at the Kearney House this week:—Mr. and Mrs. F. Pfaefflin, Mr. and Mrs. Fedor Willimck, Miss Fannie Willimck, Mrs. Hermione Willimck, Mrs. Seligman, Miss Julia Seligman, Miss Mariem Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Karle, Miss Emilie Karle, Mr. E. Ruestow, Mr. Henry Loewer, Mr. G. Ferguson, Mr. R. Latchford, Master Arthur Latchford, Mr. A. Benjamin, Mr. W. R. McKay, of Rochester; Mr. J. Wilde, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Pringle, of Bradford, Penn.; Misses Aggie and May McFadden and Messrs. J. and Fred McFadden, Peterborough; Mr. C. Gutterson, Miss Irwin, of Chicago.

The water is extremely low here, the steamboats find find it difficult approaching the locks here. On Friday evening last the "Empress" lodged on the bottom just below the locks and remained fast about three-quarters of an hour, which was very annoying to the passengers. There should be a couple of stop-logs taken out at the dam here, as the water is far too low between here and Lakefield.

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The Problem of Caring for Those Who Visit Buffalo This Summer Solved by Dr. Pierce's Free Bureau of Information—Registered Accommodations for 100,000 People.

It has been published broadcast that Buffalo lacks accommodation for guests visiting the Pan-American Exposition. The statement is utterly without foundation. It has been a point of honour with Buffalo, that all guests shall be accommodated properly and reasonably. For example, Dr. Pierce's free bureau of information has registered accommodations for one hundred thousand guests, in the most desirable homes and best locations in the city of Buffalo. Every room offered to guests has been inspected. Many rooms have been rejected by the Bureau because of location or some other unsatisfactory feature. The rooms offered by Dr. Pierce include the choicest rooms obtainable in Buffalo.

ALL IS FREE.

Dr. Pierce's Bureau was not organized for profit, but as a public spirited enterprise for the best interests of Buffalo and its Pan-American guests. There is absolutely no charge, fee or gratuity for any service rendered by the Bureau either to visitors or to householders.

This Free Bureau is located in a beautiful old mansion of Buffalo, at 652 Main street, just opposite the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of which Dr. R. V. Pierce is chief medical director. It is fitted up with reception-rooms, wash-rooms, dressing-rooms, parlours, and all conveniences for out-of-town visitors.

It includes a postal department where guests may receive mail, and writing rooms with facilities for the writing and mailing of letters. There is also an identification department where strangers may meet friends, or in case of accident may be identified and their friends notified.

FREE GUIDE BOOK.

In connection with this Free Bureau Dr. Pierce issues a free guide book to the Pan-American, Buffalo and vicinity. This book contains maps of Buffalo and the Exposition, together with such information most useful and necessary for the guidance and direction of strangers in a strange city.

REGISTER AT ONCE.

The question of where are you going to lodge is of prime importance and should be settled first of all. Have all mail, telegrams and parcels sent in care of the Bureau, if you wish.

As soon as you arrive in Buffalo proceed at once to the Bureau, at 652 Main street, register and secure your lodging. All cars run to Main street, and connect with Main street line. Transfers are furnished without extra charge. All Main street cars stop at Dr. Pierce's Bureau. The time from any railroad station to the Bureau is about ten minutes. Dr. Pierce's Bureau is the only one organized without a view to profit. It can therefore do more and do on a more liberal scale than is possible for any bureau which must measure the service it gives by what is to be paid for that service.

With the large list of choice rooms on the books of the Bureau no guest can be dissappointed in securing suitable lodgings who goes direct to 652 Main street to Dr. Pierce's Free Bureau.

One of Them Didn't Get On.

Visitor (looking at the photograph album)—You have a fine-looking family of boys, Mr. Bilkerson. And they all seem to have turned out remarkably well. This is Henry, isn't it?

Mr. Bilkerson (proudly) — Yes, that's Henry. He's in the music hall line. Gets £60 a week for merely singing what they call a topical song. Henry's a good deal of a genius. The next one is Christopher. He's a jockey. Made £7,000 out of it last year. The one on the next page is Oliver. He keeps a Stock Exchange "bucket-shop." Built a fine house out of what he made out of it last year and the year before. Yes, my boys are doing pretty well. Come out with me to the stables. I—

Visitor—But you have another son, haven't you?

Mr. Bilkerson (reluctantly)—Ye-e-s. His name's Gabriel. He's a professor of Greek, or theology, or something of that sort in a college. Gabe is a good enough fellow in his way, but he doesn't seem to get on. Come out to the stables, Mr. Swackhammer. I want to show you my new pair of grays.—London Tit-Bits.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

How'd You Like It?

How'd you like to be, this day,
Where a river's swishin,
Lyin full length on a green
Margin, where the branches lean?
Ain't that worth the wishin?

How'd you like to be, this day,
Far from cities sunny,
In a quiet country ranch,
You a-wadin in a branch?
Ain't that worth your money?

Familiar Example.

"This verse," said the Sunday school teacher, "says 'to him that hath shall be given.' You must have noticed many instances of the operation of this principle. Will you mention one?"

"Yes'm," said one of the little girls. "When you've got a sore eye, all the bugs and things fly into it."

The Reason For It.

She—Not at all. You may as well ask a woman her age as to ask her to acknowledge what year she graduated in.

A Summer's Doings.

Cityman hied to field and wood
When came the heated spell.
He thought the air might do him good;
The farmer did him well.

Her Invariable Rule.

Chawlie—And now that you have promised to be mine, dahling, I hope our engagement will not extend over a great period.

Mabel—Oh, no, dear; all my engagements have been short!

Poor Fellow!

Cham—How is Winter getting on?

Waggle—Well, when I last saw him he hadn't got a shirt to his back.

Cham—Poor fellow! Where did you see him?

Waggle—Bathing

A Kansas Tragedy.

Over the town the cyclone passed,
Funnel in shape and wild of blast.
Knott was the town on that luckless spot.
The cyclone passed—the town was not!

In Doubt.

Stubb—Did you notice how that man's fingers were swollen at the tips?

Penn—Yes, and I can't tell whether he is a professional pianist or just a married man who has been tacking down matting.

Chance For Heroism.

Adorer (anxiously)—What did your father say?

Sweet Girl—Oh, he got so angry I was afraid to stay and listen. He's in a perfectly terrible rage Go in and appease him.

A Dreamland Tragedy.

He loved her—in a dream—(she dreamed)—
And she refused him—so it seemed—
But—in the dream—this sad mistake
(She dreamed)—she'd change when wide awake.

His View of It.

McJigger—I thought your wife was economical.

Thingumbob—Such ignorance! My dear man, no woman is ever economical. She is either extravagant or stingy.

At the Church Picnic.

Afar from tiresome business haunts of man
We think to revel idly in the shade,
But, lo, we run athwart the grasping plan
Of sisters bound to sell us lemonade!

An Aggressive Case.

Ringway—Especially when you know the girl you love hasn't got money enough to support you.—Life.

Voices.

The wildwood calls me, "Come away!"
I wander with the breeze at play,
But at the twilit hour, alack,
My dinner table calls, "Come back!"

These Boston Girls.

Esther—She ought to be. No less than three girls in town were after her Charley.

How to Keep Cool.

Just fancy you're exploring
With the others at the pole
And smash the old thermometer
And let the weather roll!

A Trio in Evidence.

"Authors are frightfully conceited."

"Oh, not all of them."

"Well, the three authors I wrote to for their autographs all sent me their photographs."

Forgetting Time.

"I've had to learn so much this year,"
The schoolboy said, "you bet
I'm glad vacation time is here
So I can just forget!"

Pastoral.

"Why does finding four leaf clovers bring luck?"

"Well, the man is already in luck who has time to hunt four leaf clovers."

A Peculiarity.

Some men of wealth have made a lot,
And, pray, what have they done with it?
They simply add to what they've got
Instead of having fun with it!

The talk of the town — the printers' picnic. Don't miss it for your life.

SURPRISE

UPWARD.

Slowly we rise from the lower, hardly the higher attain.
Were it not better to linger here on the hills of our fathers?
On the green slopes, won by our fathers, were it not well to remain?

Nay, 'tis the counsel of laggards sighing for ease without ending,
Slothful of soul and ignoble, less kin to the peak than the plain.
Shall it be told that we halted, fain to be done with ascending,
Inglorious sons of our fathers, content to inherit their gain?

Let us, with stout hearts daunted by the arduous heights no longer,
Climb toward the distant summit nor faint on the upward way.
Through the toils we are now enduring our children shall spring the stronger;
They will win triumphs tomorrow if stanch we have striven today.

Alcoholism Can Be Cured

REV. FATHER QUINLIVAN'S ADVICE.

To whom it may concern: The good points of Mr. Dixon's new discovery for the cure of the liquor habit in my opinion, are the following: First, if taken according to directions it completely removes all craving for liquor in the short space of three days; its use for a longer time is intended only to build up the system. Second, it leaves no bad after effects, but on the contrary aids in every way the health of the patient, whilst freeing him from the desire for drink. Third, the patient may use it without interfering with his business, or leaving his home. All other liquor cures I have yet heard of are very costly, operate slowly, are doubtful as to effects and often impair the health and constitution of the patient. I therefore look upon the remedy as a real boon, recommend it heartily to all concerned, and bespeak for it here in Montreal and elsewhere every success. J. Quinlivan, S. S., Pastor of St. Patrick's, Montreal.

Full particulars of this new medicine mailed free to all applicants. Address, Mr. Dixon, 81 Willcocks st., Toronto, Ont.

A Substitute For Wool.

Artificial wool made from turf fibers is now employed at Dusseldorf, Germany, for manufacturing cloth, bandages, hats, rugs, etc. Ten years have elapsed since the first attempts to make turf wool, and it is averred that recent improvements in the processes have resulted in the production of a soft fibrous material which can be spun as readily as sheep's wool and which, besides possessing excellent absorbent properties, is capable of being bleached and colored for use in various textile industries.

Savings In Belgium.

Official statistics concerning the Belgium savings banks show that on Dec. 31, 1900, the number of books was 1,702,434 against 1,647,203 in the previous year and the amount of deposits $127,428,143.28, an increase during the year of $7,200,144. The capitalized interest amounted to $3,402,840.43, which, added to the amount represented in depositors' books, made a grand total of $131,830,983.82, belonging almost exclusively to the working class.

Sheldon's Opinion.

Leamington, Ont., July 23. — Mr. Sheldon states that for two years he unsuccessfully sought a remedy to cure his son of Catarrh, but permanent results were not obtained until Catarrhozone was used. It cured his little boy like magic, and he has been quite free from Catarrh ever since. Catarrhozone cures all forms of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Irritation Coughs and Colds. No remedy like it. Quick to relieve, pleasant to use, guaranteed to cure. Clears throat and nose at one breath. Try Catarrhozone, 25 cents and $1.00. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

DESERTERS' REMARKABLE FEATS.

Devices of British Soldiers to Escape From the Army.

To desert from either the army or the navy is not the easiest thing in the world, and even when accomplished the culprit lives in daily fear of being recaptured and sentenced to a heavy term of imprisonment. Therefore the devices employed by some deserters are as ingenious as they are exciting, although they cannot be said to be always crowned with success. For sheer audacity the case of an Irish soldier who deserted in a south coast town some years ago would be hard to beat. Just at that time a number of desertions had occurred in the neighborhood, and the authorities were therefore unusually sharp to prevent further offenses of this nature. But the man in question was dissatisfied with soldiering and, having a number of friends in the town who were disposed to help him and being possessed of an unusually large modicum of pluck, resolved to delay his return to civil life no longer.

One morning early he slipped out of barracks and made his way to a friend's house without being seen. Arriving there, he shaved off his mustache and, donning a policeman's uniform, boldly promenaded the main streets of the town. He was of course missed in barracks and knew that the surrounding country was being scoured in the hopes of finding him. On one occasion his sergeant came up to him and asked him if he had seen or heard anything of the missing man, and he of course replied that he had not, but he would keep his eyes open! For more than a fortnight he preserved his disguise without it being penetrated even by the police themselves, and he then calmly left the town when the hue and cry had subsided somewhat. Nevertheless his enterprise came to naught, for he was arrested in trying to work his passage back to Ireland.

Scarcely less audacious was the ruse employed by another dissatisfied son of Mars, and in this case likewise it proved futile. He happened to know that a certain publican in the town was in anything but affluent circumstances, for he visited the house regularly, and from remarks dropped at odd times discovered that the publican was heavily in debt to a Scotch spirit merchant. One morning as soon as the publican opened his doors the soldier arrived, after having first disguised himself with a beard and wig and donned civilian attire. With him came a friend, who agreed to act as a representative of the law, and he promptly told the astonished publican that he had orders to leave a man in possession unless the sum owing to the Scotch spirit merchant was paid to him there and then. The publican of course could not pay, so the deserter was quartered upon him and lived in his house and at his expense for more than a week before the deception was discovered.

Perhaps the most successful deserter, for a time, was William Conrad. Through one of his comrades he heard of a man whose son had gone to Australia gold mining and had apparently disappeared, for nothing more had been heard of him, though the parent still believed he would see him again. Conrad therefore hit upon the ingenious idea of leaving the army by stealth and, going to the man, informing him that he was the missing son. As his knowledge of Australia was considerable he lost no time in putting his plan into execution, and the parent, believing in him despite the supposed alteration in his appearance, provided him with a home and money galore, a commodity he confessed he lacked. But, unfortunately for him, at the end of 18 months the real son turned up, and what followed can better be imagined than described.—London Regiment.

Hastened His Death.

A worthy professor noticed a horse with what seemed to be a very singular bone formation in one of its legs. The animal was attached to a dilapidated cart and driven by a burly coster.

The professor spoke to the man and, after making a brief examination of the protuberance, concluded by saying:

"When your horse dies, I should like that leg for scientific examination. Bring it to my house, and I will give you half a sovereign for it."

Two hours later, on reaching home, he found a long, awkward bundle in the hall, which on being opened proved to contain the leg of the horse.

"You see, sir," the owner of the horse remarked, with a peculiar look in his eye, "the old 'oss, he died."—London Tit-Bits.

MEXICAN MERRYMAKERS.

The time honored custom of celebrating the saint's day, after some of which nearly all the large haciendas in Mexico are named, was witnessed on a recent Sunday at one of the principal ranches in the valley.

This custom was started by the Spaniards as a religious rite and still retains a great deal of the same sentiment, although it is looked forward to by most as a genuine merrymaking. The extent of the celebration depends upon the number of families living in the hacienda and the liberality of the owner, who generally gives a certain sum to one of the leading employees, leaving the matter in his hands to arrange for the greatest amount of enjoyment to his fellow workmen. A strict account is kept of the way this money is spent, so there is no dissatisfaction among the others, although the workman enjoying the distinction of being chosen to manage the feast is generally a leading star in the proceedings.

In the celebration of Sunday the ranchhouse had been beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens, with Chinese lanterns hung in rows along the portals. While work was more than usually well attended to the day before, one could notice an undercurrent of excitement prevailing in the colony of some sixty odd hands, and by 8 o'clock Saturday everything was ready for the short vesper dance which is usually held on the night before the saint's day celebration proper. If the music procured for the occasion is good enough, the people of the house generally enjoy a little dance themselves, while all the peons gather in front of the main building and are left entirely to their own devices to make the most of the occasion.

However, this was only the preliminary for the next day. At 8:30 in the morning mass was heard in the chapel of the place. At this mass not only the working people and the people of the house attended, but also many from the neighboring haciendas. Particular prayers were said for the success of the haciendas, and altogether a very impressive service was held. Everything went as usual during the day, but at night the entertainment was given over entirely to the workpeople. Tables had been placed on the lawn in front of the house on which were immense stacks of candy and fruit, free pulque from the ranch had been procured in quantities, and the major domo had to have several assistants to help him deliver these things, of which the people, old and young, are so fond. System had to be employed in distributing the fruit and candy. As they passed in front of the tables those appointed as waiters gave to all as much as they could conveniently eat in a day or so. Attempts are always made to work the waiters as many times as possible, and it was amusing to watch the little fellows especially dodge through the crowd and start in again, marching up as seriously and innocently as could be with their little shirts bursting with what they had already stored away inside.

The dancing began about 9 o'clock and lasted until 11, being carried on with vigor the whole of the time by old and young. It doesn't make much difference on these occasions who or what the partners are so long as they are nimble on their feet and have good staying powers. If a girl or woman be not available, men and boys dance with each other, the primary object being not to waste the music.

Perfect order, good feeling and politeness prevailed, and after the night was over the people were ready to go home feeling better for their recreation and resolved to deserve by their work another fiesta of a like kind when the time comes round.

joker you ever saw. Always getting rigs on me, and I never could get back on him until last week, and then I was about as much surprised as he was.

"I was coming down the street and saw a crowd gathered around some Salvation Army singers. Long Jim was away on the edge of the crowd, standing on his tiptoes so he could see over the heads of the rest. He had his back to me, and, sticking out from under his arm, was a big bag of lemons. I saw my chance, and I sneaked quietly behind him, hauled off and gave that bag of lemons an awful swipe with my cane."

He laughed till his sides shook and tears ran down his face. I waited till he had quieted down.

"Well?" I queried. "Scattered the lemons all about, I suppose?"

"Scattered! Ho, ho, ho! He! He! Hi, hi, hi! He! Hum! Well, I should say so. But they wasn't lemons; they was eggs."

Curious Chinese Twins.

These twins are boys, and they were born in China a few years ago. They are of normal intelligence, and each weighs 13 kilograms. Four years ago they had smallpox, the infection passing in 24 hours from one to the other. One day whisky was given to one of them, and yet it was the other one who first began to show signs of intoxication. They go to sleep about the same time, but it is possible to awaken one without arousing the other. They can walk and run with ease, and when they lie down they very quickly find a comfortable position.

M. Chapot-Prevost, a scientist, who has given much attention to monstrosities of this kind and who successfully performed an operation some time ago on two girls who were similarly joined, recently examined these twins and concluded that the ligament uniting them could be severed without much, if any, risk. He therefore suggested that this be done, but those in charge of the twins said it was impossible, as it was the will of the Chinese god Khango that the boys should be born thus, and his will must be respected.

Both Were Surprised.

The third time I changed cars at the Hornellsville Union railroad station and lunched at the little grillroom just up the street the jolly little proprietor recognized me as a regular patron and did his best to entertain me while my special pot of coffee was coming to a boil.

"Notice that fellow who just went out?" he asked, chuckling contentedly to himself.

I hadn't noticed particularly, but I knew it would be disconcerting to admit, so I nodded encouragingly, says a writer in the New York Herald.

"Well," he continued, "that's Jim Smith—Long Jim Smith they call him—conductor of the Erie, and, say, he's laying for me. Greatest practical

"I lingered between life and death."

"I think Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' the best medicines in the world," writes Mrs. Amelia Dougherty, of Kerrigan, Wayne Co., Mo. "I gave birth to a baby last summer. After confinement I became very ill, had the best physician that could be got, and he diagnosed my case as uterine trouble tending to dropsy. Medicine seemed to do me no good. I lingered between life and death for quite a while, every day growing weaker until I could not walk across the room. My friends were looking for my death every minute. A friend wrote and told me about Dr. R. V. Pierce, and I at once wrote to him for medical advice. He replied immediately, giving me full instructions as to what to do. I at once followed his advice, and when I had taken his medicine about a week I felt a good deal stronger. When I had taken it about one month I felt as strong as I do to-day. I took four bottles of each kind and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Many thanks for the medicine, It has permanently cured me."

Why Bees Work in Darkness.

Bees go out all day gathering honey and work at night in the hive, building their combs as perfectly as if an electric light shone there all the time. Why do they prefer to work in the dark? is often asked. Every one knows that honey is a liquid with no solid sugar in it. After standing it gradually assumes a crystalline appearance or granulates and ultimately becomes a solid mass.

Honey has been experimentally inclosed in well corked flasks, some of which were kept in perfect darkness, while the others were exposed to the light. The result was that the portion exposed to the light soon crystallized, while that kept in the dark remained unchanged.

Hence we see why the bees are so careful to obscure the glass windows which are placed in their hives. The existence of the young depends on the liquidity of the saccharine food presented to them, and if light were allowed access to this it would in all probability prove fatal to the inmates of the hive.

Took Mutton.

He was a station hand in from a three months' spell of work, during which he had tasted no other meat than mutton; also he stuttered badly. His eyes fairly leaped at the stuffed turkey on the hotel dinner table, though the boiled mutton made him shiver.

Said the host, "What will you try, Mr. Straps?"

Eagerly, "I'll t-try a b-bit of t-t-t"—The word floored him. Again, "G-give m-me a li-little t-t-t"— Then, red faced and disgusted: "Oh, h-hang it! Give me some b-blooming mutton! I h-hate it, but I can s-s-s-say it, anyhow."

They Changed.

A Vienna paper relates an anecdote of the painter Makart, who was sometimes as taciturn as Von Moltke. One evening at a dinner he sat for an hour next to the soubrette Josephine Gallmeyer without volunteering a word. Finally she lost patience and exclaimed, "Well, dear master, suppose we change the subject."

Knew When to Go.

"I will," he said and flew away.

The Pie Eaters.

Pie in New England is served in many queer ways, especially the king of all pies, the royal mince. Not long ago there appeared a sign in the station of staid, crooked and correct Boston—a sign bearing the strange device, "Hot Mince Pie and Ice Cream."

This is a mild combination compared with one that was served in this city at a midnight supper. A Welsh rabbit was being made, and there were some who did not care to eat it on crackers; no toast in the house, for it was the fire's evening out. A mince pie was found lurking in the ice chest and pressed into service. The rabbit was spread over the pie, and both vanished in a short time. Those who ate are still afraid in the dark, for they can imagine that the same things are coming for them again as came during their dreams of that wild, weird night.

A local minister tells a pie story on himself that is a "corker." He is a delicate man, and his wife was down on pie for him and vetoed it for family use. Once he went to a convention in Pittsfield, and a dinner was served at which there were seven kinds of pie. The minister took a "little of each, please," and never enjoyed himself so much in his life.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old Daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that "her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode."

One That Didn't Count.

Harris—I saw Bulger just now. He said he was so glad that he was out of debt at last.

Farren—Out of debt! Why, he owes me $15.

Harris—He probably meant that he was out of debts that he had got to pay.

"Have you any shirt waists for men?" asked the customer.

"No, sir," said the affable salesman, "but we've got some corsets we're selling mighty cheap today; second aisle to the right."

The Nervous System

Each organ of the body is of great importance, otherwise a wise Creator would have omitted it. Of no less importance is the great network of nerves running all through the body. They all connect with the brain, which is a central office or bureau of information. Is there inflamation in some part of the body? The nerves convey the news to the brain and the pain caused by irritation of the nerves is located. If there is a weakness in any part of the body or some organ is being overtaxed, the nerves convey the news. Symptoms manifested by the nerves are sleeplessness, headache irritability, nervousness, dizziness, forgetfulness, dispondency, lack of muscular control, and general loss of tone and debility. What's the cure? Not stimulants, for they only intensify the exhausted condition and result in harmful after-effects. Not opiates which only stupify and hide the danger signal, but Merrill's System Tonic which soothes the irritated condition of the nerves, feed and reconstruct the fast decaying sensibility and then by its general curative action on the different organs of the body, bring the general health back to its normal condition. System Tonic is an honest medicine, doing good in nearly every instance and doing harm in none. Its chief aim is to build up and strengthen each organ in the body and nature can and will then restore perfect health.

A GRAND GAME FOR GIRLS IS GOLF.

An English Critic Extols the Benefit of the Pastime for Young People and Especially for Women.

By Mary E. Heslet.

Articles without number have been written on this subject, and nearly every writter comes to practically the same conclusion — namely, that golf is the best game for girls. This is now such an evident fact that most people accept it without questioning, and encourage girls to play as much as possible. It is such a healthy amusement that it is particularly suitable for girls, giving them plenty of exercise without any over-exertion. Fresh aid and exercise are especially requisite for growing girls and golf gives both these advantages. Its other good qualities as a game are too numerous to mention, and would become hackneyed if reiterated too often.

In former years children were not encouraged on the links, but in the present time all is changed. In holiday times the links are crowded with girls and boys enjoying the sport, and they are encouraged to play up, as competitions are given for their benefit, and helped on in every way.

A most amusing competition is that where each child plays with a grown-up. They are so excited and eager that it is painful to miss a shot while playing with them, and their reproachful glances are hard to bear. It is surprising the way the tiny children play, they are so good for their ages, and in many of them great promise can be seen of their play in years to come, when they have attained to their full strength.

But it is not for these children this article is meant, but for girls of a more advanced age. Girls, as a rule, have not much time for playing, except in the holidays, as lessons, etc., take up most of the day. But generally a few minutes can be secured every day for practicing,even if there is not time for a round, and it is marvellous what these short practices will do to one's play. In the summer months, in the long evenings, a round can generally be got in quite late, when most of the duties of the day are over.

PLAY IN THE EVENING.

This is really the pleasantest time for playing, as the air is so fresh after the heat of the day and the stillness of a summer's evening so enjoyable, and makes it such a pleasure to be out that one is always loath to leave off and go back to the house. Then there are the holidays, that idyllic time when there is nothing to be done but amuse one's self all day long, and what better form of amusement can be found than a round on the links? Good exercise, fresh air and pleasure are all combined, and with a pleasant partner nothing more can be desired. Tennis although an excellent game, is rather hard work in the full heat of the sun, and is much better suited to cool evenings; but in golf the sun does not make much difference, one gets impervious to weather, and a sunshade can always be used if there is any fear of complexions being sunburnt.

If you have brothers go round with them on every possible occasion, as their candid criticisms are often of great service and immensely good for one's play. Besides, as a rule, they hit harder than girls, and playing with a better driver, although discouraging and disheartening at first, is yet improving, as insensibly it makes one's own drive lengthen out, and encourages one to hit harder. Some people who seem to hit hard do not in reality, but tthey know exactly when to put all their strength into the swing, and this is the great secret of driving. Never press — it is absolutely no good to do so, and will probably have the result of missing the ball altogether, without any advantage at all. Even if the ball is hit, a pressed shot will not go half as far as a perfectly easy one. It is a great temptation to try and put a little more strength into the ball, but it is fatal, and more matches are lost from this than from alamost any other reason. In practicing a little pressing may be done, so that gradually more power is put into the swing, but in a match never, but, if tempted to do so, be careful to swing a little more easily than usual, as one does it insensibly.

IMITATE GOOD PLAYERS.

Golf is a great game for ideals: there is nearly always some hero or heroine that one looks up to with special reverence. Everyone has her own particular favourite, and models her style upon that of her charmer. It is a good thing to do, as imitation is really one of the best ways of learning.

This is especially noticeable in boys, as they nearly always model their style on some great player they have seen, and, like the monkeys, use their imitative qualities to such a degree, that the swing comes quite natural to them, and is made without any effort. It is often noticed that players from some particular club have all got practically the same style, either from watching the local professional, from from all having been taught by the same man.

Girls will find that golf is really a more satisfying game than hockey or cricket. In the latter game the whole team joins in the play, and one is only a unit among the whole, but in golf there is such a feeling of satisfaction after doing a good round all alone, with nobody's help or assistance. It is the more selfish game, and this is a selfish feeling, but it is hard not to be conscious of the thought. In hockey, especially, the players can never attain to any success unless they are unselfish, but on the other hand, there is only one's self to blame when playing badly, and one is not upsetting anyone else's chances. It is a dreadful feeling to be on a team in any game, and know that one is not playing well. This is all done away with in golf, and if a match is lost, one can only "grin and bear it," and not blame anybody. Of course the same can be said about team matches in golf, but one has just to play up and not think about it. It is a great honour to be picked up for the team, and a great encouragement to young players. One has always to play up harder on a team match than in ordinary competition, as the honour of the club is of more importance than a win for one's self.

SHOULD KNOW THE RULES.

Soon after beginning the game, the rules ought to be studied well, so that everyone is known off by heart. It is a matter of great importance, as questions come up over and over again in matches about the rules, and if a book in not to be had it is of immense service to be able to remember the rule in point.There is always the option of referring the case to the committee on completing the round, but in most cases any one well up in the rules can settle the matter at once without any further delay, and save a great deal of trouble and annoyance. It is an excellent plan to keep a rule book in the pocket of your golf bag, as in that case no objections can be raised and there can be no disputes.

The best way to commence golf is to have lessons from a really good professional, as this will save no end of trouble and worry in the first stages of the game. It will also be a quicker way of learning than struggling alone, and many faults will be avoided which one is liable to fall into when learning without help. But if lessons are not easily procurable they can quite well be done without, and by the help of books, etc., and perhaps a few hints from some friend, a good start can be made. Although the proverb says "an ounce of practice is worth a pound of theory," books on the game are great helps, nd many hints can be gleaned from them. Also many hints can be got from watching good players. Note carefully the way in which they play every shot, then take a club and try to do the same.

PRACTICE THE PRIME REQUISITE.

Steady, regular practice is the only way of improving. Too much of it cannot be had during the first few months, but afterwards overplaying is a mistake, and moderation should should be used. The first steps in golf are wearisome, but directly the primary difficulties are overcome, and missing the ball is the exception and not the rule, the game becomes a delight. One reason for its great fascination is that no two rounds are ever the same. There is always variety. No matter how often it is played new features appear, and the same shot only occasionly occurs again. There is ever something fresh, and it is this uncertainty about the shots and play which to most people is the charm of golf. No one can deny there is a great charm in golf. This fact has been proved by the immense numbers of players belonging to the different clubs, and by the increasing membership every year. Many who come to look on at a match are so bitten with the sport that they purchase clubs and immediately set about learning.

A set of clubs consists of a driver brassie, cleek, iron, mashie, and putter; a niblick is optional, some people use it and others never carry one. With these clubs and a dozen balls a fair start can be made. Then as your skill progresses extra clubs can be added to the list, and any number of patent clubs are to be had.

It is wonderful what a crowd of people will come to look on at an important match, even in a small place. If they are not players themselves and know nothing about the game or rules, yet there is a nameless attraction.

BRILLIANT ENGLISH PLAYER.

One of the younger players in England, who will probably be heard of in the future, is Miss Flora Macbeth of the Lytham and St. Anne's club. She is quite young, still having her hair down her back, but at the large open meeting held at Lytham last spring, when all the crack players of England and Ireland were present, she carried off several of the prizes. Miss Macbeth has a good style, and, being extremely steady, will probably be heard of in the championship before long.

There are several other young players coming on both in England and Ireland, and the standard of play is rising year by year. So long as girls take an interest in the game, and are incouraged to play, golf will never be put in the background, but will always hold its place with other sports and be considered the most suitable, in every respect, for girls and women.

A STRAIGHT CASE AGAIN THIS TIME.

Sam Derrochers Cured of Diabetes in 1898—Had it for Over Five Years—His Recent Letter Proves That His Cure Still Holds Good.

Quebec, July 28th, (Special). — Sam Derochers, of the Fortress City, was cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills in 1898. His case is well known here, it having been published in the papers at the time, and a great deal of attention was drawn to Dodd's Kidney Pills on its account.

Diabetes, however, is known to be an incurable disease, and many of the more sceptical of Quebec citizens expressed doubt as to the permanancy of the cure. These doubts may now be set at rest. Mr. Derrochers himself attests that in three years he has had no sign of diabetes' return.

On May 28, 1898, Mr. Sam Derrochers published the following letter in the Quebec papers: "I have been a victim to Diabetes for over five years with terrible pains around my kidneys. My feet were always cold, and my thirst could not be quenched, no matter what I drank. I tried remedy after remedy but received no help. I purchased one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and found immediate relief. I have now finished five boxes and can say I am perfectly cured."

Now to clear away all possible doubt that Mr. Derrochers was not cured, to show beyond question that Dodd's Kidney Pills did not merely relieve him for a time, but actually cured him of Diabetes, and cured him to stay cured, we publish his letter of April 4th, 1901.

Dear Sirs, — My cure of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been permanent. I have not been troubled with a sign of diabetes since my cure three years ago."

Will Appeal to High Court.

Windsor, July 29. — Secretary Kennedy of the United Gas Company, which supplies the natural gas for the Interior Construction Company of Detroit, said on Saturday that Detroit would continue to get gas so long as the supply lasted, or at any rate until the High Court of Great Britain prohibited the exportation. They question the jurisdiction of the Ontario Government and say that it is the Dominion Government which has control of the property.

Needed a Chain.

A story is being told about a German who has a hotel far down town. An artist—one of those barroom artists who make pictures on mirrors with soap—called on the German the other day and asked for some work. "Well," the German said, "you might paint a brown bear on my sign. How much would you charge to do it?" "Two dollars," the artist answered. Thereupon the contract was made, and the bear was painted.

At the end of the job the artist said, "Don't you want me to paint a chain on the bear?" "Would you charge extra for that?" said the German. "Yes. That would cost $1 extra." "Then I can't afford to have it done." The artist departed. That night it rained, and, lo, in the morning the bear had vanished from the sign! The rain had washed it away.

The German sent for the painter at once. "My bear," he said reproachfully, "is gone." The other answered, "Well, I wanted to put a chain on it, didn't I?" The German then handed out $3, $2 for the painting of another bear, the third for a chain to make the picture permanent.

The chained bear now remains upon the sign impervious to the weather.

A Terrible Talker.

A well known Milwaukee lawyer with a weakness for long stories was a visitor at Madison "once upon a time," as the story books put it.

He saw upon the register of the Park hotel the name of Colonel Gabriel Bouck of Oshkosh and decided that he was in duty bound to call upon that Nestor of the Wisconsin bar, especially as they had both occupied the position of grand master of the grand lodge of Wisconsin Masons.

He called on Mr. Bouck in his room in the hotel and found the Oshkoshian in his shirt sleeves, yawning. He began on Masonry. First he gave his views of the brotherhood, from the building of Solomon's temple "without sound of tool or iron" down to date, and then he started in on the chapter. Finally, startled by an extra yawn, he broke off his story with:

"Well, Gabe, as I have been appointed trustee for the Asylum For the Deaf and Dumb I think I had better go to bed. I have to take an early train for Janesville."

"For land's sake! Is it possible that you are going to learn to talk with your hands too?" came the blunt reply from the old lawyer

Which of Your Eyes Cries?

It seems a positively absurd question to ask, "Which of your eyes cries?"

In an everyday, common or garden cry it is well known that salt tears make their appearance and rush away down the face seemingly as fast from one as from the other, whichever the "other" may be, but if careful note is made, more especially with emotional people, it will be found that one of the eyes has a special emotional tendency and often opens the tear valve before its companion has decided upon the unhappy event.

Probably the best method of discovering the emotional eye is to attend a pathetic stage play and when the weeping period comes along look out for tear No. 1.

The writer attended such a piece recently and was somewhat astonished to find that all his grief came from the right eye.

Whether the solution to the problem is to be found in the fact that he was leaning on his right arm must and can only be decided by an expert.

Information Desired.

The rural postoffice is the bureau of general information no less so in Georgia than in Vermont, and the Atlanta Constitution reports a conversation precipitated by an old darky who approached the village postmaster and said:

"Any letters fer me?"
"No."
"Any postal cards?"
"No."
"Is my paper come?"
"No."
"Got any almanacs?"
"No."
"Well, does you know anybody what wants to buy a live alligator?"

AGREEMENT REACHED

Steel Trust Magnate and Strike Leader Come Together.

THE TERMS OF THE SETTLEMENT

The Executive Committee of the Amalgamated Association Meets To-Day to Ratify or Reject the Terms Proposed to Settle the Steel Workers Strike—Strike News From All Over.

Pittsburg, July 30.—Everybody was on the qui vive last night in strike circles, and the coming conference of the two leaders of the two contending forces is looked forward to with mingled hope and fear. Hope, however, predominates, and peace is confidently expected by the majority of those interested.

"The Executive Committee of the Amalgamated Association will meet in the headquarters of the organization at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, or as soon as possible thereafter, and take up the propositions of the United States Steel Corporation, for a settlement of the steel workers' strike."

This statement was made yesterday by Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated Association. Beyond this he declined to discuss the strike in any form. There was no change in the position of the two contestants yesterday. Both sides held firmly to the plan of watching each other.

The agreement reached at the New York conference by President J. P. Morgan of the Steel Corporation and President Shaffer and Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated Association is substantially as follows:

"The Amalgamated Association will recede from its demand that all the sheet steel mills be put upon a union basis. The mills that have not been organized under union rules will so remain.

"On the other hand, the corporation will agree to pay a specific scale of wages in all mills, union and non-union, controlled by the American Sheet Steel Company, though all non-union mills shall remain open alike to men with or without union cards."

THE PUBLIC ARE REALIZING

When Sutcliffes advertise a special line, that time is the time to expect to get it, and that values such as they frequently offer are not to be had at all times.

The Silks which we put on sale a few days ago had a hearty response, and we would like to know why they shouldn't. For value—we never saw the like—and desirability is stamped on every piece. Variety is great, quantities of most of them limited. You might as well share the pick as some one else. It's possible to select a two dollar and a half Silk for ninety-eight cents, and a dollar and a half Silk for seventy-five cents.

We'd like to be able to show you photographs of these silks with the prices on them—that's impracticable.

Sorry! If we happen to be interesting one who is in the habit of buying at a credit store, but if your allowance does not come due until next month, pop in, make your selection, pay only a small amount on it, and we'll lay it aside for you.

TRACKMEN'S MEETINGS.

Will Conduct an Educational Series for Benefit of Public.

Toronto, July 30.—The striking Canadian Pacific Railway trackmen have arranged for a series of meetings to be held at various points on the system, as follows: To-morrow night at Havelock, Thursday night at Tweed, Friday night at Perth and Saturday night at Smith's Falls. These meetings will be addressed by Donald Wilkinson, Chairman of the Toronto Strike Committee.

Mr. Wilkinson yesterday received a number of letters from strike centres, including a cheque for $10 from the Toronto Street Railway Employes' Union. A letter from North Bend, B. C., stated that at that point the railway superintendents had made several attempts to get the men to return to work, but had failed. Other letters from Winnipeg, Port Arthur and Debic Junction, N. B., stated that the men were standing firm.

In Toronto the strikers have all got employment. They are as confident as ever of winning the strike.

SOME INDUSTRIAL WARS.

Garment Workers, Packers and Millers, Longshoremen Unsatisfied.

New York, July 30.— It was said yesterday at the headquarters of the striking garment workers and tailors that no definite day could be set for the men to return to work. At least 15,000 would have gone back yesterday, but the action of the Contractors' Association, in making demands upon the manufacturers, blocked progress. Until contractors and manufacturers reach an agreement, a big majority of the strikers will have to remain idle.

Packers and Millers.

Minneapolis, July 30.—At a conference yesterday between representatives of the Packers' and Millers' Union and the flour millers, the latter, while granting the advance in wages asked, absolutely declined to sign a contract for a year or any other period. The union representatives withdrew to consider the situation.

No Non-Union Iron.

Wellsville, July 30. — The entire force at the Fawcett Boiler Works walked out yesterday, rather than work non-union iron from the Wellsville mill. It is the first local complication in the strike. Thirty men quit work.

Miners Go Out.

Logan, Ohio, July 30.—Over 500 miners employed at the new Pittsburg mine of Johnson Bros. struck work yesterday, and the mine is tied up, owing to the transfer of a trackman to mining, which the miners claim was in violation of their agreement with the company.

Boat on Strike.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., July 30.—The 'longshoremen engaged in loading the steamer McVittie of the Rutland Transit Line demanded 35 cents an hour overtime on Saturday night, and, being refused, went on strike. The company has asked for non-union men and offered $1.50 per day, 25 cents an hour for ordinary overtime and 50 cents an hour for Sunday work. The company officials say they will not employ union men. Sixty-seven non-union men arrived yesterday from along the line of the Rutland Railroad, to take the places of the striking 'longshoremen.

Winnipeg Fair Opened.

Winnipeg, July 30.—Winnipeg's eleventh annual Industrial Exhibition was formally opened by Lieut.-Governor McMillan yesterday afternoon. The visitors included Lieut.-Governor Forget of the Territories, General Manager McNicoll of the C. P. R., Premier Haultain and R. B. Bennett of the Northwest Legislature. The opening proceedings commenced with a banquet, at which President Thompson made an address of welcome really a vivid eulogy of the Province of Manitoba.

Followed Husband's Lead.

Ithaca, N. Y., July 30.—Mrs. Hannah Smith, aged 73, committed suicide in Fall Creek gorge, near Fall Creek mill, yesterday, by jumping from the ledge of rocks 30 feet high into the shallow creek. Thirty years ago this month her husband was killed in practically the identical spot by falling from this bridge with a heavy engine. Formerly Mrs. Smith was an extensive land owner in Ithaca, and very wealthy.

Fire at Windsor Mills.

Montreal, July 30.—The Canada Paper Company's St. Francis mill at Windsor Mills was destroyed by fire last night. The loss will probably reach $200,000, but the company's operations will not be interferred with, as they have other mills.

UPROAR IN THE HOUSE

MR. REDMOND CALLS FOR POLICE

This Was Held to Be Disorderly—Patrick O'Brien Was Also Named By the Speaker—The Interruption Occurred on the Conclusion of the Agricultural Property Taxation Debate—Bill Adopted.

London, July 30.—There was a wild uproar in the House of Commons between 1 and 2 o'clock at the conclusion of the debate on the taxation of agricultural property.

Conservatives interrupted Mr. Walton, Liberal, with cries of "Divide." William Redmond, on a point of order, called the attention of the Speaker to the interruptions, but the Speaker ruled that the point was not well taken.

Mr. Walton resumed, but quite inaudibly, owing to the persistent cries of "Divide."

Mr. Redmond shouted: "Police! Police!"

The Speaker said this expression was disorderly.

Mr. Redmond: "Why don't you keep order?"

The Speaker directed him to leave the House and named him. Mr. Balfour, the government leader, moved Mr. Redmond's suspension, and this was carried by a vote of 303 to 71.

Patrick O'Brien persisted in the same point of order and was in turn named and suspended.

The bill was adopted.

"COMMITTEE OF ENCASHMENT."

How China Has to Pay the Interest and Principal of Indemnity.

Washington, July 30.—Despatches received by cable from Mr. Rockhill, the United States Special Commissioner at Pekin, set out some of the details of the financial arrangement respecting the indemnity not heretofore disclosed. He reports that the interest of the indemnity began to run on July 1 of this year, and the payments will become due semi-annually, the first to be met Jan. 1 next.

China will be allowed three years before making the first payment, on account of the principal of the indemnity. The moneys, both on account of principal and interest, will be received by a financial committee, located at Shanghai, to be known as the "Committee of Encashment." This will be composed of the heads of foreign banks at Shanghai, selected by the government interested in the payments. The committee is to distribute the funds turned in by the Chinese Government among the various powers in proportion to the interest payments due them.

Will Stay in China.

London, July 30.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Globe cabling yesterday says:

The assurances given in the House of Commons (July 23) by Lord Cranborne, the Under Foreign Secretary, that the French and German troops are only temporarily here, are refuted by the fact that both nationalities are erecting massive, permanent barracks, which will take two years to complete, indicating that many years' occupation are contemplated.

Boxers Break Out Again.

Shanghai, July 29.—The North China Daily News announces that their has been a recrudescence of outbreaks by the Boxers in the Province of Shan Tung, in consequence of the success of the allied villagers in Chi Li Province, against the troops of Li Hung Chang.

The notorious Young Lu (who was Imperial Treasurer and later generalissimo of the northern army), has been appointed to the lucrative post of controller-general of the Revenue Board.

Russians Shot Down.

London, July 30.—"The Russian government has been advised," says a despatch to The Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, "that 2,000 Tibetans July 16 attacked Major Kosloff's expedition of 20 men, half of whom were shot down and the others severely wounded. The government will demand satisfaction."

She Became Discouraged.

New York, July 30.—Elizabeth McCormick, 25 years of age, is dead at the German Hospital in this city. She is known to be a member of a Canadian family, her father, it is said, being in the Canadian customs service. Her sister is belived to be in a convent in Boston, and she left letters addressed to a man in St. Dunstan's College, Charlottetown, P.E.I. At the hospital she said that she had taken a drug, and traces of arsenical poisoning were found on the body. Miss McCormick came to this city about three months ago, but recently was out of employment and in low spirits. She was taken to the hospital from a boarding house, where she had a room.

TUESDAY, JULY 30, 1901.

THE TRACKMEN'S STRIKE.

The strike of the Canadian Pacific Railway trackmen serves to show how seriously a small mistake can injure a great and prosperous enterprise. Mismanagement in any department, however trivial it may seem, is beset with the gravest dangers. The Canadian Pacific Railway is a great national undertaking, and Canadians are justly proud of its continuous success. It has had many difficulties to contend with, and has faced them with courage, carrying every important project to a successful issue. Track and equipment have been kept in excellent condition throughout the changing seasons, and in spite of adverse climatic and physical conditions. The passenger service has been prompt and efficient, and the freight department has grappled successfully with the problem of moving a great harvest in a limited time. The faults which may have developed may be regarded as inseparable from an uncontrolled monopoly, the result of an injudicious bargain and the subsequent neglect of the Government to adopt a comprehensive railway policy. The railway has an excellent reputation with the travelling public, standing among the world's foremost transportation enterprises, and it simply cannot afford to sacrifice its position by continuing a struggle with a comparatively small force of labourers. The protracted failure of the company to offer impartial arbitration of the points in dispute is hard to reconcile with common sense or ordinary business judgment. There is no principle at stake, for every department of the service has its union or brotherhood, authorized to conduct business negotiations on behalf of the employees. Similar recognition must in time be extended to the Trackmen's Union, and the most they can hope to accomplish by the most protracted and destructive conflict is a few years' delay in the establishment of a working agreement with the men through some form of organization.

Employing corporations, after experience with well-disciplined trade organizations, seldom wish to go back to anarchical conditions. But it is futile to discuss the merits and demerits of unionism in this connection, when the trend of industrial society is so strongly in its present direction. Unionism we are certain to have for better or worse, and it is foolish to waste money and property in struggles against recognition—struggles which merely bar the way to a settlement of the real questions at issue. The Canadian Pacific Railway has won an excellent reputation by its treatment of employees. But few difficulties have arisen, and an attitude of fairness and mutual consideration has marked the relationship of the company to its working forces. This reputation and the good feeling and fidelity it breeds among all ranks of employees are too valuable to be sacrificed in a petty conflict that could be ended at any time by an offer of arbitration. The change of policy leads the public to infer that someone in authority has momentarily lost his head, or that some heads have become too much enlarged with a sense of their own importance to reflect calmly on the duties of their positions. Men entrusted with the management of a great railway corporation cannot afford to have whims, spites or resentments. They must seek the larger triumph of the enterprise rather than the temporary triumph over their employes. Such advice may appear presumptuous, but the men in authority do not seem to realize the seriousness of their course in this matter. It is futile for the company to hide its head in a bush. While on most lines in Ontario and the east the service has been well maintained, reliable information from the western sections indicates an entirely different state of affairs. The continuous repairs necessary in our climate to keep a railway track in condition have been neglected, and it has become virtually impossible to run passenger trains on time. Train hands have become restless through fear for their personal safety, and, although such fear is no doubt entirely groundless, its existence is a fact which the authorities must take into consideration.

Private letters have been received in Ontario advising friends not to travel over the road till the strike is settled and necessary repairs effected. The solicitude which the Managers have always shown for the safety and comfort of the passengers is an abundant guarantee that no one will be exposed to personal danger. But the company cannot afford to allow a feeling of uneasiness to get abroad, however groundless it may be. The direct financial loss to the company through neglecting track maintenance will be serious. Every day's delay increases the cost of repairing damage, and the suspended outlay on labour and material for track maintenance will have to be more than made good before the track is restored to its former condition. And this unsatisfactory condition has been allowed to develop in the west just as a great harvest is becoming ready for shipment. These conditions are urged without taking account of the loss and suffering entailed on the trackmen and their dependents. If machinery existed for compulsory arbitration public opinion would certainly warrant official intervention in this case. Provision has been made for impartial arbitration under the auspices of the Labour Department, and why the company should longer delay the submission of its case to a judicial tribunal is difficult to understand. The matter should be settled equitably and without further delay.—The Globe.

Father Drowned, Son Saved

Smith's Falls, Ont., July 30.—Rideau Lake was the scene of another drowning accident Sunday morning. R. D. Lever of Smith's Falls being the victim. He and his ten-year-old boy were fishing in a "monitor" a few miles below Rideau ferry, and ran on a "floater" and were capsized. The boy clambered on the upturned boat and clung to it until assistance arrived. They were too late to save the father, who leaves a widow and a family of six young children.

A Paris Doctor's Error.

London, July 30.—Dr. Pader, a Paris physician, has been sentenced to pay a fine of 200 francs and 1,000 francs damages for breach of professional secret. The plaintiff, M. Lagarde, was suddenly taken ill at the house of the parents of his betrothed. The mother took the doctor apart, and learned from him that Lagarde was a tuberculosis subject. As this led to the breaking off of the marriage Lagarde filed the present claim.

Cutting in Two Weeks.

Winnipeg, July 30.—The C. P. R. report issued yesterday bears out every favorable word already spoken in reference to the crops along this company's lines as to the prospects. The general comment is "very bright." Cutting is expected to commence at several points in about two weeks. The weather was very cool last night.

MAY SUSPEND INOCULATION.

A Veterinary Surgeon in Each Place Putting in Force All the Precautions Called For—Black Leg at Iroquois—The O'Brien Hanging at Dawson—The Appointment of Sir Louis Davies.

Ottawa, July 30.—The Pasteur Institute at Chicago has run out of anthrax vaccine. This was the news learned by the Department of Agriculture here on applying to the institute for 500 fresh doses. The department obtained 500 doses a short time ago on the discovery of the anthrax outbreak in Stormont County, and the herds of cattle there are now being inoculated in the hope of preventing the disease from spreading. The supply is, however, nearly exhausted, and application was made to Chicago, with the result stated. Unless the Pasteur Institute obtains vaccine very soon the inoculation of cattle in Stormont County will have to be temporarily suspended. The disease has not only appeared in Stormont County, but also in Russell County at Vars. A veterinary surgeon is now at each place putting in force all the precautions which the situation calls for. It was reported that anthrax had developed at Iroquois, but the disease now turns out to be black leg, which is nearly as bad.

The O'Brien Hanging.

Radcliffe of Toronto is to execute O'Brien, the Dawson murderer. As soon as information reaches Ottawa that Lord Minto has signed the Order in Council for the hanging of O'Brien, Radcliffe will be instructed to set out for the capital of the gold territory. Word was expected yesterday that the Governor - General had affixed his signature which seals O'Brien's fate, but up to 5 o'clock the anticipated message to that effect had not come. Radcliffe will need to make fast time in order to reach Dawson in time.

Sir Louis Davies Appointment.

Sir Louis Davies' appointment to the Supreme Court bench, which will take place before many weeks are over, would, in the ordinary course of events, create a vacancy on the Joint High Commission. But it does not follow that there will be any vacancy in the present case. Sir Louis is so thoroughly conversant with the matters before the commission that his disappearance from the court would be a serious loss to the Canadian section. His appointment to the bench would not interfere with his acting as a commissioner, and the Government, in its wisdom, may see fit to continue him in the latter capacity in order to retain the benefit of his knowledge and his counsel.

Survey of Lake Huron.

Ottawa, July 30.—The hydrographic survey on Lake Huron, which is being conducted by the Marine Department, will be completed this season. The work is under the direction of Mr. Fred Anderson, who is on board the steamer Bayfield. The last survey of Lake Huron was made sixty years ago, when the vessels on the inland waters did not draw more than 12 feet of water. It was done very hurriedly, and the soundings were neither numerous nor complete. Next season a survey of Lake Superior will be undertaken if the Government will provide a new steamer, the Bayfield being too old and unseaworthy for such a stormy sheet of water. A hydrographic survey of Lake Winnipeg is now proceeding under Mr. Stewart's direction and will also be finished before the close of navigation.

To Hay Fever Sufferers.

Sufferers from hay fever and summer catarrh will be interested to learn that there is a new, simple, inexpensive, but effective home treatment for this obstinate and baffling disease, and that a little booklet fully describing the treatment will be mailed free to anyone by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

Doubtless this statement of a cure and positive preventive of hay fever will be received with skepticism by the thousands who have found the only relief every year was a change of climate during the summer months.

But whether skeptical or not, it will cost nothing to investigate this new treatment. Simply send name and address on a postal card to F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., for the booklet, which besides describing the treatment contains a concise treatise on the cause and character of this peculiar disease.

Fish Aversions.

The celebrated Erasmus, although a native of Rotterdam, had such an aversion to fish that the smell of it threw him into a fever. Ambrose Pare had a patient who could never see an eel without fainting and another who would fall into convulsions at the sight of a carp.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACHACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appitite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

IN CANADA AGAIN.

Quebec, July 30.—The S. S. Numidian of the Allan Line, arrived in port at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Among the passengers were five officers and sixty men of the Canadian Scouts from South Africa. The names of the officers are as follows: Lieut. Gallaghan, Lieut. MacDonald, Lieut. Ross, Lieut. Ryan and Lieut. Thompson. Most of the men are coming straight from South Africa. Their time was up seven months ago, and they re-enlisted for six months more. They are all healthful. They are speaking of the hostilities in South Africa as being nearly over. Five of the privates, being from Quebec, have landed here. The fifty-five others are starting tonight on board the Numidian for Montreal.

Manitoba Boer Colony

Winnipeg, July 30.—There is a possibility of a Boer colony being established in Manitoba. A prominent Dutch Burgher in the person of F. Hof Von Synreght of Amsterdam is here. He cannot speak much English, but gave a reporter to understand that he was here to see Manitoba at her best and make a report to certain Holland interests in the settlement of the Boer farmers after the war. He will remain in Manitoba about two months, and if his report is favorable, a Boer colony will likely be established next year.

News of Constabulary.

Ottawa, July 30.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain cables that 1826, Trooper Nelson, is dangerously ill, of enteric fever. His next of kin is Thomas Hill, Virden, Man.

Mr. Chamberlain sends another message, stating that 2108, Trooper George Richard Serpell, South African Constabulary, died of acute tuberculosis, following pneumonia, at Petrusburg, on July 21. His next of kin was Albert Serpell of Exeter, England.

Bob's £100,000.

London, July 30.—In the House of Lords yesterday, Lord Salisbury, the Premier, read a message from King Edward, to the effect that in consideration of the eminent services of Field Marshal Lord Roberts in South Africa, His Majesty recommended that Parliament grant him the sum of £100,000 ($500,000).

Entered Portuguese Territory.

Lisbon, July 30.—A despatch received here from Lorenzo Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, announced that a Boer command, accompanied by women and children, has entered Portuguese territory near the Limpopo River. Reinforcements of troops have been sent to disarm the party of Boers.

Total of 33,000.

London, July 30.—Lord Stanley, Financial Secretary to the War Office, replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, said the numbers of Boers made prisoners or who had surrendered since the declaration of war, totalled up to July 1, 33,000.

Churchill Decorated.

London, July 30.—King Edward distributed further medals yesterday afternoon at Marlborough House. Winston Spencer Churchill, the war correspondent, former Hussar officer, and now member of Parliament for Oldham, was among the recipients.

A Variable Lamp.

Among recent novelties in electric lighting is an incandescent lamp having two independent filaments, one giving 16 and the other only one candle power. The low power light is intended for burning in a sickroom or wherever a faint illumination is desired. The current is changed from one filament to the other by turning the lamp in a screw socket.

FLEW FOR TWENTY MINUTES.

Santos Dumont Made Another Successful Experiment With Balloon.

Paris, July 30.—M. Santos Dumont made another successful experiment yesterday afternoon with a dirigible balloon, sailing it from St. Cloud to the Long Champs race course, around which he steered the balloon and ascended and descended, occupying 20 minutes of time. Though he was asked to make an attempt to go around the Eiffel Tower, the aeronaut declined, saying his motor was not yet working as well as he wished. The weather was cloudy, which may have influenced his decision.

A STRAIGHT CASE AGAIN THIS TIME.

Sam Derrochers Cured of Diabetes in 1898—Had it for Over Five Years—His Recent Letter Proves That His Cure Still Holds Good.

Quebec, July 28th, (Special). — Sam Derrochers, of the Fortress City, was cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills in 1898. His case is well known here, it having been published in the papers at the time, and a great deal of attention was drawn to Dodd's Kidney Pills on its account.

Diabetes, however, is known to be an incurable disease, and many of the more sceptical of Quebec citizens expressed doubt as to the permanancy of the cure. These doubts may now be set at rest. Mr. Derrochers himself attests that in three years he has had no sign of diabetes' return.

On May 28, 1898, Mr. Sam Derrochers published the following letter in the Quebec papers: "I have been a victim to Diabetes for over five years with terrible pains around my kidneys. My feet were always cold, and my thirst could not be quenched, no matter what I drank. I tried remedy after remedy but received no help. I purchased one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and found immediate relief. I have now finished five boxes and can say I am perfectly cured."

Now to clear away all possible doubt that Mr. Derrochers was not cured, to show beyond question that Dodd's Kidney Pills did not merely relieve him for a time, but actually cured him of Diabetes, and cured him to stay cured, we publish his letter of April 4th, 1901.

Dear Sirs, — My cure of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been permanent. I have not been troubled with a sign of diabetes since my cure three years ago."

Pleasing the Agrarians.

Berlin, July 30.—The tariff bill is considered a cleverly concocted sop to the agrarian. As a declaration of commercial war against Russia, Austria and the United States, it is quite harmless since no one believes the Bundesrath will accept it. For months the German chancellor has been struggling against the demands of the agrarians. The new tariff does not come into effect till December, 1901, so that there is plenty of time to arrange a satisfactory modus vivendi.

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increasess the weight of thin babies and delicate children also.

The Picton Gazette says: "The town council of Peterborough, by granting a free site and exemption from taxation to the Canadian Cordage Company, is likely to see established in their town a new industry, well calculated to advance the interests of the inhabitants. We are not in favour of money bonuses, but when it comes to free sites and exemption from taxation, looking forward to the employment of an increased number of citizens, our opposition ceases. We would be glad if Picton, to secure as good an industry, could avail itself of such favourable terms."

The Printers' Picnic.

On Saturday afternoon the members of the printing fraternity invite their friends (and everybody is a friend of the printer) to give toil the cold shoulder, and come with them on the steamer City of Peterborough to Jubilee, and realize what it really means to be on earth, even for an afternoon. The committee in charge have fixed things with the weather man, and the elements of nature, promise to be on their good behaviour. Old Sol is bound to smile on all serenely, and on the home trip fair Luna will forget her bashfulness and saunter forth from behind the clouds, just to show that the printers "stand in." The 57th Regt. Band is going too, as well as an orchestra, which will be good news for the lovers of the light fantastic. A programme of sports has been arranged for valuable prizes, which will be on exhibition in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore, together with a handsome Tea Set, which will be given away to the person guessing nearest the exact number of beans contained in the jar, which is also on exhibition with the prizes. Every purchaser of a ticket is entitled to a guess, and the tickets have been limited to 250, so you know the rest. The boat leaves wharf at two o'clock sharp. Fare for trip, Ladies, 25c., gentlemen, 35c., and children under fourteen years, 20c. Remember August 3rd, as every great event in the century will be chronicled from this date.

EXCURSION SEASON.

The Oddfellows' Trip to Stony Lake on August 15th.

The excursion season is now in full sway, the lower or back lakes are visited by excursion parties of various kinds.

The Oddfellows of Peterborough are always noted for putting on a first-class excursion and their annual trip to Rochester was always very eagerly looked forward to. However, when it became impossible to make suitable arrangements with the Railway Companies for the trip to the states, they hunted elsewhere for an objective point. This year the Oddfellows decided to run their annual trip to Stony Lake on Civic Holiday and it should be very largely patronized. The special train will return at 8.30 o'clock.

The Printers declare that they are going to have the best trip of the season. They go down to Jubilee on Saturday next.

The Methodist Sunday School of Millbrook ran their annual excursion to-day to Stony Lake. It was fairly well patronized.

The Sons of England have given out the date and name of place for their annual excursion. It will take place to Idyl Wyld on Civic Holiday per steamer City of Peterborough.

All Saints Sunday School will go down to Jubilee on Aug. 8th.

FROM SON TO MOTHER.

Thomas Miller, of South Africa, Writes to His Mother in Peterborough.

Mrs. F. W. Miller, of town, has received the following letter from her son Tom, who is serving in the Scots Guards:—

Carolina, Transvaal, June 23, 1901.

Dear Mother,—I received two letters from you last night, and I was very pleased to hear from you. Dear mother I have not had a chance to write for a long time now. We have been so long on the march, and we are off again to-morrow. I don't think it will be so long before we are home now as there is nothing to do out here now only marching and burning houses. The Boers will never give in so I think the police will will have to do the rest. Besides there are not many left to fight, so we should be home soon. Well, Mother, I don't know of anything more to say this time, so hoping to hear from you again soon, I remain your loving son,

TOM.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—Meeting of the Men's Chapter of St. Luke's Guild to-night in the vestry at eight o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

A Cheerful Liar.

A writer in the New York Sun, discussing the killing of mosquitoes by pouring oil over the pools in which they breed, says: Another danger is said to have been added to the country since the oil was spread upon the mosquito troubled waters of South Orange. The mosquitoes absorb quantities of the oil and when they fly into a house the occupants have to be very vigilant lest the insects fly into a lamp or gas jet and catch fire. Truthful Jerseymen are quite sure of this. On more than one occasion this is said to have occurred and the blazing mosquitoes have set fire to curtains and draperies before they were consumed.

CONSTABLES AT WORK.

An Old Gentlemen Named King Arrested as a Trespasser.

The C. P. R. detectives are still arresting alleged trespassers on the railway property. Last night at midnight C. P. R. constable Gilmour came to town with an old gentleman whom he arrested at Myrtle. The man's name is Michael King, and he claims to be an old soldier. He says he had only walked a very short distance on the railway, and was interfering with no one. King was housed in the police station all night and this morning he appeared before County Magistrate Edmison.

He was fined 50 cents and allowed to go.

MR. FAIR'S REMINISCENCES.

He Has Lived to See Five Crowned Heads on the British Throne.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fair and daughters, of Cavan, were in town on Saturday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Stuart, Stewart street. Mr. Fair in speaking of the present progress of the town, remembers when there was but a single sawmill, operated by a Mr. Scott, on a few acres of cleared land, to mark the site of present industrious and progressive town of Peterborough.

Mr. Fair was born in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, 86 years ago, and at the age of twelve immigrated to Canada, where he has since been a resident of Peterborough and vicinity. He is still a very active and healthy gentleman, and, if appearances count for anything, "to use a little of his native blarney," he looks good for as many years to come.

Mr. Fair has lived to see five crowned heads on the British throne, George III, George IV, William IV, Victoria, and the present reigning monarch.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

In the County Police Court this afternoon two of the Hull family, father and son, are being tried for stealing the oil cups off a steam yacht on Stony Lake, the property of Mr. David Breeze. The case is still in progress. Mr. R. E. Wood is conducting the prosecution and Messrs. R. R. Hall of town and O. A. Langley of Lakefield are representing the accused.

ABOUT OUR OWN MINES.

The Work That is Being Done at the Blue Mountains.

The Crown Corundum and Mica Company Doing Considerable Development—Prospects Very Bright.

Few people in Peterborough, perhaps, realize the extent of the mines of corundum and mica that exist to the north of us not many miles. The Crown Corundum and Mica Company, Limited, have been pushing operations in the vicinity of the Blue Mountains, and the report of the engineer, Mr. Llewelyn A. Morrison, to the managing director of the same, Mr. James Curry, Toronto, is most interesting. A portion of the report is as follows:

"The discovery in May of corundum in considerable quantity in the field-spar veins along the south-east side of the company's property led me to put a gang of men on in the early part of the month to clean up a few acres and open some of the spar veins. The results were so satisfactory that I put my whole force of men at work on the making of a road from that side of the property to Stony Lake, which was completed on the 18th. I then transferred all the operations to a group of spar veins on that side, and in less than two weeks have taken out over fifty tons of good, shipable ore in the preliminary opening operations, and at the same time uncovered and exposed many ore bodies, all carrying corundum, and some of them up to 80 per cent. of the ore, in fact almost pure corundum. In clearing off the hills, which are covered with alluvial to some extent, I find spar veins in great abundance were none were visible before clearing. I am sending you a few samples to-day by freight, which show the character of a number of different veins.

"I have completed a good level road from the mine to Stony Lake, have built a suitable wharf, and have forty tons of ore hauled out ready for the completion of a new scow on July 8th, when it will go forward to Lakefield for shipment. I expect to ship at least one scow load per week (forty tons) thereafter until the close of navigation. It appears as if I could produce the ore easily for larger shipments but unless we order another scow we cannot ship faster, as I think it will take five or six days to load, unload and tow each cargo of forty tons.

"I had a call from Mr. Lumsden, the Chief Engineer of Construction on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the 28th. He was making what is known as a 'walking survey' of the line and will return early in July with a full staff of engineers to locate, after which construction will be pushed rapidly so that before the snow flies we may have railway connections. The best part of it, however, is that there is a very strong probability of the road being being located right alongside the south east side of our property, and alongside of the blue gneiss range which is so rich in spar veins and so that cars can be loaded right at the pit mouth. This means that everything we have in the shape of mineral can be shipped with profit after the railway is in operation. In any event it will be within three miles of these spar veins if it takes the more westerly route.

"It will be necessary to almost immediately make arrangements for the erection of permanent buildings and the installation of a complete mining plant so as to pump water, mine, hoist, break and load ore by power. By doing this we can keep the present contemplated shipments going and complete the preparations for a large output immediately after the starting of the railway.

"I am pleased to inform you that I have found a considerable area of sand and decomposed spar and rock matter which carries grain corundum of sufficient quantity to pay well for concentrating. This is an important phase of the business that has not been discovered heretofore and may lead to important results. Nothing but a systematic examination would determine the extent of the corundum bearing silt but the tests made so far are very satisfactory.

"There appears to be a practically unlimited supply of good ore obtainable at a reasonable cost per ton both in the ayenite of the mountain on the north side of the property and in the spar veins on the other side. I therefore hope that no unnecessary delay will occur in the necessary preparation for large operations."

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough Baseball Team intend making a short tour down east and have arranged the following dates: August 5th, at Kingston; August 6th, at Gananoque; August 7th, at Belleville. On Saturday of next week, the Gananoque team will play the return game here.

Oshawa is writing for a game here on August 22nd, and Cobourg wants the locals down at an early date.

Would it not be well for the Auburns to challenge the local Seniors for a game on Saturday afternoon? This is an open date and it would do the locals no harm to have a work out. Then the boys might as well try and make a little money on the game, and if the game were played on the P.A.A.A. grounds an admission fee of ten cents might be charged. The Auburns have been intimating that they can do wonderful things, and now here's a chance.

LACROSSE.

The Toronto Star has the following to say concerning the Oshawa-Port Hope Lacrosse match:—"In the Oshawa-Port Hope lacrosse match it is said that one player was ruled off four times for rough play, but was still in the game when it ended. This is, of course, absurd, if true. Such trifling punishments do not discourage rough play, and only serve to give a bruiser time to regain his breath and select his next victim. The same despatch concludes with the significent remark that Oshawa plays a return game in Port Hope on Wednesday of this week, when the latter club expects to take "sweet revenge.' So it goes. The next stage is where the onlookers join in and rocks are thrown. If the C.L.A. cannot govern the game better than this it should disband and cease exciting rivalry between towns."

Galt was beaten by 14 to 7 in Brantford on Saturday. The Galt Reformer comments on the game as follows:

Brantford butchered Galt in Brantford on Saturday, and the referee, Fred Milner, of Brampton, winked at the disgraceful work. It was, possibly, the most dastardly and discreditable exhibition ever allowed by a C. L. A. official, for Milner was President McMillan's own appointee. To-day, out of the twelve men who went on the Brantford oval sound in wind and limb, the majority are so battered and bruised that they'll not be in condition to play again for weeks to come. "Tar" Seip, who was so slashed and slaughtered that he left the field in the fourth quarter, is a mass of variegated discoloration from his head to his heels, the result of Brantford's chopping bee. His shoulder is as good as dislocated, half an ear shows a tendency to drop off, and his head bears the trade-mark of a trip-hammer, one with a perpetual motion. McIntosh can scarcely raise either arm, and one rib is fractured. Ryder shows the effect of unmerciful and unceasing drubbing; and Sinclair, though somewhat better, suffers severely from an injury received. McDonough looks as if he had the mumps, his jaw swelling out like a balloon, and to those in the grandstand the whack-whack of the Brantford sticks on his head sounded as if the Brantford defence were making a record as battering rams. Pennock escaped with his life, but he was roughly handled. The rest of the ill-fated Manchesters will survive Saturday's ordeal, but one need not be a medical man to see that Brantford's medicine has worked thoroughly and effectively. But, and let this go to the city's credit, the better class of the Brantford spectators disapproved of the home players, and one prominent Brantfordite went so far as to say: "I consider that Galt has been so shamefully treated that I will never witness another game in which Brantford plays. I feel that "Tar" Seip, that splendid, good-natured giant of yours, was made a target of, and I protest most vigorously against the way in which he was abused. The Manchesters play clean, fast lacrosse. So far as I could see, they know nothing of rowdy lacrosse. Therefore, they cannot play it. As for the referee, he was so flagrantly unfair that it must have been from design, rather than from accident." So glaring was Brantford's brutality, at the last, that not a few in the crowd hissed their own team.

GOLF.

How to be a golfer, though poor, is thus explained in one of Harper's publications:

I do not practise with a cleek,
And scar the lawn like any vandal,
But limber up my muscles with
My umberralla-handle.

I do not "putt" into a hole
That makes the grass look brown and gloomy,
But into a tomato-can,
Whose open end is roomy.

When missing strokes I do not waste
Swear words as lurid as a garnet,
But rest content with milder terms,
L'ke "Hully smoke!" and "Darn it!"

Nor do I squander pennies on
Real caddies that are bad and muggy,
But place reliance on my dear
Beloved little Puggy.

And when I'd practise my address,
Unlike some wasteful scions,
I do not use a brand-new ball,
But whack the dandelions.

CRICKET.

The London Sporting Life has the following interesting account of Abel's big innings of 247 in the match between players and Gentlemen, which was played on July 12th:

"Surrey's little genius, Robert Abel, accomplished a performance at the oval on July 12, which from many points of view must rank as quite remarkable. Thirty years ago, when Abel was a little fellow, W. G. Grace, then a youngster of twenty-three, played a magnificent innings of two hundred and seventeen for the Gentlemen against the Players at Brighton. For thirty years this score has stood as a record for the series of matches between the Amateurs and the Professionals, while it is worthy of note that no cricketer, with the exception of W. G. Grace, had before July 12 ever played an innings of 200 in a Gentlemen vs. Players' match. Grace himself made two hundred and fifteen at the oval in 1870, and it was at the oval that the veteran champion saw one of his cherished records relegated to oblivion. Abel played in very fine style for two hundred and forty-seven. It is true that the bowling pitted against him was neither representative nor bristling with talent of the kind expected in such a match. As a matter of fact no fewer than nine of the Amateur team bowled to Abel during his six hours' stay a tthe wicket, and it is quite certain that the attack suffered considerably through its lack of variety. A fast bowler is more likely to take Abel's wicket than a slow one, and with nearly everybody sending down slows the batsman fairly revelled in his task, and at no time appeared to tire. Abel, who is rapidly approaching his 2,000 runs, has exceeded the century five times this season, and on July 12 he easily beat his previous best for the year, viz., 138 against Worcestershire. His centuries in Gentlemen vs. Players' matches also number five. In 1892 he scored one hundred and seventeen for the Players at Hastings, while he followed this with one hundred and sixty-eight, not out, at the oval in 1894, one hundred and ninety-five at the oval in 1899, and one hundred and fifty-three at the oval last season. Singularly enough he has never claimed the same distinction for the Players at Lords, but he came very near to it last season, when he scored 98 in their second innings. But for Abel's effort, July 12, the Players would not have made such a very formidable stand, for the next highest score only amounted to 42. The score stood — Gentlemen, 283; Players, 474."

REGIMENTAL ORDERS.

By Lieut.-Col. Edwards of 57th Regt.—More Attention to Shooting.

Headquarters, Peterborough.
July 30th, 1901.

Orders by Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, Commandant 57th Regiment, P.R.

1. Company officers are required to see that each memoer of their respective Companies shall before the end of August have fired at least from 40 to 80 rounds at the targets, and to send in their target returns for at least 40 rounds by the date named.

2. An officer or competent non-commissioned officer must be present to act as instructor for the men of each Company and to superintend their shootings.

3. Where necessary in special cases, arrangements should be made to have men shoot before seven in the morning or after six in the evening.

4. For recruits who find it difficult to get out to the ranges in the day time, the first training may be given with the Morris Tube, but in no case should the regular target practice be altogether omitted.

5. A special report must be made as to each case (if any) where the target practice is not done in accordance with the foregoing orders.

By order,
D. WALKER, Lieut.,
Acting Adjt.

In connection with the accompanying orders the attention of Company officers is specially directed to the training of the members of their Companies in rifle shooting, as the first and most important branch of the annual training. No officer who neglects this part of the drill can be considered to be doing his whole duty, and no man who enlists can be deemed to be serving as an efficient volunteer who will not, or cannot give the time to learn to shoot. A man might just as well, after joining refuse to turn out for the ordinary Company or Battalion drill, as to refuse to turn out for target practice.

Commanding 57th Reg't.

CAGED WILD ANIMALS

THE BEAST THAT SPRINGS IS THE ONE TRAINERS FEAR.

Inexperience and Carelessness Are the Greatest Factors In Accidents. A Trainer's Experience With an Excited Lion.

A famous wild animal trainer, who by virtue of many years experience in handling wild animals has come to be a sort of adviser and coach of animal trainers, says that in a very large percentage of cases injuries suffered from trained animals are the fault of the trainer.

"Inexperience and carelessness are the great factors in accidents of this kind," says the trainer. "The average young trainer is too likely to forget that every one of the big cats has five mouths, as one may say—one in his head and four more at the ends of his paws—and each of those mouths is capable of inflicting terrible injury. However, we do not place an animal in the list of bad animals unless he makes a direct and full attack. Striking at the trainer with the paws amounts to little; it may be even accidental. It is the spring that counts.

"Every trainer expects to be clawed somewhat. It may lay him up for awhile, but he doesn't lay it up against the beasts. The trainer's own arms, legs, breast and back are elaborately tattooed with testimonials from his feline friends of past years. But the beast that springs must be beaten into submission, or the trainer must escape from the cage as soon as possible. If the animal really means business, it is the man's part to get out, for no man can stand against the strength of a lion or tiger or the wonderful agility of a leopard.

"The best defense against a charging lion or tiger if one has only a club is to strike the animal on the nose, hitting up from under, but this is by no means an easy thing to do, as the creature will dodge and block with a degree of skill that would do credit to a champion of the ring. Meantime, however, the man can have been edging into a position favorable to escape. The felines jump for the throat, and an agile man if he sees that the animal is going to leap can avoid the onset and get in a blow that may send his assailant cringing to the other end of the cage.

"No man who is not agile has any business with these brutes. If knocked down, the man's only chance is to struggle to the bars and raise himself, for on his feet he has a chance of controlling the animals; down, he is completely at their mercy, and they have no fear or respect for him. The minute his body touches the floor he ceases to be the master.

"A number of bad accidents that have come under my notice have been ascribable to drunkenness on the part of the victims. A half drunken fellow goes into the cage with a desire to show off his mastery over the animals and, cursing and swearing at them, puts them through their paces without let up. Every animal knows when he is being overworked, and there is nothing he resents more bitterly. The animals endure being 'put upon' for a time; then the first thing the trainer knows one of them has him pinned, and if he gets out alive it is more than he deserves.

"One must bear constantly in mind the possible effect of his course of action upon the animals he is handling and the construction which their reasoning or instinct or whatever you choose to call it is likely to put upon his acts.

"I had a severe illustration of that in Kansas City. Owing to an error on the part of the workmen Mme. Pianska's large cage was misplaced, and I found that her lions would have to perform in a similar one. This change of stage setting is one of the things that performing animals particularly hate, and she had a good deal of trouble.

"Finally she got them all working in the smaller cage except one lioness, usually a good subject, who chanced to be sulky that day. Coaxing wouldn't move her, so I was appealed to and went into the cage. After some difficulty I got her majesty to go over her jumps all right, and I kept her hustling around the ring pretty lively to take some of the temper out of her.

"In my hand I held a riding whip, and just for a flourish I tapped it smartly on the ground. There was no sense in the action, and if I had thought twice I wouldn't have done it. Twenty feet away from me, near Mme. Pianka, the lioness' mate was standing, watching me with dubious eyes. Probably he thought when I tapped the whip on the ground that I was laying it on the lioness. Anyway he covered the 20 feet in one bound and pinned me through the fleshy part of the thigh.

"Down I went. The lion picked me up and carried me over to Mme. Pianka for her approval. She had in her hand the revolver which she uses in her act, and she fired the blank charge close to the lion's ear, at the same time catching him around the neck.

"That was one of the poses in his act, and fortunately it caught his mind, and the force of habit brought him to instant obedience. He relaxed his hold, giving me a chance to get to my feet, and I ran him around the cage three or four times just to show him I was still master and then went to bed. The teeth hadn't touched the bone, and I was up and around in three weeks. By the way, there is nothing in that theory that a lion's bite is poisonous. I have been bitten seven times by felines, and the wounds have always healed without any complications."

A Polite Interpreter.

When the Princess Charlotte of Mecklenburg-Strelitz arrived in London to marry George III, the people, on seeing her appearance, cried, "Pug, pug, pug!"

"Vat is dat dey do say—poog?" said the princess to the Duchess of Ancaster, who was sent to accompany her. "Vat means poog?"

"Oh, that means, 'God bless your majesty,'" promptly replied the duchess without the slightest hesitation.

TO BE A PUBLIC SPEAKER.

You Should Talk as Though Perfectly at Ease Before an Audience.

In managing his voice the speaker when he is engaged in earnest conversation commonly and naturally falls into the best tone and manner for public speaking. Suppose you are sitting about a table with a dozen friends and some subject is started in which you are deeply interested. You engage in an earnest and serious dialogue with one of them at the other end of the table. You are perfectly at ease, not caring in the least for your manner or tone of voice, but only for your thought. The tone you adopt then will ordinarily be the best tone for you in public speaking. You can, however, learn from teachers or friendly critics to avoid any harsh or disagreeable fashion of speech that you may have fallen into and that may be habitual to you in private conversation.

Next, never strain your vocal organs by attempting to fill spaces which are too large for you. Speak as loudly and distinctly as you can do easily and let the more distant portions of your audience go. You will find in that way very soon that your voice will increase in compass and power and you will do better than by a habit of straining the voice beyond its natural capacity. Be careful to avoid falsetto. Shun imitating the tricks of speech of other orators, even of famous and successful orators. These may do for them, but not for you. You will do no better in attempting to imitate the tricks of speech of other men in public speaking than in private speaking.

Never make a gesture for the sake of making one. I believe that most of the successful speakers whom I know would find it hard to tell you whether they themselves make gestures or not, they are so absolutely unconscious in the matter. But with gestures as with voice get teachers or friendly critics to point out to you any bad habit you may fall into. I think it would be well if our young public speakers, especially preachers, would have competent instructors and critics among their auditors after they enter their profession to give them the benefit of such observations and counsel as may be suggested in that way.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Only Forty Whalers Left.

According to the annual review of the whaling industry as prepared by The Whalemen's Shipping List, the past year was not a satisfactory one. While the sperm whale fleet did well, the right whale fleet met with only fair success. There were two disasters to the fleet during the year, the bark Alaska of San Francisco lost at Cape Nome and the brig Rosa Baker of New London lost at Port Stanley, Falkland islands.

The present fleet is made up of 40 vessels. On Jan. 1 New Bedford had 14 ships and barks and 8 schooners, a total tonnage of 4,230; Provincetown had 4 schooners of 438 tons, Boston one bark of 385 tons and San Francisco 12 square riggers and a schooner of 3,673 tons.

Paralyses.

Science has proved that moonlight is more fatal to the complexion than the sun in his splendor, and in Paris they are now selling little moon shades made of a double thickness of mousseline de soie, with a light fringe, the handles of which fold back like those of the marquises of our grandmothers' time. These moon shades are now indispensable for all late river parties.—Onlooker.

CHURCH AND CHURCHMAN.

The first Christian Science church was organized in 1887 and the second four years later.

St. Paul's cathedral has a dome 112 feet in diameter. St. Peter's, Rome, is 139 feet across.

In a sailors' church in San Francisco the pulpit is a complete reproduction of the stern of a noted clipper, and after services on Sunday tea is provided for sailors who attend.

In the United States there is one church for every 337 people. Boston has one for every 1,000, Minneapolis one for every 1,054. Twenty-four million people attend church in the United States every Sunday.

In the city of Heidelberg, Germany, there is a church, called the Church of the Holy Ghost, which is unique in its way, being the only church in the world in which the Protestant and Catholic services are held at the same time, a partition wall through the center separating the two congregations.

The late Dr. Thomas K. Beecher of Elmira, N. Y., was one of the most charitable of men. Nearly all of his $3,500 income was given away, and when his congregation thought to improve his appearance by sending him an overcoat the gift was turned over to a beggar. Another coat was at once presented and a promise exacted that it be retained.

Sleep.

Sleep is the resting time of consciousness. The more active and energetic the waking life of the normal individual has been, the deeper will be his sleep. A man exhausted physically or mentally recuperates those portions of his brain in which are located the centers presiding over the exhausted functions during the sleeping period. In these exhausted nerve centers the unconsciousness is deeper than elsewhere, in order that the rest may be more complete.

This is the best appreciated when we remember the effect of sleep upon the brain of a person who has suffered intense grief. When such a person sleeps, grief is completely forgotten; no dreams recall the misfortune. The Lethe of the ancient Greeks finds its exact counterpart. Even on awakening it is a little time before the exact nature of the misfortune can be remembered. At first there is a vague, uneasy feeling of mental suffering, a sensation of sorrow, a realization that a pall has been spread over the life, but its exact nature is located only by a distinct mental effort.

An Odd Little Parish.

The parish of Upper Eldon, in Hants, England, is probably unique among the parishes of the United Kingdom. It is situated about five miles from Romsey and boasts a population of ten. The village church stands in the center of the farmyard of one of the two houses in the parish, and the farmyard is also the village cemetery. The building dates from the eleventh century and contains a reading desk, communion table and rails and five pews, but does not boast a pulpit. The living is of the annual value of $225, but there is not at present an incumbent. Occasionally a clergyman will visit the district or pass through on a walking tour. The bell will then be rung, and the parishioners will attend an impromptu service.

The Milliner's Narrow Escape.

"I rather fancy this," said Miss Thurtiod, trying on a very girlish hat.

"Well," remarked the milliner unguardedly, "that would be becoming to young ladies of a certain age."

"And you mean to say my age is uncertain?"

"Well, er—yes. Until a young woman gets to be 24 or 25 her age is always uncertain. That hat's too old for you."

Social Obligations.

Professor Broadhead—Because, my son, if you permit yourself to receive you are compelled to give about three times as much in return in order to properly express your gratitude.

Due Time.

"Papa, what does the phrase 'in due time' mean?" Benny Bloobumper asked.

"First of the month, I guess," replied Mr. Bloobumper.—Detroit Free Press.

Although it would give one nervous prostration to think of woolen clothes just now, this is the very time when the rich and beautiful furs for the winter are being made. I really should tell what they are going to be. Instead I will take pity on suffering women and tell them of dainty and airy nothings that are cool and refreshing.

The organdies of the latest importations somehow seem to run to clear, translucent greens, such as one sees in the deep pools in the woods under trees where the brooks have settled down. The flowers have bent and left their shadows in these green surfaces. The dyer has been cunning enough to fix them for lovely woman to wear in order that she may be made still lovelier.

To think upon how many and what diverse realms woman makes her demands for her attire is really astonishing. She utilizes plants of the field, the wool of the sheep and the silk of the worm, not to mention the birds of the air and the fowls of the barnyard. Even the waters are searched all through for something else to make woman sweeter in the eyes of man. In some cases the result is good. Alligators' skins have been found to make pretty belts and bags, and this has caused the almost utter extinction of these ugly creatures.

But it is of the thin and cool things I wish to speak. Lawns when made up prettily are considered quite good enough for Mrs. Millionaire and her daughters. One dress that went to Newport for a fashionable young lady is of fine French gray lawn with black and white figures, the black in the form of arabesques. The upper part of the skirt is cut tablier shape, and there is a plaited flounce, graduated in depth, being 18 inches in the back.

At the line of demarcation is a band made of two rows of pink ribbon set together by hemstitching. The waist is in French shape, and the ribbon and hemstitching ornament that also. There is a sailor collar made of pink crepon. This is bordered in the same way, and a curved line goes across the front and to the belt. The belt is of crimson velvet in the model, but some would probably prefer a black one. The throat is open. How comfortable this is need not be told. It is a dainty and Frenchy dress.

The pretty plisse stuffs are among the neatest and most desirable of all the thin materials. They have one line smooth and the next puckered so that it looks like an inset gauffered piece. Pink and white stripes and white and blue are the best of these, because they wash best. These stuffs are very strong and are therefore excellent for outing, for tennis and all garden requirements. A pretty garden frock is of the pink and white plisse striped stuff. The trimming around the bottom is of white duck cut in turrets and stitched on, with a narrow pink ribbon to outline it. The sleeves are bishop shape, and the shoulders have Garibaldi straps. In front there is a piece of black velvet brought around like a collar and tie, and this is strapped around straps made of the dress material. The waist is bloused. If any one thinks that this is too much attention for a simple cotton frock, let her remember that it is the style and finish of a dress that make it fine as well as material.

A rather more ambitious gown for afternoon in the garden is made of pale cadet blue veiling. This wool veiling is quite as pretty as china crape, at less than half the cost. This dress has the skirt laid in deep plaits. These are banded across and held with small brass buttons set in clusters. Around the bottom is a trimming of three lines of velvet ribbon several shades darker. The waist is a slashed blouse, with the button trimming like that on the skirt. The belt is of velvet in the same shade, and the under part of the sleeves as well as the upper part of the blouse is made of lace. This is trimmed with velvet ribbon. A lace collar is set on the shoulders, but another dress of the same model has no collar and is prettier because neater. The underskirt is of crimson silk and shows faintly through. This same model made in plain challie or tamise is quite as dainty and costs next to nothing.

For all thin dresses where the wearer wants colored lining there are colored lining lawns. Another very handsome lining is of panne silk or what passes for it. It is in all colors and is distinctly moire on the surface. This shows beautifully under any thin stuff. Lustral is another rich and beautiful lining, although it is entirely too fine and handsome for lining only. A shirt waist made of the black kept its luster as long as it lasted.

One grand store exhibited the other day a ball dress which was about to be sent to its owner. This was white save for the black velvet ribbon which trimmed it. The lining was of crisp white taffeta. Around the bottom of this is a regular fluff of chiffon ruffles, each one edged with a row of very narrow black velvet ribbon. Velvet over chiffon is extremely fine. The outside of the dress was made of silk mull embroidered with spangles in silver. These were so arranged that there was a series of little rings, and through these the velvet ribbon was run in an "in and out" design. This was done lengthwise, but around the bottom the skirt was scalloped and the ribbon run along the pattern. In the center of each scallop there was a tiny bow of the same. The waist was half low, and the same scheme of color and trimming was carried out. The sleeves ended at the elbow. The belt was a silver ribbon, and the sleeves had chiffon finish at the elbow. The whole dress was very girlish and yet elegant and dressy. A bunch of picayune roses is to be put on the waist at the belt.

Let us have a few words on the subject of the fearful and wonderful stockings. The colors are the brightest that can be found and the patterns the most remarkable ever utilized for hosiery. Some have palm trees, others have landscapes and still others palm leaf and floral designs. Some are striped and others both checked and striped. Many are openworked, affording sumptuous feasts to the mosquitoes. The shoes are unusually pretty this summer, the oxford ties having high curved heels and glove kid tops with patent leather vamps. They tie with pretty bows of ribbon. There was an invention made which was to keep those bows from ever coming untied, but do you think women wanted them? In the language of the Philistines, not much. Only women know what chances the tying of these ribbons bring. Given a pretty foot and a new shoe, and no man can help succumbing and buying the diamond after being permitted to tie the refractory shoe ribbon. A woman's face grows old and her form changes, but if she had pretty feet in the beginning she keeps them forever.

There are to be no end of novelties in fancy chatelaine bags and side purses, although they are not yet on the market. The newest is to have the bag made of velvet or embossed satin. All the figures are outlined with steel beads, and there is a fancy steel fringe with an oxidized clasp and chain. The purses are long and narrow, and some of the prettiest ones have places for a small change purse and salts bottle.

The Duke of Norfolk's Clothes.

The Duke of Norfolk's indifference to the niceties of dress has led to many mistakes, which, as a man of humor, he always enjoys. During his long term of service on the London county council he was often mistaken for a Labor member, one reason being because he always sat on the same group of seats as the Labor men. Not so long ago he put some sovereigns in the plate at the door on leaving the Roman Catholic church off Lincoln's Inn Fields. The doorkeeper, feeling that the plainly dressed man must have made a mistake, hurried after him to explain. The departing visitor smiled quietly as he replied, "We'll let the mistake pass this time."

The March of Machinery.

A new method of manufacturing oriental carpets has been placed upon the market by an English syndicate, which has secured the rights from the inventor. It relates principally to the weaving of Turkish "piled" and "tufted" carpets, and the process embodies a revolutionary advance. By hand about half a day is occupied in making a square yard of this textile fabric, but the new loom has a capacity of 35 square yards per day. The process of coloring the yarns for the design is another novel feature. This again is almost entirely accomplished by hand.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

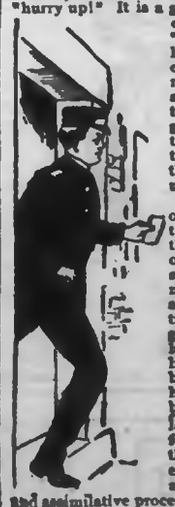
HURRY UP!

Everywhere one hears that expression "hurry up!" It is a genuine Americanism expressive of the "rush" in which we live. Nothing is swift enough for us. We race against steam and lightning and find them slow. We grudge the time given to eating, and rush through meals as though life depended upon our haste.



Life does depend on our haste, but not in that sense. Look at the obituary columns of the papers and see how many prominent men are carried away by "stomach trouble," "acute indigestion" and other related diseases. Their lives have in general been sacrificed to the haste and rush of business which overlooked the fact that food can only nourish the body when digested and assimilated and that the digestive and assimilative processes can't be hurried.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, cures diseases of the stomach and the associated organs of digestion and nutrition. The source of all physical strength is food, properly digested and perfectly assimilated. By enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food "Golden Medical Discovery" increases and enriches the blood supply and sends new strength to every organ of the body.

"I was at one time as I thought almost at death's door," writes Mr. J. S. Bell, of Lamado, Van Buren Co., Iowa. "I was confined to my house and part of the time to my bed. I had taken quantities of medicines but they only seemed to feed the disease; but I must say that 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me, and to-day I am stouter than I have been for twenty years. I am now forty-three years old."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser sent free to you on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send fifty one-cent stamps for cloth bound book, or thirty-one stamps for paper covered, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CHEESE IS SOARING HIGH.

1847 Boxes Boarded and Sold at 9 7-8c.

Outside Buyers Were Shut Out—Flavelle Bros' Cold Storage Warehouse the Salvation of Local Cheesemen During the Hot Spell—Cold Air Ducts for Curing Rooms Discussed.

(Lindsay Post.)

This morning's meeting of Victoria County Cheese Board was one of the most satisfactory ever held, and salesmen and patrons wore expansive smiles as a result of every box of cheese offered being picked up at tall price of 9 7-8c., while the best bid last season at the same date was only 9 1-2 cents.

President Robertson, Secretary Shyne and other officers were in attendance. The buyers were Messrs. Whitton, Fitzgerald, Bailey, Flavelle and Lytle (the latter representing a Montreal firm.)

FACTORIES REPRESENTED.

Star	100
Lorneville	80
Cameron	105
Dunsford	148
Mariposa	120
Janetville	78
Omemee	135
Fenelon Falls	136
North Verulam	130
North Ops	98
Pine Grove	60
Reaboro	170
Bobcaygeon	190
Maple Leaf	125
Palestine	60
Red Rock	170

COLD STORAGE FACILITIES.

Buyer Flavelle said he did not want any misconception to exist in connection with the storage of cheese in his firm's cold storage warehouse. Having room to spare he had placed it at the disposal of a number of factories during the hot weather for a nominal consideration. It was not intended that the fact should in any way interfere with the rules of the Board, and buyers were free to inspect the cheese in the warehouse and to load cars there in order to save the cost of cartage.

COLD AIR DUCTS.

President Robertson asked Mr. Kennedy, salesman for Dunsford factory, how he liked the air duct recently put in to cool the curing room, and the reply was "First rate—the temperature is down to 70 degrees, or ten below the normal."

Mr. Bredin, of the Bobcaygeon factory, said he believed the air duct added to that factory was not all it might be. Certainly the temperature was much higher than that quoted by Mr. Kennedy, which was probably owing to the tile being too small and the standpipe having no wind vane.

Mr. Flavelle—"What is the principle of the cold air duct? Is the air cooled by passing along the buried pipes?"

Mr. Bailey—"Yes, and if the standpipe is 125 feet away, instead of 75, as at Bobcaygeon, it will be all the better. The pure air taken in through the standpipe is carried to the curing room through three or four lines of tile, and is cooled during its underground journey."

Another speaker remarked that the College authorities recommended that the standpipe be placed 150 feet distant and also advised that the larger the number of tile lines laid the cooler would be the air furnished.

Mr. Bailey—"Some up-to-date factories have the cool air distributed to various parts of the curing room.

THE BIDDING.

When the president finally called for offers Mr. Bailey opened at 9 5-8c., Mr. Whitton called 9 3-4c., Mr. Fitzgerald 9 13-16c., and Mr. Lytle captured the first selction by making his bid 9 7-8c. He called Janetville, Omemee, North Ops, Pine Grove, Reaboro, Maple Leaf, Cameron, Dunsford, Fenelon Falls, North Verulam, Bobcaygeon, and Red Rock—12 factories, 1537 boxes.

Mr. Flavelle was next in line, and secured the remaining four factories—Star, Mariposa, Palestine and Lorneville—at the same figure, the two last mentioned factories being subject to Lindsay inspection.

The Board then adjourned for two weeks.

ABOUT KAID MALCEAN.

He is a Cousin of Mr. C. Maclean Paterson, of the Local Bank of Commerce.

Kaid Maclean, commander-in-chief of the Moorish army, now accompanying the Moorish mission to King Edward VII., is a Scotsman who has been twenty-three years in Morocco. He is a member of the Highland Clan of Maclean, which in bygone days took part in many feuds and Lowland forays. His grandfather was Maclean of Drimmin and he is closely connected with the Macleans of Lochbuie. Entering the British army some thirty years ago, in the early seventies, a lieutenant in the old 69th, when General Buller was a captain in the same regiment, and saw fighting in the Red River expedition. When Mulai Hassan, the present sultan of Morocco, decided to re-organize his army in 1875, he applied to England for a drill master, and Kaid Maclean received the appointment. Since then he has jumped from a salary of £s. 6d. to as many thousands a year. His intrepid leadership has endeared him to his men, and he could lead them anywhere. He is married and has a son serving as a lieutenant in the British army in South Africa. Mr. Maclean for his services to the British Government was created a C.M.G. It will please Scotchmen to know that the bagpipes have been introduced in the Moorish army and this wild war slogan of the Gael is appreciated just as much among the Moroccan Mountains as among the Bens of the Highlands. This adventurous Scot, who commands an army of 20,000 men, is a nephew of the late Charles Maclean, one of the ealy settlers of Seymour township, and is a cousin of Mr. C. M. Paterson of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Further reference to Kaid Maclean is made in the Canadian Magazine.

New Mexico's Forests.

This domain is as large as the states of Rhode Island, Delaware and one-half of Connecticut combined.

SETTLEMENT BY LOTTERY.

13,000 Quarter Sections Drawn for by 167,000 Applicants.

El Paso, O.T., July 30.—One of the biggest lotteries ever held opened yesterday when 13,000 quarter sections were thrown open to settlement. One hundred and sixty-seven thousand persons watched the event here or at a distance. The drawing took place on a platform built in the open air.

At 9.35 Col. Dyer, on the three commissioners, read the President's proclamation relating to the drawing. The envelopes were then placed in the wheels, each was turned repeatedly to insure a generous mixing, and then the drawing was on.

The first envelope taken from the wheel contained the name of John R. Wood of Weatherford, Oklahoma, who had registered for a homestead in the Lawton district.

Mattie H. Beals of Wichita, Kansas, whose birthplace is in Missouri, drew number two, also in the Lawton district. The multitude went frantic over the announcement. Without doubt, Wood and Miss Beal, who have won the right to make the first filings, will select the two quarter sections adjoining the Lawton townsite district, and which are believed to be worth $40,000 each. When Col. Dyer announced the woman's age as 23, and that her height is the same as that of Mr. Wood, 20,000 persons shouted in chorus: "They must get married."

Number one in the El Reno district was Stephen A. Holcomb of Paul's Valley, Indian Territory, and number three was Leonard Vamb of Augusta, Oklahoma.

Two Western Suicides.

Winnipeg, July 30.—J. Storer Brown, a well-known character living in the Steep Creek settlement near Markley's crossing, Prince Albert District, committed suicide by hanging himself from a beam in the shack he occupied. The reason for the rash act was due to bodily discomforts affecting his mind. He was 65 years old.

N. J. Paterson, a rancher near Medicine Hat, in the presence of seven persons, committed suicide while haying by cutting his throat with a pen knife.

FIT FOR STYLE

Style is distinct from fit, inasmuch as a garment may be fitting the figure clean and smooth everywhere, and yet be quite featureless and devoid of style.

Style is what may be termed the beauty of outline in the run of the different seams and harmonious arrangement of parts pleasing to the eye.

Steel Labor Leaders Adjourn After 9 Hours' Discussion.

MEETING WITH CLOSED DOORS.

One of the Difficulties Confronting the Amalgamated Association Executive Is the Admission of Non-Union Men to Work in Union Mills —How It Would Likely Work.

Pittsburg, July 31.—Disappointment and apprehension pervaded the air of Pittsburg last night because of the failure of the Executive Board of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to ratify the peace proposals arranged at the conference in New York last Saturday between the national officers of the Amalgamated Association and Messrs. Morgan, Schwab and Gary, representing the United States Steel Corporation.

When the conference opened yesterday morning it was confidently expected that an agreement would be reached in a short time, but after a session lasting from 9.30 a. m. until 6.50 p. m., the meeting adjourned without arriving at any conclusion, so far as known, to meet again this morning.

The protracted session indicated that the board is not satisfied with the provisions of the compromise measures, and unless some modifications are made its ratification is doubtful. The opening of union mills to non-union workmen is the point on which it is believed the board hesitates to accept, and the long distance telephone between New York and Pittsburg worked frequently yesterday to get a modification of this clause. The workmen hold that this would give the mill owners full opportunity of crushing the union without a strike by finding excuses to discharge union men and then fill their places with non-unionists.

Another rock of dissension is said to be the retention in their present jobs of the men who worked as "strike breakers" at the various mills during the strike. It is said that these men have been promised the protection of the manufacturers in case of a settlement, and that they will not concede their dismissal at the request of the organization. The workers, it is said, are willing to declare the mills now working non-union open mills, but strenuously object to having all the mills of the combine classified as open mills.

ARBITRATION MOOTED.

Mr. Shaughnessy and Mr. Wilson Non-Committal.

Montreal, July 31.—When questioned yesterday about the arbitration of the differences between the C. P. R. and trackmen, Mr. Wilson, President of the trackmen, said that he had always expressed himself in favor of arbitration and conciliation, but declined to say whether he was prepared at the moment to submit the dispute to arbitration. He thought that the question was unfair, but did not want to be quoted as refusing arbitration. The position taken by the C. P. R. up to the present is that there is no case which can go before an arbitrator, inasmuch as they are paying higher wages than any other company in Canada, and the equivalent of the highest paid in the United States for that class of labor. President Shaughnessy, when asked about arbitration yesterday, answered that he would prefer to take time to consider it before giving a reply.

The C.P.R. Strike.

Toronto, July 31.—The strike of the Canadian Railway Pacific trackmen continues, with no prospect of a settlement. The men, according to reports, are standing out in all divisions, and are confident of winning. They are receiving financial assistance from sister organizations, and are in a position to continue the fight.

General Superintendent Timmerman of the Ontario and Quebec division of the C.P.R. had nothing new to report yesterday on the strike situation. As far as his division is concerned, there is no strike. He reports everything on the system to be in first-class condition.

Strike at Thoreld.

Thoroid, July 31.—From sixty to sixty-five men employed in the Cartmell quarry just east of this place went out on strike yesterday morning. The men have been getting $1.75 for ten hours work, their demands as set forth in a notice to the superintendent are that the men receive $2 for ten hours work or $1.75 for nine hours.

Answer to Rossland Strikers.

Rossland, B.C., July 31.—The managements of big mines here have made the first definite announcement as to their intentions. The statement is contained in this letter to miners, blacksmiths' and helpers' carpenters' and joiners' unions.

Dear Sirs: To-day we beg to inform you that your communication of July 15 has been duly referred to the respective directors of our companies and that these directors have instructed us that they are unable to comply with the demands you have made. Yours sincerely, Rossland Great Western Mines, Le Roi No. 2, Le Roi Mining Company, and Kootenay Mining Company, Bernard McDonald, general manager of War Eagle Consolidated; Centre Star Mining Co., Edmund Kirby.

Shots Fired Among Strikers.

San Francisco, July 31.—Two non-union teamsters fired into a body of strikers yesterday afternoon. One man was wounded but not seriously hurt. The shooters were arrested. They claim to have fired in self-defence.

The City Front Federation agreed to strike in sympathy with the teamsters, already out. The strike went into effect yesterday morning, and involves 25,000 union workmen, comprising besides teamsters, machinists and iron workers, cooks and waiters. Shipping business is paralyzed.

Nine-Hour Day Established.

Chicago, July 31.—Local officials of the International Association of Machinists announced yesterday that the strike in Chicago was practically over, that the nine hour day, so far as this city is concerned, has been finally established. Out of 95 firms, they claim all but 18 have conceded to the demands.

Mrs. Rodney Seeks Divorce.

Washington, July 31.—The famous Rodney case, involving the matrimonial troubles of Lieut.-Commander Robert Burton Rodney, U.S.N., retired, and Margaret E. Owen Rodney, the young English woman whom the retired navy officer married in Toronto, Canada, last November, came up in court yesterday. It caused quite a surprise in social circles, as it was thought the difficulties between the Rodneys had been ended. Yesterday Mrs. Rodney filed a bill for absolute divorce and alimony against her husband, alleging cruel and unhuman treatment recently, and claiming that Rodney had threatened her life.

Two Kicked to Death.

Chesley, July 31.—Monday afternoon, Thomas Bugg, a farmer, near Chesley, was kicked by a horse in his own barn, and died from his injuries in half an hour. Another similar case occurred in this village about 8 o'clock the same night. A farmer named George Patterson, from Sullivan Township, while having his horses shod at Mr. Galbraith's blacksmith shop, was kicked by a horse belonging to a Mr. Acton, and died yesterday morning.

Held Up the Turnkey.

Toledo, O., July 31.—Yesterday when the turnkey entered the County Jail with the prisoners' breakfasts, he was held up at the muzzles of two revolvers and locked in a cell. John Brown, alias "Topeka Joe," Thomas Keegan and James Stewart, all held for robbery of the West Toledo postoffice, and David Morgan, a local prisoner, then marched out of the jail and so far have not been captured.

Mimic Naval Fight.

London, July 31.—The first battle in the British naval manoeuvres took place Monday, when the cruiser squadrons of the opposing fleets were engaged off the Scilly Islands, with the theoretical result that the defending fleet was annihilated. The Channel now is apparently at the mercy of the enemy. Fifteen cruisers were suppositiously sunk.

Caring for Canada.

London, July 31.—The Under Foreign Secretary, Lord Cranborne, in the House of Commons yesterday, said the question of securing the most-favored-nation treatment for Canadian products entering Germany was receiving the earnest attention of the Government, though negotiations on the subject had not yet been formally opened.

Frank Marsh's Body Found.

Hamilton, July 31.—Police Constable Hazell yesterday found the body of a young man on the bay shore just north of the piers. In the coat pocket was a post card written from Hartford and addressed to "Frank Marsh, 183 Mary street north, Hamilton." This was his name, as testified to by his landlady and brother.

Triple Child Murder.

London, July 31.—A triple child murder was committed here yesterday. A man drowned his three children in the Regents Canal, and then attempted suicide. He was prevented from killing himself, however, and was placed under arrest.

Britain Will Do Her Share.

London, July 31.—By a vote of 150 to 44 the House adopted a resolution authorizing the expenditure of £2,000,000 on the Pacific cable. Great Britain's share under the agreement with the colonies, SUMMER BABIES.

If you take it in time many a baby will live this summer to be thankful for Powley's Liquified Ozone.

For delicate, puny little creatures who take food enough but do not retain it or thrive on it; you try one artificial food after another, and the baby thrives on none; try Powley's Liquified Ozone with the food.

The milk of one cow is best; add a teaspoonful of Ozone to a pint of milk. It will sterilize the milk perfectly, and the baby will take it, keep it, get fat on it. Deal with the artificial foods in the same way; add a few drops of Ozone to the dose of cod-liver oil, if you are giving that; a few drops of Ozone in water after feeding has been enough to correct all a baby's stomach troubles.

The same treatment is for any sensitive stomach, infant or adult, Ozone has cured many cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. Its value in such cases is quite as marked and definite as in tuberculosis, kidney trouble, rheumatism, and others.

"My baby was nearly a skeleton from indigestion, and I could not get anything to stay on her stomach, and I had given up hope of raising my darling, when by merest chance I was advised to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I had not given her the Ozone for two days when all vomiting ceased, and in one month I scarcely knew my child, so great was the change. It is now two months since I first started giving her the Ozone, and her picture is proof of the work it has done. Mothers who desire their babies to live would profit by giving them Ozone. Any mother wishing to verify this can do so by calling or writing to my address, 391 Church Street, Toronto, and find a living proof. (Signed), MADAME SAMPSON-LIVINSKI, 391 Church Street, Toronto.

The Ozone method is a new method of cure; it will pay you to try it. 50c. and $1.00 a bottle. Your druggist will have it. Booklet free.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1901.

NORTHERN ONTARIO.

Some time ago the project of a railway to James Bay was regarded through the atmosphere of romance, the main idea being that in this way a new ocean route from Canada to Great Britain could be opened up. Although this idea has by no means been abandoned, the feasibility of the Hudson Bay navigation is no longer regarded as essential to the feasibility of railways from southern Ontario and Quebec to James Bay. Exploration, settlement, lumbering operations are gradually filling up the gap between James Bay and the great lakes, and the bay is the objective point of railways from Missinabie and from North Bay in Ontario, and from Lake St. John in Quebec. Already more than half the way from Toronto to salt water may be traversed comfortably by rail and steamboat, and the rest of the journey is no longer looked upon as a very formidable undertaking. Settlement has been proceeding with reasonable speed on the Quebec as well as on the Ontario side of Lake Temiskaming. Thornloe, the centre of the settlement which suffered from fire some weeks ago, is a busy and thriving place. The hum of the sawmill and the builder's hammer are heard continually, and the people have those characteristics of energy, hope, and mutual helpfulness which are the life of new settlements. The settlers who suffered from fire are a plucky and cheerful lot of people, and with some assistance will soon be on their feet again. Certainly none deserve aid and encouragement more than these pioneers who by their labours to-day are making life easier for generations to come, and laying the foundations of a strong and prosperous community. The French-Canadian settlers are progressive and intelligent, eager to avail themselves of modern appliances in agriculture, and actuated by a spirit of friendly rivalry with their neighbours on the west side of the lake. Between the settlement on the lake and James Bay there are estimated to be some 16,000,000 acres of land suitable for farming.

A railway from North Bay to the head of Lake Temiskaming could give a strong impulse to settlement, and it would give access to the region about Lake Temagami, which is likely to prove highly atttractive to tourists, hunters and fishermen. While there are countries which present larger unbroken tracts of land for settlement than this portion of Ontario, the varied nature of the country is of advantage to the settler. Tourist travel helps to maintain the railways, lumbering operations give employment to new settlers, and there are local markets for a large proportion of the products of the farm. If the more ambitious projects for reaching James Bay by railway are not carried out speedily the same result will be achieved in time by the building of railways in response to the needs of settlement. From the point of view of this portion of Ontario, the extension from North Bay is of great importance. At present the region is largely tributary to Montreal and Ottawa, with which the railway connections are good; and while no one grudges the eastern cities the fruits of their enterprise, there is no reason why this portion of Ontario should not enjoy a fair proportion of the trade of the new settlements. The building of about a hundred miles of railway will bring the settlers within reach of the railway system of Ontario, and will be of immense benefit to them in regard to mails and supplies of all kinds. In fact the need and the advantages of the line are so obvious that the work ought not to be much longer delayed. Even as a tourist line it ought to pay as well as that part of the Grand Trunk Railway which gives access to the Muskoka Lakes. Hunters and fishermen are always on the lookout for fresh fields, and new Ontario possesses them in abundance. The indications are that within a few years the progress of settlement and other circumstances will give railway connection between the great lakes and James and Hudson Bays. Ontario will then be practically, as she is now on the map, one of the Maritime Provinces. Whether this will result in the establishment of a new ocean route we are not now discussing. We are dealing now with the present, and with probabilities which may fairly be described as certainties.—The Globe.

Can plants think? A man has been found who advances that theory and what he says will cause thoughtful interest among those who have a fondness for plants. Mr. Kellogg, a Michigan fruit-grower, advances the theory that plants not only possess the power of thought but are capable of conscious action. Long ago investigators of the circulatory system of plants suggested that there was not lacking evidences of the existence of a nervous system in plants. One investigator tells of experiments with a morning glory vine. Recently she observed a delicate tendril reaching out towards a nail on the side casing. She marked the position of the tendril on the wood with a pencil, and then shifted the nail an inch lower. The next day the little feeler had deflected noticeably and was again heading for the nail. The marking and shifting were repeated four or five times, always with the same result, and finally one night the tendril, which had grown considerably, managed to reach the coveted support and coiled tightly around it. At the same time another bunch of tendrils had been making for a hook. Just before it reached its destination the young woman strung a cord across the window sash directly above. It was then a choice between the old love and the new, and the tendril reached for the string. What led it to do so?

Took Her Life With a Razor.

Guelph, July 31.—About 4 p.m. on Saturday Mrs. James Pirie, of Winterbourne, committed suicide by cutting her throat with a razor in the root cellar of their barn. The deceased had undergone an operation some time ago at the Guelph Hospital, and her condition was such as to necessitate another operation being performed in the immediate future. This had such a dejecting effect upon the mind of Mrs. Pirie as to render her despondent, and she preferred to end her existence in the manner she did to suffering another operation.

Object to Any Change.

London, July 31.—At a great Protestant meeting held last night in St. James' Hall, London, Lord Kinnaird presiding, a resolution was adopted protesting against any change in the King's accession declaration. It was also decided to address a memorial embodying the resolution to the House of Commons.

MODERNIZING CHINA.

Progress the Emperor is Making in Reorganization.

THE FOREIGN OFFICE ELEVATED

Foreign Affairs Will Hereafter Be the Most Important Business of the Government—The Emperor, Too, Will Entertain Foreign Ministers—List of Guilty Boxers Down to 54.

Pekin, July 31.—The edict of the Emperor, providing for the reorganization of the Chinese Foreign Office, has been received here. Its tone and substance satisfy the ministers of the powers.

The edict declares that foreign affairs will hereafter be the most important business of the Government, gives Foreign Office precedence over six old boards that previously outranked and provides for the reception of the Ministers in the hall, in which, heretofore, only near relatives of the Emperor have entered. It also provides for the entertainment of the Ministers by the Emperor at occasional banquets.

The German Minister, Dr. Mumm Von Schawartenstein, is engaged in drafting a protocol providing for the punishment of Chinamen guilty of participation in the Boxer movement. A feature of this is that the number of culprits has dwindled from 160 men, originally named, to 54. This is due to the fact that, in the majority of cases, it has been found impossible to prove the guilt of the accused.

WAR OFFICE V. DAILY MAIL.

The Paper Censured in the House of Commons.

London, July 31.—The printer and publisher of The London Daily Mail of this city had a narrow escape yesterday from being ordered to appear at the bar of the House of Commons on Thursday next, as the result of observations made in connection with the War Secretary's (Mr. Brodrick's) boycott of that newspaper, on account of the South African disclosures.

The Daily Mail yesterday morning characterizes as "baseless and mean" Mr. Brodrick's assertion in the House of Commons Monday that the paper had a habit of surreptitiously buying War Office information, adding that if Mr. Brodrick ventured to repeat outside the House that the paper had stolen official documents, it would prosecute him for libel.

In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, Swift McNeill, Irish Nationalist, made a motion, to the effect that The Daily Mail's challenge was a breach of the privileges of the House, The Government leader, Mr. Balfour, assented. But apparently, not desiring to stir the matter up, he said he thought it was not necessary to press the motion. Mr. McNeill, however, insisted, and the motion was carried without a division.

Mr. McNeill then moved that the printer and publisher be ordered to appear at the bar of the House today. The motion was defeated by 288 to 128 votes.

A STRAIGHT CASE AGAIN THIS TIME.

Sam Derrochers Cured of Diabetes in 1898—Had it for Over Five Years—His Recent Letter Proves That His Cure Still Holds Good.

Quebec, July 28th, (Special). — Sam Derochers, of the Fortress City, was cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills in 1898. His case is well known here, it having been published in the papers at the time, and a great deal of attention was drawn to Dodd's Kidney Pills on its account.

Diabetes, however, is known to be an incurable disease, and many of the more sceptical of Quebec citizens expressed doubt as to the permanancy of the cure. These doubts may now be set at rest. Mr. Derrochers himself attests that in three years he has had no sign of diabetes' return.

On May 28, 1898, Mr. Sam Derrochers published the following letter in the Quebec papers: "I have been a victim to Diabetes for over five years with terrible pains around my kidneys. My feet were always cold, and my thirst could not be quenched, no matter what I drank. I tried remedy after remedy but received no help. I purchased one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and found immediate relief. I have now finished five boxes and can say I am perfectly cured."

Now to clear away all possible doubt that Mr. Derrochers was not cured, to show beyond question that Dodd's Kidney Pills did not merely relieve him for a time, but actually cured him of Diabetes, and cured him to stay cured, we publish his letter of April 4th, 1901.

Dear Sirs, — My cure of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been permanent. I have not been troubled with a sign of diabetes since my cure three years ago."

LOOK AFTER THE LISTS.

Toronto, July 31.—Mr. Alexander Smith, Secretary Ontario Liberal Association, in a circular letter recently issued with reference to the revision of the voters' lists, says: "In a few municipalities our friends have not given as much attention to the assessment rolls as was desired. This omission can be rectified now and at no other time, and all friends of good government will see that this is done. A careful revision of the voters' list by the Judge in every municipality will insure the return of the Ross Government to power. This important work should not be neglected in any municipality, even where the assessment rolls have been well looked after. It is necessary that the votors' list should be carefully revised, as changes may have occurred in the meantime. A gain of two or three votes in each polling subdivision will mean the election of several of our candidates who otherwise will be defeated. Please bear in mind that the Tories have advised their friends to control the assessors, and also to induce the municipal clerks to put names on the list of their own accord, without regard to due process of law."

THE PAPER COMBINE.

Mr. Graham of the Montreal Star Gives Evidence.

Montreal, July 31.—The Royal Commission to inquire into the alleged paper combine resumed work yesterday. Mr. Hugh Graham of The Star said that by the contract with the Canada Paper Company since 1899 he got his paper for $6.90; that the price was lower than the present prevailing price, as the contract was made before the rise in chemicals and labor, and the company since that rise intimated they were losing money on every pound of paper. Argument of counsel then began.

A Scotch Verdict at Ottawa.

"Certain reflections on the administration of the department will be further considered when the evidence is extended. In the meantime the suspension of the chief is removed." (Signed.) D. B. McTavish, G. E. O'Keefe.

(2) To request Chief Powell and all the men to hand in their resignations to initiate reorganization of the department.

LYNCHING PROPOSED.

An Exciting Moment in the Stock Speculating Career of Lord Pelham-Clinton, Gen. Gough-Calthorpe and Others.

London, July 31.—At the first meeting of the creditors yesterday and at a subsequent meeting of the shareholders of the Standard Exploration Company, one of the mining concerns known as the "Whittaker-Wright group," the official receiver made such astounding revelations that he drew from the excited shareholders demands for the lynching of the persons implicated.

The receiver said that the estimated assests were farcical. The 14 mines, valued at £767,000, had earned nothing. The company started with a cash capital of £500,000, but the directors took little interest in the company's mines, and devoted themselves to Stock Exchange speculation.

"And that's where your money is gone," said the receiver: "£228,000 was lost in differences, in Lake Erie speculations, and £255,000 was lost in differences in Caledonian Copper. The total profits from speculations are £38,000, and the losses are £536,000."

After a few more such statements, which a shareholder said "would stagger humanity," another shareholder asked the receiver to prevent the directors from making away with their property, as it was reported they were doing.

"Yes, they are," came the answer, and immediately those present rose to their feet, somebody shouting, "Lynch him!"

It was an exciting moment for Lord Pelham-Clinton, General Gough-Calthorpe and others who were attending the meeting. A storm of angry cries and hisses broke out, but the receiver finally succeeded in calming the shareholders by promising them every protection possible.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies its power over pain is simply beyond relief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it and see if this is not true. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

Claims Against Russia.

Ottawa, July 31.—The total sealing claims filed by Canada against the Russian Government, and which are awaiting arbitration, amount to about $140,000. Of this amount, about $100,000 is for vessels and equipment, seized in Behring Sea. The balance is for sealskins and ships' boat confiscated by the Russians. The United States has agreed to arbitrate its claims against Russia, and they will be brought before a tribunal at The Hague. Canada is endeavoring to secure a modification of the terms of reference, so as not to be handicapped in going to arbitration.

Crowded Train Wrecked.

Kremlin, Ok., July 31.—The northbound Chicago-Rock Island and Pacific passenger train No. 2, which left El Reno at 7 a. m., three hours late, was wrecked yesterday afternoon while going at full speed two miles south of here. C. L. McLain of Enfed, Ok., was killed, and 24 other passengers received cuts and bruises. It is believed none but McLain was fatally hurt.

Wounded in a Duel.

Paris, July 31.—As an outcome of politics, Leon Daudet and Gerault Richard (the writer of The Petite Republique who recently met Max Regis on the field of honor) fought a duel with swords yesterday afternoon, in a suburb of Paris. M. Daudet was slightly wounded in the wrist.

Mrs. Nation Pardoned.

Topeka, Kas., July 31.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who is serving a sentence in the county jail for "joint smashing," was yesterday pardoned by Governor Stanley. She would not at first accept the pardon, because the fine and costs were not remitted, but afterwards decided to do so.

Suicide at Ingersoll.

Ingersoll, July 31. — On Saturday night last Mrs. Johnston, a widow, threw herself into the mill pond and was drowned. Her body was found Sunday morning. Mental depression, induced by illness, was the cause.

MARKET REPORTS.

Tuesday Evening, July 30.

In Liverpool to-day wheat and maize options closed near Monday's final figures.

In Chicago to-day September wheat rose a cent a bushel, and September corn advanced about a cent and a half. Cables come steady, despite the rain in the American crop belts. Heavy buying of wheat for export was reported from New York. It is felt that with short crops reported by several countries in Europe, the Americans and Canadian farmers should get good prices this year for their wheat.

Receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day were light—28 carloads, composed of 595 cattle, 400 hogs, 452 sheep and lambs, with about 75 calves.

The fat cattle offered to-day were, generally speaking, of medium quality.

Altho there was a light run, the supply was equal to the demand, especially in the export class, as there were only a few wanted, space on the boats being scarce.

Tolstoi Grows Better.

Moscow, July 31. —Count Tolstoi is rapidly approaching convalescence. The old philosopher, undaunted by his serious experience of the last two weeks, is eagerly planning the outlines of a new novel, entitled "Old Men," which, he says, has been inspired by his illness. The work will probably be the Count's last message to the world, and will contain his reflections on life composed under the shadow of his approaching end. Tolstoi is grieved at his inability to work hard, which he declares is the best remedy for physical and moral indisposition.

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increases the weight of thin babies and delicate children also

Mr. Heffernan's Accident.

Mr. P. Heffernan, an employee in the blacksmith shop of Mr. George Fitzgerald's carriage works, met with an accident yesterday afternoon which will lay him off work for some time. The head of a tool came off the handle, and the sharp edge came down with great force on Mr. Heffernan's arm, cutting an artery. A physician was called in and the patient is doing as well as could be expected.

The Excitemant is Intense.

As the day approaches for the Printers' Excursion down to Jubilee the excitement increases. Last evening the sidewalk in front of the Peterborough Bookstore was almost impassable on account of the large number who stopped to view the beautiful prizes that are being offered for competition at the Point. There will be a fat man's race, a married women's race, a young ladies' race, a young men's race, a race for boys under 15, for girls under 15, besides a tug of war. The City of Peterborough, with the best excursion party of the season on board, will leave the wharf at 2 o'clock sharp on Saturday afternoon. Ladies, 25c., gentlemen, 35c., children, 20. A member of the committee will be at the Examiner office every evening from 7.30 to 9 o'clock for the sale of tickets.

A quiet wedding took place at five o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Nellie McManus, became the wife of Mr. Ed. Hickey, of town. The nuptial knot was tied by Ven. Archdeacon Casey. The bride was becomingly gowned in white organdie. She was attended by Miss Annie O'Neil, who was likewise attired.

The newly married couple will take up their residence on Antrim street.

WEDDED AT LAKEFIELD.

Mr. J. W. Ridpath, of the Lakefield News, Married to Miss Lottie Sanderson.

A wedding of much interest occurred at Lakefield this morning, at the residence of Mr. David Sanderson, uncle of the bride, when Miss Lottie, daughter of Mr. John Sanderson, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. W. Ridpath, proprietor of the Lakefield News.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. McCamus. The bride was attended by Miss Lily Montgomery and Miss Myrtle Fitzgerald, while Mr. F. J. Ridpath performed the duties of best man.

The newly married couple drove to Peterborough and took the G.T.R. noon train for Toronto, Buffalo and other points.

They will on their return take up their residence in Lakefield.

Mr. Ridpath is one of the most enterprising and progressive newspaper men in this district, and his many Peterborough friends will join in wishing him and his bride much happiness.

WEDDED AT WARSAW.

Nuptials of Miss Ida Graham and Mr. Robert Tedford.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of the groom, Mr. Robert Tedford, of Douro, when he was united in the holy bonds of matrimony, to Miss Ida A. Graham, of the same place. Miss Agnes Tedford, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and Mr. David Miller, groomsman. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Hyde, of Warsaw, in the presence of one hundred and twenty-five relatives and friends, on the evening of June 25th, 1901.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of cream, trimmed with white chiffon. She also wore the usual bridal veil, and blossoms. She also carried a handsome spray of ferns decorated with white roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a gown of pale blue, trimmed with white chiffon, and carried a spray of ferns, decorated with white carnations.

At the close of the ceremony, the young couple received the hearty congratulations of relatives and friends.

An indication of the esteem in which the young couple are held, was manifested by the large number of valuable presents received.

The groom's present to the bride was a handsome gold watch and chain.

MATTHEWS COMPANY OUTING

The Seventh Annual Affair Took Place Yesterday.

It Was, as Usual, a Great Success—The Baseball Match—The Races.

The Seventh Annual Pic-nic of the employees of The Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, took place yesterday per steamer City of Peterborough to Jubilee Point. Over 300, employees, their families and friends, partook of the hospitality of the Matthews Co., and all were united in saying that yesterday's outing was the most pleasant and enjoyable of the seven.

The steamer left Wolfe street wharf at 8.30 a.m., arriving at Jubilee at 11.20. After justice had been done to the multitude of baskets a base ball game was called, the teams being Matthews Co. Employees and Rosencath. Three innings were played when the rain stopped the game, after the shower, which lasted about half an hour, a list of sports was run off and then the ball game was resumed. Seven innings were played and resulted in a victory for the Matthews team, the score being 7 runs to 2. The game was clean ball, and was without any unpleasant features. Had not Rosencath made one bad error and lost the ball for a few minutes the score would have been much more even.

Jubilee was left at 5.30 and after a very pleasant sail the town wharf was reached at 8.45.

Exact information as to the weight of the fish was impossible to ascertain, as the only scales which were obtainable had only a weighing capacity of thirty-five pounds. When Mr. Rush came home this morning he stated that the story of his fierce fight with the 'lunge was invented by some one who treated the truth with penurious vulgarity, as the big fish was presented to him by his old friend Mr. Levi Payne, whose angling exploits are the wonder of the lake.

At the police court this morning, Fred Kairns was up, charged with stealing a watch from Mr. Walter English, a boarder at the National Hotel.

Kairns, while not denying that the watch belonged to Mr. English, endeavoured to make the court believe that he got the watch from someone else. Magistrate Dumble did not believe his story, and found him guilty. However, he did not wish to deal harshly with the young man, and after giving him a good sound lecture he allowed Kairns to go on suspended sentence.

Notes From the Lakes—Notes on Sport, and Notes on Everything.

The "at home" which is being put on by the "Down Enders" at the pavilion at Stony Lake on Thursday evening, promises to attract quite a number from town, who will go up on the evening train. Mr. John Crane, the energetic secretary of the "Down Enders," is working very hard to make the "at home" a success, and from present indications, it certainly will be.

Lacrosse has received a great boom in Port Hope this year, and the excitement that prevails in the Lake Ontario town over Canada's national game brings to mind the days when the old Ontarios were in the zenith of their fame, and swept everything before them, when the late "Billy" Paterson devoted time, money and energy in advertising the town on the lacrosse field, and when good-natured old Lou White, now also deceased, figured so conspicuously at point. Those were the good old days for Port Hope, and a revival of the game will be greatly appreciated by the townspeople there.

Why are the band concerts not more largely patronized this year than they have so far been? The music is none the less entertaining, but the fact remains that there are not the crowds in attendance that constituted a characteristic of the series last year. This can in a measure be accounted for by the fact that a bungle was made in the arrangements for the band at the beginning of the season. They were ordered to play in Central Park and the citizens would not have it. In the controversy and general discussion the people became, to certain extent, tired of the matter and the season for band concerts did not open with that enthusiasm that it should have. There is no reason why the attendances should not pick up, however, from this forward.

Tandem driving is something that is very rarely seen in Peterborough, but Dr. Young last night was observed enjoying a spin around town in his dog cart, driving tandem. The outfit was rather odd looking to the average citizen, but the horses drove well together.

The printers are becoming very enthusiastic over their excursion which takes place to Jubilee Point, Rice Lake, on Saturday of this week per steamer City of Peterborough. The evening papers will be gotten out at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon so as to afford an opportunity for the employees of the offices to get away. The printers, even if they do say it themselves, are noted for running things in a style not to be questioned, and there is no reason to believe that Saturday's outing will be any exception to the rule. The band will be there and Jubilee will see a happy gathering.

What has become of the Dan Spence Memorial Fund? This is a question that some time ago was most active, but even the interrogation itself has ceased to be heard. However, there must be some of those who readily subscribed to the Fund who would be pleased to know what the managers of the same intend doing. Is Dan Spence forgotten already?

The practice of tacking funeral cards up on telephone, telegraph, electric light and other poles is about to cease in Peterborough. It is said that in many other towns in Ontario this system of announcing the demise of a resident passed away years ago, and that Peterborough has been slow to fall into line. The Electric Light and other Companies have, it is understood, given the local printing offices notice to discontinue tacking the funeral notices on their property and their orders will, of course, be adhered to. Perhaps after all the system of disributing such notices in the various business houses is the more respectful way.

Mr. Claude Rogers has been enjoying some good sailing during the past week or two. Claude sailed down to Rice Lake in his sailing canoe, and after several days' outing he navigated the waters of the Otonabee back to Peterborough. His craft is one of the Rob Roy models, and was formerly used by his father, Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, when canoe sailing was at the height of popularity around this part of the community.

Mr. A. E. Jackson, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, is attaining an enviable reputation as a fisherman. Mr. Jackson has not been a resident of Peterborough very long but he knows nearly every tree along the river bank. Nearly every day Messrs. Morden, Jackson, Paterson, Hamilton, Burnham and Company, take a run down the Otonabee, and on the whole they have had a most successful season's fishing. Jackson leads the 'bunch' however, and has gained the reputation of being a regular "fish hawk."

A prominent canoeist said yesterday that it is impossible to put on a regatta on the Little Lake, as the people of the town are not educated up to appreciate an affair of this kind. The thing has been tried time and again, but has been "no go," he remarked. This may be the case, and it may not, but a few of the admirers of the Little Lake waters have been anxious of late to put on a regatta there, and an effort will be made on Thursday evening of this week to have an illuminated canoe parade and several good races between local paddlers. Let all canoeists turn out on Thursday night, and endeavour to make the affair a successful one. Get a canoe if possible, and if you can't get a canoe, get a punt, is the order that is issued.

The Methodist Sunday school excursion from Millbrook to the back lakes, went through Peterborough yesterday. It was one of the largest that has passed through town this season, and was augmented by quite a number from town. It was Millbrook's civic holiday, and it is not every Sunday school that can set their date for their annual excursion and then work the city fathers for civic holiday on the same day.

"U-Need-a-Rest," is the very odd name of a camp that will to-morrow morning pitch canvas at Sandy Point, Clear Lake. The party will consist of about twenty-five young people who have for some years past made an excursion of a prolonged nature to the back lakes. Rev. J. C and Mrs. Wilson will accompany the party, and the outing will last two weeks.

Rubber tire hacks are a very expensive vehicle in their original cost and the first cost is not by any means the only cost. Perhaps no other town Peterborough's size in Canada can boast of as many rubber tire vehicles, thanks to our local liverymen, and it is doubtful whether the extra charge for a vehicle of this kind is sufficient to cover the extra repairs that are from time to time required. Yesterday, Mr Robert Leary, Peterborough's wide-awake livery-owner, sent a wheel of one of his rubber tire landaus to Toronto for repairs to the tire. It will cost him just $25 as a new tire is necessary. Until such time as a less expensive style of rubber tires are invented the liverymen will not reap a very great harvest from their enterprise.

THE LATE FATHER CONDON.

Further Particulars Concerning His Life and Death—Once Resided Here.

The Very Rev. P. W. Condon, assistant-general of the congregation of the Holy Cross in the United States, and also representative in the General Council of the Order for the Province of America, died at Notre Dame, Montreal, Thursday morning, after a prolonged attack of Bright's Disease. Father Condon had been connected with the Order of the Holy Cross for over thirty years, and during that time has filled many offices of importance. He joined the Order in Canada, and was stationed at St. Lawrence College, near Montreal.

In 1872 he came to Notre Dame University, and for several years he'd the post of Prefect of Discipline. His talent soon gained recognition in the Order, and he was made president of the Sacred Heart College, of Watertown, Wis. For the past twenty-five years he has been pastor of St. Bernard church, in that city. The burial was held at Notre Dame, the Very Rev. J. A. Zahm, Provincial of the order officiating. — Exchange.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HENRY BEST, Chairman.

Mr. H. O. Fisk, of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., addressed the council and asked permission to place eleven new poles, as shown in their plan of July 30th, 1901; also to lower their wires on the east side of George street between Brock and Charlotte streets, so as to conform to the system already placed by them on the west side of George street, between Brock and Charlotte streets.

Upon motion of Aldermen Corkery, seconded by Alderman Batten, the request of Mr. Fisk was granted, the work to be done subject to the approval of the Town Engineer.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

The Hull Case Was Adjourned Until Next Week—The Evidence.

The time of the County Police Court was taken up for a considerable time yesterday over the case of King vs. Hull, in which a father and son of the well known Hull family of Stony Lake, were charged with stealing oil cups from a steam yacht engine, the property of Mr. David Breeze.

An adjournment was made at half-past four yesterday afternoon until next week when the matter it is expected will be finally disposed of.

Mr. R. R. Hall of town, and Mr. O. A. Langley, of Lakefield, are appearing on behalf of the accused.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

The West Ends would like to have a game with the Junior Auburns at Jubilee on Saturday afternoon next, the occasion of the Printers' Picnic.

The Auburns will play the Peterborough first team on the P.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday afternoon next. The Auburns are a speedy aggregation.

The Rosedales defeated the All Saints' church Brigade Boys last evening by the score of 6 to 3. The winners will play the Junior Elms of Ashburnham on the P.A.A.A. grounds, this evening at 6.30. A red hot game is looked forward to, as both teams have been out on stiff practising almost every evening.

LACROSSE.

The Vatican Lacrosse Club have arrangements with Orillia for a game here on August 8th, the date on which the firemen of Orillia will run their annual excursion to town. This should prove to be a great drawing card, and the Vaticans deserve much credit for their enterprise. The members of the team are asked to turn out at once and get into condition.

A man who goes on the lacrosse field practically takes his life in his hands. The struggle is not between friendly contestants but between armed foes. If a lacrosse game is to be a real battle, why let us have Victoria Crosses. But wouldn't it perhaps be better to reform the game? If it can't be reformed; abolish it. As played by its leading exponents to-day, Canadians may well be ashamed to own it as the national sport. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

GOLF.

On Saturday next the Port Hope Club will send a team to Peterborough to play nine men of the local club. Play will start at about two o'clock. Although Saturday is "men's day," any ladies who care to witness the match will be welcome.

An Orillia team will play here on Friday, Aug. 9th.

DAMMING THE GULL RIVER.

Government Constructing an Important Work.

Level of Redstone Lake to be Raised Several Feet—Reserved Water to be Used to Assist Lumbering and Navigation.

The Department of Public Works for Ontario has commenced the construction of an extensive dam at the head waters of the Gull River, which will raise the waters of Redstone Lake some 12 or 15 feet. The object in view in constructing the dam is to reserve the waters now lost by the spring freshets and make it available for use by the lumbermen in driving their logs and also to assist in keeping up the waters of Sturgeon, Pigeon, Stony and the lower lakes for navigation purposes and to assist the milling interests. The dam is situated about sixteen miles north of Haliburton village. The Gull River is joined by the Burnt River at Cameron Lake, near Fenelon Falls, and between that lake and Sturgeon Lake the stream is known as Balsam River; after flowing through Sturgeon, Pigeon and Stony Lake, it is called the Otonabee River, and below Rice Lake it is known as the Trent River. The dam under construction is expected to materially improve all these streams by maintaining the flow at a more nearly uniform level.

CURIOUS BURIAL FASHIONS.

The Coffins and the Methods of the Baule Negro Tribe.

On the Ivory Coast in West Africa, between the rivers Bandama and Nzi, there lives a curious negro tribe known as the Baule and which is a mixture of several races. So curious is it that M. Maurice Delafosse, a colonial official, has thought it well worthy of study, and he now narrates some interesting facts about it.

The coffins used by the negroes, he says, are rectangular, and each is fashioned carefully out of a large block of acajou wood. The sides, moreover, are ornamented with colored bas-reliefs, and the cover is usually wrought in most artistic style. As an example of such a cover M. Delafosse presents one which was made in 1895 for the mummy of a chieftain named Nyango Kuassi. On it the chieftain is represented lying on a leopard skin, which has been artistically engraved, the spots therein being shown by squares cut out of the wood.

Above the dead man is an engraving of an umbrella, the symbol of his high position on earth, and beneath it a box of cartridges has been drawn. On the left is represented the gold hilted saber which he wore on parade, and above it is an engraving of his favorite drinking cup. On the right in like manner may be seen drawings of his dagger and of his gun. Below the corpse is a death's head and the figure of a woman, who is holding in her hand a saucer filled with bread. The death's head represents that one among the dead man's slaves who, according to ancient custom, should have been sacrificed at the time of his death, but whose life was spared at the intercession of M. Delafosse.

Ordinary Baule negroes are buried as soon as they die, but those of high rank are rarely buried for seven months, and some even are not buried for seven years. In the latter cases the body is duly embalmed and then remains in the room where death occurs until it is placed in the coffin. Salt, alcohol and palm oil are the main ingredients used in embalming, and cotton, with which gold dust is sometimes mixed, serves to conceal the openings which the operator has made in the body.

Frequently thin plates of gold are also placed as a shield over the countenance, and all the ornaments that were worn in life are spread over the body. So the dead man lies on the mat where he died, and such is the influence of the air and the heat that within two months his body is transformed into a mummy. This was what happened to the body of Nyango Kuassi, for it lay seven months in the death chamber before it was taken out to burial.

CULINARY CAPERS.

Huckleberries are a delightful addition to molasses ginger cake as well as to soda biscuit.

A cake filling that has decided attractions for the family palate is made from chopped figs, mixed with either apple or crab apple jelly.

The unbaked part which is taken from the center of patties before they are filled is better than cracker crumbs for the tops of escaloped and devilled dishes. The fragments should be dried and rolled.

Chopped beef loaf is an excellent substitute for veal loaf for people who do not like veal. Have one pound of the best round chopped fine at the butcher's. Make a dressing similar to that for stuffed flank steak, add the meat and bake in a loaf shaped tin.

Some cooks claim that the best way to cook bacon is to lay thin slices on a fine wire broiler over a dripping pan and bake it in a hot oven until brown and crisp. By this method no grease is left on the meat, and it is more crisp than if fried. Cooked in this way it is especially adapted to children and invalids.

"The Beggar's Opera."

Gay's "Beggar's Opera" may be considered a comedy. It is very witty and very wicked. It makes a jest of crime and at the same time tends to set men against men. Probably it was altogether written by Gay, though it is above his average. But Gay was a follower of Swift and Pope, and the influence of Swift appears to be discernible in it. So, perhaps, the play was in some measure the work of that strange author, though not actually written by him. Pope says that the play was Gay's own writing, but acknowledges that he and Swift gave now and then a correction or a word or two of advice. This interference may or may not have had a great effect on the character of the whole play. One does not know. Fielding's "Jonathan Wild" must have been suggested by "The Beggar's Opera." Peachum is like Jonathan Wild, and there are other similarities. Gay may be easily credited with the whole authorship without the aid of his powerful friends of the inferior sequel, "Polly"—Notes and Queries.

Why He Wanted It Kept Quiet.

One of the officers in a certain regiment is much disliked by his men. One evening as he was returning home he slipped into some deep water. A private in his regiment, however, happened to see him and after some trouble succeeded in pulling him out. The officer was very profuse in his thanks and asked his rescuer the best way he could reward him.

"The best way you can reward me," said the soldier, "is to say nothing about it."

"Why, my dear fellow," said the astonished officer, "why do you wish me to say nothing about it?"

"Because if the other fellows knew I'd pulled you out they'd chuck me in."

Facts In the Case.

"Here's a good paragraph," said Singleton as he glanced over his paper. "It says that every time a woman sees her neighbor with a new bonnet she wants one like it."

"Huh!" rejoined Wederly. "I'll bet some old bachelor wrote that. A married man would have said that every time a woman sees her neighbor with a new bonnet she wants one a little bit better."

LIKE TO GO TO FUNERALS.

Women Who Attend All the Mortuary Services They Can.

Undertakers say that hundreds of people make a practice of going around from church to church to attend the various funeral services. It is a notion of recent growth, but is becoming very popular.

The special attraction in the case of Catholic churches is said to be the fine music which usually attends the celebration of a solemn high mass for the repose of the soul of the dead. Where the services of more than two clergymen are employed the attraction is all the greater, the undertakers say.

"It is rapidly becoming the popular thing," said one of the latter. "I thought it odd at first and wondered how it was that the same faces were to be seen at so many church funerals. I made inquiries and learned that a number of women make it a rule to scan the death columns every morning to pick out what promises to be a fashionable funeral service.

"Some of them go over to Brooklyn and Jersey even to satisfy their craving for pomp and sweet music. The mere fact that in many church funerals a card of admission is required does not seem to keep them away either. The sexton of one of the biggest churches on Fifth avenue told me that he knew more than 500 women who make a practice of attending church funerals. He added that it would be impossible almost to drag these same women to a church wedding. There is something so magnetic in church funerals as to be simply irresistible to them. Why it is so I can't say."

The pastor of one of the biggest churches in Brooklyn was asked to give an opinion as to the influence which induces women to attend church funerals indiscriminately, and he replied that it was a weakness to see and be seen rather than any desire to listen to the organ and the choir during service.

"I have noticed," said this clergyman, "that some of these women attire themselves in mourning whenever they attend services of this kind, regardless of the fact that they may have had no acquaintance with the deceased or his family. I have seen these women in the most gaudy frocks in the afternoon after the funeral services in the morning. It is just a woman's idea about keeping her mind amused, I suppose, though I must say it is stretching the imagination a long way. Hundreds now go to church funerals five or more times a week, and it is my candid opinion that they could not be dragged to church for any other purpose."

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Poison & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

His Sixty Pairs of Spectacles.

Sir Henry Irving has one peculiarity that only those who are brought into closest relations with him recognize. This is in regard to the number of spectacles and glasses of various sorts that he always has on hand, both at the theater and at home. At the theater he has quite two dozen pairs of one kind and another, and no employee about the place ever dreams of removing them, for when Sir Henry is busy with some production he is perpetually losing his spectacles, and as he is far more dependent on these than most people know he flies to the nearest point where he is sure he may find a pair. He is constantly buying new pairs of glasses, and he pleads guilty to having 60 pairs either at the theater or at home.

MEXICO'S WHITE INDIANS.

Peace Loving Munchies Live Just Over the Line From Arizona.

So accustomed are we to associating Indians with dark complexion that the words "white Indians" seem almost like a contradiction in terms.

Nevertheless in the valley of the Sierra de los Nimbros, a chain of the Rocky mountains, R. K. Montmorency, an English anthologist, has discovered a tribe of Indians whose skins are if anything a trifle fairer than those of Europeans and whose forms are equally graceful.

The only title of the Munchies to the name of Indians is the fact that they are aborigines. Their home is near the United States boundary, just south of Arizona, in the Mexican province of Sonora.

The tribe comprises about 600 men and women. The part of the country in which they dwell is surrounded by lofty mountains, being well watered and very fertile, although not very large.

They engage mostly in agricultural pursuits, raising sufficient cattle, horses and sheep to answer their own needs, and they enjoy many of the comforts and luxuries of civilized life.

The government of these white Indians is after the patriarchal order, the old men of the tribe exercising supreme control both in the enactment and in the enforcement of the laws. The laws are made by a concurrent majority of the seniors in council, all the males over 17 being allowed to vote, and are of a very simple character.

The seniors in like manner act both as judges and jury, first finding the verdict and then prescribing the punishment.

In religion and morals they differ but little from other Indians, although the love of war does not exist among this tribe. In fact, so averse are they to bloodshed that they submit to the hostile incursions of surrounding nations without offering the slightest resistance. They believe that "discretion is the best part of valor" and invariably retreat, with their cattle, sheep, horses and other valuables, to the mountain caverns whenever an enemy appears.

Just how this tribe of white Indians originated is a problem which it is hard to solve, owing to the fact that they themselves have lost all knowledge of their origin and have not even any traditions as to it.

Nevertheless the Munchies of the present time are Indians and what is more probably bear the proud distinction of being the only tribe of white Indians on the face of the globe.

How Knights Are Made.

The ceremony of investiture is an exceedingly quaint one. In most cases the order followed was identical; therefore that of a knight commander of the Order of the Bath may be taken as typical. On being admitted into the royal presence the knight commander to be invested made reverence to the king by bowing three times—once on entering the throneroom, another in the middle and again on approaching his majesty. He then knelt on his right knee. In conferring the honor of knighthood the king placed a sword on both the candidate's shoulders. The knight, for by that time he had become such, raised his right arm horizontally, and his majesty placed his hand on the knight's wrist, who then raised it to his lips. While the knight still remained kneeling the king proceeded to his investiture by placing the ribbon and badge of the order round his neck and afterward presented his hand to the knight, who kissed it. The ceremony being concluded, the knight would rise and, retiring, make similar reverence as that with which he was admitted.—London News.

A Perfect Laxative.

A laxative is one of the most necessary medical agents. Most every ailment is either caused by or causes a clogged condition of the bowels. This fact has caused the placing on the market of hundreds of laxative medicines. Many of these preparations will do what is claimed—move the bowels. But they are in the end more harmful than good. Their action is harsh and accompanied by such pain that they leave the stomach so inflamed and enfeebled that it immediately goes back to its constipated condition, but naturally much worse than previously.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is a laxative—but it is more, too. It does not act only by moving the bowels gently, safely and surely but it refreshes and strengthens the stomach, fitting it for its work. It tones up the digestive organs and purifies the blood. It will do this for the most stubborn case of chronic constipation.

TWO FRIENDS.

I honor him who needs must chop the stone,
Must pluck the root up, murder beast and bird,
Then label with a very butcher's word
The bleeding pieces. Though he build his throne
On brittle stalks and hollow carcass bone,
Still by a princely purpose is he stirred,
And such his thirst for knowledge long deferred,
Kind Nature counts him in among her own.
But him I love the muses make their care,
Leading his feet wherever he may go,
To spell the gentle magic of the air,
Of golden boughs and darkest brooks that flow.
He has my heart, for perfect things and fair
He finds and leaves them fairer than they grow.
—John Vance Cheney in Harper's Magazine.

THE NOVELIST AND AN EPISODE

It was a perfect spring afternoon, and a little party of three, mounted on mules, were plodding along the track that leads from Cape Spartel to Tangier.

Grierson, the novelist, allowed the reins to drop round his animal's neck and proceeded to roll a cigarette. By his side rode an upright, elderly man with close cropped hair and a keen face, and the third member of the party, a young girl of about 20, was some 50 yards ahead.

"It has been a first class sort of day," observed the elder man. "Celia and I owe you a debt of gratitude for having looked after us this week in Tangier."

"The luck has been on my side," returned Grierson, with a laugh. "You see, I came over here from Gibraltar as a certain young person's society was exercising a depressing influence on me."

"Did she bore you?" asked Ardell.

"The reverse. She has charmed me more than any other girl for a longer period than I like to think. The point is that her parents insist on her having nothing to do with me, which at least shows they are not wanting in good sound common sense."

Ardell laughed and gazed contemplatively on the surrounding stretch of country.

"I could put in another month here well, but I'm afraid it would hardly suit Celia," he said, with a nod toward the trim figure riding in front of them.

"Is she in a huge hurry to see England?" asked Grierson. He knew a little of his companion's history. He was a wealthy Australian sheep farmer who had lately sold his run and determined on a visit to England.

"Not so much that, but eagerness to meet the man."

The novelist opened his eyes.

"Oh, is she in love too?" he said, with a sigh.

"Yes; I had a young Englishman on the farm as manager. He was with us about five years, a decent sort of fellow, a gentleman by birth. You meet a good many of that sort up and down the runs in the bush," said Ardell. "Eventually he fell in love with Celia and asked my consent. I liked the chap and gave it. Then one day there came a letter telling him there had been a big snap in his family chain and that he had stepped into an estate and money in England."

"I know," nodded the novelist. "I've used him in a good many of my books. So he went, and you are following?" he added, with a smile.

"Yes; he said he would return and fetch Celia when things were settled up a bit. But shortly after he had gone I suddenly took it into my head that I had done about enough work for one man's life, so sold the farm and brought the girl away on this trip," Ardel laughed. "It'll be somewhat of a surprise to him. You see, there wasn't time to write, so he doesn't know we're coming."

"I thought I'd just like to congratulate you," he began.

A touch of color flew to the girl's cheeks, and her eyes glistened. She made a wonderfully pretty picture, he thought.

"Are you interested in love affairs?" she asked, with a smile.

"My dear young lady, I've been vainly trying to invent a new one ever since I first began to write!" he exclaimed. Then his tone changed. "Now, please tell me all about him—is he as near perfection as a mere man can be?"

"I don't know about Archie being that," she answered, with a laugh, "but he is the man I love, and nothing else matters much, does it?"

"Absolutely nothing. But I wish your opinion was more universal," he added, with a sigh, as he thought of the young person in the party he had left at Gibraltar.

An idea seemed to strike him, for a quick light came into his eyes.

"Does Archie"— he began, then paused. "By the way, I hardly like referring to him as Archie. It seems so horribly familiar. What is his other name?"

"Trevor—Archibald Errington Trevor," she said, with a laugh.

"I've been trying to get alongside of you for five minutes!" cried Mr. Ardell's voice from behind. "Do, for goodness' sake, rein in your thoroughbred for a moment, Celia!"

The girl, with a laugh, turned round to him and waited. Grierson rode on and kept a little ahead of the others for the rest of the way. His face was unusually grave, and he seemed buried in thought.

They reached the town, and, wishing to do some shopping, he separated from his companions. When at length he also arrived at the hotel, he caught sight of a tall, good looking young man standing in the hall. He was chatting to a girl at his side. Grierson gave a start, then hurried toward them.

"This is very absurd!" he exclaimed as he shook hands with the girl. "I left you to go on to Seville and Madrid, not to follow me here."

Lady Constance laughed.

"We started, but father was so terribly anxious to get a glimpse of Morocco that at length we had to give in—so here we are."

She moved toward the staircase.

"Mother was a little upset with the crossing. I am just going to see how she is getting along; then I will return," she said, with a little smiling nod of farewell.

Grierson watched her disappear, turned to the young man and, linking his arm within his, drew him to an alcove in which there was a seat.

"You know, it's really too bad of you to bother me in this way," he said reproachfully. "But there's no alternative. I feel bound to tell you what an awful scoundrel I think you!"

His companion looked at him in wonder.

"What on earth has happened, Grierson?" he cried.

The novelist opened his mouth to speak, but paused as he caught sight of a light figure tripping down the staircase. He gripped the younger man's arm and nodded in her direction. The girl—it was Celia Ardell—crossed the hall some three yards in front of them and entered a drawing room without seeing them.

Trevor breathed heavily. He did not speak. His eyes were fastened on the door through which Celia had vanished.

"Sufficient explanation, eh?" said Grierson. "A month or so after you left the farm old Mr. Ardell sold out and decided to bring Celia to you. They halted for a week here, and that dearest of little girls is actually counting the hours that will bring her to the man who stole her love and who in return"—

Trevor winced.

"Yes," he broke in; "I've been an awful scoundrel. I hardly know how it happened. I left her feeling she was all the world to me. Then, the new life in England, with money, troops of new friends, new faces—I somehow seemed to forget, and"— he paused— "I thought she might forget also!" he continued lamely. "I know it was playing it horribly low down." He looked up at Grierson anxiously. "Do you think it will matter so very much to her?"

"Oh, no!" retorted the novelist airily. "She has only lavished on you every scrap of love she has to give, and finding you are not worth it will only break her heart. But that's a mere trifle and not worth considering. You will be able to marry Lady Constance and boast a wife with a title."

Young Trevor rose to his feet. He was very white.

"What do you think you will do?" continued the novelist. "You see, if you happen to have actually proposed to Lady Constance"—

"I haven't!" put in the other man shortly.

A slight gleam came into Grierson's eyes as he watched his companion.

Suddenly Trevor swung round on him.

"Going to play the man?" said the novelist quietly.

Trevor nodded and walked sharply toward the door of the room in which the girl was. Grierson came after him at a run and laid a hand on his sleeve.

"One moment, Archie!" he said rapidly. "Lady Constance—you thought her pretty, bright, intelligent. You had money, she a title. Head turned a little?" He paused. "But it wasn't love, not love, Archie?"

"No, not love," he said decidedly. Then he opened the door and strode in.

Grierson walked along the corridor to the billiard room in a thoughtful frame of mind. He glanced in and saw it was empty. A second or so afterward Lady Constance approached him.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "Come along in here! I want you to listen while I talk!"

"I have been doing that off and on for some years," she said, with a smile.

"Yes; but this time I shall be very interesting. I can't remember anything I've so wanted to tell you."

They seated themselves on a lounge.

"Are you ready?" he began.

She nodded.

"Very well; listen to this: Archie Trevor will never have the exquisite honor of becoming your husband!" he said dramatically.

He was watching her narrowly. He saw a slight touch of color pass over her cheeks, but there was a smiling look in the eyes still. He was satisfied.

The bantering tone dropped from his voice, and he told the story to her quietly. She listened intently and at the conclusion indicated the direction of the drawing room with a little excited gesture.

"And she's just deliriously happy," he said, with a nod. He turned round to her. "Are you glad?"

"Yes," she answered softly. "Very glad he played the man."

Grierson jumped up from his seat and stood in front of her. His face had lighted up again, and there was a humorous twinkle in his eyes.

"Don't you see?" he cried. "Now that you cannot marry the man your parents picked for you, obviously the only thing you can do is to marry the man you would choose for yourself."

"But I haven't chosen," she protested.

"Ah, but you would if you dared!" he exclaimed. "Just forget you're a lady of title, forget the desirability of marrying a man of immense wealth, strike out a line for yourself and marry the man who has adored you for ten years. It will mean a bit of a tussle with the parents, but think how furious the fun will be."

She looked up at him doubtfully.

"Yes; I'm serious in just one thing," he said pleadingly.

Archie Trevor's voice was heard from the other end of the hall.

"Grierson!" he was crying. "I want you, old chap!"

The novelist turned excitedly to Lady Constance.

"There! You can tell from his voice that he's happy. Think of the embarrassment it would save you, tedious explanations, too," he raced on. "And, besides, I'm not really poor! My last book was so utterly bad that it ran into 20 editions, and dramatized versions are being played everywhere—packed houses in Scandinavia last week. I'm stupidly rich!"

"Come along!" cried Archie's voice impatiently.

Lady Constance slowly raised her head and met his imploring gaze. She was smiling, and the blood went tumbling through his veins.

"What's the matter?" The voice was coming nearer.

"I'm engaged," said the novelist laconically.—Mainly About People.

On Death and Burial.

Be not solicitous after pomp at my burial nor use any expensive funeral ceremony.

That man were better forgotten who had nothing of greater moment to register his name by than a grave.

Neither can I apprehend a tombstone to add so great a weight of glory to the dead as it doth of charge and trouble to the living.

Unquietness importunes a living body more than a ceremony can advantage one that is dead.

Death, if be may be guessed at by his elder brother, Sleep, cannot be so terrible a messenger, being not without much ease, if not some voluptuousness. Besides, nothing in this world is worth coming from the house top to fetch it, much less from the deep grave, furnished with all things because empty of desires.—Francis Osborne (1593-1658).

IT'S CHILD'S PLAY

To treat a woman for a disease year after year and give her no permanent relief. Yet that has been the case with scores of women who have "doctored" for year after year unhelped and unhealed, to find at last that a few bottles of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Preacription would have saved years of suffering and a great deal of money.

For the regulation of the periods, the stopping of disagreeable drains, the healing of inflammation and ulceration, and the cure of female weakness, there is no medicine can equal Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"About five years ago I had very poor health," writes Mrs. S. E. Whalen, of Holden, Johnson Co., Missouri. "After doctoring four years with our town doctors they gave my case up; said they had done all they could. I had been confined to my bed half my time; the other half could hardly drag around. I had such pains in my back and abdomen I could not stand for more than a few minutes. My feet were cold or burning, and my periods came too often. The doctors said it was change of life, so, as I had heard of Dr. Pierce's medicines, my husband got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' I took it and it helped me in some ways, so I wrote to you and followed your advice. I commenced 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Pellets,' as I was so constipated all the time and pills would weaken me so that I would have to go to bed. To the great surprise of everybody I got well, and when I met my friends they would say, 'We never thought you would be here now.' But I can say it was your medicine, which no doubt is the best in the world. Have had no use for doctors since I tried your medicine."

BRIDGENORTH.

A heavy rain passed over this vicinity on Sunday and Monday. The rain fell so heavily that it prevented the cottagers from attending church, which is held every Sunday in the Pavilion.

Mr. G. Jopling is at present overhauling the new part of the old bridge. The bridge is at present closed for traffic, excepting on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The merry-go-round is at present on a visit to the park, and is doing an immense business. Come along and enjoy a pleasant ride, everything being safe, as Mr. N. G Bell. is employed as engineer.

Messrs. Bogue and McDermid intend finishing their contract on the bridge some time in September.

A young man who escaped from Armenia during the massacre preached at the Bridgenorth Methodist church on Sunday evening. He relates some very pitiful incidents during his career, which proved most interesting. He and his cousin intend holding a concert on Wednesday evening, which will no doubt prove a grand success.

The Royal Arcanums have started a subordinate Lodge here at their organization meeting last Friday evening.

Mr. W. B. Kelly's family are again occupying their cottage on the Island along with some of their intimate friends.

On Monday last Mr. Frederick Jopling was crossing the bridge on horse back, in great haste. The horse stumbled and fell headlong into the lake, under the railing. Frederick followed suit. The result did not prove fatal, and he is again able to be at his usual work.

NORTH SMITH.

Sunday, July 21st, was a red letter day in the history of the North Smith Methodist Church. Fifty-three persons were received into full membership as a result of Rev. Mr. Jenkins' services last March; 98 per cent. that came forward after professing conversion have proved faithful to the vows then made.

Rev. J. S. Jenkins occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church here last Sunday to the satisfaction of all present, and took for his text, 1st Cor. 1st chap., and 21st verse, "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

The Largest Sponge.

The largest sponge ever found came from the Mediterranean. It was about three feet across and ten feet in circumference.

Green Tea.

Green, or gunpowder, tea is colored by a mixture of prussian blue and Chinese soapstone, which is added during the process of firing.

Abyssinia.

Abyssinia was converted to Christianity in the fourth century. The country has now over 12,000 monks.

The Dolphin.

The dolphin, a near relative of the whale, is credited with a speed of considerably over 20 miles an hour. For short distances the salmon can outstrip any other fish, accomplishing its 25 miles an hour with ease. The Spanish mackerel is one of the fastest of food fishes and cuts the water like a yacht. Predatory fish are generally the fastest swimmers.

India's Plants.

India has a greater variety of plants than any other country in the world.

Greeted With Tea.

In Japan it would be thought as rude to neglect to offer tea to a visitor on his arrival as not to speak to him.

Longest News Item.

The Chicago Tribune had the entire New Testament, as revised, telegraphed to it on May 22, 1882. It was the longest item of news ever wired to a newspaper. It was sent from New York, and the issue of The Tribune comprised 20 pages, of which 16 were occupied by the New Testament. The message was made up of some 132,000 words, or 963,000 letters.

Keeps Away Gout.

Gout is rarely known among the working classes of Ireland. Their immunity from this complaint is thought to be due to the fact that their food consists largely of potatoes.

Planting.

All things that grow out of the ground, such as peas, corn and the like, must be planted in the increase of the moon, from new to full; all things that mature in the ground, like potatoes, must be planted in the decrease or waste of the moon, from full to new.

BOER GUN CAPTURED

Sharp Fight With General Viljoen's Command.

ALL DAY FIGHT NEAR NQUTA.

Gun Saved Under a Heavy Boer Fire—Taken at a Gallop for Three Miles—Four Hundred Boers Repeatedly Charged the British—Aid for the South African Colonies.

London, July 31.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Kitchener:

"Gen. F. W. Kitchener, after a long chase of Gen. Viljoens' commando caught up with it. A sharp fight ensued. We captured a pom-pom and 22 wagons, and took 32 prisoners. The British had five wounded."

A Hard All-Day Fight.

London, July 31.—Details received here of what at first seemed an ordinary skirmish between a British column and a Boer commando near Nquta, July 28, show that a hard, all-day fight occurred, in which the British narrowly escaped the loss of a gun of the 67th Field Battery. Four hundred Boers repeatedly rushed the British position, killing Major Edwards and Gunner Carpenter. The gun was limbered up and taken at a gallop for three miles under heavy fire. Five British were killed.

Aid for Colonies.

London, July 31.—The supplementary civil service estimate asks for £7,013,910, of which £6,500,000 is required by the Colonial Office, as a grant in aid of the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. Three millions of this will be considered an advance to the colonies, to be repaid out of the first loans issued by them.

Peace Negotiations.

The Hague, July 31.—There is strong evidence that negotiations looking to the ending of the Boer war are progressing.

Doctor Kuyper, the new Premier, is actively working on the matter, and it is reported here that Sydney Hollis, an American who recently arrived here with a project of building a temple to commemorate the peace conference, was actually sent from Washington at Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's instigation to represent England in the negotiations.

Boston for Reciprocity.

Boston, July 31.—The subject of reciprocity with Canada came before the Board of Directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting yesterday. The Secretary of the Chamber, Mr. Preston, was directed to take steps to place in tangible form by petitions and otherwise, the desires of the business men of the different cities and manufacturing towns of Massachusetts for such legislation as will facilitate the exchange of commodities with the Dominion of Canada.

EMPRESS FREDERICK DYING.

At a Late Hour Her Condition Was Reported Very Serious

Homburg, July 31.—At a late hour last night, the condition of the Dowager Empress Frederick was reported to be very serious.

As a result of the visit of Professor Renvers from Berlin Monday night, it was officially announced that her condition was not satisfactory.

A Belwood Man Drowned.

Guelph, July 31.—George Jupp of Belwood was drowned Monday night in the Grand River at Blyth, and his body swept over Richardson's dam. He went swimming with his brother, Alfred Jupp, J. B. Williamson of Guelph, and Alfred Macdonald of Belwood, the river running high and the amount of water going over the dam being equal to a spring freshet. The men swam up to the fall and were caught by the intake of water, Jupp being unable to sustain himself against the current. Williamson and Alfred Jupp swam out to him, the former reaching him, but the two men locked arms and were being carried over the fall. Williamson floated head downwards to the gravel ledge, where he was pulled out unconscious, and was only resuscitated after half an hour's efforts. Jupp's body went over the fall and was not recovered until 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Deceased was about 30 years of age.

O'Shea Suspended.

London, July 31. — James J. O'Shea, the Nationalist member for West Waterford, was suspended in the House of Commons yesterday for disorderly conduct, in applying the term "judicial blackguardism" to the conduct of Baron O'Brien, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, in charging the jury at the recent trial of Mr. Walsh, chairman of the Waterford County Council, on charges of conspiracy at Cork. Mr. Walsh is connected with the United Irish League, and the latter boycotted a man who rented a farm from which the previous tenant had been evicted. The charge of conspiracy arose yesterday morning. The Nationalists contend that Baron O'Brien concluded the case in an extremely partisan way.

Preston, Inspector of European Agencies, London, that from 20,000 to 25,000 farm laborers are wanted to harvest the crops of Western Canada. The work will last from August until November, at from $2.25 to $2.50 per day. Mr. Pedley has also caused advertisements to be inserted in United States papers, promising employment to farm laborers.

Egan a Galt Boy.

Galt, July 31.—Daniel Egan, the president of the new $15,000,000 steel trust, was born in Galt, and received his education in the Central and Grammar Schools. Forty years ago he left here and went to Guelph, but eventually located in Pennsylvania, where he identified himself with the iron and steel industry. Mr. Egan is a well-preserved man of about 60 years, with a big brain and equally large heart.

De Witte to Berlin.

London, July 31.—A St. Petersburg despatch to The Pall Mall Gazette says M. De Witte, the Minister of Finance, will shortly go to Berlin to negotiate with German financiers in regard to electric tramways and other municipal enterprises in Russia. While in Berlin M. De Witte will probably confer with Count Von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor. Afterward he will visit London.

FIT FOR STYLE

Style is distinct from fit, inasmuch as a garment may be fitting the figure clean and smooth everywhere, and yet be quite featureless and devoid of style.

Style is what may be termed the beauty of outline in the run of the different seams and harmonious arrangement of parts pleasing to the eye.

MR. WILSON ARRESTED

He Is Charged by Mr. Montgomery with Criminal Libel.

STEEL STRIKE NOT SETTLED YET

President Shaffer and His Board Still Discussing Terms—Nothing Can Be Learned About Their Deliberations—The San Francisco Strike—Coal on Hand Will Not Last Over Two Weeks.

Montreal, Agg. 1.—J. T. Wilson, president of the railway trackmen, and Joseph Leman, chairman of the committee, and A. F. Stout, secretary, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Choquet on a charge of criminal libel against R. C. Montgomery, assistant roadmaster of the C.P.R. They pleaded not guilty, and $200 cash was accepted as temporary security for their appearance today. M. G. V. Mitchell represented the prosecution.

Shaughnessy Was Not Interviewed.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—A telegraphic report sent out Tuesday of an interview with President Shaughnessy of the Canadian Pacific about the trackmen's strike, in which he was alleged to have replied when asked about arbitration, that he would prefer to take time to consider before giving an answer, is declared by Mr. Shaughnessy to be absolutely without foundation. He was not interviewed, and he had no conversation on the subject of the strike with anybody.

Still Expect to Win.

Toronto, Aug. 1. — Yesterday brought no new developments in the situation of the C. P. R. trackmen's strike. The men are holding out, according to reports, and still expect to win. The officials of the line continue to claim that the strike is over.

Trackmen Charged.

Fredericton, Aug. 1.—Thomas Kennedy and Howard Appleby, two C. P. R. trackmen, charged with impeding traffic, and maintenance of the road on June 25, were yesterday committed for trial and admitted to bail in $600 each. The case arises out of the C.P.R. strike.

STILL DISCUSSING TERMS.

President Shaffer and Amalgamated Association Board Again Adjourn.

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—Newspaper men, in their endeavor to get news concerning the progress of the conference of the Amalgamated Association on the steel strike, spent a weary day on the sidewalks around the headquarters, orders having been issued that reporters should not be admitted during sessions of the board.

The conditions of affairs last night may be summed up in this paragraph: The Steel Workers' strike against the United States Steel Corporation is still unsettled. The status of the contest is unchanged, the men are fighting for every advantage, while the companies involved are strengthening their position as much as possible. The conference of the members of the general Executive Board of the Amalgamated Association, which was expected to settle the trouble one way or the other yesterday, adjourned at 6 o'clock last night without accomplishing its purpose.

The conference will meet again at 10 o'clock this morning.

The San Francisco Strike.

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—No hope is held out for a speedy settlement of the teamsters' strike. The steamship companies will, if necessary, bring men to San Francisco from other points in the United States. Arriving vessels yesterday were deserted by their crews, and the drivers for the Pacific Transfer Co. and the sand teamsters were all ordered out, which will put a stop to building operations throughout the city. It is said there is not enough coal in the city to meet the demand longer than two weeks, but the city front federation have granted permission to a number of teams to haul coal into the lighthouse tender, and also to the charitable institutions and hospitals. There are scores of vessels in the harbor awaiting their cargoes.

STRIKE NEWS IS DULL.

S. M. Adamson Offers to Pay Arbitration Costs if He Loses.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—S. M. Adamson of the Adamson Moulding Company is willing to submit to arbitration in the settlement of his strike. In his letter to President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, he asks that a prominent lawyer here be selected, before whom shall be placed both sides of the story. If the men win, Mr. Adamson will pay the costs, and, if they lose, he expects the strikers to do the same.

It is claimed that the striking brass moulders are returning to their work in the James Morrison Brass Works. Mr. Morrison thinks that the strike in his shop will be over by the end of the week. In the other shops, the men are still out.

London, Aug. 1.—In the House of Commons yesterday, proposing a resolution granting Field Marshal Earl Roberts £100,000 for his services in South Africa (in accordance with the recommendation of King Edward, announced in the House of Lords by the Premier, Lord Salisbury, Monday last), A. J. Balfour, the Government leader, in the course of an eulogy of the Field Marshal, whom he compared with such men as Collingwood, Nelson, Marlborough and Wellington, said there was no doubt but that for Lord Roberts' daring and strategy and the rapidity with which his plans were carried out, Kimberley and Mafeking would have fallen, 11,000 British would have been starved into submission at Ladysmith, and there would have been a general rising of disloyalists in South Africa. Great Britain might have recovered therefrom, but at what a cost? The country was saved from this by the genius of the man he now invited the House to reward by a unanimous vote, irrespective of political differences.

The statement called forth protests from the Irish members.

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, concurred in the motion.

John Dillon, Irish Nationalist, strongly opposed the vote. He protested against mentioning Lord Roberts in association with such a man as Marlborough. He declared Lord Roberts had shown the greatest inhumanity in South Africa, and said he had employed barbarous methods and had proved himself a dismal failure.

Mr. Labouchere, Radical, protested against granting gratuities to military men while nothing was given to civilians who were doing something for the benefit of their country.

Mr. Keir-Hardie, Socialist and Independent Labor, took a similar view. He declared that in the opinion of experts at home and abroad Lord Roberts' failure primarily was responsible for the continuance of the war.

Mr. Swift McNeill, Irish Nationalist, said he considered Lord Roberts' operations were conducted with a maximum of cruelty and a minimum of humanity, and that his farewell speech at Cape Town was horrible hypocrisy and blasphemy.

After further debate for and against the measure, Mr. Balfour moved the closure, which was carried by 257 to 108 votes. The resolution was afterwards adopted by a vote of 281 to 73.

ROUNDING UP THE BOERS.

Kitchener Reports Twenty-Four Killed in One Week.

London, Aug. 1.—Lord Kitchener telegraphs the War Office that, between July 22 and 29, twenty-four Boers were killed, twenty-five wounded, 233 taken prisoners and eighty surrendered. The British also captured 184 rifles, 10,850 rounds of small ammunition, 205 wagons and 2,700 horses.

How Boers Get News.

London, Aug. 1.—How Boers in the field get news is explained by despatches to The Daily Mail from Lorenzo Marquez and Amsterdam, from which it appears that the Boers maintain a regular service of despatch riders. Cables are received and filed at Lorenzo Marquez.

Mr. Kruger is Feeble.

The Hague, Aug. 1.—The interview yesterday between Robert H. Van Schaack, treasurer of the Holland Society of Chicago, and Mr. Kruger, was most cordial.

When Mr. Van Schaack announced that he was the bearer of the society's invitation to Mr. Kruger to be their guest, assuring Mr. Kruger of the high esteem in which he was held in the United States as a grand old patriot, whose noble devotion to the cause of liberty recalled the devotion of the Prince of Orange; Mr. Kruger was visibly affected.

He said he well knew he had many warm friends in America, whom he would like to thank. Mr. Kruger presented Mr. Van Schaack with his photograph and autograph. The great Boer statesman seemed to be feeble and depressed with grief.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The St. John Sun sees the end of Tory domination through the Senate in the near future, and remarks that "it is at least certain that the Senate will be a more interesting chamber now that it is about evenly divided between parties." Perhaps no severer comment could be made on the system than to call attention to the fact that in the face of an immense majority in both House and country the Tories have for five years been able to rule through the Senate.

It is understood that a subscription list is now under preparation for the purpose of providing a fund to defray the expense of prospecting for natural gas or oil in Port Hope and vicinity. Strong indications of the presence of these products are said to exist, and the geological conditions of the neighbourhood are thought to be so favourable that it has been decided to make the experiment of boring a test well. A number of Port Hope citizens are interesting themselves in the matter and operations will probably begin about Sept. 1st.

The Opposition is arranging for a series of campaign meetings to be held in September. Mr. Whitney meantime is doubtless engaged in digesting the following rather bitter pill in the form of an editorial in that somewhat notorious sheet which is called the Tory:

"But before the present leaders can expect any large degree of support financially or otherwise from the rank and file of the party in Ontario, they must give some greater evidence than they have shown up to the present time that they possess the energy, the intelligence and the vitality to carry the province in the face of the powerful influences opposed to them."

His friends recognize what Mr. Whitney has thus far apparently failed to see, viz., that he is up against a bigger contract than he is able to execute.

Certain experts have recently been sent to Great Britain from the United States for the purpose of examining the parks there in order to learn the method of producing their singular beauty in verdure. There is a story told of some Americans visiting Oxford, the university lawns of which are noted for their well kept condition. Being struck with the brilliant green they asked the gardener how it was produced. "Oh," was the reply, "merely watering, mowing and rolling regularly for three or four hundred years." The experts referred to seemed to have learned a similar lesson, for they report that the Washington people will have to wait about two centuries for some of the beauties the British parks possess. So the conclusion seems to be that a state of nature should be maintained as far as possible, and no attempt made to produce the impossible. And the recommendation is sound. In Canada the same advice may with advantage when practicable be taken.

One of the quaint features of the coming coronation ceremony in England will be the appearance of the King's Champion. The present Champion is a stout young Lincolnshire farmer named Dymoke. He is of a studious and retiring disposition, little given to the gayeties of the great world. It is said that he is somewhat exercised over the necessity of fulfilling the duties of his office. This is to ride out of the hall where the banquet is held after the coronation, clad in steel armour, and challenge all comers to deny the title of the new sovereign. He then pledges the King in the golden goblet filled with wine, finally hacking his horse from the royal presence. Young Dymoke possesses this honour by virtue of holding the manor of Scrivelsby, which his ancestors have held since the time of the Norman Kings. It is worth recording that at the coronation of King George III., only 140 years ago, when the Dymoke of that day rode along Westminster Hall, and cast down his glove as a challenge to anyone to contest the King's right to the throne of England, somebody slipped out from the crowd, picked the glove up, and disappeared with it. One version of the story is that the glove was picked up by a woman, but the most popular version was that it was snatched up by Charles Edward Stuart, the "Bonnie Prince Charlie," the young Pretender. Neither version of the story can be verified now, but those who believe in making history read like romance still adhere to the version that the glove was taken up by the "Bonnie Prince Charlie" himself, and that the taking of it up was the last public protest made on behalf of the House of Stuart.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn.; U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

GENEROUS AID GIVEN

Relief by Ontario Government for Temiscaming Sufferers.

$1,200 TO RELIEVE THE DISTRESS

$500 for the Purchase of Clover and Timothy Seed—$300 Towards the Cost of Rebuilding the Kerns School—The Settlers Facing Difficulties of Their Position Courageously.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—It will be remembered that immediately upon the receipt of news of the recent disastrous bush fires in the newly-settled Townships of Temiscaming district, Hon. E. J. Davis, Commissioner of Crown Lands, instructed Mr. Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization, to proceed to the locality and investigate the condition of the settlers.

Generous Government Grant.

Mr. Davis, who returned to the city on Monday evening, immediately took the report of the Director of Colonization into consideration, and the Government has acted promptly. It is understood that a grant of $1,200 will be made at once, the money to be placed in the hands of the local committee, to be applied in relieving the distress.

A very large area of land has been burnt over, the destruction of timber and underbrush being most complete, and this will, in one respect, be of advantage, as it will facilitate greatly the work of clearing and cultivating the land.

Grant to Purchase Seed.

There is the difficulty, however, that the ravages of the fire have cleaned the timber off a much larger area of land than the settlers can possibly bring under cultivation before the second growth of timber and underbrush will spring up. The Government has decided to grant a further sum of $500 to be expended in the purchase of timothy and clover seed, so that the settlers can sow the seed upon such portions of their locations as have been burnt over, but which they are unable to break up and cultivate for other crops at present. This will, it is thought, serve the double purpose of keeping down the second growth of timber and underbrush and at the same time furnish a first-class pasturage and hay crop.

Aid to Rebuild School.

The Township of Kerns has been an especially heavy sufferer by the fire. This township was very closely settled and the people were making rapid progress. They had recently completed a substantial schoolhouse and equipped it at a cost of upwards of $600. With energetic thrift and industry they had raised a considerable amount of the cost, the total outstanding liability being only $225. There was no insurance and the building and contents were entirely lost. The Commissioner of Crown Lands has advised his colleagues to make a grant of $300 for the purpose of aiding the township to erect another schoolhouse.

Recent reports from the district indicate that the settlers are facing the difficulty of their position courageously, and with commendable spirit are vigorously working to repair their fortunes. It is thought that the above grants are all that will be necessary, as far as can be seen at present, to tide them over, with what they will be able to earn of the amount to be expended in the construction of colonization roads.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST

To Hay Fever Sufferers.

Sufferers from hay fever and summer catarrh will be interested to learn that there is a new, simple, inexpensive, but effective home treatment for this obstinate and baffling disease, and that a little booklet fully describing the treatment will be mailed free to anyone by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

Doubtless this statement of a cure and positive preventive of hay fever will be received with skepticism by the thousands who have found the only relief every year was a change of climate during the summer months.

But whether skeptical or not, it will cost nothing to investigate this new treatment. Simply send name and address on a postal card to F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., for the booklet, which besides describing the treatment contains a concise treatise on the cause and character of this peculiar disease.

REVOLT IN VENEZUELA.

President Castro Menaced By Uribe With a Colombian Army of 15,000 Men—The Revolution's Backers.

Willemstadt, Island of Curacao, Aug. 1.—Dr. Rangel Gardiras, at the head of 5,000 men, has revolted against President Castro of Venezuela. The insurgents are near San Antonio De Tachira on the Colombian frontier. The Venezuelan Government has sent 10,000 troops to the scene of the uprising. The situation is grave. Other outbreaks are expected. The whole country is ready to rise against the arbitrary methods of President Castro. Constitutional guarantees have been suspended and complications with Colombia are feared.

Martial law has been declared in Venezuela by the President, owing to the invasion of a revolutionary force from Colombia. It is reported that an army of 10,000 men will meet the invaders.

Uribe Has 15,000 Men.

New York, Aug. 1.—Agents of the Colombian insurgent-general, Raphael Uribe Uribe, assert, that Uribe is at the head of a revolutionary force of 15,000, and that $200,000 was collected in this country, from Free Masons to prosecute the war against the Conservative Government, which is unalterably antagonistic to the order and all others opposed by the church. General Uribe left New York on June 15, and, though his movements were closely watched by detectives, it was three weeks before it was discovered that he had left the country. This new outbreak was planned on a gigantic scale. Besides the 15,000 Mausers bought for it, there have been sent from the nearby distributing points 2,000,000 cartridges, three rapid-fire guns and a quantity of other war material.

Uribe is a high Mason, and Colombia, because of its domination by the church, is a bitter enemy of Masonry. When this was learned here, General Uribe was deluged with offers of assistance.

United Empire Trade League.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—A letter received from London, Eng., from Sir Howard Vincent, founder and hon. secretary of the United Empire Trade League, declares emphatically that the division in the British Commons on June 20 upon preferential trade was a farce, and did not represent the tide of popular feeling in favor of adequate reciprocity towards Canadian products.

He adds: "Let there be no misapprehension. The great cause is as fresh as ever, although it may have received a momentary check."

The letter also pays a tribute to Mr. A. McNeill, ex-M. P., for North Bruce, for the work he has done in Canada on behalf of preferential trade.

K. of P. Indicted.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Indictments, charging perjury were returned by the grand jury against John A. Hinsey, former president of the Endowment Bank, Knights of Pythias, and against Henry B. Stolte, former secretary of the Endowment Bank. The perjury charged is alleged to lie in statements made in annual reports of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, from 1898 to 1899, which defendants, as officers of the lodge, made to the Insurance Department of Illinois.

Advertising War On.

London, Aug. 1.—America's advertising methods are about to precipitate a struggle between retail merchants and the big newspapers of London. The merchants want to adopt striking typographic displays, and the newspapers refuse to lend their columns to any such innovation. Bent on breaking this rule the smaller advertisers have formed what they call the "Advertisers' Protective Association," and are enrolling members as rapidly as possible.

PAPER COMMISSION CLOSED.

Admission Made By Solicitor White That Combine Exists.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—The paper combine commission closed its sittings here yesterday morning after the argument of the paper manufacturers had been made by W. J. White, K. C. Mr. White admitted that a combine existed, but it was a perfectly legal one. The consensus of opinion in legal circles yesterday morning was that Aylesworth's strong argument for the newspapers gave the defence very little to stand upon. Justic Taschereau will now report to the Government.

Toronto Man Suicides.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 1.—H. C. Sheffield of Toronto committed suicide at an early hour yesterday morning in the Windsor Hotel by shooting himself through the head.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Enquiries made from residents of Gwynne avenue indicate that Sheffield, the Niagara Falls suicide, was about 45 years of age, and until two years ago was employed by the C.P.R. It is understood he lost his position through drink, and since that time has been connected with various enterprises. He is survived by a wife and two daughters.

James Brierly, Sen., Dead.

London, Aug. 1.—James Brierly, sr., died yesterday morning at his home in West London in his 87th year. Mr. Brierly came to this city between 40 and 50 years ago. He leaves a widow, two daughters and one son, James Brierly, managing director of The Montreal Herald.

Charged With Perjury.

London, Aug. 1.—The sequel to the Belmone arson case, in which Daniel Smith was charged with attempting to fire the residence of Squire Nugent, will be heard in Squire Lacey's court to-day. Smith has sworn out information charging Nugent with perjury, the alleged offence being that he was possessed of property qualification to serve as a magistrate when in reality he does not possess any property.

Austria Gets Ready for War.

London, Aug. 1.—A despatch to The Pall Mall Gazette from Buda Pest says:

"In consequence of the agitation in Albania, Austria has ordered every garrison in Bosnia and Herzegovina to be immediately placed on a war footing. Additional regiments leave Vienna this week for Serajevo and Banjaluka. All the officers on furlough have been ordered to rejoin their regiments."

DUTY AND PLEASURE.

The Words of Emilie Arsenault in Acknowledging His Gratitude to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cured Him of Dyspepsia, Like They Have Cured so Many Others—He is Recommending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to His Friends.

Again comes the news of a cure of chronic Dyspepsia by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, in the Quebec village of Ruisseau Le Blanc.

Emilie Arsenault suffered with all the misery of bad digestion and stomach weakness for many years. He was unable to eat without suffering for it afterwards. No matter how hungry, how much in need of food he was, he knew that whatever he ate would lie like lead in his stomach, and pain him for hours after.

All sorts of remedies and medicines were tried before Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. All sorts of remedies and medicines but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, utterly failed to help him. No wonder he couples the words "pleasure" and "duty" in expressing his gratitude for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the medicine that did help him.

"I feel it at once a pleasure and a duty to say that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proven a blessing to me. I suffered from the miserable malady Dyspepsia for many years, during which I was unable to eat anything without pain.

"I tried all the other medicines and treatments without relief. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets helped me from the first box. I no longer suffered after meals. I found I could digest food which before using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I daren't touch.

"I am now entirely free from any symptom of Dyspepsia, can relish and digest all wholesome food, and can say I am highly satisfied with my experience of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Bananas in Honduras.

"Bananas and plantains," writes a Honduras correspondent of the Boston Herald, "are of course grown almost everywhere, and while in camp it was my custom to purchase bananas for our party. And such bananas, of red or yellow variety, just as we might select, but in every case large bunches almost as high as a man and weighing over 100 pounds each!

"One of the many purchased was of the red variety and contained by actual count 262 bananas and was over 5 feet in height. Some of the bananas measured 9½ inches long and 9 inches round. They were brought from the plantation of an Indian, who traveled with the bunch on his back and held to his head by a leather strap. He crossed the Chiquilla river five times, and his price for this bunch was 10 cents in our money.

"Our custom was to eat raw when ripe or fry them. Our cook's way of preparing them was to roll them in flour so as to avoid their sticking to the pan."

Economics of the Flat.

The flat is economical in other ways than are involved in the solution of the servant problem and the payment of large rents and gas bills. They discourage fads and collections. No dweller in a flat can accumulate pictures, books, coins, minerals, postage stamps, children or porcelains, because there is no place to put them. Therefore he puts his money into his stomach and the bank. With the increase in flats has come the disappearance of pianos and parlor organs, so that people sometimes sleep o' nights, even in flats. And where there is no room for pianos it follows that there can be no room for the wife's mother or the country aunts and uncles or the nephews from St. Louis.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Victor Hugo Proposed.

Adele, bolder and more curious than Victor (for she was a girl), wanted to find out what was the meaning of his silent admiration. She said: "I am sure you have secrets. Have you not one secret greater than all?" Victor acknowledged that he had secrets and that one of them was greater than all the rest. "Just like me!" cried Adele. "Well, come now, tell me your greatest secret, and I will tell you mine." "My great secret," Victor replied, "is that I love you." "And my great secret is that I love you" said Adele, like an echo.

A CHARMING WEDDING.

Nuptials of Mr. V. B. Freeburn of Montreal to Miss Lillian E. Ritchie of Town.

A charming, but quiet wedding was solemnized at No. 279 Dublin street, at five o'clock, yesterday afternoon, when Lillian Elinore Ritchie, only daughter of the late John Ritchie, was wedded to Vernon Edguart Freeburn, a prosperous young business man of Montreal. Rev. J. P. Wilson officiated. The bride was becomingly attired in an imported gown of white Swiss over white taffeta. She carried a bunch of white bridal roses tied with white satin ribbon, with white rose coiffure. The groom was attired in afternoon conventional attire. Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, of Cleveland, Ohio, who looked charming in gown of grey Swiss over grey taffeta, presided at the piano. The bride and groom entered the drawing room to the strains of "O promise me," the bride's mother following. After the conclusion of the ceremony, congratulations were offered, and refreshments were served. The bride's table looked beautiful in white and pink. Scattered over the white cover were ferns. Around the wedding cake, which was a most inviting one, was a centre piece of ferns and pink sweet peas. Around the bride's plate was a wreath of bridal roses, and white satin ribbon tied the chairs of the young couple together.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeburn will reside in Montreal.

I. O. O. F. BRIEFS.

Mr. John Fanning to-day received a letter from Mr. John A. Macdonald, Supreme Hyastitus, pro tem., of the Supreme Orient of the I.O.O.F., of Ontario, in which he urges upon the local Oddfellows the advisability of organizing a course of this kind in Peterborough. This is something new in Oddfellow-brotherhood, and is becoming very popular. In order that a council may be organized Mr. Macdonald will visit Peterborough on Monday evening and lend his assistance in the matter. He is anxious that the council should be organized before the meeting of the Grand Lodge in Guelph. Oddfellows will, therefore, govern themselves accordingly.

Oddfellows' Excursion.

Sgt. Hall's Photo.

Sergt. Ad Hall to-day received through the Militia Department a beautiful photograph of the invalids who were at Shorncliffe camp, Eng., when he was there himself. With the exception of two or three all those in the photo are Canadians. The photo is a splendid one, and is 12 x 14 inches. He intends having it framed.

An Interesting Decision.

Last week, in the County Court here, says the Lindsay Post, Capt. Ge. Crandell brought suit against the M. M. Boyd Co., of Bobcaygeon, for compensation for loss sustained owing to his steamer having been unable to reach Rosedale last season with an excursion by reason of the river channel being filled with logs owned by defendants. Judgment was reserved and was handed out to-day by Judge Harding. The defendants are found guilty, and are condemned to pay $20 compensation along with the costs. The decision will have an important bearing on the rights of passenger steamers.

OBITUARY.

The Late Robert Stewart Davidson—Death of a Most Prominent Citizen.

A citizen who for the past thirty years or more occupied a prominent position, not only in business and civic circles in Peterborough, but also in the esteem of his fellow-citizens, passed away this morning in the person of Mr. R. S. Davidson, of the Peterborough Hardware Company.

Mr. Davidson took ill on Saturday morning, May 18th. The first to notice anything unusual in his manner was Mr. William Langford, who was in his office with him consulting in regard to some figures in connection with a tender which he was putting in for some of the Cereal Company's contracts. Mr. Davidson seemed strangely preoccupied during the conversation, and his manner led Mr. Langford to think that he must be seriously unwell. On leaving to attend to some other business, when he saw that Mr. Davidson evidently did not desire to talk, he mentioned his apprehension to others in the store, but the matter was forgotten as a number of Mr. Davidson's friends, including Mr. R. C. McHarrie, local manager of the Bank of Commoerce, came in a few minutes later, to view the dog which had been presented by Mr. Davidson to the Strathcona Horse, and which had just arrived from South Africa. While the party were chatting pleasantly, Mr. Davidson suddenly fell forward on his face, and for the time lost consciousness. He was placed in a carriage, and removed to his residence, where after a few hours he rallied and steadily improved for a day or two. In fact about three days later he was able to be present in his office for a couple of hours a day attending to the affairs of the firm. He also drove out to the golf grounds on two occasions, but complained of feeling very unwell during his last drive, which was with Mr. D. J. Lundy. After returning home he appeared to gradually lapse into a state of coma, from which he only rallied for very brief intervals when addressed by someone whom he knew very well. Although he had the benefit of the attention of specialists, as well as the care of the family physician, the trouble was apparently too deeply seated in the brain to be combatted by medical knowledge, and the paralysis gradually encroached upon his system until a vital point was reached.

The deceased gentleman was a son of the late James Davidson, of Smith Township, and a member of a large and well-known family. He leaves behind him the following brothers and sisters: Mr. William Davidson, Mrs. Jno. McPherson, Mrs. Sam'l McKibbon, Mr. James Davidson, and Mrs George E. Elliott. A brother, Mr. Hugh Davidson, and a sister, Mrs. John Garbutt, passed away several years ago.

Mr. Davidson came from Smith to Peterborough nearly forty years ago, and entered the employment of Nicholls & Hall. After remaining there some time he entered into partnership in the hardware trade, on April 1st, 1871, with Mr. R. B. McKee, purchasing the business of the late Robt. Hamilton, and he was, with the exception of a brief retirement, actively associated with it up to the time of his last illness.

The deceased was an influential and esteemed member of the Masonic Order. He was identified with the local fraternity for the past twenty years, and held the rank of Past Master of Peterborough Lodge, No. 155. He was also treasurer at the time of his death, which office he had been unanimously elected to for the past seven years. He took an interest in Capitular Masonry, and was a valued member of Corinthian Chapter, No. 36.

About nineteen or twenty years ago Mr. Davidson was united in marriage with Miss Clarice, daughter of Mr. Thomas Menzies. Of the three children born to this marriage, two survive, Miss Madge Davidson and Miss Helen, the eldest having died in infancy.

The late Mr. Davidson was a well-known and highly respected citizen. He was a steady, reliable, prudent business man, and as such amassed a comfortable competency. He was careful in his business methods and never allowed himself to be tempted into speculative enterprises or operations of any kind. He was for some time a most capable and careful member of the Town Council, and as chairman of the Finance Committee, rendered exceptionally effective service. As a Justice of the Peace he frequently occupied the Police Magistrate's bench in the absence of Mr. Dumble.

In the passing of Mr. Davidson, the town loses one of its most solid and substantial citizens, who will be greatly regretted by the community in which he was so widely and favourably known, and by his family, and will be deeply mourned by his wife and two children, who survive him.

A funeral service under the auspices of the Masonic Order will take place at the family residence, No. 202 Dalhousie street, at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The funeral will leave the house at half past three o'clock.

YESTERDAY'S ACCIDENT.

Mr. Alford Scott of B. F. Ackerman's, Injured His Hand Quite Badly.

A very painful and serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon at the B. F. Ackerman harness factory. Mr. Alfred Scott, son of Mr. Alex. Scott, Sherbrooke street, while operating a stamp machine, in some manner laid the palm of his hand underneath the die and had it horribly mutilated. Several of the arteries were cut, and his hand will most likely be permanently disabled.

Dr. Young and Dr. Gray attended the injured young man, and succeeded in connecting the cut arteries.

VICTORIA PARK.

Complaints That Have Been Made Regarding Idle Men.

Complaints have been made at this office regarding the custom that prevails in Victoria Park of certain idle men who spend the day in loafing there. Their conduct is said to be not the most agreeable to ladies who frequent the park. Some of these loafers even bring liquor to the park, and openly imbibe. It is about time that something was done in the matter.

Another matter regarding Victoria Park that is worthy of attention is that it would be well to have some place in which to deposit waste paper. Many people go into the park to enjoy a light lunch, and if there was a box of some kind near the stone steps visitors to the park would not mind walking a few steps to place their refuse therein.

MR. ARMSTRONG'S SUCCESS.

A Former Member of the Staff of the Canadian General Electric Company—Known Here.

The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. Fred C. Armstrong, formerly of town, will be pleased to learn of his growing success in the electrical world.

Mr. Armstrong is but 28 years of age, and is very quickly climbing to the top of the ladder in his profession. He is the eldest son of Mr. W. H. Armstrong, of Millbrook, and a nephew of Messrs. Joseph Armstrong, William Fair and George J. Chalmers of town. He received his early education in Millbrook, and then attended the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Upon graduating from here he entered Toronto University. Mr. Armstrong was from his boyhood a student of electricity and when quite young he constructed a telephone line, which is still in use, from Millbrook to his father's farm, a short distance out. He entered the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company, and since that time has steadily won his way to the front.

A couple of years ago Mr. Armstrong received the offer of a very responsible position with the well-known English firm of Messrs. Dick, Kerr & Co., of Preston. This company has commenced the manufacture of a certain line of goods on a very extensive scale.

The London Daily Mail of a recent date says:

"In starting these works Messrs. Dick, Kerr & Co., sent to the United States for men to design the new works, but while they were making these efforts they had to encounter an effort on the part of American manufacturers to crush this rising young English industry. They had entered into an alliance with the Walker Company of Cleveland, Ohio, the third largest American manufacturers of electric traction appliances in the United States, but the Walker Company was absorbed by one of its competitors which had its own offshoots in Europe, and would not supply the British manufacturer. Messrs. Dick, Kerr & Co., had for a time to get their supplies in a roundabout way, but the absorption of the Walker Company was of some advantage to them, as they were enabled to secure the services of the ablest officials of that company, whose experience was invaluable. Among these was Mr. Armstrong, a young Canadian, with wide experience of traction work, under whose charge the electric traction department of London was placed. Already the firm is executing more than half of the tramway work in Great Britain. The Portsmouth Town Council, for instance, gave an order for a complete electrical tramway equipment at a cost of £350,000. The whole system had to be complete and running within eleven months. The order was given on February 22, and the first fifteen miles will be opened by the end of July. This is an excellent example of the energy with which British manufacturers can, when convinced of the need of action throw themselves into the work of re-modelling their plants and methods."

THE LAST DAY IN CAMP.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Have Returned to Peterborough.

End of a Merry Two Weeks' Outing at Clear Lake—Looking Forward to Next Year.

Y.M.C.A. Camp,
Clear Lake, Aug. 1.

The camp is over for another year, and the boys have all been gathered to their "ain hames," looking like Indians, though none of them wear feathers, many of them had their faces coloured from the result of exposing themselves to the gaze of the only scorcher.

The camp closed very much as all camps do, with the general outburst of fun; but the fun started earlier in the day and lasted until about ten o'clock, after which might have been seen a long semi-circle of boys lying in slumber around a large camp fire, which was kept ablaze all the night. The night was a beautiful one, and our friend, the Moon, looked down in her brightness on the young heroes, who from time to time were astir from the shrill blast of our bugler, who at intervals woke up and blew, thinking the hour for rising was at hand, and was only silenced by the watch ringing out the hours.

The scribe cannot resist the opportunity to say here that the camp was the most orderly he has attended, having been privileged to have been at ten or twelve.

Our camp roll reached thirty-eight on Friday, upon the arrival of the long-looked-for Peter Jameson, Boys' Department Secretary from Hamilton, whom the boys received with the general welcome of three or four pillows. It is well to note that he is no relation of his namesake, of Boer fame, although he did practice with a cruel looking pair of scissors on many of the boys, in a surgeon-like manner. He also took charge of the Bible class for the last three mornings. He was accompanied by Mr. George Robertson, of the Business College, who is also an active Y.M.C.A. worker. The latter departed for home again on Monday morning at a very early hour. "Bob" Brown was also a visitor over Sunday.

The weather was fine except for the three days' rain, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and even then it was all right to run about as the boys did in their bare skins.

The boys were very curious to know what was the reason some of the boys had to go home at the earlier portion of the camp; also why the Ackerman fellow went home on Sunday through rain and mud. They were glad when he returned all OK., for they feared the bicycle would get tired and out of breath.

Sunday was spent in a very becoming manner. Service in the morning at 10.30, and in the evening there was a song service to which the boys gathered and gave their aid. It was led by the orchestra, who played themselves tired. Many of the older boys went up to Juniper, where the service was conducted by a Toronto divine, who besides giving them a good address on "Faith," took some of the boys in and clothed them in dry clothing, and I am sure it must have been amusing to see our skinny pattern maker clothed in the raiment of the rather portly clergyman. One fellow of this number on returning, tried to dry his boots, and was saddoned to note that when dry there was nothing but a piece of leather left.

Our cook did excellent service, and was much liked by the boys. They all tried to stand in well with him, particularly at meal time. The cook of former years was in camp and tried some of his old dishes with great success.

The table accommodation was good, and the boys were sheltered from the heat, sun and rain, which added to the enjoyment of the meals, which were good enough for Edward (Wood) or any other Edward.

Mr. J. C. Shook, manager of the Dickson Co., touched the boys in a very tender spot, a spot which is always responsive in boys. On Monday when our leader and two or three of the boys were down at the store getting supplies he sent up a good sized treat of candy, nuts and raisins. All the sections joined in a hearty cheer, and when his name was mentioned, sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and "No Flies on Him."

Greetings to the camp were sent by our new physical director, Mr. Horace Ayers, who is now at the summer school at Lake Geneva. The boys are glad to hear he is coming back in September.

On Monday night the camp was alarmed by the voice of a female crying for help on the lake, and a party was organized and a search made. After a row of two miles the boys returned to their bed satisfied that the voice was that of a——loon.

Our darky boys after a big time entertaining the crowd left us and sought shelter in the barn of a near-by farmer, with the crows and pigs, and I can assure you that they took to their hay like cows.

I will now close this, the final letter of our camp for 1901, and would thank you for the way in which you published our letters.

The following is the sound that was heard on the road from Clear Lake to Peterborough yesterday:—

Boom a lacka, Boom a lacka,
Booma a lacka ha, Y camp, Y camp,
Rah ! Rah ! ! Rah ! ! !
Li Hung Chang, Li Hung Chang ! !
What's the matter with the Peterborough gang ?
Rangle bangle, rangle bangle,
what's the matter with the white triangle ?

There was another cry, but if the printer had to set it up it would bust his typesetting machine.

So is brought to close the camp of the Y.M.C.A. for 1901.

WELCH ON BASEBALL.

"Smiling Mickey" Talks of the Progress of the Game.

"Smiling Mickey" Welch, who helped pitch the New Yorks to the pennant in 1888 and 1889, has interesting ideas regarding the progress of the game since he was one of its stars. The fact is he does not think there has been much progress since then, and as he was a player of intelligence as well as of mechanical ability his opinions are entitled to weight, however much they may be differed from. Welch lives at Holyoke, Mass., and comes to New York now and then to see a game, so he is not criticising from heresay.

"The pitchers nowadays have not got anything on the pitchers in the eighties, and the players nowadays have not got anything on the players of those days," said Welch a day or two ago. "The same tactics were used when I was playing ball that are used now, and the only way in which the game has improved that I can see is that there are more good players. There are more good pitchers, too, a larger number of scientific batters and more fast fielders. That is natural in the development of the game, as it would be in any other business, but the first class players of the present are no better than the first class players 15 and 20 years ago.

"I know the pitcher has to stand back farther from the plate now, but this does not make pitching any harder for him except that it gives the batter more chance to time the ball. But look at the new foul strike rule that batters have to go against now. Why, the first thing they know the very best hitters have two strikes on them and are in a hole.

"They played the hit and run game in the eighties; but, as I said, did not have as many players who could work it as now. I don't believe there ever was a better hitter than Anson; in fact, I think he was the best batter the game ever saw. Talk about place hitting, there was one man who could do it. Show me any pitchers of the present time who were better than Clarkson, Keefe and Radbourn. Those men not only had the arms, but the head. They were pitchers of fine judgment. I believe Clarkson was the greatest pitcher that ever threw a ball. Nobody was in it with him in the knowledge of how to use a slow ball. 'Lady' Baldwin was the only great left hander I ever saw.

"As an argument of what I say about old timers is the fact that the champions of today are instructed by one of the old timers, Ned Hanlon. He, by the way, was the best base runner on the diamond in those days and the only one that gave Buck Ewing any trouble when the latter was in his prime. Speaking of Ewing, I believe he was the greatest ball player that ever lived. There may have been better catchers, but for knowledge of the game, knowing just what to do and all around ability he had them all beat. Why, when I was pitching to him we used to waste three balls on such a good base runner as Kelly in order to get him to run to second, and then Buck would give him a start and nail him by 20 feet. We always knew when a base runner was going down. We simply watched him, used our heads, and he would tell us himself. Ewing certainly was the king of them all, and I've yet to see his equal."

The Great Gokteik Viaduct.

The Gokteik viaduct in Burma, which has been constructed by American bridge builders and which has been the subject of discussion in the British parliament, has the distinction of being the largest structure of the kind in the world and the highest, with one exception. It is 2,260 feet long, and its extreme height above the foundations is 335 feet. The only viaduct exceeding it in height is at Loa, in Bolivia, on the Antofogasta railroad, that structure being 336½ feet high, but it is only 800 feet long. Moreover, the foundations of the Gokteik bridge rest upon a natural rock bridge, so that the track is no less than 835 feet above the river, which flows through the natural tunnel. A table published by Engineering News shows that the highest viaduct in the United States is that over the Pecos river in Texas on the Southern Pacific railroad, which is 321 feet high and 2,180 feet long, while close behind it is the Kinzua viaduct on the Erie railroad in Pennsylvania, which is 301 feet high and 2,053 feet long Loubet's Democracy.

President Loubet is rapidly driving his master of ceremonies to despair. The president will not have ceremony. It does not fit in with his happy, impetuous manner. Directly his visitors arrive he rushes forward and gives a grip of the hand before his bewildered attendant has got out with the usual announcement. And now, copying the example of the king of the Belgians and no doubt with happy recollections of his straggling bachelor days, the president takes Mme. Loubet out to dine at a cafe in the open air. Parisians are delighted.

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increases the weight of thin babies and delicate children also.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

Express trains in Russia do not as a rule run over 22 miles an hour.

Read in round figures, 200 through passenger trains come into the six passenger stations of Chicago every day, leaving 40,000 strangers in the city.

All the trains that reach the New Orleans station, in the center of Paris, are brought there by electric power in tunnels. This is considered the ideal depot of the twentieth century.

The "Stourbridge Lion," imported from England, was the first locomotive in America and was used by the Delaware and Hudson Canal company. The road was 16 miles in length and was opened in 1829.

Other things being equal, the forward seats in a street or railway car are the most healthful. The forward motion of the car causes a current of air backward, carrying with it the exhalations from the lungs of those in the forward end.

Four lines of railroad now enter the Mexican republic from the United States, and one can make the journey in five days from New York to the City of Mexico in a Pullman car on the regular trains, with only one change, either at Kansas City or New Orleans.

BAGGAGEMAN'S BACKACHE.

Hauling heavy trucks and lifting heavy trunks strains the back and injures the delicate fibres of the kidneys.

No wonder so many baggagemen complain of backache and kidney troubles.

For baggagemen's backache, as well as for all kinds of backache, kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, there is no remedy equal to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

Read what Mr. Geo. Bremner, baggageman, G.T.R. station, Berlin, Ont., has to say about them:—"For three or four years I have suffered from a severe backache due to Kidney trouble. I have tried all kinds of kidney remedies, but am forced to say until I procured a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets off A. J. Ross, druggist, I never had much relief. The Tablets, however, soon took hold and the result is comfort again. I am only too pleased to recommend them as easy, safe and sure."

Sweeping Back the River.

Some time ago two hulking hoboes who had just dismounted from a Central freight train asked a Yonkers man for a loan of 10 cents to secure some food. He took them to a restaurant and promised to provide them with work as soon as they had finished eating. When they reported for work, he said: "Boys, my cellar's full of water, and I want you to pump it out. I've fixed these hand pumps right here on the sidewalk. Never mind the people. When they come along and ask questions, just you say nothing, but pump till the water's out of the cellar. Keep cool. Don't hurry, but pump, and I will pay you well."

Now, a tributary to the Nepperhan river ran through this man's store cellar and out under the sidewalk, and the pumps reached down into the river. The water pumped out by the hoboes ran into the sewer and back into the Nepperhan, but as the sidewalk was tightly flagged the pumpers didn't know the size of their job.

The street became jammed with spectators, who roared with merriment as they watched the hoboes. All but the men at the pumps knew what was up. When the sun went down, it descended on the wrath of two Weary Willies, armed with coupling pins. They hunted all night for their kind employer, but he was in New York telling his friends

Chocolate.

In South America the retail price for the better grades of chocolate averages about $1 a pound, while in Italy, France, England and in the United States the better grades sell at a much lower price. In America the ordinary chocolate of trade sells for about one-third of the price that is charged for it where it is produced. The cause of this, the producers say, is that the original product is adulterated greatly before reaching its final market, a cheaper article than the cocoa bean constituting the large proportion of 90 per cent of the chocolates of commerce.

The cocoa bean from which chocolate is manufactured is produced in its finest form in Venezuela, though various other parts of Central and South America grow and export large quantities. Two crops of the bean are gathered each year, and the manufacture consists simply in grinding up the beans into a meal and then adding sugar and arrowroot, with the necessary flavor, usually vanilla or cinnamon. The mass is moistened until it is in a semifluid state, after which it is run into molds of the proper shape.

Cave Dwellers In Dieppe.

People who only know the gayer side of Dieppe would be surprised to hear of the existence of the cave dwellers there. One is apt to connect such people with the knawed bones and flint implements of prehistoric times. But here they are at Dieppe within a stone's throw of the casino, and they may be seen any day about the town selling the shellfish from the rocks outside their habitations. They have certain marked characteristics, one being a peculiar complexion of their own that can be traced largely to a disinclination on the part of the cave dweller to avail himself of the water that washes so close to his door. Their language also is peculiar, but whether it really belongs to the stone age no one seems to have discovered. They have to hold a license from the municipality, though, which savors of no age but the present. —London Chronicle.

England's Old Common Field System.

A "common field" is quite distinct from a "common." It is a field belonging to numerous owners. The land consists of long narrow strips, perhaps not more than ten yards wide and running parallel with one another. What are the exact rules of cultivation that obtain in Kent today we do not know, but of old it was usual to have a regular rotation, such as wheat one year, barley or oats the second and fallow the third. When the crops were harvested, each member of the community getting his or her share, all could put in their cattle, which roamed over the whole field, feeding on the stubble, etc. And this was termed the "right of sack." The "common field" system was gradually done away with by statutes in the reigns of George III and William IV.—London Express.

Time to Go to Work.

A woman was once trying to induce General Sherman to use his influence for her son in order that he might be given a place in the army, for which, however, he had shown no particular fitness. "His father was in the army," said the urgent mother, "and so were his grandfather and his great-grandfather, and it seems as if he ought to follow the line."

"Hm! Three generations in the army," said the general. "Don't you think, madam, that it is about time for one member of the family to work for a living?"

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies its power over pain is simply beyond relief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it and see if this is not true. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

FORGOTTEN.

A little year or so ago
She sparkled everywhere,
With shoulders bare and face aglow,
The fairest of the fair.
We read about her every day
As having been at this or that,
At club or tea or ball or play,
Attraction centered where she sat.

A little year or so ago
She swayed a certain set.
Without her functions failed, but, oh,
How quickly we forget!
The men who flocked around her then
Now flatter other girls, and they
That read her name with envy when
She swayed no'er think of her today.

A preacher said some words, and, lo,
A maiden ceased to be!
The fair one people used to know,
Oh, where, oh, where is she?
There's one who bends with loving gaze
O'er something small and frail and sweet.
I wonder if she mourns the days
When all the world was at her feet?
—Chicago Record-Herald.

MARRIAGE AT THE SCAFFOLD

In the seaport of Calais, which for over 100 years was under the power of the English, there once lived a bachelor, Josse Dullart, who had come there to carry on business. He was a native of Bailleul-en-Flandre, well qualified to secure for the London merchants the wool of which the Flemish weavers make their various materials and to derive an honest profit from each. Naturally, because of his commercial subtlety and because of the pleasant and comfortable life which came to him in consequence, our man became exposed to the jealousies and ill will of the other tradesmen, English for the most part. He did not know it, since the hypocrites allowed nothing to become evident, but, on the contrary, made every endeavor to present an agreeable exterior to him, so as not to compromise in the least the slight advantages which accrued to them through his kindliness. Nevertheless they decided to ruin him and to that end contrived a device so black and so wicked that Sir Satan himself in his demoniacal mind could not have imagined a better. In pursuance of the scheme one of them secretly concealed in the house of Josse Dullart a leather bag containing a sum of 100 livres sterling in gold crowns. Having done this, he went to the criminal magistrate with two comrades as witnesses to accuse his colleague of having robbed him.

At that remote period there had not yet appeared under the canopy of heaven any of the impudent sharpers, sluggards and swindlers who in the course of time have shamelessly said and written that ownership means theft, and the money earned by some is so much lost by others, with the sole intent that they may put everything into confusion and be able easily to slip into their purses that which is another's.

The world has indeed heard of much folly and seen many iniquities, but not that, and human justice, which had never known of any jesting upon the matter, would have hung their like high and in short order, dealing with them precisely as she would with veritable robbers.

Who was amazed at seeing the policeman of the provostship invade his home, ransack his coffers and chests, produce from them a sack of gold of which he knew nothing and a legal clerk take down disquieting notes of the affair in his illegible scrawl? It was the ill fated Dullart.

The poor fellow strove with them in vain, vowing to God his innocence, but words could not prevail against deeds. Now, he could not explain how the sack, the evidence of his crime, had come into his possession, whence it followed that the innocent man was condemned to the halter as if he had been guilty.

The affair, however, let loose in an uproar all the devils of Calais. Think of it—a great merchant, with a house of his own, convicted of common larceny, like a vulgar rascal!

In the end the populace, while it was not privy to the plot laid by a half dozen arrant rogues, was nevertheless not mistrustful. It rather inclined in favor of the pitiable citizen of Bailleulois. This without taking into consideration the peasants on the outskirts of the town, who were French, not having been expelled from their fireside by the conquerors, as had been the poor commoners of the city, and who hated all the English within their borders.

So it may be said that the throng which swarmed about the streets and crossways on the day when Dullart was to be taken to the gibbet entertained more compassion for him than derision, above all, if you take into account the fact that he was young, good in every respect and of a prepossessing appearance.

From the jail to the gallows Josse walked with bowed head by the side of a priest, who enjoined him to rejoice that he was about to pass into a better world. He did not glance at a single person, so great was the shame he felt on account of the filthy mischief of which he was accused. It was only when he had ascended the first rounds of the fatal ladder, having the cord about his neck, that below the soldiers grouped around the base of the gibbet, he perceived the crowd and recognized among them a fair young woman for whom in happier days he had conceived a tender and violent passion.

At the sight of her he experienced a yet more poignant sorrow at leaving so soon and so painfully an existence from which he had expected to derive such delicate felicities. And then, impelled by a sudden reminiscence and by a natural instinct for preservation, he began to cry out with all his might:

"Loyse, Loyse, by God the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, I adjure you! Save my life, claim me in marriage."

The girl stood there trembling with emotion among her companions. Hearing herself thus addressed by name by the prisoner, she became convulsed with agitation; almost unconsciously, half moved by pity, half incited by her neighbors, she approached the gibbet without the police daring to prevent her.

"Oh, Loyse," repeated the prisoner ardently, "I am innocent. I swear it by my eternal salvation! Demand me in marriage, and you will have saved my life!"

She did not know one word to say, she had so lost her senses, but she extended her hand, which the poor devil seized with avidity. Seeing this, the people in all direction began to roar:

"A marriage, a marriage! She has claimed him! Cut the cord, hangman; cut it, cut it!"

The executioner did not cut the rope, but he let it drop, undecided as to what was most expedient for him to do, and as the crowd continued to bellow and even become threatening the officer of the provostship, judging it an opportune time for a delay, led the condemned man back into his cell in order to submit his peculiar case to the law. And the people dispersed content, believing the man from that moment to be saved.

But the stealthy cats did not so easily let go one whom they held in their claws. They had a man to be hanged, a pretty little man, a man over whose hanging they licked their lips, and here how people pretended that he was taken out of their grasp! And why, I ask you? Under the most foolish of pretexts, in the name of some ridiculous custom, some illegal pretense which granted grace, full, free and immediate, to any condemned man whom a woman declared in public to desire in lawful wedlock. Who ever had heard of an equal subterfuge?

But, ah, traditional or written, the law is the law, and the case in question had to be elucidated! Unwillingly rather than willingly they opened an inquest upon the matter in hand to learn whether or not so unreasonable a usage had ever at any period had power by law, which inquest finally established that no similar case had been presented since the time of the conquest in Calais, but that previous to that date there had been many such cases, more particularly in Flanders and in Artois than in Picardy.

In consideration of these indecisive conclusions the enemies of Dullart urged the magistrates to override the law, and the magistrates did not demur. It was the governor who placed an obstacle before them in view of public opinion, which had become greatly agitated over a controversy which had at stake the life of a man made in the image of God. Suddenly that dignitary called to mind the example of prudence offered of yore to the world by that worthy magistrate Pontius Pilate in order that he might avoid thrusting his own finger between the tree and its bark. In place of announcing his fears in public he appealed to his master, King Edward, the fourth of that name, to decide the matter according to his own good pleasure.

The monarch judiciously estimated that one man more or less upon the gallows was of small value in enhancing his glory and bespoke clemency for the case under consideration. He ordained then that the old usages should be conformed with and that full pardon be awarded the condemned man, under the condition, be it well understood, that the solicitor of his love hold him duly to his engagement.

So it came to pass that the good Josse had the rare and marvelous fortune to espouse a gentle and well favored maiden after the approved fashion instead of the cold and grimacing death and to be indebted to his wife for that which ordinarily men owe to their mothers only—that is to say, his life.

A similar occurrence took place a short time afterward unexpectedly at the city of Rouen. As a certain thief, a native of Hautvilliers, was conducted to his fate, a loud old woman stepped out of the crowd below and declared that she desired him in marriage. The prisoner, astonished, considered a moment; then, remarking that the aforesaid person was a homely hag, shook his head and pursued his way to the gallows, observing to the executioner:

"The wench, I don't want her!"

And in a moment he was wedded to the gallows.—Chicago Tribune.

Fled to the Wolves.

For sheer melodrama the English jewel robber Houghton's arrest would be hard to beat. After his last big diamond theft he was traced to West Bromwich and thence led the detectives a dance over the country. At last when the pursuers were hard on his heels he dashed into a traveling menagerie which was exhibiting just outside Birmingham. There he found one of the attendants fastening up a van cage containing a pair of large gray wolves. He flung the man on one side and opened the cage, shutting himself in with the beasts and daring any one to fetch him out. The strange thing was that the wolves, which the proprietor had always considered the most dangerous animals in the show, took no notice whatever of the fugitive, but showed great ill temper toward the keeper and a constable, who had great difficulty in dragging Houghton out.

When a woman gives up it is because she has gone to the utmost limit of strength and endurance. It is a marvel how women will stagger on under the daily household burdens when the whole body is racked with pain.
For the nervous, run-down condition which so many women experience, as a result of overstrain in household cares, there is no medicine can equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the weak stomach by curing diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood of poisons which cause rheumatism and other painful diseases. It nourishes the nerves, and builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh.
There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.
Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for weakness, nervousness and debility.
"I want the whole world to know what Dr. Pierce's medicines have done for me," writes Mrs. Helen Hardgrove, of Bangs, Knox Co., O., "I had many of the ills of woman's life. My lungs and throat troubled me besides, and I had rheumatism. About a year ago I had to give up work I was so bad. I had heard so much about your medicine I thought I would try it. I took four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and by the time I had taken half of the first bottle I began to gain, and kept on getting better. And now I have no more of my old ailments and am entirely cured of rheumatism. I feel like a new woman."
Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SUMMER RESORTS.

CHEMONG.

Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald drove over to the village this morning.

Mrs. E. Taylor of Toronto, is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Morgan, of the village.

Mrs. Jas. Taylor of Smith, who has been spending the last two weeks in Belleville and vicinity, has returned home.

Rev. Mr. Gunton, pastor of the Gilmour Baptist church, accompanied by Mrs. Gunton and family, are at present spending a month back in the Kawartha Lake region.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weir of Emily, passed through the village last week to Stony Lake, where they intend spending a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kelly have opened their island cottage, at Poplar Beach, for the season. The Lady of the Lake took up a party on Saturday to spend Sunday at the cottage.

Mrs. Rev. George Nickle and two daughters left for a month's visit with friends in Picton.

Mrs. S. Clegg, Miss Ruby, and Master Bruce are enjoying the breezes of Chemong Lake, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J .A. Jobe at the post office.

Among the numerous attractions at Chemong, the latest is a merry-go-round, which has been doing business in Lakefield for the past month. It was set in running order on Saturday night for the first time, and attracted quite a crowd.

The hotel is over-crowded at present, and the cottages are all filled. Chemong is certainly booming this season.

Mr. Brown, Head Organizer of the Royal Arcanum, who has been successful in organizing a lodge in the village, has helped to initiate twenty-two new members during the past week.

The floating bridge has been closed for traffic, with the exception of Wednesdays and Saturdays, which is caused through Mr. Jopling re-planking the new piece in the centre, which is to be utilized in the construction of the new one.

Mr. Alex. Morrison, jr., of Peterborough, is spending a few days at his home in the village.

GORE'S LANDING.

Mr. John Bonisdaile, Peterborough, is a guest at Fir Cliff.

Mrs. H. Delaney, Cobourg, visited her mother, Mrs. Wallace, for a day or two last week.

Miss Philp spent Thursday to Saturday of last week with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Valleau, of Rochester, spent a few days at the home of Mrs. Whiterid last week.

Mrs. Capt. W. C. Harris spent Friday and Saturday at Peterborough.

Mrs. Osborne of Rochester, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. S. Bonbright.

Misses G. E. Braithwaite and Violet Greer were the guests of Mrs. George Braithwaite a day or two last week.

Master Parker Harris entertained a few young friends on his birthday, day, July 29th.

A party of young people of the village enjoyed an outing to Jubilee Point on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Charles Weaver of Gravenhurst, spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Thos. Wallace.

Mr. W. F. Ladd of Galveston, Texas, met with an accident last week which might have resulted fatally. Mr. Ladd and a friend were driving from Cobourg out to Lilac Lodge, when just at the entrance to the village the horse shied while crossing the bridge and precipitated itself, the buggy and occupants over the embankment, which at this place is quite deep and rocky. The gentlemen managed to extricate themselves and summoned assistance to relieve the horse. Mr. Ladd had his face rather badly cut and Dr Pratt was called; he put several stitches in it. His friend escaped with but a slight scratch, and the horse was uninjured.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

The following team has been chosen to play against Port Hope on the local links, Saturday:—R. M. Hamilton, J. H. Burnham, S. Ray, H. D. Burnett, R. M. Dennistoun, C. Bradburn, R. Granger, J. W. Garvin and H. Hall.

BOWLING.

At the bowling green, last night, Skip Stratton defeated Skip Moher in the first draw of the scheduled games by 18 points to 13, the rinks being, composed as follows:

F H Dixon	D H Moore
W J English	Harry Rush
Geo. Gilnour	Alex Elliott
Dr. Moher, Sk. 13	A H Stratton, Sk. 18

The second draw has been made as follows:

Dr. Bradd vs. E C Complin.
W J English vs. K Houston.
T E Bradburn vs. winner of Terrill vs. Boucher.
Winner of Hatton vs. Green vs. A H Stratton.
Geo. Edmison vs. J E Oles.

LACROSSE.

Messrs. Rolly Glover and Jack McCabe returned this morning from Port Hope, where they had been playing with the team of that town against Oshawa in the C.L.A. Intermediate Series. The score must have been a great surprise to the Oshawa men, as they were defeated by 25 goals to 2. This was most certainly a great reverse as in Oshawa a few days ago the Port Hope team was put out of business by a score of 8 to 2. The game yesterday was not a rough one, so it is reported, a feature that did not characterize the meeting of the two teams in Oshawa last week. This was no doubt owing to the strict ruling of the referee, Mr. Duncan McMillan, of Beaverton, who ruled out any attempts on this line.

A traveller who was in town today and saw the team play, says that the two Peterborough men, Messrs. Glover and McCabe, showed up splendidly, considering also that they had little if any practice. Between them the two Peterborough men scored 20 of Port Hope's goals.

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough baseball team will practice this evening. Every man is asked to turn out. The Auburns will play the Peterborough team on the P.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday afternoon, and next week the locals will go on a trip down east.

The Ponies of Kingston yesterday afternoon defeated the Watertown, N. Y., team by a score of 19 to 1. The defeat of the locals by the Ponies sinks into insignificance after this.

PRICE, - 35c.

THE PAN-AMERICAN.

Something Extra That is Promised for Saturday, August 3rd.

Saturday, August 3rd, has been set aside by the Director of the Pan-American Exposition for a grand Carnival of all Nations, the day being given over entirely to the direction of the concessionaires of the entire Midway. It will prove the most unique day in the history of the Exposition. The interest aroused has been so great that the City Council of Buffalo has voted it a municipal holiday and the entire press of the city and its surrounding country are uniting heartily in an effort to make it the record breaker of the Exposition since its conception. The showmen of the Midway, amongst whom can be numbered some of the brightest in their profession, have gotten together with the best of feeling and have originated a definite plan as well as an elaborate programme for the day. Each manager has tried to outdo himself in forming some new and unique fancy for the purpose of catching fickle pockets. Among the many great features which will positively be produced upon the day is the firing of a human bomb, an aluminum shell containing within its interior, Leon Stevens, the celebrated aeronaut, and a parachute will be fired from a monster mortar into mid-air, when on reaching a cetain altitude the bomb explodes, releasing the daring man and the parachute which, opening gradually, permits of a safe descent. A terrific high dive from the tower into the basin of the Cascade of Fountains will be made by another equally daring acrobat.

Vasco Cameroni will attempt his famous slide for life, from the top of the Electric Tower to the centre of the Stadium, a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile, and a height of 316 feet to the ground. Upon a slender cable is fastened a pulley, dependent from which is a slender bar with a clutch mouth piece of stout leather. Cameroni takes the leather in his mouth, and, at a given cue, he is released from his perilous height safely to his landing place in the centre of the Stadium.

Another great feature is assured in the great Chinese Dragon which formed the principal feature of the Chicago Fall Festival, some two years ago. This monster is 386 feet long, with a head formed of papier-mache, having a dimentions of something like twelve feet. The dragon was obtained through the help of Sam Hoy, the Chinese mayor of the city of Chicago, who brought it from Pekin, China, where it originally did service in the festival of the dragons held in the forbidden city. It requires nearly two hundred chinamen to manipulate it. The horrible mouth spouts forth streams of red fire, and the great eyes roll and flash like balls of burning coal. The effect is enough to appall a timid spectator. This immense reptile will travel through the Midway under a myrind of sparks created by Pain's Great Filipino Fire, which will be strung from one end of the Midway to the other, fastened to the electric light posts running through the centre of the Street of Folly.

Another feature will be a marriage in mid-air, the ceremony commencing at the rise of a captive balloon and finishing when an altitude of 2,500 feet has been reached. An unique race will be run in which the contestants are to consist of an elephant, a camel, an automobile, a Mexican vaquero, a Texan cowboy, a zebra, a bicycle, a trained athlete, and an ostrich, which will afford amusement for the crowd.

The Water Carnival will have many features of a laughable nature. A dance of demons will take place on the belvidere of the Court of Honour, under the glare of countless flambeaus of red fire. A charming feature of the revels will be the presentation of a "Bouquet Ballet" of some twenty pretty girl dancers in a costume a la Loie Fuller. The dance will be performed on the crystal stage erected in the centre of the cascade of fountains. The stage will be made of plate glass under which will be placed a battery of calcium lights, with color effects, giving an irredescent symphony of color tones to the whirling movements of the graceful dancers, a pretty reflection of which will be repeated in the placid mirror-like surface on the basin. As a feu de joie and culminating climax to this marvellous carnival, Kiralfy's magnificent ballet of all nations, from the spectacle of Constantinople, now running at the Teck Theatre at Buffalo will be performed upon a floating stage erected on the Terrace of Fountains, under powerful searchlight calciums from the apex of the illuminated Tower. This beautiful kaleido-scopic feature of glittering tinsel and stately movements will be backed by a display of fireworks by that greatest of pyrotechnic artists, Pain, who will exhaust the resources of his great establishment in providing a Festival of Fire that will exceed in brilliancy anything ever attempted in this country. It is evident from the above that, including the procession of nations, that there will be something doing on the Midway Day. The great railway potentates are lending their help and co-operation in the extension of the lowest possible railroad rates and, from the reports which are coming in from the different agents which have been sent out to herald the great day, it is evident that the Carnival of all Nations Day, Saturday, Aug. 3rd, at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo will be a positive record breaker.

FIT FOR STYLE

Style is distinct from fit, inasmuch as a garment may be fitting the figure clean and smooth everywhere, and yet be quite featureless and devoid of style.

Style is what may be termed the beauty of outline in the run of the different seams and harmonious arrangement of parts pleasing to the eye.

MURDERING NATIVES.

KRITZINGER TO GEN. FRENCH.

Boers Murder a Wounded Yeoman and Shoot Down Unarmed Natives in Cold Blood—Cost of the War for Four Months One Hundred and Eighty Million Dollars.

London, Aug. 2.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria yesterday, says:

"French reports that he has received a letter from Kritzinger, the Boer commander, announcing his intention to shoot all natives in British employ, whether armed or unarmed. Many cases of cold blooded murder of natives in Cape Colony have recently occurred."

"On July 28 an officer's patrol of twenty Yeomanry and native scouts followed two carts and a few Boers 15 miles from the railway at Doorn River, Orange River Colony, where they were cut off by 200 Boers, and after defending themselves in a small building they surrendered when their ammunition was exhausted.

"Three Yeomen were wounded.

"After the surrender the Boers made the native scouts throw their hands up and shot them in cold blood.

"They afterwards shot a wounded Yeoman. The remainder were released.

"The Boers gave as a reason for shooting the woman that they thought he was a Cape 'boy.'

"Evidence on oath has been taken of the murders."

Nearly Nine Millions a Week.

London, Aug. 2.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Lord Stanley, the Financial Secretary of the War Office, replying to a question, said the cost of the war in South Africa from April 1 to July 31 was £35,750,000, partly chargeable against the deficit of last year. The actual cost in July was £1,250,000 weekly. The statement was greeted with ironical Irish cheers.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said if the war continued at the same cost for the next three months it would necessitate spending the whole of the reserve he had provided for financing the third quarter, but he had reason to hope that this would not be necessary.

On Portuguese Territory.

Lorenzo Marquez, July 31.—A Boer commando, with two guns, has entered the Portuguese territory, encamping at Guanetz. Five hundred Portuguese troops are already at Guanetz, and artillery left here for that place this morning. Three hundred troops, in addition, are in readiness to proceed, unless the Boers surrender.

Search for Arms Among Mules.

London, Aug. 2.—"On the arrival here July 24 of the steamer Montezuma, with mules and horses from New Orleans," says a despatch from Cape Town to The Daily Express, "she was minutely searched for arms and ammunition she was suspected of carrying."

Another Canadian Returns.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—Dr. A. E. Ross, who left here 18 months ago for South Africa, with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, arrived home at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was met at the depot by several thousand people. An address of welcome was read by Ald. J. M. Shaw, and Dr. Ross was escorted through the streets by a procession, headed by the 14th and 47th Regiment bands. At the Tete de Pont Barracks, addresses were delivered by Lieut.-Col. Hudon and others. When the Mounted Rifles returned home, Dr. Ross remained as surgeon with the Australian Mounted Rifles.

ALL MEN ARE EQUAL.

But Maryland Democrats Will Eliminate Negro From State Politics.

Baltimore, Aug. 2.—The Democratic State convention, which met here yesterday, declared that the purpose of the party, if successful in the coming election, is to eliminate the negro from politics in Maryland if such a thing be possible under the constitution of the State. Upon this, the paramount issue of the campaign, will stand the candidates nominated yesterday.

The platform adopted declares that the Democratic party represents more than 40,000 majority of the white people of Maryland, and without the aid of the 60,000 colored voters the Republican party in the State would would be in a hopeless minority. It is, therefore, proclaimed that action should be taken to prevent the control of the State government from passing into the hands of those who have neither the ability nor the interest to manage public affairs wisely and well.

Crops Damaged, Reports Exaggerated.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—The alarming reports sent out regarding the damage to Manitoba crops by heat and rust seem to be greatly exaggerated. It is beyond the knowledge of anyone to estimate what damage has been done by rust. So far as can be learned, it will not be very serious. Weather conditions have been really all that farmers could ask for, neither too hot nor too cold, and if favorable conditions continue the yield will be so tremendous that any sectional or slight drawbacks will not be serious. This is the present feeling among well posted men.

Narrow Escapes of Children.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Several narrow escapes of children from being cremated during the Temiscaming fire have been reported to the Ontario Colonization Department. One settler rushed his children into the mud of a partly dried up stream, covered them with blankets and then piled damp mud over them. Another put his children down a well. A 7-year-old boy was playing in the bush some distance from home, when he was cut off from it by the flames. He ran to the bank of the Wahia River, and called for assistance to a settler, who luckily had a boat and rowed over to his rescue.

A Tremendous Dividend.

New York, Aug. 1.—The Evening Post said yesterday that the extra dividend declared recently by the First National Bank before taking over the National Bank of the Republic, was 1,900 per cent. on the old capital stock of $500,000. This dividend was more than enough to enable the stockholders to pay for their share of the new stock to be issued on the increase of the bank's capital, $10,000,000, without the outlay of other cash.

THE STEEL STRIKERS.

Waiting for An Answer From Morgan to Their Ultimatum.

A FLAT REFUSAL BY TELEGRAPH.

According to Commercial Gazette of New York Mr. Morgan Refused to Reopen Wage Conference—This By Telegraph, but Letter Will Follow by Mail—Bitter Fight Ahead.

Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—Another day of suspense, and the end is not yet. The third all-day session of the Amalgamated Association Executive Board has passed without any action being taken on the New York conference peace proposals, and another session will be held to-day.

After the board had heard from President Shaffer concerning his trip to New York last week, it was decided to request a change in the propositions of Mr. Morgan, and sent a message to Mr. Morgan in New York on Tuesday night, announcing their decision in the matter. Upon the answer will depend whether the strike will be prolonged indefinitely.

The members of the executive officially state that there is harmony in their ranks.

All day the executive sat and waited for a reply from Mr. Morgan to their message. His silence is regarded as significant and ominous.

A FLAT REFUSAL.

Mr. Morgan Declines to Reopen the Wages' Conference.

Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—The Commercial Gazetter to-day will say:

The Amalgamated Executive Board last evening received by telegraph a flat refusal from J. Pierpont Morgan to reopen the wage conference where it was broken off at the Hotel Lincoln nearly three weeks ago. The powers of the steel combine insist in this communication that the only basis of settlement will be on the terms which the financial backer of the combine, President C. M. Schwab and Chairman Elbert H. Cary laid down at the meeting with the Amalgamated Executive in New York last Saturday.

A member of the Executive Board of the association last night said: These terms are denominated by those who have the best interests of the organization of steel workers at heart as the most unfair, the most unjust ever proposed to any body of workingmen by a set of employers or a corporation. The terms are such that the Executive Board of the Amalgamated Association cannot accept, and has already gone on record to that effect.

This morning the answer of Mr. Morgan is expected by mail. There is scarcely a fragment of a hope that the Amalgamated Association will back down from its well-known policy. The leaders of the workers will, in reply, outline their plans to the steel corporation for a continuation of the great struggle. They will include the stopping of every wheel possible in the works of the combine and the extension of the strike in all possible directions by the Amalgamated Association. To-day may develop much, but if the combine cannot be made to waver through the influences that will be brough to bear, the conflict will probably be fought to the bitter end.

From the association's headquarters news came that the situation had not changed during the day and that the Executive would meet again this morning.

End of Brass Moulder's Strike.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—As a result of the conference held last night between representatives of the striking brass moulders and the affected firms, there will, in all probability, be an amicable settlement arrived at to-day. It was decided that the men should return to work at the same scale of wages which they were receiving before the strike, and the employers will grant the men the shorter hours they requested. This agreement will have to be ratified by the union, which will likely be done to-day.

Signor Crispi Is Fading.

Naples, Aug. 1.—The bulletin issued last night regarding Signor Francesco Crispi announces that he has suffered a relapse and is weaker. His terrible struggle for breath can be heard even in the roadway of the street. The members of his family and his two secretaries surround the deathbed. It is reported that the family have refused priestly offices.

Carpenter Fatally Injured.

St. Thomas, Aug. 1.— Frederick Brackenridge, a carpenter, was perhaps fatally injured while working on a new schoolhouse near Windham Centre on Tuesday afternoon. He was doing some work near a window, when a teamster threw a heavy plank through the opening, striking him on the head and rendering him unconscious.

LABOUR WANTS SOME OF IT.

The illogical arguments used in defence of the protective system often excite the wonder of non-believers. Here in Toronto, says the Star, are some local stoneworkers on strike because the cut stone used in the new hotel is being imported from the United States instead of being cut in Canada by our own men. We do not believe in protection and would like to see the whole thing swept away, but the Telegram supports protection, yet last night it declared against the claims of the stoneworkers that Canadian labour should be employed in cutting this stone. "Such an enterprise," says our contemporary, "cannot await the output of local labour. Its builders cannot fairly be asked to wait on the necessarily restricted output of native labour."

Yet under the protectionsit theory these same stoneworkers must "depend upon the necessarily restricted output" of local mills and factories for their clothes and boots and sugar and many of the necessaries of life. If labouring men are to be told that it pays them to buy and use native products, even at an excessive price, the labouring men can fairly claim that it ought to be equally profitable for capitalists to purchase native labour even though at an excessive cost. Others than those who consume native products and manufacturers should take their protectionist medicine when their turn comes, or else throw the nostrum away and be done with it. The Telegram believes in protection, but not for the working classes. And the Star might have added that protectionist journals are in favour of protecting the classes irrespective of the way in which the masses are hit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One of our contemporaries, says the Globe, keeps repeating the statement that Mr. Harcourt or some other member of the Ontario Government, some newspaper or some individual, has asserted somewhere, some time, no details given, that no publisher, other than those who have been in the pay publishing the readers, has offered to print and publish the readers. The stubborn fact remains that no member of the Government ever made such a statement. What has been said is that no application to print and publish the readers has been refused. It is true that two separate applications have been made, and it is equally true that they have not been refused. It is also unmistakably true that each of the applicants has received intimation that the department, subject to the usual conditions, is prepared to grant to any reliable firm the right to print and publish. No one is being deceived in the matter.

He is the Hon. John Dryden, of Dakota. Hon. John Dryden's Dakota stock farm catalogue will make huge immigration literature for Uncle Sam.—Spectator.

"This is hardly fair to Mr. Crawford, the Tory member for West Toronto, who is Mr. Dryden's partner in the ownership of that Dakota ranch. Why not give him a fair share of the credit?" This is only a fair sample of the way in which a certain class of journals unpatriotically impugn the patriotism of prominent fellow-citizens. The Spectator is a consistant follower of Mr. Whitney, who condemns political irregularities on the part of his opponents and condones it on the part of his followers. It's all right for Mr. Thomas Crawford, a Conservative member for West Toronto, to have an interest in a ranch in Dakota, but the possession of a similar interest by the Hon. John Dryden, a Liberal, is high treason.

Manitoba promises to enjoy the greatest wheat crop of its existence. The season from seeding to now, when the fields are yellowing to harvest, has been exceptionally favourable, and it is expected that the average yield will be 25 bushels per acre. The acreage under wheat crop is, including the Northwest Territories, about two and a half million acres. At this rate the total crop will be sixty-two million bushels. To harvest this immense crop about 20,000 extra labourers will be required. The marketting of sixty million bushels of wheat will be of itself no little task. The existing avenues of export, railways and canals, will be taxed to their utmost capacity. Canada has been prominently before the world for the past year, and the splendid harvest of 1901 will open the century with the indication of this country's great capacity as a breadstuffs producer, which will only be an earnest of what Canada can do for only a small proportion of the area of the west capable of producing wheat is at present put to use.

COLD STORAGE.

A Chilly Visit From Congressional Stiffs.

Eat the Sandwiches, Drank the Booze, and Then Gave the Chamber the Icy Hand.

Under the above heading, the "Alaska Traveller's Guide," of Skagway, gives the following "roast" to a party of Harbour Commissioners and Congressmen who came up from Seattle by invitation to inspect the Skagway harbour, but who were seduced into taking a trip over the White Pass and Yukon Railway into Canadian territory:

The great Congressional junketing outfit which the Chamber of Commerce, the politicians and the citizens on horseback, have been making preparations to entertain for the past two months, arrived at an early hour yesterday morning and remained at the cattle pen until the White Pass and Yukon refrigerator cars were backed up to put them on.

My! but it was cold!

A few members of the Chamber of Resolutions, with their uncles and their sisters and their aunts scrambled into the cars while they were in motion and others got left in the shuffle and didn't get there at all. It is doubtful if a mother's son from Skagway would have been able to have "got aboard" if High Cockalorum Burton, the chief lunch inspector, hadn't instructed the conductor to "slow down for the lunch baskets and booze barrels." But they got there, Elly, and received the stony stare from the members of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and the Congressional tramps.

The great White Pass and Yukon train carried Uncle Sam's ten thousand dollar tourists along the bluff in order that the river and harbour committee might view the south fork of the Skagway river and Captain Moore's outhouses. And on they went until they came to the graveyard where the bleaching skeleton of the late Soapy Smith hung dangling from the top of a totem pole. The mention of his name came nearly causing a stampede and it could not have been averted but for the presence of mind of Joe Smith, the mixologist, who yelled, "Free whiskey, cigars and sandwiches." This had the desired effect and the attack was then made for the first time on the lunch pile, and belly-wash contributed by our generous citizens. It was a terrible attack; football and shinney was not in it! Heads down, heels up! Long scotches in short glasses! Short scotches in long glasses! Lager beer and claret! Limburger cheese and sauer kraut! Hot tamales and cold spuds! The fight was fierce and long and the booze and muck-a-muck faded like dog biscuits in a band of malamutes. When the grub chest was closed and Jim broke his corkscrew, the struggle ended and the great moguls snoozed in their seats until they were disturbed by stomach aches. But the great White Pass and Yukon jerkwater train carried them on and on until they reached Canadian territory, the land of small grafters and yellow-legged policemen. Chief Lunch Inspector Burton said, "To hell with Skagway, we want to stay with the railroad and our bloomin' British cousins." "To hell with Skagway," said the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, "she is trying to steal our trade, and she is a dangerous town to stop in. Of course Soapy Smith is dead; Frank Clancy and his gang are gone, but Pat Renwick's bear is still on deck, and he has a great liking for pumpkin-headed and sorgum-eating Congressmen!" "Yes, gentlemen of the committee," said the High Snuedunk of the White Pass and Yukon, "don't listen to the howling idiots tell you about the Canadians trying to fly the Union Jack over the depot. They are full of prunes and canal water. They live on nothing but principles and salmon bellies."

The day was spent in Canada and as long as the lunch and booze held out they stayed right with it. The time for return was set so that they would not be delayed one minute in the city and in the harbour they were sent to sea.

At 9.30 the White Pass and Yukon bellowed its bazoo opposite the graveyard. Citizens on foot, citizens on horseback, and soldiers in blue marched to the depot to receive the distinguished visitors. On came the train, and rubbering from both sides of Broadway continued until necks were a foot long. On came the cars, but not on Broadway. They were coming down the back alleys by the bluff, and were again dumped at the cattle pens and escaped up the gangplanks of the steamer Victorian, which soon had them away from the wharf and on their way rejoicing.

My! but it was cold!

The air was thick and blue with curses when the train passed by. The chorus was sung in high tenor and the Chamber of Commerce fell in for its share of harsh criticism, but perhaps, unjustly. They claim that they had the soup thrown into them worse than anybody, and to-day they all have that sheepish look about them.

The indignation of the citizens is intense, for they feel that they have been insulted in a manner that they would not have expected from a lot of ignorant hooch-besotted siwashes that had never seen civilization.

CHINA'S NATIONAL CRIME.

Pekin Placarded With a Vigorous Proclamation—Violent Boxer Posters at Canton Near Christian Chapels.

London, Aug. 2.—A despatch to The Times from Berlin, dated July 31, says:

"The preparation of the final protocol is progressing rapidly. It is expected that it will be signed before the anniversary of the relief of the legation (Aug. 14). It is understood that the application of the increased tariff and the imposition of duties on goods which are now free will come into operation Oct. 1, goods shipped to China prior to Oct. 1 being exempt.

"Pekin is being placarded with a vigorous proclamation recounting that a national crime was committed by China last year, and that the punishment inflicted is a warning against its recurrence."

Boxers Not All Dead.

Canton, Aug. 1.—Violent anti-foreign placards, emanating from the Boxers, have been posted in the vicinity of the Christian chapels. The placards protest against the imposition of the house tax, saying it is only exacted in order to meet the indemnity to be paid to the powers, and proceeds:

"If money can be obtained, why not make war on the foreigners? China is not yet defeated. If only the government's eyes, which are blinded by disloyal ministers. If we refuse to fight, then it is a case of being greedy to live, yet fearing death. How can the carefully studied military arts be used, except against foreigners? How can we otherwise employ our regiments. During 1900 much money was collected through lotteries, gambling and general taxes. But, they were never satisfied. Therefore, should the house tax be collected, we will demolish the chapels and drive out the Christians. If the Emperor is unable to pay, we, Boxers, have an excellent plan to gain a victory over the foreigners. Unless this policy is adopted a great rebellion is certain."

An Unlikely Story.

London, Aug. 2.—A rumor comes from Shanghai, for which there appears to be no more basis than the fact that it is printed, to the effect the Great Britain contemplates transferring Wei Hai Wei to Germany in return for the latter's good offices in the Yangtse Valley.

Court May Not Return to Pekin.

Shanghai, Aug. 2.—The North China Daily News declares that the reactionaries have no intention of allowing the court to return to Pekin, that the Imperial decrees on this subject are mere blinds, and that the Pekin officials are leaving for Sian Fu.

COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 2.—The Venezuelan Minister of War, Senor Pulido, has resigned, after a violent scene in the Cabinet during which he refused to accept the orders of President Castro to recognize the revolutionists in Colombia as belligerents, and to deliver a passport to Senor Rico, the Colombian Minister. The situation is critical. The Government troops have been defeated in their first encounters with the rebels, and other uprisings are taking place in the interior of the country.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 2.—The British steamer Texan has arrived here from Colon and brings confirmation of the reports of severe fighting near Colon on Sunday and Monday last. The rebels attacked the Government troops and forced them back.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The Venezuelan Charge d'Affairs has received confirmation of the report that 5,000 revolutionists were defeated in San Cristobal on July 29.

Tragedy at Point St. Charles.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—There was a tragedy at Point St. Charles last evening, which will result in the death of one Tim Corbett, a workingman. It appears that Corbett called upon his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Bugler living on Knox street, and assaulted her, but the woman bravely defended herself; in fact, she secured a revolver and fired upon her assailant. Corbett dropped to the floor and was carried to the hospital, where it was reported at a late hour that he would die, and Mrs. Bugler at once gave herself up to the authorities.

Moving on the Balkans.

St. Petesburg, Aug. 2.— Strong Russian forces have been quietly concentrating near the frontiers of Austria and Roumania since June 1, on the pretext that they are preparing to take part in the usual summer manoeuvres. It is believed, however, by those who are behind the scenes that the mobilization is a precautionary measure, in view of the well-known fact that Austria and Roumania have concluded an offensive and defensive alliance.

Killed By a Piece of Wood.

Parry Sound, Aug. 2.—Alexander Remy, employed in the factory of the Patent Clothboard Company, was accidentally killed yesterday. He was hit on the head by a piece of wood thrown from a circular saw. He lived only a few minutes after the accident. Remy was a married man, and leaves a large family unprovided for.

A man may break away from prison but he cannot get away from the torture of rheumatism until he takes Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. It is the only reliable remedy on the market. Mr. Charles H. Clarke, Kingston, Ont., who for fifteen years in succession held the civic street watering contract could not put on his boots or walk for several weeks. He tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure, and three bottles, with the Climax Iron Tonic Pills, completely cured him. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

FOR ROYAL VISITORS

Ottawa Valley Lumbermen's Novel Entertainment

FOR DUKE OF CORNWALL'S PARTY

A Trip Down the Rapids and Slides of the Ottawa River—Will Be Made in Four Cribs Manned By Crew of 15 or 20 Voyageurs Each, and Garbed in Ye Olden Style.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Yesterday afternoon an important meeting of the lumbermen of the Ottawa Valley took place to decide upon details in connection with the trip of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York down the rapids and slides of the Ottawa River. Mr. J. R. Booth, the veteran pioneer of the lumbering industry, presided, and there was a most gratifying attendance. Those lumbermen from a distance who could not be present promised their support and co-operation. Their Royal Highnesses and suite will be the guests of the lumbermen for practically the whole of Monday, September 23. They will start at a reasonably early hour in the morning, and make the trip in four cribs, each manned by a crew of from fifteen to twenty voyageurs, or rather river men of to-day, garbed in the style of the voyageurs of old. The cribs will be constructed of pine and will be handsomely finished and decorated. Accompanying the Royal party will be the members of the Dominion Cabinet and their wives. In the afternoon, after the exciting trip down the rapids and slides, a representation of shanty life will be given at Rockcliffe Park. For this purpose a model shanty will be built. A number of shantymen will exhibit their skill in handling logs, and will sing some of the rollicking songs by means of which their sojourn in the woods is enlivened. The shanty, which is to be built in rustic style, will be left standing in the park as a sort of monument of the Royal visit. There is some likelihood that the Duke and Duchess will make a short stay at Gleichen during their trip out west, in which case an Indian war-dance and pow-wow would be given in their honor. The Blackfeet reserve is located there, and further south at Fort MacLeod the reserve of the Blood Indians. If their Royal Highnesses stop over at Gleichen it would attract many hundreds of painted warriors from both reserves, and the quaint and picturesque features of such a gathering would be full of interest.

Yukon Telegraph Line.

The statement emanating from Montreal that a through wire from Dawson City would be in operation yesterday is erroneous. Mr. Gobell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, said that he could not understand how such a misleading statement could have originated. The latest information in his possession is that the telegraph from Dawson will not be completed until the end of the present month. That portion of the line now under construction passes through very difficult country, and therefore it may be even later than the end of August before the wire is brought into communication with the rest of the Dominion.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Professor James' Sudden Death.

Bowmanville, Aug. 1.—A rather unexpected death occurred here yesterday morning when Wesley E. James, B.A., one of the professors in the Winnipeg College, died of typhoid fever. He was a graduate of Bowmanville High School and of Toronto University, and was home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. James. He was ill only about a week, and his death is universally regretted. He was a clever teacher, and his career gave promise of being a bright one.

War Ship Runs on a Rock.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 1.—The British armored sloop Buzzard arrived here yesterday leaking from having run on a rock in Green Bay Sunday during a fog. She struck the rock in 10 feet of water. Divers have been down to examine her keel and she will be docked for repairs. This is the third time that the Buzzard has gone aground during her commission on this coast.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day was large for Thursday, 72 carloads, composed of 1077 cattle, 1200 hogs, 1844 sheep and lambs, with 80 calves.

Trade was brisk for shipping cattle and prices were higher, the best cattle selling from $5 to $5.15 per cwt. for the bulk, and one or two lots went even higher than these prices. The main reason for the advance is that a certain amount of space on boats now in port has to be filled by Saturday.

Prices for butcher cattle were firm, but not any higher than on Tuesday.

About ten milch cows and springers sold at $30 to $50 each.

A Merciful Magistrate.

This morning Police Magistrate Dumble sat in judgment on two men of Hamilton, Herbert and George S. Robinson. They were charged with stealing a ride on a C.P.R. excursion train. They were trying to reach Manitoba, and were arrested by C. P. R. Constable Gormer at Indian River. The culprits pleaded so hard that the Magistrate had compassion on them and allowed them to go.

A Bicycle Parade.

Mr. Donnelly, the night flagman at the Charlottee street G. T. R. crossing, is required, it seems, to take account of the teams that use the crossing during his hours of duty. This putting him into a statistical mood, last night he counted the bicycles that passed his "beat" between the hours of six in the evening and ten o'clock, and the count for those four hours totalled 304—75 an hour, and it wasn't a very good night for wheeling, either.

The name of the lucky ticket holder will be announced on Tuesday evening. Fifty-Seventh Regiment Band and Wilson's orchestra on board. Tickets, 35c., ladies, 25c., children, 20c.

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of the Separate school Board was held Wednesday evening, all the members being present. Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Superintendent of the local schools, was also in attendance.

The matter of filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of the late principal of the Murray street school, was considered, and Miss O'Connell, of Ashburnham, who has been on the staff was promoted to the principalship.

It was decided to advertise for a teacher to fill the vacancy caused by Miss O'Connell's promotion.

Repairs were authorized to the Murray street, Lake street, and Convent schools.

This was the principal business transacted, and the board adjourned.

Mr. Falconer is a graduate in Arts from Queen's University, and in Theology, from Pine Hill Seminary, Halifax, N.S. Mr. Falconer's address while in town will be announced later.

Sudden Death.

The Stirling News-Argus has the following concerning the death of George R. Ashley, a relative of Mrs. George Stevens:—"On Tuesday last Mr. George R. Ashley, of West Huntingdon, died very suddenly. During the forenoon he was drawing in rye, assisted by his son, and about ten o'clock a load was taken into the barn to be unloaded. Mr. Ashley went into the mow, and his son threw a sheaf from the load, but as Mr. Ashley was about to lift it, he called to his son to stop, and he immediately dropped down. His son went to him at once, but found life all but extinct, and he expired in a few moments. His death was no doubt caused by heart failure. He was about 61 years of age, and highly respected in the community. He was a member of Stirling Lodge No. 239, I.O.O.F., and the funeral will be conducted by the brethren of the Order."

The Biggest Fish of the Season.

Hastings Star: On Tuesday last a fishing party, comprising Mr. A. B. Spellman, and Misses Annie Durnherr, of Rochester, N.Y., and Marguerite Lauder, of Joplin, Mo., who are visiting at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Wm. Hill, sr., went down the river for a day's sport and got what they went after. The party was under the able direction of the Scriver Bros. About two miles below the village Miss Durnherr, who was trolling, got in tow a maskinonge which proved to be a monster. The lady refused all assistance, and after twenty minutes ceaseless playing landed her captive. On arrival home it was ruled and scaled and proved to be the biggest of its kind caught in these waters for many years. The fish weighed 29 pounds and measured five feet two inches from tip to tip. Miss Durnherr, as well as the rest of the party, was overjoyed with the catch, and on Wednesday morning the "Trent whale" was shipped by express to the lady's home where our American cousins can gaze on a Canadian capture. The party also secured — well as many as the law allows, of both lunge and bass.

DUKE OF CORNWALL AND YORK

Will not Visit Peterborough on The Coming Tour.

The Town not on Their Calling List—Mayor Denne Receives Intimation to That Effect.

It is settled that Peterborough's "winter of loyal discontent is not to be made glorious by the sun of of York." His Worship Mayor Denne has received the following letter from His Excellency the Governor General:

Ottawa, July 29, 1901.

Sir, — I am directed by the Governor-General to acquaint you that the arrangements for the Royal Tour will not allow their Royal Highnesses to include Peterborough amongst the places the Duke and Duchess propose to visit.

It is a source of great regret to Their Royal Highnesses, in which His Excellency shares, that geographical and other considerations, compel them to forego the pleasure of beholding many portions of this fair province, and of gratifying by their presence the loyal wishes of so many of its people.

Yours faithfully,
J. S. MAUDE,
Major,
Secretary to Governor-General.

The decision conveyed in the above letter does not mean any disrepect to Peterborough. We are a part of Canada, and we can welcome Their Royal Highnesses, George, Duke of Cornwall and York, and the Duchess of York, in our hearts as loyally as if we presented them yards of formal addresses. Their visit being a flying one, in a sense, it cannot be expected that every part of the country will be honoured by a personal visit. It seems to be only possible to include the prominent cities on the line of route, such as Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, (the capital, of course) Cobourg, Port Hope, Toronto, etc. It would have been a great honour for us to do honour to a son and daughter of our King, but a welcome from our hearts will be as much appreciated as the long-winded and fulsome addresses with which Their Royal Highnesses will be bombarded at every point they visit.

DELIGHTFUL "AT HOME."

The social season at Stony Lake was opened last night by a delightful "At Home" which was given in the pavillion at Juniper Island. The affair was put on by the settlement known as the "Down-enders" and they certainly made a name for themselves as entertainers. The invitations to the "At Home" were quite general and were readily taken advantage of by the cottagers from all points on Clear Lake, Stony and Upper Stony Lake as well as a good representation from town.

The night was an ideal one for the dance, and a delightful one for those who had to canoe any distance to Juniper. In fact, mostly every person on the lakes was there and an evening long to be remembered passed off without a hitch of any kind.

The pavillion looked exceptionally gay, with an extra supply of coloured lights and as the young people glided over the floor to sprightly music they were watched by a multitude from the outside of the building. The dancing commenced at about 9 o'clock and concluded shortly after 12 o'clock, although the intervening time appeared far too short for many. The floor was in excellent condition and the conventional black and white attire of the men and the cool summer costumes of the ladies presented a very attractive sight. The shirt waist man was the hero of the evening. By a special order issued by Mr. John Crane, the Sec.-Treas. of the Down-enders, the men were asked to remove their coats, and his requestt was readily acceded to. The two-step and waltz were of course the predominating dances, relieved now and again with a three-step, which has become quite popular up the lakes this summer.

Mid-night came far too soon and as the little crafts with their occupants shot across the waters to their respective temporary homes, the strains of Auld Lang Syne pealed forth from the piano in the pavillion.

Altogether the Down-enders deserve great praise for the successful manner in which the At Home was carried out.

When the steamer Empress was returning this morning the Peterborough contingent which went up the lakes to the dance, tendered Mr. John Crane a hearty vote of thanks for the enjoyable evening given. Mr. Crane very modestly replied, assuring the party that the "Down Enders" were glad to have the town contingent up, and he expressed the hope that in the course of a few weeks another such an affair would be held.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade, which will be held in the town council chamber this evening, there will in all probability be a lively discussion on the proposed Cordage Co. Bylaw. The public is invited to attend, and those who are not members of the Board of Trade are at perfect liberty to express their views.

Concrete at Heeley Falls.

The Government is making an improvement at Heeley Falls on the Trent River, six miles north of Campbellford, in the construction of a concrete dam. The work is being done under the superintendence of Mr. Gordon who had charge of the repairs at Hastings last year. There are thirty men employed at present, and it is said the job will not be completed till some time in September.

The Band will play in the park to-night, but will do their prettiest to-morrow afternoon.

ASSIST THE BAND.

Bandmaster Gliddon is Asking for Several New Saxaphones—Money Needed.

That the 57th Regiment Band has reached a high state of proficiency and need not fear comparison with any military concert band in Canada, is recognized by the thousands who have heard their concerts, but there is room for further improvement, or rather development, that will ensure Mr. Gliddon and his musicians a place in the very front rank. This is represented in the strengthening of the instrumentation of the band. Practice and hard work, combined with musical talent, have placed the band in its present fine state, and the addition of some needed instruments will ensure its position in the lead.

Recognizing this, and ever aiming to bring the 57th band up to the highest point of efficiency and rank, Mr. Gliddon is about to make an effort to procure some new instruments. These will be four saxaphones, which will cost in the neighbourhood of $200. A saxaphone, to describe it in an understandable way, is the connecting link between the reeds and the brass instruments. The part it would take in the making of the music can, therefore, be easily understood. The addition of these four saxaphones to the present instruments of the band would make a marked improvement that the general public will receive the benefit of and appreciate.

Mr. Gliddon proposes to hold a grand concert at a future date, and offer premiums to ticket holders. Announcements in regard to this concert will be made later. However, it is hoped that the band will procure these new instruments. A concert offers an opportunity for all to contribute, even though it be only twenty-five cents.

ANOTHER WORD TO THE BOYS.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — As you were good enough to insert in your paper the few words I wrote to the boys on the subject of cigarette smoking, perhaps you will allow a few words more to the boys on another subject, but one of equal importance to their well being. I sincerely hope all the boys will read it.

Chauncey Depew, whom no one would charge with insincerity, speaks as follows on the temperance question:

"Twenty-five years ago I knew every man, woman and child in Peekskill, and it has been a study with me to mark boys who started in every grade in life with myself, to see what has become of them. I was up last fall, and began to count them over, and it was an instructive exhibit. Some of them became clerks, merchants, manufacturers, lawyers and doctors. It is a remarkable fact that everyone of those that drank is dead; not one living of my age. Barring a few who were taken by sickness, every one who proved a wreck and wrecked his family, did it from rum and no other cause. Of those who were church-going people, who were steady, who were frugal and thrifty, every single one of them, without an exception, owns the house in which he lives, and has something laid by, the interest of which with his house, would carry him through many a rainy day. When a man becomes debased through gambling, rum or drink, he does not care—all his finer feelings are crowded out. The poor women at home are the ones who suffer—suffer in their tenderest emotions, suffer in their affections for those whom they love better than life."

It will be a great blessing if the boys of Peterborough will not only read this, but will determine that strong drink will not ruin them.

If we must tolerate people in our community who will sell the stuff, regardless of its injurious effects on their fellowmen, let those of us who are interested in the next generation lift our voices in warning to those who are likely to be the victims. I send you these words for the sake of the boys.

ONE OF THEIR FRIENDS.

EVE'S APPLE TREE.

The Forbidden Fruit Still Found in the Island of Ceylon.

A fruit supposed to bear the marks of Eve's teeth is one of the many botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of the "forbidden fruit," or Eve's apple tree. The blossom has a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside, and deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous qualities, led the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the garden of Eden and to warn men of its noxious qualities. The mark upon the fruit is attributed to Eve. Why the bite of Adam did not also show is not known, but as only one piece seems to be missing its loss is ascribed to the woman. — Buffalo Commercial.

Yesterday afternoon one of the large plate glass windows in the Toronto Savings & Loan Co's building was smashed. No one appears to know how it was done, but it was smashed during the day nevertheless.

JUVENILE ROWDYISM.

Something for the Police to Look After.

A boy seems to be a necessary evil, but hundreds of mothers and others will be glad when school begins, for the idleness of the holiday season seems to make it necessary to have some outlet for the original sin and and animal spirits of boy nature. A gang of boys frequents the empty box cars that occupy from time to time the G.T.R. siding on Bethune street from the Water Works office to the store house on the Simcoe street corner. They are bad boys, and they make these box cars headquarters for raids on neighbouring property, and when not so employed they indulge in rowdy actions, using foul and profane language, and otherwise breaking the peace. Yesterday as a sample of their depredations, and of their character, they invaded the garden in the rear of a cottage next the Water Works office, on Hunter street, climbed an apple tree and proceeded to appropriate the fruit, and although the lady of the house ordered them to come down, and out, the young scapegraces defied her, and stayed until they had pocketted all the apples, or as many as they chose to take. This is something the police should look after at once. Boys will be boys to the end of the chapter, but that does not argue that they should be blackguards as well, and outrage private property at will.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

The baseball match between the Auburns and the Peterboroughs to-morrow afternoon, promises to be a very hot game. A great deal of excitement has been started since the side bet of $25.00 was made, and both teams will do their prettiest to pull down the coin. The Auburns are putting up a great game this year, and giving McCurry great support. He is very speedy and has good control, so a close hard game can be expected. The game wil lstart at 3 o'clock sharp.

McCabe & Kehoe, p; Connors, 1b; Mulhall, 2b; Earls, 3b; Parnell, ss; Grady, lf; Scott, cf; Sheridan, rf; Graham, c; the above team will represent the locals to-morrow.

He has made arrangements with the Toronto Cricket Club to play here on Saturday of next week against the local Seniors. Of course the Peterborough Seniors have been out of existance as a Club for several years, but Mr. Culverwell has seen most of the old members and they have promised to turn out for a game. Then in the evening it is Mr. Culverwell's intention to have an informal supper for the two teams. All this is being done by Mr. Culverwell with the object of reviving cricket in Peterborough, and he should receive every assistance from the town.

THE TURF.

How Cresceus beat the record.

A despatch from Cleveland says: Amid the enthusiastic cheers of nearly ten thousand people, Cresceus, the world's champion trotting stallion, again demonstrated that he is the peer of all troters by trotting a mile this afternoon over the Grenville track in 2.02 3-4. This establishes a new world's trotting record for both sexes, replacing the former world's record of 2.03 1-4, held by The Abbott.

The conditions connected with this remarkable performance were anything but conductive to fast time, as, owing to the heavy rains of last night the track was not in the best of condition to-day, and it was about 6.30 p.m. before it was in sufficiently good shape.

Few horsemen looked for a mile better than 2.05. After having been given several preliminary miles, Geo. Ketcham came out with the stallion to attempt what seemed an impossible feat. Ketcham nodded for the word on the third score, the horse trotting like a machine.

Accompanied by a runner, the chestnut stallion fairly flew, to the quarter, the timers' watches registered just 30 seconds.

As Cresceus swung into the back stretch he was joined by a second runner, and although many predicted that the footing was such as would retard his speed, he reached the half in 1.01. As the time was hung out the immense crowd broke out in cheers, as it was evident that the mile would be a fast one.

The three-quarter pole was reached in 1.31 3-4, and as the great stallion trotted into the stretch, a runner on either side, his frictionless, machine-like stride was fairly eating up the distance.

Never faltering, notwithstanding the terrific clip, he fairly flew to the wire, being sustained only by his indomitable courage and almost human intelligence, not being touched once by the whip, his sole urging being the driver's voice and the thundering hoof beats of the accompanying runners.

As the time for the mile was announced—2.02 3-4—and the immense crowd realized that a new world's record had been established, Ketcham and his favourite stallion were tendered an ovation such as has been but seldom witnessed on a track. Thousands of enthusiastic people rushed out on the track, and Ketcham was lifted from the sulky and carried to the grand stand on the shoulders of admirers. Cheer after cheer rent the air, and the name of Cresceus was upon the lips of everyone present.

"Ketcham," "Ketcham," yelled the crowd, and the owner of the sturdy son of Robert McGregor was almost carried to the judges' stand where he made a little speech.

Cresceus now not only holds the world's trotting record for both sexes, but last week at the Detroit grand circuit meeting by trotting in 2.06 3-4 and 2.05 in his race against Charley Herr, secured the world's record for the two fastest heats ever trotted in a race, his second mile in 2.05 also being a new world's record for the fastest mile ever trotted. Last September Cresceus trotted to the world's stallion record of 2.04 over this track. His remarkable and almost phenomenal performance to-day was a fitting climax for one of the most successful race meetings ever held in Cleveland.

VACATIONITIS.

"About this time of the year," said the doctor, "I have any number of patients who come to consult me with symptoms of a disease that I can only diagnose as vacationistis."

"These are the conscientious folks who will not allow themselves to take a vaction unless they are commanded to do so by their family physician. They like to pose as working themselves to death without any thought of rest; but if they can only get a doctor to tell them that they need an ocean voyage, or a few weeks in the mountains they are off like birds, and bore their friends to death telling them that they haven't had a vacation in ten years. Sometimes it is twenty, but ten is a good average.

"Then there are other people so situated that they cannot get away from business without a doctor's certificate, and they cultivate a list of symptoms which is worse than any ever printed in a patent medicine circular. When they get a really imposing set of symptoms they come in and see me, looking troubled and giving me the whole bunch without stopping to take breath. Loss of appetite is the principal complaint; then insomnia, furred tongue, headache and a general disinclination to work.

"Sometimes the patient thinks his heart is in bad working order, or that the liver or lungs are in poor shape, but the main thing is that he wants to be ordered out of town. If I suggest some simple tonic or a little picnic, the vacationist patient looks sad and serious, and tells me in confidence that he is working too hard, and needs a change.

"It is quite difficult to size up the exact kind of trip that each one wants. It doesn't do to prescribe the mountains for a man who is set on the seashore, or either one of these for a man who wants to cross the ocean.

"You can always tell the man who has been sent away for a complete recovery by the way he takes in everything that is going when he gets out of town. He doesn't rest for a minute. He loops the loops, and bicycles and plays golf, and dances and climbs mountains as though he never had a chance to exercise before. But its all play, and that is what the vacationist patient is really after."

WEAKNESS
OF MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental wrecks than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee bond to that effect. We would warn you sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.

Don't Let your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. Our New Method Treatment will Stop all Unnatural Losses, Purify the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make a man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure Drains, Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Chest, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. No cutting or operations. No detention from business. Everything confidential. Consultation Free. Books Free. Question Blank Free for Home Treatment.

A WINGED HUSTLER.

A Particular Mosquito That Is Positively Treacherous.

"I may be put down as a bug on the mosquito question," said a man, "but this does not hinder me from unburdening my observations whenever I think they are of sufficient public importance. For instance, I conceive that every man ought to want to know as much as possible about the habits of the insect which is still playing such an important part in the scientific discussions of the day. I am certain that most persons feel the same keen delight about the mosquito which I feel since the insect has rushed to the front as the main factor in the spread of certain contagions.

"I have found a sneaking member among these winged hustlers, and he is positively treacherous. He is a silent member. He never sings. Of course one-half of the mosquitoes do not sing, but the particular mosquito I am discussing does not fail to sing because he can't sing, but he simply does not sing lest he let his victim know just what he is up to. Singing would spoil the game. He could not carry out his plans if he went about his business singing, so he says nothing. Now, here is the curious thing about this mosquito. In the first place, after one is snugly tucked away in bed he will slip silently under the cover and begin his quest for food. He is an industrious fellow and a quiet worker and generally succeeds in landing a couple of juicy corpuscles before leaving his victim. I have found as many as half a dozen of these mosquitoes under the covering of my bed at one time, and I have observed that they are quite as dexterous with their lance as the older and better known types."

A Father's Confession.

"My dear," said the fair girl's father, "I listened to your graduation essay with a great deal of interest."

"Did you?" she rejoined coolly.

"Yes, and I want to say that I have been doing you an injustice and that I am sorry for it. I used to think you were worrying about what Susie Simpkins was going to wear or whether Charlie Chumpkins was going to call when all this time you were pondering on the ultimate destiny of the human race!"—Washington Star.

The Main Attraction.

"What sort of place have you found in the country? Good beds?"

"Worst I ever tried."

"Good table?"

"Abominable."

"Prices low?"

"Ridiculously high."

"Then why do you stay there?"

"Because they've got the best golf links in the country!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Music Cure.

Bookkeeper—Yes, sir.

Employer—Well, go off somewhere and stay until you have whistled the whole thing through ten times; then, if you think you've had enough of it, you can come back.—Chicago Record-Herald.

According to Their Rent.

"You are not in the same class with me," scornfully declared the nickel plated safety pin.

"Oh, you haven't any cause to be stuck up," retorted the ordinary pin. "Speaking of classes, some of us have occupied chairs in the foremost schools and colleges."—Philadelphia Press.

What the Story Teaches.

The teacher was telling the story of the goose that wanted to be a swan and was mocked for it.

"And now, what's the moral of it?" she asked.

"A person should be satisfied with being a goose," answered the dunce of the class.—Philadelphia Times.

Her Idea of It.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I wish you would save up your money and buy a yacht."

"What for?"

"We need so many things for the table. And winning races seems such a cheap way to get silverware."—Washington Star.

Cruelty.

Any one troubled with boils, pimples, rashes, festering sores or any chronic or malignant skin disease, should use Burdock Blood Bitters externally and take internally. It will cure where others fail.

PITH AND POINT.

Very few people want to know the truth unless it fits their prejudice.

Every one who doesn't like you is looking for a chance to laugh at you.

You know a whole lot if you know enough to know you don't know anything.

When a boy is not invited to a party, he hangs around the outside to see how things are going.

Every one is some kind of a sinner. The employee too honest to take a postage stamp will steal his employer's time.

Be sensible with your children. When you want them to do a thing, tell them why. Don't tell them they must do it or take a beating, or that they must do it because you say so.

DUTY AND PLEASURE.

The Words of Emilie Arsenault in Acknowledging His Gratitude to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cured Him of Dyspepsia, Like They Have Cured so Many Others—He is Recommending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to His Friends.

Again comes the news of a cure of chronic Dyspepsia by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, in the Quebec village of Ruisseau Le Blanc.

Emilie Arsenault suffered with all the misery of bad digestion and stomach weakness for many years. He was unable to eat without suffering for it afterwards. No matter how hungry, how much in need of food he was, he knew that whatever he ate would lie like lead in his stomach, and pain him for hours after.

All sorts of remedies and medicines were tried before Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. All sorts of remedies and medicines but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, utterly failed to help him. No wonder he couples the words "pleasure" and "duty" in expressing his gratitude for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the medicine that did help him.

"I feel it at once a pleasure and a duty to say that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proven a blessing to me. I suffered from the miserable malady Dyspepsia for many years, during which I was unable to eat anything without pain.

"I tried all the other medicines and treatments without relief. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets helped me from the first box. I no longer suffered after meals. I found I could digest food which before using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I daren't touch.

"I am now entirely free from any symptom of Dyspepsia, can relish and digest all wholesome food, and can say I am highly satisfied with my experience of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Holland Customs.

Holland has some peculiar customs. In many towns bulletins are affixed to the doors of houses in which persons are sick in order that their friends may be apprised of the state of their health without knocking or ringing, and in Haarlem the birth of a child is announced by means of a small placard adorned with red silk and lace.

A Reasonable Conductor.

Pikey—And just because you had lost your nickel the conductor made you get off the car and walk all the way home?

Bilkey—Oh, no. He only put me off. I could have sat by the roadside all night if I had wanted to.—Baltimore World.

The Chinese began to write books before they migrated from the region south of the Caspian sea. Two of their greatest literary productions are a dictionary in 5,020 volumes and an encyclopedia in 22,037 volumes.

TALK OF MARRIAGE.

It Is Proper For the Man, but Not For the Girl, Apparently.

A man may remark on his intention to marry at some indefinite future time, when prudence or other considerations may make it possible or advisable, without having, as a rule, to run the gantlet of a chorus of impertinent and stupid would be witty remarks. But should a girl be bold enough, or, rather, natural and simple enough, to say the same thing what would be the result? Why, every one knows that she would be promptly sneered out of countenance.

And why? Is it immodest for a woman to express a determination to enter into a state which we are being continually reminded is a natural and honorable state, while it is modest and proper for a man to do so? Such a distinction would never be drawn except for the "cheapness" to which reference has been made.

If a man wants to marry, he can marry. If the first woman he asks refuses him, he has only to ask a second or perhaps a third or fourth. It would be safe to guarantee that within a month any man of fairly respectable life and position and appearance who cared to make the experiment could marry in his own class, could marry probably a woman much superior to himself.

But what about the girl who intends to marry "some day?" Is she not in a very different position from the man? Here is a girl of good character—much better than the man's, probably—average intelligence, average good looks. Theoretically she is free to marry whom she will, but is she? If she receives one distinct offer of marriage, she has had more than her share, according to the probable average.

The fact that by an unwritten law a woman must not take, and, indeed, does not want to take, the initiative has very little to do with the extremely limited choice which modern conditions impose upon English women.

You are Tired.

Your colour is not good. Restless one moment; fretful and blue the next. The world's out of joint. You are out of joint with the world. Not temper, not feeling, not weakness. Neglect is unwise. You grow steadily worse. Get good rich blood, then feel new vigour, strength, buoyancy. You'll see a dozen things to do; you will do them too, if you use Ferrozone. It sharpens the appetite, and you enjoy your food; you get colour and old time strength comes back. That's because Ferrozone aids digestion, makes red blood. Ferrozone is strength for the nerves and vigour for the brain. Be sure of the name, Ferrozone. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Swallowed Two Pounds of Stone.

Stones do not form part of the recognized diet of the cormorant, but one of these birds in the National Zoological park in Washington had a craving which could be satisfied only by eating two pounds of stones. The keeper's attention was attracted to the bird because after having once sat down it couldn't get up. He was picked up, and then the stones were heard rattling inside of him. An official connected with the park decided that something must be done, and he promptly cut the cormorant open and relieved him of his burden. One of the stones, of irregular shape, was 3½ inches long. The incision was sewed up, and for five days the bird got along all right, the wound healing finely, but at the end of that time the cormorant grew restive and pulled out the stitches with his hooked bill. As a consequence of opening up the wound he died.

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increases the weight of thin babies and delicate children also.

DRY SHAVING.

China Claims That It Causes the Beard to Disappear.

"Dry shaving has been a blessing to China and in less than 300 years has almost removed beards from the faces of the men of the empire," observed an intelligent Chinaman to a Washington Star reporter. "Originally the Chinese had heavy beards. This is easily verified by an examination of any of the old prints of Chinamen, for all of them show long bearded men. In time the people found out that there was no particular use for a beard and that the wearing of it was expensive outside of the time actually occupied in trimming or shaving it. How many Americans of today are forced to spend several hours a week in a barber's chair? Many men that I know, Americans and Europeans as well, spend 20 minutes in the barber's chair every day.

"The Chinaman of the olden times—the kind of Chinaman who figures as a pirate in your prints, for the good Chinaman never seems to have got his picture in your books at all until within the last 50 years at most—always wore a long beard in reality as well as in the pictures. But even he found out that there was no necessity for it. The learned men of the empire were asked to consider the matter, and they arrived at the conclusion that dry shaving was to some extent a remedy. Anyhow, official edicts were issued giving this information. The old fellows who had beards of course were not in it, and they lived out their days and passed out of existence with full beards, but the young were asked to 'dry shave.'

"Thus the reform started, and in five or six generations of people the beard has practically disappeared, so that the average Chinaman of today does not have to devote over one-half hour in a month to keep his face hairless. In the next two generations beards are expected to disappear absolutely. It took time to bring this about, but in the life of a nation such a thing as a century should not be allowed to count much. I think beards would disappear from Americans and Europeans in five generations of people if the people wanted to have them disappear."

Shakespeare on Staten Island.

A Staten Islander with a handsome home near the guns of Fort Wadsworth is a Shakesperean scholar. But he has recently abandoned his custom while walking the lonely road from the ferry to his home of reciting long passages from the works of his favorite author. This is how it happened. The sun had just set on a recent evening, and the student was reciting dramatically the scene from "King John" in which Hubert calls forth the executioners from an inner chamber to murder the young princes. He waved his hand and shouted:

"Come forth and do as I bid you."

A half drunken negro who was concealed in the hedge came forth and pleaded:

"Say, boss, I ain't done nothing. I was just sleeping 'cause I was drunk."

The Shakespearean scholar explained that he had not called the negro.

"I dunno, boss. If you say you didn't call me, you must be drunker than I am."

Not the Honey He Wanted.

The Kansas City Journal tells this story: "Frank Anderson was for years a well known commercial traveler who made Galena. He was passionately fond of honey, and the proprietor of the Galena hotel, at which he always stopped, always had some on hand for him. On one trip Anderson took his wife along, and as he approached Galena he mentioned to her that he was getting to a place where he could have honey. When the pair were sitting at the supper table that night, no honey appeared, and Anderson said sharply to the head waiter, 'Where is my honey?' The waiter smiled and said: 'You mean the little black haired one? Oh, she don't work here now!'"

A Slight Deficit.

A weather stained, creaking wagon drew up in front of a photographer's establishment in a Georgia town. Beneath its body a lean hound came to a standstill. A man clad in jeans trousers, homespun shirt and guiltless of coat or vest emerged from the vehicle's anterior extremity. Settling his soft slouch hat on the back of his head, he adjusted his lone gallus and gave the lines to the wife and baby within. Behind these, from the dome of canvas beyond, peered, big eyed and solemn, numerous editions of the lord and master.

Entering the shop, the stranger paused before a case of sample photographs and, pointing to one, said, "Mister, what d'yer charge fer takin picters like that?"

"Three dollars a dozen," replied the clerk.

Thrusting his hands into his pockets, he turned thoughtfully toward the wagonful of offspring. "Waal, I reckon I'll have ten—wait a bit," he said softly to himself. "I ain't got but 'leven."

One Passenger Too Many.

A good story is going the rounds of the offices of the Metropolitan Street Railway company concerning the wonderful presence of mind displayed recently by a new conductor on one of the company's trolley cars. This particular car was bowling along up Broadway recently when it was hailed and boarded by a company inspector.

The official hurriedly counted the passengers in the car and found that there were nine. Then he cast his eye up to the register and found that there had been only eight fares rung up. He disclosed his identity to the new conductor and called attention to the discrepancy.

Slowly and painfully the new hand counted over his passengers and then scanned his register.

"Begorra, an you're roight, sir," he said and promptly stopped the car.

"Say," he demanded, addressing the passengers in an authoritative manner, "wan o' youse fellows'll hov to git off the car-r."

Cleaning Oil Paintings.

An art journal suggests raw potatoes to clean oil paintings. Have a few potatoes at hand, each cut in halves. The fresh surface is dampened slightly with cold water and used to rub the canvas. As the potatoes show soil the surface is sliced off and the rubbing continued. This process will create a little lather, which should be wiped off as fast as it accumulates with a clean, damp sponge. When the whole canvas is cleaned, it should be washed over lightly with clean water from which the chill has been taken and finally the water carefully wiped off with an old clean silk handkerchief. Raw potatoes to clean paintings are frequently in hearsay evidence, but this description of the process may be of value. It is suggested by way of reasonable caution that the experiment should be tried first upon a canvas of trifling value and upon one corner of that.

The Collection.

While lecturing his congregation rather strongly on a recent Sunday about slack attendance and small collections a minister of a church in an English city used the following eloquent and forcible sentence: "Yes, brethren, our collection of a little over £3 last Sunday included no fewer than 500 halfpennies. We all know about the widow's mite, and I am sure we are very glad to receive it; but I don't think there are 500 widows in this congregation!"

A Cool Head.

"It was in the terrific log jam in Grand river, Michigan, in 1884," says Leslie's Popular Monthly. "The men under the leadership of one John Walsh were driving piles to hold the feeble barrier which alone held the logs in check. After working through two sleepless nights and the intervening day in plain view of death the men became demoralized. There came a time when John saw that the limit of their endurance was reached. 'Boys,' said he irrelevantly, 'let's have a smoke.' So they sat down on the logs and for ten minutes puffed tobacco quietly into the air. 'Now,' said John, knocking the ashes from his pipe, 'let's get something done.' The crew responded to a man."

THE ALPHABET'S MEETING.

The alphabet met and said that "they Were not arranged in a proper way."
A had stood at the head too long;
It was not right; it was utterly wrong.
"For you all know and can plainly see
That place belongs to me," said G.
"You take the head, indeed!" said J;
"That place is meant for my dear K."
"Tut, tut, tut! Well, well, well!
I'll stand there myself then," said L.
"Excuse us, please, we think that we Have a word to say," said B, C, D.

"Suppose you have," said F as he Softly whispered a word to E.
"Who'll prevent, I'd like to know,
Standing head M, N or O?"
"We've listened in silence to all of you
And now will 'head' you," said P and Q.
"Our impression is, you had better try,"
Then angrily spoke both H and I.
"How rude and coarse!" said R, S, T.
"The 'airs' of some!" said U and V.
"Would drive one mad," said W, X, Y, Z.
But, after all, the letters still stand
A at the head, at the foot Z.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nervilina as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies its power over pain is simply beyond relief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it and see if this is not true. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

What Hurt Him.

"I shall sue him for libel," said the man who is making large sums of money out of the credulity of the masses.

"For what?"

"He called me a common swindler. It's pretty hard for a man who has worked as hard as I have to be original to be referred to as 'common.'"

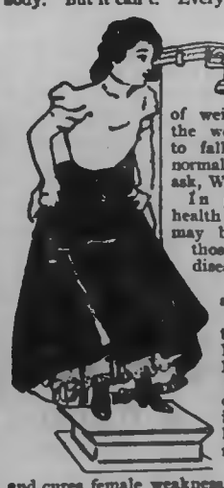
WOMAN'S WEIGH

Does not always keep pace with woman's will. There are energetic, home-loving women who by sheer force of will keep themselves going, and fancy that strength of will can take the place of strength of body. But it can't. Every day will see a loss of strength, and that loss will be indicated by a loss of weight. When the weight begins to fall below the normal it is time to ask, Why?



In general, ill health in women may be traced to those womanly diseases which sap the strength and undermine the vitality. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. Where the disease is marked by loss of flesh, there is a steady regaining of weight coincident with the cure which proves the renewal of health to be thorough and permanent.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. John Graham, of 2018 Plumb Street (Frankford), Philadelphia, Penna. "I had a very bad attack of dropsy which left me with heart trouble, and also a very weak back. At times I was so bad that I did not know what to do with myself. I came to Philadelphia two years ago, and picking up one of your little books one day began to read what your 'Favorite Prescription' had done for others. I determined to try it myself. I took seven bottles, and to-day I am a strong, well woman, weighing 163 pounds. Have gained 29 pounds since I started to use your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

SOME FACTS ABOUT YOUR HEART.

The human heart is composed entirely of muscles and weighs about nine ounces. It is the toughest organ in the body. It beats 70 times a minute, or 36 million times a year, and pumps 2½ ounces of blood each time. The most common ailment of the heart is weakness. This is caused by over exertion, the result of work, bicycle riding, breathing impure air or the excessive use of either tobacco or stimulants. The symptoms of this weakness are palpitation and irregular beating of the heart, smothering sensation, flushed face, burning feet, and pains in the breast. The best method of treatment for this weakness is to purify the blood, tone and strengthen the muscles, and build up the system generally.

This is just what you do when you take Merrill's System Tonic, a remedy manufactured by Merrill, the Druggist of Brantford, from a formula suggested by three of the most able physicians on the American continent, and dispensed with the same care given any of the thousands of prescriptions dispensed annually by this druggist. During the year 1900 more than 20,000 bottles of this valuable remedy were sold, and so gratifying and convincing are the results that you need no hesitancy in giving it a trial.

THE RAILROAD SCARE

ODD EFFECTS OF THE FIRST SIGHT OF A LOCOMOTIVE.

Some of the People of the South Hid Behind Trees In 1833, When the Iron Horse Went By—The Country's Earliest Railroad.

America cannot lay claim to the first locomotive or the first railroad. That great honor lies with England. Yet Yankee genius was not very far behind her, for, when George Stephenson launched his first real locomotive, the Rocket, on the Liverpool and Manchester road in 1829, the first spike had been driven on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, July 4, 1828, by Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence. This was the first road started in the United States, and in 1830 it had reached Ellicott Mills, 13 miles from Baltimore.

But the south can claim the honor of completing the longest railroad in the world at that date, being the old Charleston and Hamburg road, now a part of the South Carolina and Georgia system, which was begun in 1830, and by October, 1833, it had 137 miles of track in operation. In a letter from Mr. Samuel C. Clarke of Georgia, a kinsman of the writer, who attained the extreme age of 91 years and who had seen the beginning and the completion of this road, he thus gives his experience upon first sight of a locomotive:

"One day while going down to Charleston with a party of gentlemen to attend the races as we approached the city we saw in the distance the new railroad, finished some 10 or 12 miles out of Charleston. It was built upon piles, longer or short, according to the nature of the ground. Sometimes in crossing a ravine the rails were 20 feet from the surface. Our track ran near this elevated road, and soon a horrid shriek as from 20 panthers was heard in the woods. By this time we were nervous. Elephants and lions we had heard of, and some of us had seen them, but what monster was this whose screams we heard? Presently it came in sight, flying aloft through the air and breathing fire and smoke, and our frightened steeds became unmanageable, and in fact I think that some of our party were as badly frightened as their horses. If any of my readers are old enough to remember the introduction of locomotives and how they felt at first sight of them, they will perhaps understand our sensations that day in the pine woods.

"A mile or two farther on we came to a broken wagon by the side of the road, and near it sat a Georgia cracker smoking his pipe. On being asked what was his trouble he replied, 'Well, stranger, I've often hearn tell of nullification, and now I reckon I've saw it for true.'"

It is somewhat amusing now to read of the superstitious dread with which the inhabitants looked upon the building of these first railroads. Some thought the smoke of the continual passing trains would cause a pestilence or destroy all the crops along the road. Others were afraid to ride on the cars for fear of having their breath taken away, and the people in the cities objected to the railroad being built because they feared the smoke from the engines would soil the clothes which were hung out to dry.

Many are yet living who looked upon the terrible, screeching iron monster with awe and trepidation. Mr. Nat McGee of Ivy, Albemarle, tells a joke upon himself that when he heard the train coming he jumped from his horse and got behind a tree, where he viewed it for fear of being run over. Mr. W. T. Prout, who was taking a wagon load of produce to Richmond, when he reached Goffonville heard the whistle and terrible noise of the approaching train, and he and his companions were so scared that they sprang out, leaped the fence and ran across the field to a safe distance, leaving the wagon and team to its fate, but when the train appeared it was only an engine and one coach.

The first roadbeds were formed, as has been stated, by driving piles in the ground, upon the top of which were placed wooden stringers, in which were cut a groove for the wheels to run. These were called "wooden railroads" and at a distance appeared like the elevated railroads in the cities of the present day. The honor of this invention was contested between John Hartman of Scottsville, Va., and John Williams, an engineer of Ohio, but it did not prove a bonanza to either, for the wheels were constantly bouncing out of the groove, and the piles soon after gave place to solid dirt embankments, and strap iron rails were substituted for the wooden groove. But the grading was very imperfect and uneven, which made riding on one of these primitive railroads like going over a corduroy road in a springless wagon, with the cars bouncing over these rough rails to the jingling music of the windows.

Proved Her Nationality.

Recently a bent old lady entered one of the Salina street stores and upon being asked what she wished to see made reply in what the clerk judged to be an unknown language. A second inquiry proving no more satisfactory, the clerk excused herself and went in search of one of her colleagues who is of German descent.

"Oh, Miss L.," she entreated, "won't you come over to my counter for a minute? There's a poor old German lady there, and I can't understand a word she says."

Miss L. followed and, pausing before the stool on which the would be customer was seated, inquired in her sweetest tones:

"Are you a German?"

The "poor old German lady" raised her handkerchief to her lips and evidently extricated something from her mouth. Then, bending a look of the utmost scorn upon the clerk, she exclaimed in a rich and unmistakable brogue:

"Garman, is it? Indade an I'm not. But I've got a new set of false tathe, bad scran to thim! An now, if ye plase, will wan of yes wait on me?"

Entertaining Squirrels.

Alive in his native woods the squirrel is an amusing little fellow, and he will entertain you by the hour if you will let him.

You probably become first aware of his presence by his dropping things on your head. Then he plays hide and seek with you as he zigzags up a tree. While he pauses for thought, or possibly to wash his face, another squirrel comes scudding along the branches of a neighboring tree, and away they go, one chasing the other, jumping from branch tip to branch tip, racing up and down the trunk and making the bark fly. Sometimes one loses his footing and falls headlong 20 or 30 feet to the ground, landing there with a force that makes him bounce. You think every grain of sense must be knocked out of the small body, but he only blinks a bit, and, after a moment spent perhaps in letting the stars set that must have suddenly risen before his eyes, he streaks it up the nearest tree after the other fellow. Long after they have disappeared from sight you hear them chattering together up among the leaves like two watchmen's rattles.

Her Opinion of Asparagus.

It seems that asparagus is not grown in the tropics—at least it was not grown at Rio de Janeiro when a certain American gentleman, who had lived several years in the Brazilian capital, went with his wife and 8-year-old daughter to visit friends living near Buenos Ayres, a part of the continent where the climate is better adapted to the fruits and vegetables of the temperate regions.

At the first dinner after their arrival the visitors were treated to some fresh asparagus. The little 8-year-old daughter was likewise served with the asparagus, but she evidently did not think much of it as an article of food.

Her mother tried for some time to coax her to eat it. Finally the little girl, taken between the rudeness of whispering at the table and the rudeness of not eating her food, leaned over and, with a choking voice and quivering lip, whispered to her mother: "Mamma, it is not nice. It's raw at one end and rotten at the other."

Tests of Culture.

The chemist Liebig proposed to measure the standard of civilization by the consumption of soap, a creation which would put the inhabitants of north Holland at the head of all civilized nations. As a more reliable test Edmund About suggested the sale of steel pens, the socialist Bebel the frequency of reform meetings, Dr. Bernard the use of undergarments, a luxury unknown to the semicivilized tribes of Asia and South America; Professor Ebers the sale of postage stamps. The mileage of railroads per hundred square miles of territory might do in comparing countries of equal density of population.—Exchange.

PATRICK BOYLE DEAD.

The Editor of the Irish Canadian Succumbs to Heart Failure.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Mr. Patrick Boyle, the well-known editor of The Irish-Canadian, died yesterday morning at his home, 67 Isabella street. At 6 o'clock he arose and called his daughter Hattie, who told him it was too early yet to get up. He went down stairs for a moment and then returned to his bed. His daughter got up at 8.20 o'clock, and went to call him. She got no reply, and, entering the room, found him dead. Two doctors were immediately summoned, and said that death had resulted from heart failure.

Mr. Boyle, who was a prominent member of the Irish Land League, was born in Newport, County Mayo, Ireland, in 1832, and came to this country in 1844. He was one of the founders of the Catholic League, which exerted a great influence upon Ontario politics twenty years ago. About 1862 he established The Irish-Canadian, which for many years was recognized as the mouthpiece of the Irishmen in Canada. About five years ago the paper ceased publication, but was revived again a year ago. During the Land League movement Mr. Boyle exercised much influence upon his fellow countrymen.

Mr. Boyle leaves three daughters: Hattie, living at home; Julia, a nurse at Paterson, N. J., and Mrs. Dowdall.

A Tramp Consumed.

St. Marys, Aug. 2.—Fire broke out in the Garnett House stables about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. In a few minutes after the alarm was given, there were five streams of water playing on the building. The stables were completely gutted, but the surrounding buildings were saved. After the fire was subdued, the remains of a man, charred beyond recognition, were found in the ruins, thus confirming the theory of the origin of the fire being the work of some tramp, who had found shelter in the hay loft. There is no clue to his identity.

The body was later identified as George Engler, son of Christian Engler of the Township of Logan, a few miles from the town of Mitchell.

Premier Ross at Manchester.

London, Aug. 2.—Hon. G. W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, addressed a meeting of the British Empire League at Manchester Wednesday evening. He made an eloquent appeal on behalf of the claims of Canada upon the interest of the British people, and declared that British muscle, brain and money were needed to adequately develop Canadian resources.

Struck By Bucket of Coal.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—As the R. and O. steamer Toronto was passing the dock Wednesday, the swell caused a bucket of coal on the schooner Two Brothers to upset into the hold, where two men were busy shovelling. FIT FOR STYLE

Style is distinct from fit, inasmuch as a garment may be fitting the figure clean and smooth everywhere, and yet be quite featureless and devoid of style.

Style is what may be termed the beauty of outline in the run of the different seams and harmonious arrangement of parts pleasing to the eye.

THE BRIGAND BOERS

Caused the Liberal Leader to Bait the Colonial Secretary.

HON. MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY

The Best Boers Admit Their Defeat—The Irreconcilables Becoming Brigands and Murderers—Farm Burning Abandoned, and Kitchener Adequately Dealing With the Problem.

London, Aug. 3.—A discussion arose in the House of Commons last night over the Colonial Office appropriations, and it gave the opponents of the government ample opportunity to bait Mr. Chamberlain, while making a motion pro forma to reduce by £100 the vote out of which the Colonial Secretary's salary will be paid.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, said that in view of the patience with which the nation had for 21 months endured Mr. Chamberlain's policy in South Africa, he thought it opportune to secure a statement from the Colonial Secretary as to the war situation.

He went on to point out that Cape Colony was now invaded and overrun with Boers, and he asked what prospect there was of repelling the invaders; what the condition of Cape Colony would be after the war; what was the prospect of famine as a result of the Government's "policy of devastation," and where was Cape Colony's constitution, which appeared to him to be under lock and key since the declaration of martial law.

Mr. Chamberlain's Reply.

Mr. Chamberlain replied that farm burning had been entirely abandoned and replaced by the policy of concentration camps. He contended that these were humane and satisfactory institutions, as had been shown by the fact that thousands of Boers came into them voluntarily.

Continuing, he said "The Government have the best reasons to believe that a vast majority of the Boers acknowledge themselves beaten and would gladly surrender and resume peaceful pursuits but for the comparative handful of irreconcilables who are carrying on a guerilla war that is rapidly degenerating into brigandage and absolute murder. Lord Kitchener is adequately dealing with the problem by establishing blockhouse cordons, within which the peaceably inclined can safely settle and be protected."

Regarding the announcement by Lord Kitchener that Commander Kritzinger had declared his intention to shoot all natives in British employ, whether armed or unarmed, Mr. Chamberlain said the Government had telegraphed Lord Kitchener to inform the Boer leaders that such acts were contrary to civilized usage, and that all guilty persons of this class, if captured, would be court-martialled and executed.

Mr. Chamberlain's declaration was received with loud cheers.

"There seems to be an impression that we have come to some sort of an agreement with the Boers," said Mr. Chamberlain, in another portion of his speech, "that natives are not to be employed in this war, but there is no such agreement.

"Incursions into protected districts must be more severely dealt with, if there is to be 'sniping' of soldiers from behind hedges and even of women."

"Rubbish," cried an Irish member.

Mr. Chamberlain retorted that he met some ladies who had been assaulted in this way.

"If things have changed from bad to worse in Cape Colony," he continued, "it is because the Cape rebels have found rebellion a cheap, interesting and even amusing performance. Then, there has been mistaken leniency and this was the policy in the past.

"Botha, Dewet and Schalkburger do not say that the war was caused by the raid. They say they are fighting for their independenre. It is nonsense to speak of offering terms to men who say it must be a fight to a finish. This is not the policy of the Government."

Sir Edward Grey, Liberal Imperialist, expressed bitter disappointment at the tone of Mr. Chamberlain's speech, although he agreed with the general military policy of the Government. He said the Colonial Secretary had dealt carelessly with the subject of employing native troops, and had not distinguished between Africans and highly trained Indian troops.

John Redmond said Mr. Chamberlain's speech was "a candid if somewhat brutal exposition of the Government's policy," and he prayed to God that the resistance of the Boers might be strengthened.

The debate was continued for another hour after Mr. Chamberlain's speech, and the amendment to reduce the salary of the Colonial Secretary was rejected by a vote of 154 to 70.

The House then took up other subjects, and was in session until 5.15 a. m. Saturday, when they adjourned.

KRUGER TO BOTHA ET AL.

Tells Them to Continue Fighting and Makes a Promise.

London, Aug. 3.—A despatch from Standerton, Transvaal, dated July 5, which had been stopped by the censor, has just been received here. It reads:

"Lord Kitchener met Louis Botha and his secretary, Dewet, by appointment, near Plat Rand, a few days ago. They brought Kruger's reply to Botha's surrender proposal. It was: Botha, Dewet, Delarey, Steyn, continue fighting. Alleviation will be sent when needed. Enough for the present."

Mules to South Africa.

New Orleans, Aug. 3.—The British steamer Politician, which cleared yesterday for Cape Town, South Africa, will carry 925 horses for the British Government.

More Boer Prisoners.

Bermuda, Aug. 3.—The transport Manila has arrived with an additional number of Boers, to be detailed here as prisoners of war. Martial law has been proclaimed on Tucker's and Morgan's Islands.

Kruger's Tour.

London, Aug. 3.—"Mr. Kruger's American tour," says the Brussels correspondent of The Daily Mail, "will include visits to New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington and Chicago. Negotiations are about to begin for his reception by President McKinley."

Can't Make a List.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The Militia Department yesterday received a cable from the War Office stating that they had only nominal rolls and could not make a list therefrom of those Canadians entitled to clasps with their South African medals. This is a matter which the Imperial authorities will have to get from their officials in South Africa.

SUE SHIPPERS FOR WAR DELAY.

Case in London Court Raises Question of Kruger's Ultimatum.

London, Aug. 3.—In the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice yesterday, Messrs. Mackie, Dunn & Co. sued Donald Currie & Co. and Bucknall Brothers for delay in the delivery of a cargo of foodstuffs, shipped from New York Oct. 18, 1899, on the British steamer Mahona, consigned to Pretoria.

The defendants relied on an exception clause in the bill of lading, which provided against "restraint by princes, rulers of people." The plaintiffs urged that, since the ultimatum of the Transvaal to Great Britain was issued, Oct. 11, 1899, the shippers must have known that a state of war existed. The defendants denied this, saying that the Boer ultimatum was not published in the United States until November. The cargo was seized by the British warship Partridge, in Algoa Bay, and was not delivered till March, 1900. The court reserved its decision.

FATHER AND CHILD.

Drowned in Toronto—Found Clasped in Each Other's Arms.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Daniel Roach and his eleven-year-old daughter, Gertrude, were drowned at Turner's Baths yesterday morning. They had gone out in a canoe, and at a distance of about 500 yards from shore he was teaching the girl to swim, having her under his arm. A sudden weakness caused him to let go his hold. He was a sufferer from heart disease. He secured the girl again, however, and swam with her for a short distance, then lost his hold of her once more and she went down. He grasped her the second time but she gripped him about the neck, so that he was unable to swim and could not disengage her. Thus they both sank and were drowned.

For an hour George Ferguson, R. Langley and W. Duck grappled for the bodies and at last found them, the child still having her arms around her father's neck and he with his arms about the child. Roach was a resident of North Toronto and had been staying with Albert Cooper at the Island.

THE BOYCOTT LIFTED.

London Daily Mail Wins a Notable and Popular Victory.

London, Aug. 3.—The contest between the War Office and The Daily Mail has terminated in a victory for the paper.

The War Office had not only cut off The Daily Mail's South African casualty lists and other official news, but had ordered the various news agencies not to supply The Daily Mail with official information distributed from the War Office.

The Daily Mail sued the news agencies under its contracts to compel them to deliver the news.

The War Office then held back bulletins until near the hour for the morning papers to go to press. This raised a storm of protest from the Provincial papers, and the War Office finally capitulated and called off the boycott.

The experiment at press-gagging aroused bitter criticism among all classes of papers at a time when the Government was not too popular and could ill afford to aggravate popular discontent.

Mr. Brodrick's personal bereavement in the death of his wife precludes a journalistic celebration of his defeat, but there is much quiet satisfaction in Fleet street over the result.

NO GROUND FOR SCARE.

Manitoba Wheat Crop All Right—Interview With Deputy Minister.

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—Farmers in from the country to the Fair yesterday say the crops are glorious. Cutting begins in a very large number of districts next week. The reports regarding serious damage by rust is a fake.

Interviewed yesterday regarding the condition of the wheat crop in Manitoba and the Territories, Mr. Hugh McKellar, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said: "The Manitoba crop is all right. We pay no attention to statements by parties interested in the option market, who send out reports to influence the price. The provincial government reports are obtained from trustworthy farmers in each district, and, so far this year, not an unfavorable report has been received by the department.

"Manitoba has asked for 20,000 men to harvest her crop, and all will be required; and I believe the demand will not be met with this great number. Wages will be exceptionally high and the work will last until winter sets in."

KHARTOUM TO THE RED SEA.

Lord Cromer Believes That a Railway Should Connect the Two.

London, Aug. 3.—Lord Cromer, British diplomatic agent in Egypt, in the course of a minute attached to a report of Sir William E. Garstin, Under Secretary of State for Public Works in Egypt, dealing with the irrigation projects along the Upper Nile, supports a suggestion that a railway should be built from Khartoum to the Red Sea, rather than irrigation works.

Sir William Garstin concludes, as a result of the prolonged study he has given to the irrigation problem, that the vast plains of the Soudan stretching from the right bank of the Nile toward the Atbara, and from the left bank toward the White Nile, can be made fertile by utilizing the waters of Lake Tsanau, which lies within the dominions of Emperor Menelik, and can be used only with his consent. No estimate is made of the cost of the works that would be necessary.

Lake Island Sinks.

Duluth, Aug. 3.—A remarkable phenomenon is reported from the Apostle Islands, off Chequamegon Bay. Steamboat Island, one of the group, disappeared some time during the recent storm, and now lies several feet under water, in the form of a rocky reef. The island formerly stood some distance above the level of Lake Superior, was of sand and rock and supported a heavy growth of trees.

CANADA AND HER RIVALS.

Our Exhibits Compared With Our Neighbours at Buffalo.

SOME GOOD WORK.

Special Departments in Which we Excel.

INEQUALITIES ARE APPARENT

Mineral, Fruit, Forestry and Dairy Exhibits Described—Attentive Representatives Some Comparisons With American Exhibits.

Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, July 25.—Canadian effort towards making a good showing in the Exposition is confined to four or five departments. Display is made of agricultural products, of fruits, of minerals, and of forestry products, while in less utilitarian fields we can show in the Ethnological Department a carefully selected and well presented set of objects of anthropological and archaeological interest, and in the Art Building a room of Canadian pictures and some specimens of the work of Canadian sculptors.

THE MINERALS OF ONTARIO.

The mineral exhibit sent by the Province of Ontario has attracted a considerable degree of attention, and it has elicited a great many expressions of surprise from Canadians as well as from American visitors. The quantity of specimens shown is large, and Mr. Speller, who is in charge, has been unable to find room in the space allotted him for the whole of his materials. A couple of overflow exhibits appear on the steps of the building, and as they are carefully labelled with the name of the province of their origin they form a species of additional advertisement. In the exhibit proper Mr. Speller has made a very creditable use of the means at his disposal, and has an unusually attractive display. The purpose is commercial and the economic minerals are given much prominence. One feature is a huge wall map showing the geology of Ontario, of the newer, as well as the older, parts of the Province. This is up-to-date and impressive, as well as useful. Near it is another huge wall map provided by Mr. Clergue, showing the economic situation of Sault Ste. Marie. Among the minerals shown a place, a high interest is held by the display of arsenic from the Hastings region. The extent of these deposits and the quality of the products make them of great value in the present condition of affairs in the manufacturing world. One manufacturer told Mr. Speller that he has usually bought arsenic imported from Europe, as the best grade of this article is not supposed to be produced on this continent. Recently, by an accidental transaction, he received some of this Canadian arsenic, and only discovered its origin by being informed of the circumstance, there being no appreciable difference in the article. The mill from which the exhibit comes is the only one in America producing arsenic of this quality.

The exhibit of corundum, which is very good, has also aroused much interest among American business men. The Georgia deposits, the only rivals of the Ontario properties, are becoming exhausted, and manufacturers who need this product are beginning to cast about for a source of future supply. The exhibit of concentrating copper ores has won praise from Montana men in the same line of business. The nickel copper ores are also shown, the Canadian Copper Company making a very complete show. Our iron ores are set forth in this Exposition as they have never been before. The quality of building stone shown is remarkably high. One of the surprises of the exhibit is the fine appearance of syenite specimens from the north shore of Lake Superior. It has been proved to take a polish pronounced by an American monument worker to be equal to that of the finest Norwegian syenite, which is now imported for special purposes. The Ontario marbles also show well, and one circumstance worthy of note is the fact that a Montreal architect was surprised to find that his country contained marble of such quality, and asked where it could be got. A good display of gold ores is made.

ONTARIO'S FRUITS.

The fruit exhibit is also on commercial lines. An especial feature is the display of apples, about 30 or 40 standard varieties. The aim of Mr. Bunting of St. Catharines, who is in charge of this department, has been to show economic rather than fancy varieties. The Northern Spy tak first place, and the exhibit of this apple has found great favour. Other varieties shown are:—Greenings, Spitzenbergens, Baldwins, Russets, Cranberries, Fallawaters, Seek-no-furthers, ect. These are, of course, cold-storage fruits, and it is worth noting that some apples are on exhibition and in good condition which were taken out of cold-storage on May 18 last. A rather active competition has been going on in the matter of fresh fruits, new material being brought in all the time, and so far the results have gone to show that Ontario is as early as any of the northern or western States. Strawberries, raspberries and small fruits generally have been very good. In all about 44 varieties of strawberries, over 40 varieties of gooseberries, 10 or 12 varieties of raspberries, 30 varieties of cherries, and 9 or 10 varieties of currants have been shown. Other exhibits shown are specimens of pickles, canned fruits, preserved fruits, wines, etc. The arrangement is neat and tasteful. The exhibit compares very favourably with those of American States which by reason of their climate can be fairly compared with Ontario.

SOME AMERICAN METHODS.

In this connection it may be remarked that California has a magnificent display of fruits. This is expected, in view of the great importance of the fruit industry of that State, but it is worthy of note that one railway which passes through the fruit region has spent about $50,000 on this display. It maintains a staff of men, permanently employed in advertising California fruits, and these men are constantly on the watch for unusually fine specimens to preserve and use as proofs of the quality of California fruits. On the other hand the exhibit of preserved fruit in the Ontario section is put up in ordinary gem jars, and was, as a matter of fact, put up for domestic use. The ingenious nature of the display, perhaps, has some influence, but preparedness is to be preferred to unreadiness.

OUR SHOWING IN FORESTRY.

In the log-built Forestry Building Ontario is represented by a display of timbers and woods, which, though plain, makes a very fine showing beside that of the others. An especial effort has been made to show the tree sections, and the judges seemed favourably impressed with this feature. A collection of birch woods from different parts of Ontario is shown, the purpose being to show its value in the making of furniture. Some companies make a show of turned work, and an exhibit of wood alcohol is also made. The Sault St. Marie works have an exhibit of dry pulp.

Mr. M. C. Swanson of Goderich is in charge. It should be noted that in all these special departments those in charge are very hard-worked. The departments all attract a great deal of attention, and the staff is kept busy each day answering questions, having all the work of shopkeepers without the satisfaction of selling the goods. In some cases the whole day is occupied with the necessary attentions to visitors and the correspondence has to be done at night, so that the day's work runs to fourteen hours or so.

THE DAIRY COMPETITION.

Reference must be made to an interesting dairy competition, which is in progress in the "Model Dairy." Ten herds, each of five cows, are engaged in a competitive test as to milking, the conditions all being carefully watched, and the results posted from week to week. At present time an American herd is ahead; the second, third and fourth places are held by Canadian herds, the fifth by an American. The remaining Canadian herds are in the lower half and the lowest showing is made by an American herd. The leading Canadian herd is the Ayrshire, one of the animals coming from Quebec. The second Canadian herd is the Jerseys, coming from Ontario. Next come the Holsteins, also from Ontario, two being Guelph O.A.C. animals. The Shorthorns and the French-Canadian herds are the lowest among the Canadian herds. Hopes are entertained of catching the leading American herd, but here again one is confronted with the value of preparation for such exhibitions. The Canadian cows calved eight months ago, the American herd calved just before coming here; thus a great advantage is held by the Americans. The herd was selected for the competition a year ago, and was fitted for it, while the Canadian herds were got together at far shorter notice. The buildings are far from being models. During the very hot weather the attendants stood over the animals playing the hose upon them. On one of the nights they took axes and knocked holes through the walls in front of each animal. Had they not done that one of them stated they would have had dead cows in the morning. A few electric fans would do a great deal of good and could easily be installed; but hitherto the authorities have not taken this step.

OTHER EXHIBITS.

Reference to the agricultural exhibit has already appeared in this correspondence. It is tastefully arranged and gives a pleasing view of the resources of the western plains and of the variety of products which our country can show. Under close inspection by experts it suffers from the circumstance already mentioned, that it does not show the products of our farms at their best, but rather consists of samples gathered in an exceptionally bad year. Even the grain samples in the Canadian building suffer from this, although the grasses shown are remarakbly good.

Turning from the utilitarian to the other exhibits it must be observed the Canadian archaeological exhibit in the balcony of the Ethnological building, is a good example of intelligent arrangement. Two fine archaeological maps are shown of Ontario and Quebec respectively, and the specimens from the Ontario Archaeological Museum are set forth with concise and yet comprehensive labels, in such a manner that probably not one specimen is shown whose use and purport cannot be perceived. The contents of the building as a whole, it must be remarked, are singularly uneven. The best part of the building, the ground floor, is occupied by a set of exhibits, whose interest is, in many instances, curious rather than scientific, while one department is given up to an optician's display. Apart from this the general effect is that of an attempt at a rather hopeless compromise between popularity and the setting forth of scientic facts. In the Art Gallery a room is set apart for Canadian pictures; it must be left to professed art critics to appraise this display.

INEQUALITIES IN THE EXHIBITS.

It will be apparent from this catalogue that great inequalities exist in the Canadian exhibit. As already stated Canadian manufacturers have in general abstained from exhibiting, and this seems to the writer to be regrettable. Granting that no market can be opened up in the United States, and putting aside the question of the Central and South American markets, it must be remembered that thousands of Canadian visitors will inspect the exhibits, and it might be worth the while of our manufacturers to try to combat the impression among their own people, if nowhere else, that Canada is in a condition of hopeless inferiority in the matter of manufactures. The effect of this abstention is to give an unfair idea of Canada's industrial position. This inequality of showing, however, is the great drawback of the entire Exposition. Some of the American States are entirely unrepresented. Some States have good exhibits in some departments, and none in others, and seldom does the observer note a really coherent and balanced effort to show the entire economic position of a State. Chili gives one the impression of having made an effort to do this, with her policy of showing almost her whole exhibit in one building.

This may not be a complete enumeration of the Canadian exhibits—it has, for instance, left out the efforts of Canadian railways to stimulate the tourist traffic, and has, perhaps, omitted some other exhibits; but it notices the most important of our efforts to place ourselves and our industries before our neighbours. The work has been undertaken at a late hour, and so has been done hurriedly; no great expense has been incurred, so that the effects, which liberal expenditure of money and effort have enabled several States to effect in certain departments in which they desire to excel, have been forbidden to our people; but careful and painstaking work has been done, a good return obtained for the money, and a respectable showing made in departments in which competition was resolved upon.

A LETTER FROM KIMBERLEY.

A GRATEFUL MOTHER.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—I write you to tell you what a good thing I have found in

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY.

We always kept it on hand in my mother's house, because we found it invaluable for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Summer Complaints of all kinds. Since I have been married we use it in our home, and I can truthfully say that it saved my baby's life when he was nearly dead from Diarrhœa.

Yours truly,
MRS. J. L. WEBER.

A Combination Tree.

A pine tree and a birch tree have grown so close together in Woolwich, Me., that one trunk serves for both, sending forth pine branches on one side and birch on the other. The union seems a happy one in spite of the fact that the two trees are as widely separated by the botanists as two well can be, and the gnarled branches of the pine embrace the birch in a most affectionate manner.

They Were Discovered.

When they went into the hotel, he was determined to do nothing to betray the fact that they were newly married. He took up the pen for his first registration under the new conditions and with an old married man look and sweep of indifference wrote, "Mr. and Mrs. Mary Tompkins."

"Will you have the bridal chamber, Mr. Tompkins?" asked the clerk.

For cuts, wounds, rheumatism, stiff joints, burns, scalds, bites of insects, croup, coughs, colds, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found an excellent remedy.

No Family Names.

Turks have no family names. For example: A man named Mohammed has a son named Ahmed and a daughter named Sophia. The son will always be known merely as Ahmed and the daughter always merely as Sophia, in the latter case even after marriage. The result is that members of families after one or two generations become lost to each other. In fact, the "sisters and the cousins and the aunts" business is not much exploited in Turkey. One may be talking to two brothers or two sisters without the fact being made known, there being no family ties—no aristocracy. The grand vizier of today may have been a camel driver or a servant. His rise is not due to any family influence or connection.

Exactly as Advertised.

An indignant Woking farmer returned to a horse dealer's about an hour after purchasing a horse.

"Look here, sir," he exclaimed, "I don't want this horse you sold me. He shies. I can't get him to cross the bridge."

"That's the reason I sold him," said the dealer calmly. "Why did you come to me for the horse?"

"I saw your advertisement in the paper."

"Yes, to be sold, you stated, for no other reason than that the owner wanted to go out of town."

"Well, if you can get out of town with him," said the dealer, "it will be more than I can do."

TIME, NOT DISTANCE.

A Novel Feature of Railway Travel In Denmark.

Denmark was absolutely the pioneer in cheap railway fares. The fares were reduced all around, so that the longer the distance the greater the reduction, but at the same time the return ticket system was abolished for journeys within Denmark.

One of the greatest boons to business men and holiday makers is the so called fortnightly ticket. For third class it costs 22s. 3d. and for second class £1 15s. 6d. Such a ticket entitles the holder to travel all over Denmark for a term of 14 days. He can go wherever he cares to go and as many times over the same route as he may wish within the time paid for—namely, 14 days. A holiday maker may visit every place of interest in Denmark during that time, and if he found any pleasure in traveling from town to town night and day for the period he could do so. He pays the price, £1 2s. 3d., with a deposit of 5s. 6d. for the ticket, on which a photograph of the holder is pasted, and at the expiration of 14 days he returns the ticket and gets the 5s. 6d. deposit back.

He can also buy a ticket for a month which costs 50 per cent more, and the longer the time the greater the reduction. While a fortnightly ticket costs 22s. 3d., a 12 month ticket costs £10. If the passenger had to pay for a 12 month ticket at the rate of 22s. 3d. per fortnight, it would cost him £29 14s. Thus the reduction is over 150 per cent.

If instead of paying for a fortnightly ticket a traveler went from Esbjerg to Copenhagen and back as often as he could within 14 days and bought ordinary tickets for each trip, they would cost him over £6, and this amount would be doubled in a fortnight if he went sightseeing from one place to another, traveling all over Denmark in easy stages.

Season tickets can be also had for journeys between two towns. In this case the price for one month is, say, 5s.; 7s. 6d. for two months and £1 10s. for a whole year. Young people under the age of 18 travel for half price.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies its power over pain is simply beyond relief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it and see if this is not true. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

An English Explanation.

The president of the United States, who receives a salary of £10,000 a year, must pay for all the food consumed at the White House, and the expenses of getting up an elaborate state dinner are not small. Cigars and wines the president buys, and they must be of the best. He has to maintain his own equipage. The government, however, allows him a valet; also a clerk, who opens all his letters. All other personal servants must be engaged by the master and mistress of the White House.

Do Carpets Shorten Life?

Just think what a horrible receptacle of unclean things the carpet is in the rich English or French house! Where there are carpets, people should on entering be given slippers, as in the Netherlands, or the footbath, as at a Turkish mosque. Making servants sweep carpets is another proof that evil is wrought for want of thought. Flourens attributed the prevalence of lung and throat diseases in England to carpeted rooms.—London Truth.

Sarcastic.

Art Dealer—Yes, that was painted by one of the old masters. But, I beg your pardon, sir, you must not touch it with your umbrella.

Old Mr. Hardplayer—What's the matter? Isn't it dry yet?

When you feel weak, run down, nervous, unable to work, or think, as you ought, take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They'll build your health up and give you strength and energy.

OVERWORKED EXPRESSIONS.

Two That One Critic Thinks Should Be Laid on the Shelf.

"There are some expressions which I believe ought to be outlawed," said a well known writer who prides himself on being a good conversationalist, "and I am surprised that they are used with such persistence. They have always played an important part in the events of the world. They represent nothing and everything.

"There is, for instance, that dear old soul 'everybody.' 'Everybody' says so and so, or does this, that and the other thing. 'Everybody' denies that. And so it runs. 'Everybody' wears a heavier responsibility than most persons could stand up under, and no doubt 'everybody' is accused of doing and saying a great many things that 'everybody' doesn't do or say. In spite of the fact that we all know the ridiculousness with which the expression is used, we frequently gather impressions that are at variance with the facts of the case simply because we are told that 'everybody' so and so. Poor old 'everybody' should be given a rest, and the expression should not be used except in cases where the legitimate meaning of the word can be brought into play.

"The expression 'they say' is even worse. This is probably the most cowardly expression used by the English speaking people. It has been more harmful than any other expression. It has been the most potent weapon of the slanderer and has probably destroyed more reputations than any other expression known to the English tongue. 'They say' all sorts of things, do all sorts of things, believe all sorts of things. So there you are. The expression is used so often and for so many different purposes that it would be impossible to figure out the damage that is done daily to reputation and to fortunes by these two simple words. 'They say' is used to hammer stocks down and to cause men to question the integrity and stability of certain financial institutions, and it is frequently used with telling effect. 'They say' is used to cause trouble in the family or to taint a reputation ont of pure malice of heart and for many other purposes equally as low.

"I am inclined to believe that we would be better off if we would taboo the expressions 'everybody' and 'they say' and never use them except in cases where their use is legitimate."

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Artificial Stone.

Quarrymen and stone dressers will probably be gradually crowded out of their occupation by the use of artificial stone. In the manufacture of this stone the sand is heated and the cement added to the amount of 12 per cent of the mixture. The steel molds are filled with the dry material and moved into an immense cylinder, which is closed and bolted. Boiling water is then turned in under pressure sufficient to force it all through the sand in the molds. The cement slacks, but the steel molds do not permit any expansion to occur, and the stone is formed and dried under an immense pressure. The result is a very hard stone, which can be supplied in shapes desired and much cheaper than the natural stone.

Noncooking Restaurants.

Odd as it may appear to dwellers in small cities, some of the down town restaurants of New York are in buildings in which no cooking is allowed. Some of the busiest of the midday restaurants purchase all their meats and stews already cooked and merely heat them through again before serving them to patrons. This branch of the restaurant business has reached such proportions that the mere operation of cooking for such places has become an established business, and owners of ovens thrive at it.

AN UNENVIABLE CONDITION.

To eat a hearty meal without injurious after effects is a pleasure that seldom comes to the dyspeptic. He cannot enjoy his dishes and is fearful to eat what he best relishes. "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills will positively cure dyspepsia, indigestion and headache. Each box contains ten days' treatment. Price 25 cents, at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. Not Going to Quarrel.

"For what reason?"

"Because they go so fast."

TOYING WITH DEATH

HOW "DEVIL DICK" HANDLED CANS OF NITROGLYCERIN.

Bombarded a Lynx With a Four Quart Torpedo—Held a Package of the Stuff While Another Fellow Threw Stones at It on a Wager.

"There were a good many reckless and daredevil chaps among those whose business it was to haul and handle nitroglycerin in the early days of that explosive agent in the oil regions," said George Place, who was one of the first to work at making and canning nitroglycerin for the wells under the Roberts patent, "but there was a teamster named Dick Warner who would dare and risk more with the terrible stuff than any other person thereabout. He was known as 'Devil Dick,' and it was a fit name for him. He had a chum named Dan Sutton, who was almost as reckless as Dick, and I have seen him and Dick play catch many a time with cans of glycerin they were unloading, the dropping of one of which to the ground would have more than likely wiped out of existence every person around the well.

"It got so that whenever Dick Warner had a load of nitroglycerin to unload at the well everybody else, except Dan Sutton, took to the woods and staid there until the stuff was out of their custody. Once 'Devil Dick' held a great can of nitroglycerin above his head and let a drunken driller named Patterson throw ten stones at it from a distance of 30 feet on a bet of $20 that he couldn't hit the can once out of the ten times. This was at Roan's camp, and the whole camp watched the insane proceeding from safe distances on the hill. One of the stones hit Dick on the arm, not two inches below the can, and knocked it out of his hand. He caught the can, though, before it reached the ground or the throwing match would have ended there and then, with the burial of such bits of Dick and the driller as could be found, and they would have been exceedingly few and small. The driller came close to the can several times during the trial, but failed to hit it, and Dick won his bet.

"In those days the woods all through the oil regions were full of wild animals, and it wasn't an uncommon sight to see a bear or a Canada lynx or a catamount prowling round the camps or isolated oil villages. The lynx was frequently very aggressive and bold, and it was greatly feared by the drillers and others at the wells. More than once men had been attacked by lynxes, and James Carker, a pumper, was so badly hurt in fighting off one that had jumped from a tree upon him as he was driving through a piece of woods that he died of his injuries. One day 'Devil Dick' was on his way to a well with a load of nitroglycerin torpedoes, and he picked Dan Sutton up on the way. On a stretch of the road through what was known as Conway's woods Dan discovered a big Canada lynx stealing along through the branches of the trees at one side of the road and keeping even with the wagon. He called Dick's attention to the animal, and Dick said that it was watching for a chance to attack them, but declared that if it followed them as far as Clay's opening he would get rid of the dangerous beast.

"Clay's opening was a gap in the woods and a ravine 20 feet wide and as many deep. The lynx did follow the men as far as the opening, and Dick stopped his wagon.

"The lynx crouched a few feet away from the edge of the nearest wall of the ravine, and before Sutton surmised how Dick intended to get rid of the animal Dick grabbed up a can of nitroglycerin and hurled it with all his strength at the lynx, which was not over 20 feet away. The can struck the soft body of the lynx square in one side and knocked the animal over on its back. The flesh and fur of the lynx did not offer resistance to the can sufficient to cause concussion enough to explode it, but the can rolled on the ground and slowly down a gradual decline that led from where the lynx lay to the edge of the ravine wall.

"Sutton, with all his recklessness in handling nitroglycerin, stood aghast at this deliberate risking of their lives by Dick, for he knew that the instant the can rolled into the ravine and struck the rocks below the terrible explosion that had been so luckily averted by Dick's good aim at the lynx would follow. Quicker than a flash he jumped from the wagon, tore like mad up the ravine and stood beneath the spot where the torpedo would tumble into the gully when it reached the edge.

"A scraggy bush of some kind grew out of the top of the wall, and just as Sutton reached the spot the can of nitroglycerin had rolled to the edge and struck against the main stem of the bush. The can had struck it a trifle out of the center, and the heavier end of the torpedo moved on an inch or two until it extended a little over the edge.

"Sutton stood below with upreached hands to catch the can if it fell, but there it hung against the bush, in a position that looked as if a breath of wind would topple it over into the ravine.

"All this had occupied but a few seconds. As soon as the torpedo lodged against the bush Sutton ran back to the road, shouting to Dick to drive on so they could get to a safe distance before the falling of the can and its certain explosion on the rocks below. But when he got to the wagon he saw Dick with another torpedo raised, ready to hurl it after the first one. He lowered it, though, and looked around at Sutton as if he was disappointed.

"'The infernal wildcat's give me the slip, Dan, and took to the woods,' said he. 'Lord, but I'd like to bust one of these shells on him!'

"That was probably the first and last time a wild animal was ever hunted with four quart nitroglycerin torpedoes, and that was the last trip 'Devil Dick' ever drove for the company he was working for. He wasn't discharged because he so recklessly endangered life and property by throwing cans of nitroglycerin at a lynx, but because he drove on from the ravine without getting back the first can he threw, and the company would not stand such a waste of their property.

"Dick handled nitroglycerin for four years after that and never had an accident. He then quit the business and went to breaking on the Allegheny Valley railroad. He was killed at Miller Farm before he had railroaded a week."

Spare Women.

In former years when thin women wished to gain flesh and roundness of form they would take warm baths and follow this by rubbing into the skin cod liver oil. Now they employ the more elegant way of buying Scott's Emulsion and taking it internally. It increases the weight of thin babies and delicate children also.

Who is This Man?

The Lindsay Post says: A Peterborough man named Lasher, who has been doing odd jobs of concrete work about town, got himself into serious trouble last night when he tried to force his way into the residence of Mr. F. K. Begbie, by the back door, and when barred out, managed to get in the front way. He went through the house, terrifying the inmates, and conducting himself in a very disorderly and reprehensible manner. Mr. Begbie fortunately happened along about this time and collared the intruder, marching him off to the coop. This morning he appeared before Magistrate Steers, who gave him to understand that that sort of thing was not permitted in Lindsay, and after reading him a lecture imposed a fine, which with costs amounted to $10.20.

MANITOBA'S GREAT WHEAT CROP.

Mr. R. J. Waller's Share in the Big Grain Fields.

In yesterday's issue there appeared a paragraph showing generally the great magnitude of the wheat crop of Manitoba and the Northwest, and to-day the Examiner is permitted to take an extract from a letter received by Mrs. Waller from her husband, Mr. R. J. Waller, who has gone to Souris, Manitoba, to look after the harvesting of the crops on his farm in that vicinity. Mr. Waller writes:

"I arrived in Souris at 4.30 p.m., and Mr. McLaren, a local merchant, drove me out to the farm. I never got such a surprise in my life; my crop is something I never expect to see the like of again. The wheat stands up to my shoulders and just as thick as it can stand. It is one of the finest crops here. I can't begin to tell you how it looks. The while crop is No. 1—no weeds, but just grain, and long heads, too. My oats is also No. 1, and hay 12 to 15 tons per acre — if I can get it cut. The harvest will start about the 15th. . . . . I would give a hundred dollars if you could see this crop. I am just overjoyed to-night. It will take 700 pounds of binder cord for this crop. I will have over 7000 bushels of wheat if I have one."

Mr. Waller goes on to write about procuring his men to help harvest his crop — wages from $35 to $50 per month, and $1.75 and $2 per day. "And men are scarce at that." Mr. Waller concludes by repeating that "the crop is something delightful, no bad spots." If Mr. Waller's jubilant tone is an index to the general feel of the farmers of Manitoba and the Northwest, there are a good many happy homes up there.

MR. DAVIDSON REMEMBERED.

"That, as a slight memorial of their sentiments, the Board provide a wreath and place it on the coffin of the deceased, and attend the funeral in a body.

"That the Board extend to the sorrowing widow and children of the deceased an expression of their profound sympathy and of condolence in the irreparable loss they have sustained in the death of a devoted husband and father.

"And that the Board's Secretary forward to Mrs. Davidson a copy of this resolution."

BUSINESS INCREASING.

Owing to greatly increasing business the Port Hope Knitting Works have found it necessary to increase the capacity of their establishment. For some years the Port Hope Knitting Works have conducted a successful business at their present quarters, No. 382 1-2 George street, and it is not their intention to leave these premises, but they have in addition leased from the Bank of Montreal the vacant store next to Messrs. E. Brown & Co's. This will be fitted up in the most approved manner to suit the requirements of the business, and the two stores will be run in conjunction with each other.

DON'T FORGET THIS FACT.

The Oddfellows will have the only special train to and from the lakes on Civic Holiday. Arrangements have been made whereby those who take this excursion may see the annual regatta at Juniper Island. And the special train will give our friends two hours longer on the lakes, as train will not leave until the arrival of the steamer Empress.

LABOUR MEN HELD A MEETING.

Address by Local Men in Sons of England Hall.

ORGANIZATION ADVOCATED.

Messrs. J. Harris McClellan, Major Miller and George Ball Spoke—A Large and Representative Meeting.

A very successful public labour meeting was held in the Sons of England Hall last night, at which interesting and rousing speeches were made by Messrs. J. McClellan, Geo. Ball and Major Miller. The attendance of labourmen was very large and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. The key note of the meeting was organization, and it is needless to say that the Labourers' Union of the town will be increased considerably as a result of the meeting last night.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Frederick McCorry, who called upon Mr. George Ball to address the gathering.

MR. BALL SPEAKS.

Mr. Ball said that he did not come to make a speech, but he thought that there was sufficient representation to prove that the labourers wanted to organize, and he reminded them of the fact that "United we stand, divided we fall." The organizations of labour unions was a new thing, and he went on to refer to the C.P.R. strike. Had the trackmen been an organization of 20 years standing the railway company would have considered the matter before they refused to listen to that organization's requests. Speaking of the relationship of labour to capital, the speaker endeavoured to show how little of the profits of labour went back to labourers. If it did, they would be getting about $30 a day, but at the present time the few lazy loafers get this amount. The idea of organization, he said, was to educate the people up to the relationship that labour has with capital. The condition of labour in England is in a better state than it is in America, the land of the free. In his endeavour to show this, he declared that labour in England was so well organized that the politician was anxious to listen to their demands. Organization must come first until we realize our position, and then it becomes an educational institution. The labouring men of Canada want to get their brains dashed out before they get their eyes open. It amused the speaker very much at the actions of politicians at election times. While the politicians can keep the masses divided on religious and other questions, they will take advantage of the opportunity to give legislation favourable to themselves.

The working men must unite. They must not be divided on matters of religion or race, etc., as it is well known that capitalists have no politics. Mr. Ball then turned his attention to the cheap class of labour these same capitalists bring in the country to do labour. The politician who will stand by and allow this is not a patriotic man. Speaking of the length of a day's work, he declared that there were three judges in the County of Peterborough getting $1000 from the taxpayers for working about two hours a day, when one judge could do the work, and then not be employed half the time. Still a labourer would work ten hours a day in the hot sun for $1.50.

Mr. Ball made an attack on the clergy for not taking up the matter of capital and labour and endeavouring to find a solution of it. He urged upon the labourers to go to church. They cannot expect the clergy to assist them if they do not show up at the respective churches on the Sabbath day. The first thing he wanted them to do here and in all other places is to go to church, and secondly to join a labour union. Where were the members of the town council the night of trackmen's meeting? Not three of them were present, but they would be around after labourer's votes. He urged upon them to put men in the council that will advocate public works by day labour and not by contract. This contract system is a damnable system.

Referring to the wage question, the speaker could not see why one man should be paid $10 a day and another man $1.50. This principle is not right. Organization, he thought, was the only solution, and why should they not organize and fight the matter?? Some years ago the speaker was an advocate of having stone broken by labourers in the winter sooner than have men go to the poor house. What was done, however? They bought a stone-crusher at about $4,000—sometimes it is said that it cost $2,000 to sell a machine of that kind. He would not say that any of the aldermen were bribed, but what he would say was that the man who would bring in a labour saving machine to do the poor man out of his day's work, he would accept a bribe. The machine was no good anyway, and if the speaker were in the town council and had a majority of men like himself, he would throw the d—d thing in the river.

Continuing, Mr. Ball critized very severely the C.P.R. for the manner in which they were treating the trackmen, and he deplored the fact that the press was not taking a bold stand on the matter. Wrecks were happening every day on the C.P.R., but they were not reported in the public press.

In conclusion he said that what he would like to see each one of them do is to hand in his name to the secretary, and become a member of the union, go to church next Sunday, and at the next election vote according to the dictates of his own conscience.

MAJOR MILLER.

The next speaker was Major Miller, who, in one of his spirited addresses, held the attention of his hearers for some time. He ridiculed the habit that politicians had of talking of the dignity of labour, when they would hardly speak to one on the street. We must unite with capital, and not organize for the purpose of bucking against them. Organization was the main thing and when organized they will become more educated. The advantage of having a trackmen's union to deal with their grievences against the C.P.R., was a most needed institution, and it is the only manner in which each trackman can get justice. The company can bluff one man, but when united they cannot. The promises of politicians at election time were then touched upon and he went on to show how the capitalists vote one way and the other according to their best financial interests. The labourers have not in the past studied this matter enough, but they have a perfect right to the same free action. Major Miller pictured the employee in a factory with both the muscles and the brain to do a certain piece of work, while his employer sits over him and watches him do it. He has not the brains nor the ability. He has the money, but take the money from him and he is nowhere. The only place take action is at the polls. Leave party out, of the question and vote for the man that will do what he can to give the labourer an honest day's pay.

In speaking of the temperance organizations, he did not think much of them. He had been a temperance man all his life, but when the election comes along, the temperance party swings into line. Trade unions should work in harmony with each other, and in every sense each man should be his brother's keeper. Major Miller covered the ground very thoroughly, and concluded amid much applause.

MR. McCLELLAN.

Mr. J. Harris McClellan was cordially received. He was not asking for votes, as he was out of politics, and he merely come up to meet them as men. While some of them were in different stations of life, still he did not think that any one held the disrespect of the man above him, provided he carled on his employment in an honest manner. When capital is united, surely it is time for labourers to unite to protect themselves. As to the trackmen's strike, he was heartily in sympathy with the demands they have made. He was prepared right now to sign an agreement with the rest of the coal merchants, and say to the Grand Trunk that not a ton of coal shall come in by the C.P.R. until they listen to the grievences of the trackmen. He also advocated that the merchants of the town boycott the C.P.R. until the matter is settled one way or the other.

He then went on to speak of the manner in which the people of British Columbia are educated up to the existence of unions, and the harmonious manner in which the capitalists and the union organizations get along together. Reference was made to the coal mines of the west where labour organizations are very strong, but no trouble is ever encountered between the mine-owners and the miners. With meat and bread at the price it is in Peterborough, no man can live at the rate of a dollar a day. Continuing, he went on to say that Peterborough was the banner town of Canada, and was the centre of much labour, therefore he advocated having a correspondent from the town to the Labour Gazette, so that the labour unions throughout the Dominion can know at all times about the price of labour in Peterborough, and likewise the labourers of Peterborough will know what conditions exist throughout the other parts of the Dominion. Mr. McClellan then spoke of the 8-hour movement, and he strongly urged the 8-hour system. He made reference also to the various manufacturing institutions that were locating in Peterborough, amongst them the Canadian Cordage Company, and recited the facts as to the power which the later company had acquired on the government dam.

In conclusion he thanked the meeting for the privilege of addressing them, and he expressed a willingness to join the union, if they so desired him to do.

Mr. Hall, a labourer, spoke a few words promising to assist in any way he could to further the organization's interests.

A vote of thanks was then passed to the speakers for their kindness in having addressed the meeting. Mr. Geo. Ball, on behalf of the speakers, acknowledged the same, and the meeting was brought to a close.

The Port Hope Knitting Works are showing this week a great line of extra fine one and one Lisle rib hose in all sizes, so highly recommended for their brilliant black and lasting colour. These are only 25c and 30c in largest sizes. Be sure and try them.

FORGOT THEIR TACKLE.

Three Visitors at McCracken's Went out for a Fish and Came Back Again.

A good story comes from Stony lake regarding three summer visitors at McCracken's. The visitors in question are from Peterborough, and consist of an official of His Majesty's Inland Revenue, a newspaper man and a gentleman from Kingston, also identified with His Majesty's Civil Service. They had had taken up quarters at the Victoria House on Thursday evening, and on Friday morning they decided to go out still fishing some distance away. They had everything, so they thought, and were already anticipating big fish stories. A neat little stock of bait that had been purchased from the little boys, who deal in this line of business, was carefully placed in the canoe, and precaution was also taken to have a club with which to kill the gamey monsters. But, lo, and behold! When they arrived at their destination, at the place where the bait and the club were to be effectively used, they discovered that they had forgotten to bring fishing tackle. Not a fish hook, fishing line or fishing rod was in the canoe, and the three visitors had to return to the hotel, where they were the victims of much guying by the guests in general.

CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST.

The First Church of Christ Scientist held a very successful meeting last evening in their hall, No. 414 1-2 George street. The church was reorganized under new rules. The tersurer's report showed the church to be in a very prosperous condition, no debt, and a cash balance on hand. The new board and officers are now seeking larger quarters to hold service in, to accommodate their growing congregation.

Marching Orders.

Mr. Peter Jamieson, Secretary of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. of Hamilton, and who spent a short time at the Boys' Camp at Stony Lake, will be the speaker at the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at 4.15. All men are cordially invited to attend. His subject will be "Marching Orders."

Cost of Meaford Sidewalks.

The council of Meaford recently received the following tenders for the construction of granolithic sidewalks: Barytic Stone Co., Ingersoll, 11 1-2 cents per square foot for sidewalks and 12 1-2 cents for crossings; H. G. Wynes, Collingwood, 11 cents per square foot; P. L. Marden & Co., London, 10 7-8 cents per square foot; Canada Supply Co., Windsor, 11 7-8 cents per square foot. This is not much of a guide for Peterborough, unless we know the quality of walks specified.

BOARD OF TRADE ENDORSES BYLAW.

Cordage Company's Enterprise Approved of.

BYLAW'S TERMS DISCUSSED

The Company's Character and Prospects Set Forth—Certainty of a Successful Career—Resolution of Approval Unanimous—Not a Dissenting Voice.

A largely attended special meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade assembled in the Council Chamber last night to consider and deal with propositions involved in the bylaw to be voted on by the people on Aug. 12th, to grant $4,500 to the Peterborough Cordage Company in the form of two and a half acres of land at the corner of Aylmer and Perry streets, as a site for the manufacturing buildings of the company.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate and president of the Board, occupied the chair.

The chairman invited expressions of opinion from those members of the Board present, and intimated that others of the citizens who might be present would be welcome to a voice in the proceedings.

In response to the invitation of the chairman, Mr. W. H. Meldrum was the first speaker. He said that the amount asked in the bylaw was comparatively trifling in view of the importance of the enterprise to the town. He had considered the question carefully and was convinced that it was in the interests of the progress of the town that the assistance asked should be granted.

Mr. Adam Hall, president of the company, on being asked to give some information regarding the intentions of the company said that the company had got its charter last February, and had at once entered upon the work of selling stock, which had been sold in Manitoba and Ontario to the amount of $150,000. The promoters of the company were anxious to have the works located in Peterborough. It was the intention of the company to erect main buildings of the size of 90 x 320 feet and two buildings of the size of 50 x 100 feet, besides a workshop and offices. The company would require the use of 2 1-4 acres of land. The necessary plant, buildings and machinery would cost $60,000, and the company had arranged for the purchase of their machinery, except the rope-making plant. The lot selected, chosen after careful inspection, was the

for the purposes of the company. In response to a question, Mr. Hall stated that the company would employ at the beginning 75 hands, of whom two thirds would be men, and one-third girls; and it was more than probable that within 18 months it would be necessary to double the capacity of the buildings and to also double the staff of employees. It was the intention of the company to at once proceed with the work, the plans and specifications of the buildings were ready for inviting tenders, and if the bylaw carried the buildings and machinery would be ready for occupation by December 1st next.

Mr. Hall pointed out the result of carrying the bylaw would be not burdensome—only 8 cents on every $1,000 of assessment. The subscribed stock of the Company was widely distributed throughout the country, and he pointed out that the search for subscribers to stock had extensively advertized Peterborough. After referring to the proposed site of the Company's premises, corner of Aylmer and Perry streets, Mr. Hall pointed out that one need of the situation was increased sewerage, to relieve the George street sewer which was not equal to the work that was being thrown upon it. In reply to a question Mr. Hall stated that the Company's manager and superintendent were from the United States and that they would bring their families with them, and that besides, they were stockholders in the Company. The Company would be in operation 300 days in the year, and the present prospects were that they would not be able, working to full capacity, to fill orders. A large number of the stockholders were farmers, who would be good customers. In conclusion, he mentioned as evidence of the bona fides of the Company, that they had the cash to carry out their plans.

Alderman Rush, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Town Council, spoke of the importance of manufactures to the town. He pointed out that the terms of the bonus were easy—that the assessment should not be increased beyond a certain figure, and called attention to the stipulation that if the Company ceased operations for one year the property should revert to the town. The capital stock subscribed was $125,000 and he understood that about $30,000 stood to the credit of the Company in the bank. He, himself, paid about $200 per year in taxes, yet he was willing that the Company should be assisted to the extent represented in the bylaw passed by the council and to be voted upon by the people.

A RESOLUTION.

Mr. J. W. Garvin, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Board of Trade, moved this resolution.

"That the members of the Board of Trade assembled are in hearty sympathy with the proposed grant of $4,500 to the Cordage Company under the conditions specified by the Town Council."

In support of his resolution Mr. Garvin said that public sentiment was in sympathy with the proposition of the bylaw, and was in favour of granting assistance to the Cordage Company.

Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, in seconding the motion said the enterprise was a most promising one, that the town was well protected and the bylaw should pass.

Mr. R. R. Hall, barrister, explained that the binder twine factories in operation were jealous of having their premises inspected, and it was therefore difficult to see the machinery in operation. He pointed out that at the large factories in the United States, employing from 1500 to 2000 hands each, were not as advantageously situated as Peterborough for making twine economically. They had to pay $35 per horse power, while the local company would get its power for about half that amount. We had here two lines of railway, and were in the wheat growing centre of the country, and had easy access to all parts of the province. The United States factories mentioned got their raw material in New York and had to ship it 600 miles to their factories, and then ship the product 600 miles back to a market. We had free trade in binder twine, and United States firms had offered to handle the entire output of the Canadian Cordage Company, but the company did not wish to do business in that way—they wanted to deal directly with the farmers. The company had every prospect of a successful career, and the conditions were in favour of the town. If the company failed to operate for a year the town had the property to fall back upon, and this was ample security. In regard to the wages paid, as was previously stated, two-thirds of the employees were men, and the adult girls employed in this factory would earn from $7 to $12 per week, according to their capacity. All the labour employed (even the cheapest) would be high paid labour. The property sought from the town was not assessed for $4,500, and the company only asked a fixed rate and exemption on their machinery. The company had been loyal to Peterborough in having the works located here, but the outside shareholders expected

THE TOWN TO DO SOMETHING.

Mr. Hall submitted that the directors of the company would fail to discharge their duty to these shareholders if they did not urge the town to extend some substantial encouragement to the Cordage Company, especially in view of the fact that other towns were willing to render much more liberal assistance to secure so desirable an industry.

Alderman Shortly was heartily in favour of the bylaw and did not see how any ratepayer could in his own interest vote against it.

Mr. W. H. Robertson urged that manufatories were the chief want of the town and should be assisted.

Alderman Clinkscale was heartily in favour of the bylaw. He had supported it in the council and believed that if we obtained the Cordage company through the grant proposed, we should have as cheap an industry as any in the town.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, the president of the Board, before putting the motion, desired to say a few words. He was glad to see our citizens originating a new industry. It was a sign of their confidence in the town, which would react beneficially abroad. We had been fortunate in securing industries for the town. In spite of criticisms which had been made as to the cost of securing the Canadian General Electric Works, they had been one of the best paying investments the town had ever made. They had carried us finely over the hard times, and were now paying out from $800 to $1000 per week in cold cash. (Hear, hear, and applause.) The William Hamilton Company was a splendid establishment, and was spreading out all over the country, and we saw daily cars laden with their machinery, and labelled with the name, "William Hamilton Company, Peterborough," carrying the fame of Peterborough from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Other industries he need not mention, were doing the same in their way. The Cereal Company in Peterborough was a land mark to the whole of Canada, and its presence here was due to the good offices of a former citizen, Hon. Senator Cox. (Applause.) The location of the company here showed that the directors looked upon Peterborough as a manufacturing centre. The Cordage and Shovel Company would be another evidence of the of Peterborough. We were now prosperous through our manufacturers. House rents had advanced, and there were few vacant houses in the town. Workmen might object to this, but they could well afford to pay a dollar a month more rent when they got twenty-five cents a day more wages. (Hear, hear.) He was opposed to bonuses on principle, but advocated them as a matter of expediency, and he was satisfied to vote for the Cordage Company bylaw, or any other similar bylaw, if the town got value, as he felt sure it would in this case. It was, he believed a wise expenditure, that would pay the town well. With one or two more industries established in Peterborough, the town would be recognized as a manufacturing centre, and industries would come here without bonuses. Travellers from each industry would advertise the town. He was glad that local companies had undertaken the development of our water power, of which we had long such great hopes, now about to be realized, and if the local men will sell their power cheaply we would see great manufacturing advantages accruing to the town.

Although the fullest discussion was invited, there was no one to say a word in opposition to the bylaw, and the motion in favour of it was carried unanimously.

The meeting then adjourned.

Powley's Liquified Ozone will take the poison out of your blood and then heal your stomach's action. Take the dose every twenty minutes if the headache is severe.

"Since my infancy I have been troubled with bilious headaches; I used to suffer dreadfully, especially during the summer months. I doctored three years with my family physician, but received no benefit. I tried two or three other doctors, used many so-called remedies, but got no relief. I came to the conclusion there was no cure. I drank Ozone for two months. What results? Since that date I have not had the first symptom of a headache. Your medicine has proved a blessing to me. THE HONEYBEE.

Its Curious Jaws and Its Wonderful Little Tongue.

With the closest scrutiny it becomes evident that the bee does not, like other creatures, house its tongue in its mouth, but neatly folds it back beneath its head. Bumblebees, when disturbed, have a way of threatening with their jaws, while the honeybee has the more direct method of settling intruders with her sting.

The jaws of the bee are very creditable organs and can give quite a formidable nip. Catch a bee in a net and see how viciously it will bite at the meshes, working its jaws sideways instead of up and down.

We call this wonderful implement of the bee a tongue, but in reality it is more than this, for the whole arrangement consists of two slender filaments called maxillæ, the under lip and the actual tongue. If a drop of honey lies near the surface of a flower, the slender, active tongue, darting out from the case formed by the maxillæ, licks it up with the same ease that a dog licks a plate. Should the tube of the flower be elongated the bee has at command another length of tongue, which is shot out from within and shuts up like a telescope when no longer wanted.

To appreciate fully this delicate organ you should watch the bee separate it into its component parts and clean it out. The lengthening process of the proboscis, as the tongue and its allied parts are sometimes called, is accomplished by a series of springs and hinges. In addition to this telescoping power, the tongue is a hairy member, the hairs arranged in rings, the longest ones toward the center. They assist in lifting in the nectar and in pumping it into the mouth. Thence it goes to the honey sack.

DUTY AND PLEASURE.

The Words of Emilie Arsenault in Acknowledging His Gratitude to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cured Him of Dyspepsia, Like They Have Cured so Many Others—He is Recommending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to His Friends.

Again comes the news of a cure of chronic Dyspepsia by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, in the Quebec village of Ruisseau Le Blanc.

Emilie Arsenault suffered with all the misery of bad digestion and stomach weakness for many years. He was unable to eat without suffering for it afterwards. No matter how hungry, how much in need of food he was, he knew that whatever he ate would lie like lead in his stomach, and pain him for hours after.

All sorts of remedies and medicines were tried before Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. All sorts of remedies and medicines but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, utterly failed to help him. No wonder he couples the words "pleasure" and "duty" in expressing his gratitude for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the medicine that did help him.

"I feel it at once a pleasure and a duty to say that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proven a blessing to me. I suffered from the miserable malady Dyspepsia for many years, during which I was unable to eat anything without pain.

"I tried all the other medicines and treatments without relief. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets helped me from the first box. I no longer suffered after meals. I found I could digest food which before using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I daren't touch.

"I am now entirely free from any symptom of Dyspepsia, can relish and digest all wholesome food, and can say I am highly satisfied with my experience of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Encouraging.

A Model.

Mr. Jones came home at an unseemly hour the other night and was surprised to see Mrs. Jones sitting up for him below stairs, with no other light than that of the gas lamp, which faced the door, to keep her company.

"M-M-Marie," he said huskily, "y-you shouldn't sit up s'late when I'm out on business."

"Shorry, m'dear, but it's last time—tell you I'm sorry—won't shpeak to me?"

At this moment Mrs. Jones called from above stairs:

"Mr. Jones, who are you talking to at this hour of the night?"

"Thash what I'd like to know m-m-myself," stammered Jones.

Mrs. Jones hastened down stairs, lamp in hand. When she saw the situation, she laughed in spite of being very angry.

"It's the model," she said—"the model I bought today to fit my dresses on."

"Yes, thash so," said Jones tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back—make some fellow good wife."—London Tit-Bits.

The Odd Shillings.

There is very little difference between a pound and a guinea; only a shilling, and yet the keen business man insists that the shilling shall be considered. After Thackeray's series of lectures on the four Georges had been delivered in London, Willert Beale says that he called upon the novelist in Onslow square with a check for £250.

"What's this, W. B.?" cried Thackeray, reading the check. "Pounds? Our agreement says guineas, and guineas it must be."

"You are aware that the lectures so far have involved very heavy losses," said Beale apologetically.

"That's not my affair," said Thackeray. "I don't know what occult means you have to protect yourself from loss. Guineas, W. B.! Guineas it must be, and nothing else. I must have the shillings."

And the shillings were sent him immediately.

Painting Black Eyes.

"The painting of blackened eyes, of which you hear little nowadays," said a man of experience, "is so well established a business now that it does not even need advertising. A sign which I just passed aroused memories of earlier days within me. It was merely the name of a man who does this kind of painting, with the brief announcement, 'Black Eyes Painted.'

"Some years ago such a simple statement was not enough to enable one in that business to live. The artist whose calling this sign declared is the same man who some years back used to have a place on the avenue farther west, and in front of that old office he used to have an expansive and gorgeous sign which told his accomplishments in the phraseology which the only Tody Hamilton after perfected in describing the charms of the best that Barnum offered."

You are Tired.

Your colour is not good. Restless one moment; fretful and blue the next. The world's out of joint. You are out of joint with the world. Not temper, not feeling, not weakness. Neglect is unwise. You grow steadily worse. Get good rich blood, then feel new vigour, strength, buoyancy. You'll see a dozen things to do; you will do them too, if you use Ferrozone. It sharpens the appetite, and you enjoy your food; you get colour and old time strength comes back. That's because Ferrozone aids digestion, makes red blood. Ferrozone is strength for the nerves and vigour for the brain. Be sure of the name, Ferrozone. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Telegraphing With Cannons.

When the first vessel completed the passage of the then new Erie canal in 1825, there being no such thing as a telegraph in those days, the news was communicated to New York and to Buffalo by cannons placed within hearing of each other all the way along from Albany to each of the other cities. The signal was passed along in this way from Albany to New York city and back again to Albany in 58 minutes. The experiment was a costly one, but was a success in every particular.

Her Sentiments.

They were looking over the paper together. "Oh, my, how funny!" said she.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Why, here's an advertisement that says, 'No reasonable offer refused.'"

"What is there odd about that?"

"Nothing, nothing," she replied, trying to blush; "only those are my sentiments."

HOPES FULFILLED.

In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

He only knows of the sweetness that flows

LADY LIGHTFINGERS.

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

The start of the whole matter was the lodging of a complaint at Scotland Yard by a well known jeweler doing business on the Strand. He had missed two diamond rings from a tray he had been exhibiting to several lady customers, but unfortunately for him the gems had been gone an hour perhaps before he knew that deft fingers had purloined them under his very eyes. He could recall the names of four or five ladies, and he headed the list with the name of a marquis' wife, but the inspector on duty might well smile and turn away at that. Had the jeweler not been in such a perturbed state of mind he would never have included that name. Indeed, before he left the place he apologized, partly to himself, for having given any names at all, as it was utterly absurd to suspect any of the owners of having taken the rings. He seemed to feel it a duty to report his loss, however, and after being quietly advised to have an eye on his employees and unknown customers he was dismissed with the promise that the matter would be looked into. As a matter of fact, no assignment was made on the case. Some flash chap had "lifted" the jewels without even his call being remembered, and it was no use to hunt for a needle in a haystack.

It wasn't three days before another case was reported by another Strand jeweler. This time it was a diamond sunburst, and he was positive that he had shown it to only three ladies before he missed it. He was reluctant to give the names, but when pressed to do so that of the marquis' wife again headed the list. The others were almost as far above suspicion, and the inspector looked at the complainant in a way to make him feel like a culprit. This time I was put on the case, but I shall be honest enough to say that it was a mere matter of form. It was more than any official's head was worth even to hint that one of the three ladies mentioned might have carried the ornament away in a moment of absentmindedness.

It was about five days after this that the third case was reported. This time a jeweler had lost a pair of valuable diamond earrings, and he had to be hard pressed by the inspector before he would admit that the loss was detected almost immediately after the marquis' wife had left the store. She had greatly admired the ornaments and had partly decided to purchase them at a later date. Not for one instant, not on his life, did the jeweler suspect the lady of title of even taking the jewel away in a fit of abstraction, but somehow he felt it his duty to report the case. The inspector didn't bluff this third tradesman quite as heavily as he had the first and second, and he looked grave and thoughtful when I was given the case and he related particulars. I was told to go my own way about it, but if I made a blunder Scotland Yard would see me no more as a detective. That wasn't at all encouraging, you see, but I had to go ahead and make a start. Much to my surprise, after thinking the matter over I came to the conclusion that the marquis' wife might possibly be guilty of shoplifting. The idea almost took my breath away at the first go off, but when I came to recall the many rumors about the marquis being a gambler, hard up, a man of miserish habits at home, and so forth, there looked to be something in it from a detective's standpoint.

The lady was well known to me by sight. She was past 45, much faded, and her face always carried a fretful, worried look. I simply waited until she appeared on the street in her carriage, as if bound on a shopping tour, and then followed her. It was a week after the third case was reported that she came out, and she went directly to a Bond street jeweler's. I followed her into the store, where she was known and received with great servility, and when a tray of jewelry was placed before her I felt sure that the next half hour would clear her of all suspicion or complicate the case still further. Her manner was that of lofty condescension. She slowly and languidly inspected the jewels, and now and then the proprietor of the store, who was waiting upon her in person, had his attention attracted for the moment elsewhere. My lady finally decided to call again and was bowed out, and she was hardly clear of the door when I revealed my identity to the jeweler and asked him to be sure that there was nothing missing from the tray. He was at first inclined to administer a snub, but when he found the finest ring of the lot conspicuously absent he almost fell over in a faint. There was no room to doubt that the lady had "lifted" it, but that only made the case worse in a way. For a tradesman and a detective to charge a lady of quality with shoplifting was as bad as treason against the crown. A mere word would bring financial ruin upon the jeweler, and he was ready to stand the loss ten times over rather than speak it.

Twice more within the next fortnight I followed the lady into jewelry establishments and morally convicted her of shoplifting. This made six cases in all, and, no matter how the victims felt, we of the Yard were quite determined that something ought to be done. I had been on the staff for ten years, and my work had given good satisfaction, but I was selected as a sacrifice. I mean by that that I was ordered to secure an interview with the lady, inform her of my discoveries and take the consequences. I must take all the burden on myself and clear the Yard. There could be but one ending, and before making my call my resignation was written out, and I had arranged to go with a private agency. One morning I appeared at the residence of the marquis and boldly asked for my lady on important business. I was kept waiting until she was satisfied that I was neither a process server nor a creditor and was then admitted to the presence of a very slipshod looking woman who showed me scant courtesy when she said:

"Well, sir, you are here, and now what is it?"

"It's about the jewelry, my lady," I replied.

"What do you mean?"

"The finger rings from Black's, the sunburst from Brown's, the earrings from Green's. You carried them away and forgot to return them."

My lady's face went white as snow, and she gasped for breath, and I expected to see her faint away. By a tremendous effort she pulled herself together, and as the color came back to her cheeks she hissed at me:

"You dog, you! The marquis shall see that you get your just deserts! Leave the house at once!"

I left, and within an hour the marquis was at the Yard to say that he would uproot the whole system if I was not promptly bounced and an apology rendered. The Yard apologized, I was bounced, and my lady had a story for her friends about attempted blackmail. There were no more thefts, however, and as a private detective I even recovered some of the stuff from the shops where my lady's maid had pledged them to raise cash for her mistress.

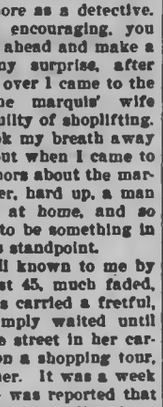
Good Boys

Are the bad boys very often. The boy that's good for anything is generally pugnacious. He's a healthy animal, and the healthy animal will always fight for his rights.

When a boy shuns the rough sports of his companions he is apt to be a weakling, and to be conscious of the fact.



A great many mothers have testified to the wonderful curing and strengthening power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. All strength comes from food after it has been perfectly digested and assimilated. By curing diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, "Golden Medical Discovery" enables the perfect nourishment of the body, which is thus built up in the only way a body can be built up—by food.

There is no alcohol in "Discovery," and it entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"Dr. Pierce's medicine has done wonders for my two sons," writes Mrs. M. Hartrick, of Demster, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Both had scrofula. My eldest son was taken two or three years ago with hemorrhage from the lungs. It troubled him for over a year. He took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and has not had one in over a year. My younger son had scrofulous sores on his neck; had two lanced, but has not had any since he commenced to take your medicine."

"Sweating" Bees.

The process known as "sweating" is not confined to human beings. It is applied to bees by some up to date keepers.

The natural tendency of the bee to work and its great dislike to idleness are made use of to the fullest extent. Honey is a product that yields a good profit, so the beekeeper brings the flowers as near as may be to the hive and induces his insect gatherers to work hard to collect the honey from them.

An expert beekeeper gives the following idea of what they will do. Seventy-five acres of land planted with white clover or sanfoin will keep 100 hives busy during the three summer months. The yield of honey for each fine day is ten pounds per acre, and as the plant flowers twice and remains in bloom for a week very often the total yield is 10,000 pounds.

Combmaking is lighter and less dangerous work than gathering honey, so the young bees usually perform this task. But the keeper wants them all to work and work hard, so he provides the base of the comb in natural size and pure wax. That leaves less work to be done at home, and the bees go out immediately there is nothing more for them to do inside. The keeper also takes care to constantly empty the combs, so that the bees shall always be laboring to fill it.—London Standard.

A Tired Man.

Once there was a man who complained constantly because it required so much toil for him to make a living. He declared that he would rather be buried than work for a living, and so his neighbors started out to gratify his wish. A stranger, seeing them about to entomb a living man, inquired why they were doing so. On being told that the man complained of having to work for a living and preferred to be buried, the stranger's heart was moved, and he offered to give the complaining man ten bushels of corn. "Is it shelled?" asked the discontented soul, and when informed it was not he remarked, "Well, then, let the burial proceed."

We Are Shorter at Night.

It is an undoubted fact that the human body is shorter at night than in the morning, and that is due to the weight of the body compressing the intervertebral cartilages. During sleep or while in a recumbent position, the pressure being removed, their natural elasticity enables them to resume their normal size; consequently the height of an individual will vary from three-eighths to half an inch between morning and night.

Out of Sorts.

Carelessness and neglect, and ofttimes wilful disregard of Nature's laws puts the system out of sorts. Hurried, neglected and irregular meals cause most of the trouble.

No wonder the stomach revolts—goes on strike. It's functions are so necessary to your daily health that when it doesn't act properly your entire body suffers. Bowels clogged, liver inactive, blood impure, bad taste, coated tongue—you feel all petered out—and you look it.

The result is indigestion, biliousness and constipation, followed by more serious complications if the body's natural functions are not restored at once. To all such sufferers there is a sure, safe, economical and palatable cure—that is time-tested, never-failing Abbey's Effervescent Salt. A laxative that never gripes, gentle, but certain. It gets the bowels back to their normal action. Tones up the stomach. Livens up the liver. Makes the entire system right as a trivet.

THE FINAL MEETING.

Amalgamated Association Will Meet Again To-day.

WILL INDUSTRIAL WAR ENSUE?

The C.P.R. Trackmen's Strike As Seen Through the Books With General Superintendent Spencer of Montreal —Says "The Strike is Out of Date" and That Old Men Are Returning.

Pittsburg, Aug. 3.—Judging by indications that are practically facts, peace or war in the steel troubles will be announced from New York City to-day. When the Amalgamated Association Executive Board adjourned last evening President Shaffer announced that another meeting would be held to-day. There will probably be a meeting here to-day of a portion of the board, but the National officers will be in New York. They left for that city last night on the Pennsylvania Limited at 10 o'clock.

"STRIKE IS OUT OF DATE."

Montreal, Aug. 3.—Little items on the strike situation continue to leak out. "The strike is out of date," that is how Mr. Spencer, General Superintendent of the C. P. R. puts it. Mr. Spencer had advices yesterday from Mr. McNicoll, General Manager, which indicate that in the Rossland and Kootenay districts the old men are returning to their work, while, if there be a vacancy here and there, new men are applying. In the west all the sections will be very shortly filled.

Mr. Spencer showed the lists of the eastern division, showing just now the road is manned at the present time. Out of 204 sections 86 have been filled with old foremen and men who have returned to their work. The balance is being filled up by careful foremen from other railways, and under such foremen about seventy per cent. of the old men have resumed duty. The same state of things exists upon the Ontario and Atlantic divisions.

The case against J. F. Wilson, President of the Brotherhood of Trackmen; Joseph Lennon and A. F. Stout of the C. P. R. strikers' committee, for criminal libel, was called in court yesterday afternoon, and, after Mr. R. C. Montgomery, who made the charge had been examined, the case was adjourned.

ESCHEW THE MILITIA.

American Socialists Pass Strong Resolutions—Tool of Capitalists.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 3.—The National Socialist convention adjourned last night, after electing Leon Greenbaum of St. Louis National Secretary, and designating St. Louis as the national headquarters of the Socialist party. As the delegates filed from the hall they sang the "Marseillaise."

Much of the wrangle during the night session hinged on the effort to embody in the articles of resolution a clause prohibiting Socialists from accepting office under either of the "Capitalist" parties, and from entering the ranks of the State militia. Both clauses were finally adopted.

The judiciary of the country was branded as a "servile tool in the hands of the capitalistic class and hostile to the interests of labor."

Not Citizens of the United States.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The Herald's correspondent at Washington, says: An opinion has been handed down by General-Appraiser A. Somerville in the matter of the protest of the Lake Ontario Fish Co. against the decision of the Collector of Customs at Cape Vincent, New York. In this decision it is held that fish caught in Canadian waters by Canadian citizens, in the employ of an American corporation, are not "fish caught by citizens of the United States" within the meaning of paragraph 555, United States Tariff Act of 1897.

NATURAL GAS EXPORT.

Announcement by the United Gas and Oil Company at Windsor.

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 3.—The United Gas and Oil Company of Ontario, with general offices in this city, yesterday announced that it had decided to stop the exportation of natural gas from the Essex County gas fields into Michigan within a month.

The Hated British Flag.

Rochester, Aug. 3.—The sight of a large British flag, included among the decorations adorning Main street, Albion, while the annual parade of the Western New York firemen was in progress, drove John J. McBride, one of the visiting firemen, frantic, and the banner was torn down and burned amid much enthusiasm. Just as the flag fluttered and fell in the mud, a brass band following the hose company struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and intense enthusiasm followed. The flag had no sooner struck the ground than a match was applied to it, and it was burned. The remains were eagerly sought after as souvenirs.

Prohibits Public Drinking.

Moscow, Aug. 3.—To the great consternation of brandy drinkers, M. Boulyguine, Governor-General of Moscow, has issued a decree prohibiting the drinking of their beloved vodka in the streets, parks, public squares, house yards and all public buildings. Offenders are made subject to fine, and, when unable to pay, will be sent to prison for three months. Brandy consumers think it rather hard that they should be liable to severe punishment for publicly consuming liquor bought in the saloons, which are now a state monopoly.

Signing of Protocol.

Pekin, Aug. 3.—The Protocol Committee of the Ministers of the powers have virtually finished the draft of the protocol and will submit the same for approval to the other ministers. London, Aug. 3.—The Under Secretary of the Foreign Office, Lord Cranborne, in the House of Commons yesterday announced that the official date fixed for the evacuation of Pekin by the British troops was Aug. 15, subject to a few days' extension if necessary. The evacuation of the other portions of China will depend on circumstances.

Torpedo Boat Sank.

Portsmouth, Aug. 3.—Torpedo boat No. 81 sank off the Alderney Breakwater. No lives were lost. Her guns and stores were saved. She will be raised. She was taking part in the naval manoeuvres and struck the submerged ruins of the old breakwater. She managed to reach the inner harbor, but sank there.

LUMBER RATES ADVANCE.

Action of Insurance Underwriters Causes Disturbance.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—There is consternation among the lumbermen here in consequence of the action of the insurance underwriters in raising the rates on lumber and all extra hazardous risks, such as planing mills, etc. The rates have been raised from 25 to 75 per cent. in some cases, a very heavy increase. For instance, the mills of the Edwards Company, which have hitherto paid $2.50 per cent., are now rated at $4, an increase of 60 per cent. The reason assigned for the increase is that losses on lumber of late years, not in Ottawa only, but throughout Canada, have been exceedingly heavy; that already this year there have been serious losses, and that in future the lumber trade must pay for its own business and the incidental losses.

GOOD FOR ONTARIO.

(Bobcaygeon Independent.)

Among other things in Canada's year book, just published, is a statement of the per capita expenditure in each province. There is no mistake to be made about the Province of Ontario being well managed. There is no other government in the whole range of civilization that has never contracted a debt. Ontario stands alone, in never having borrowed money for a national debt. The year book gives the following cost in the different Provinces of the Dominion:—

	Amount Per Head.
Ontario	$1 74
Quebec	2 74
Nova Scotia	2 04
New Brunswick	2 47
Manitoba	4 58
British Columbia	9 88
Prince Edward Island	2 82

Ontario owes no debt. Ontario has money owing owing to it. Ontario is governed at a yearly cost of $1.74 per head. No other country in the world the same just cause for pride. Hooray for Ontario!

FIT FOR STYLE

Style is distinct from fit, inasmuch as a garment may be fitting the figure clean and smooth everywhere, and yet be quite featureless and devoid of style.

Style is what may be termed the beauty of outline in the run of the different seams and harmonious arrangement of parts pleasing to the eye.

A TITANIC STRUGGLE

WILL UNIONISM STAND OR FALL?

The Steel Strike Must Go on to the Bitter End—Meeting of Leaders on Both Sides Does No Good—The Positions of Messrs. Morgan and Shaffer—The Latter Talks.

Pittsburg, Aug. 5. — It is now a fight to the bitter finish between the great billion-dollar steel trust and organized labor. Mr. Shaffer says that he is ready to employ every peaceable means within the power of the men to win a victory. No quarter is to be given, and none will be requested. The entire management of the battle has been placed in the hands of President Shaffer. He has absolute power to call out every man who is connected with the organization, and he intends to do it. He is satisfied with the progress of the fight to date. He finds that none of his battle lines have been broken. Promises are made by Mr. Shaffer that the trust will find that the Amalgamated Association has strong roots in many mills.

And Once Again

we acknowledge with thanks the hearty response of our friends and the buying public generally in carrying off, or having sent, goodly sized parcels. True, the amount given us in exchange is very little, but that is what we set out to do—"give a lot and accept a trifle." Not only on paper do we do this, but in reality, and the person who can still say they never got a bargain

We have endeavoured to serve you promptly, and ask any of you who have had to wait to kindly overlook it. Considering the large number of "send" parcels, we have done the best possible under the heavy pressure, and ask those whose parcels we were unable to deliver Saturday night to kindly bear with us.

TRUSTWORTHY DRY GOODS — UNIFORMLY RIGHT PRICES

MR. SHAFFER TALKS.

Interview With the President of the Amalgamated Association—Surprises in Store for Trust.

Pittsburg, Aug. 5. — "Within a week every union man and every union man at heart in the employ of the United States Steel Corporation will be asked to join the strike now being waged by the Amalgamated Association. We must settle whether unionism is to stand or fall.

"There will be no more conferences with the United States Steel Corporation unless the meeting is asked for by the officials of that Corporation. The Amalgamated Association will not request a peace meeting."

These and several other significant statements were made last night by Theodore J. Shaffer, President of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, upon his return from the fruitless conference with J. Pierpont Morgan and others in New York.

Surprises for the Trust.

"Do you think you will be able to close all of the mills of the Steel Corporation?"

"I am of the opinion that every one of them can be closed. We have some great surprises in store for the Trust. The men have been organized in some of their mills that they never dreamed could be touched. We have the sympathy of the workmen, and they will not throw any straw in the way of our absolute victory."

"Are you afraid of southern negroes being brought in to break the strike?"

"Not in the least. The negroes of the South are thoroughly organized. We have not been overlooking that detail. They make the best kind of unionmen. The 300 colored men brought from the South to assist in starting the plant of the Latrobe Steel Company in Chicago were all members of the union. When they discovered what Schwab wanted of them they returned to their homes."

FIGHT TO THE FINISH.

One of the Bitterest of Labor Contests Ever Began Is On—What Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan Says.

New York, Aug. 5. — There is no truce between the capitalists who control the United States Steel Corporation and the affiliated plants, and the great army of one hundred and ten thousand men employed in these concerns. Instead, one of the bitterest conflicts ever waged between capital and labor will be begun today. President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, gives the order which will throw legions into idleness.

To this deplorable end came the conference between the employers and the leaders of their workmen held in this city Saturday. Not a man on either side doubts that the conflict will be long and bitterly fought, and all because neither side would recede one iota from the position it had assumed. In all the big plants east of St. Louis and as far south as Mason and Dixon's line operations will be suspended on the date named in the order which President Shaffer is sure to issue.

J. Pierpont Morgan himself gave an hour and ten minutes of his valuable time to the purpose of the conference. He was the ruling spirit of the men of millions. To him most of the argument was addressed. When he hurried from the meeting room it was plain to see he was exasperated and angered.

A Fight to the Finish.

This message was ordered sent from New York on Saturday to the Pittsburg officials of the United States Steel Corporation:

"It will be a fight to the finish. No quarter will be given. We are prepared to spend all the money and time necessary to wipe out the Amalgamated Association in all of our mills."

One steel man waited in Pittsburg at the telephone for the news of the breaking of the armistice. When he received it: "Good!" he ejaculated. That was all. He started out with a smiling face to prepare for the fray.

It was Mr. Morgan who laid the ultimatum before the association's men. It was he who told them that they must accept his proposition, which would mean a confession of weakness on their part, or else fight to the end. Not only did the men reject these propositions, but they submitted a counter ultimatum, the terms of which are so sweeping that they must have known from the outset that they never would be accepted by the other side.

Losses to Date.

The number of men now out is 50,000. Sixty thousand more may be called out to-day. Up to date the men have lost $3,806,000 in wages, and the companies $5,120,000.

President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association declares the strikers will tie up every steel trust mill. The trust employs 165,000 men whose wages aggregate $495,000 a day or $2,957,000 a week.

TRACKMEN ARE SOLID.

Secretary Wilkinson Replies to the Statement Made By Mr. Spencer.

Toronto, Aug. 5. — Mr. Wilkinson, secretary of the local trackmen, denies the statement of Mr. Spencer, general superintendent of the C.P.R., made in Montreal, alleging that on the Eastern division and the Ontario and Atlantic divisions of the road, the striking trackmen have in many cases returned to work and the places of others are being filled. A letter dated July 30, received by Mr. Wilkinson bearing on affairs in those divisions, says: "We are solid down this way and intend to stay that way. Only two of our own men have returned to work so far on the Atlantic division, but on one end of the division four or five Frenchmen went to work in the State of Maine, and that's all. We are going to win this fight as sure as death."

Called in the Sheriff.

Winnipeg, Aug. 5. — C. P. R. Co. v. Hollonquist and C.P.R. v. Cook came before Chief Justice Killam. It appears that defendants Hollonquist and Cook were section foremen at Bergen and Rosser, respectively, and occupied the section house as such section foremen, that though they were notified to leave after they struck and refused to work for the company, yet they did not do so. The chief justice ordered a writ to issue, directing the sheriff to put the company in possession, and that the defendants should pay the costs.

HON. D. MILLS IS HOME

Results of the Colonial Conference Not Yet Public.

GREETED BY MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

Mr. Mills for the Present Treats the Results and Report of the Delegates to the Imperial Government as Confidential—Three Ex-Governors of Canada Speak Appreciately of Dominion.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Hon. David Mills, accompanied by Mrs. Mills and his private secretary, Mr. J. D. Clark, reached the city Saturday evening, after an absence of some six weeks in England. Mrs. Mills on Sunday left for London, where she will be joined at the end of the week by the Minister of Justice. Mr. Mills will enjoy a short vacation on his farm in Western Ontario. During his recent trip he had no leisure for holidays, almost his whole time being taken up with public business. The chief purpose of the Minister's visit to England was to represent Canada at the conference called to consider whether the present Judicial Committee of the Privy Council should be abolished, and another body created in its place, in which representatives from the colonies, as well as Great Britain, should sit. Hints have been given that at the conference strong opposition was offered by Canada's representatives to the proposed change, the view of this country being that the present constitution of the final Court of Appeal is quite satisfactory. It has also been stated from an apparently reliable source that Canada's view carried the day, and the conference reported against the proposition referred to. Asked whether he could confirm these statements, Mr. Mills replied that he must for the present treat the matter as confidential. All he could say was that, pursuant to arrangement, the conference met, the various colonial representatives being greeted by Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary, and Lord Halsbury, Lord Chancellor, who afterwards withdrew. The colonial delegates held a series of meetings, and, having duly considered the subject presented to them, drew up a report, which was then handed to the Imperial Government. The nature of the report Mr. Mills did not feel at liberty to disclose. The Minister of Justice came into contact with Mr. Chamberlain on several occasions, and regards the latter as an exceedingly able, well-informed and courageous man. He also met Lord Lansdowne, the Earl of Derby and the Earl of Aberdeen, all three being ex-Governors-General of Canada. They all manifested a kindly interest in Canadian affairs, and spoke in an appreciative way of the progress which this country is making.

Two Dead, One Injured.

Lockport, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A Pan-American special, heavily loaded, and a regular train collided a few miles east of this city yesterday morning, on the New York Central. The engineer of the regular was killed at his post. A trainman lost his life and a fireman suffered a broken leg and other injuries, but will recover.

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

Mostly due to germs in the water you drink, which boiling and filtering will hardly destroy.

A desertspoonful of Powley's Liquified Ozone in a tumbler of water will effectually sterilize your drink and add to its refreshing power.

The case of Wm. Francis, of Toronto, is most remarkable. He had been pronounced hopelessly incurable, and the hospital authorities had asked for his body for dissecting purposes. He tells his own story:

"I feel it my duty to testify regarding the wonderful curative powers of your new system of treatment. My case is one that baffled the skill of the best English and Canadian medical men. In 1876 while in the tropical climes, I was attacked with Tropical Dysentery in the most dangerous form, and was unable to eradicate it from my system. I was treated in the West London Hospital, at Hammersmith, England; also St. George's Hospital, Knightsbridge, London. I was under the care of the most skilled physicians in London, who were unable to benefit me, and my case was pronounced incurable. Since coming to Toronto I have been a patient in three of the city institutions, viz., General Hospital, Grace Hospital and Simcoe Street Dispensary, and have been dismissed as incurable. I was advised to take Powley's Liquified Ozone as a last resort, and at the time I began the treatment was helpless in bed with dysentry in its worst form. I had suffered each summer since 1876, until I began your treatment. Friends never expected me to get well. I had a large lump on the left side of the stomach the size of a hen's egg, believed to be cancer. I continued the Ozone until I had used five bottles, but a permanent cure has been the result. The lump in my stomach has also disappeared, and after 18 long years of doctoring and suffering, I can say positively that I have been cured through your new treatment. I feel it my duty to send you this testimonial, that other sufferers may know how to act." (Signed) WILLIAM FRANCIS, 201 Hamilton Street, Toronto.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is oxygen in stable form. Taken internally it makes the system healthy, in that way it destroys the germs of disease.

Royal Son and Brother En Route to the Dying Bedside of the Dowager Empress Frederick of Germany.

The following bulletin concerning the condition of the illustrious patient was issued during yesterday afternoon: "The external disease from which Her Majesty is suffering, and which for years has been slowly increasing, has, in the course of the last few weeks, extended to the internal organs. Her Majesty's strength is diminishing rapidly, owing to inability to take sufficient nourishment. She is conscious, and, at the present, without pain."

"(Signed), Renvers, Spielhagen."

Emperor William has not yet arrived at Cronberg. He is expected there at 3 a. m. to-day.

Prof. Renvers, the specialist, wired His Majesty to come in all haste.

King Leaves To-Day.

London, Aug. 5.—King Edward arranged to leave Portsmouth at 3 a. m. to-day by special train, which is due to arrive in London at 5 a. m. He will proceed immediately from London by special train and boat, via Flushing, to the bedside of his sister. The Duke of Cambridge is already in Cronberg.

A RESIDENT OF CANADA.

Mrs. Nellie Sartoris, Daughter of Gen. U. S. Grant Has Bought a Mansion in Cobourg, Ont.

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 5.—Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, daughter of Gen. U. S. Grant, sealed legally on Saturday the purchase of the magnificent residence of Miss Allan, daughter of the late Sir Hugh Allan, and will have almost immediate possession. The princely residence, with its handsome grounds, is situated in the southwest part of the town, on the most commanding site within its limits. The house was built by the late Wentworth Tremaine, a lumberman. It was afterward purchased and occupied by William Weller, the great mail contractor and proprietor of the line of mail barges running between Hamilton and Montreal for many years previous to the construction and opening of the Grand Trunk Railway system. Subsequently it was purchased by George Ley, an English gentleman, whose widow sold it to Miss Allan. Mrs. Sartoris is accompanied here by her mother, widow of the late general, who has just left Saratoga.

INTO BRITISH LINES.

Former President Steyn Sends Two Boers With a Letter.

THEY BACK UP KRITZINGER.

Kruger's Councillors Fully Approve of Murdering the British Blacks—Cousin of Steyn Fell While Fighting at Vicksburg, Aug. 1—Boers Wreck a Train and Shoot the Trainmen.

Kroonstad, Orange River Colony, Aug. 4.—Two Boers came into the British lines to-day under a flag of truce with a letter from former President Steyn.

28 Gordon Highlanders Killed

London, Aug. 5.—A letter from a soldier in South Africa, dated Nyalroon, Transvaal Colony, July 6, has been received, saying the Boers wrecked a train near Nabosnpruit, July 4. One hundred and fifty Boers attacked the train guard, and 28 Gordon Highlanders were killed, 18 wounded and ten captured. The conductor, engineer and firemen of the train were subsequently shot.

Boers Turn to Czar.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—Heer Vandernoven, one of Mr. Kruger's agents, arrived here yesterday, carrying a letter to the Czar from the ex-President. It is not thought any attempt to interest the Czar in Transvaal affairs will succeed.

Praise for Buller.

Cape Town, Aug. 4.—The Cape Times, commenting on the announcement in the House of Commons that the government did not propose to recognize Sir Redvers Buller's services in South Africa, voices the regret which is generally felt here. The Times insists that Gen. Buller performed some of the hardest, perhaps the very hardest work of the campaign.

To Withdraw 40,000 Troops.

London, Aug. 5. — The government now avows its intention to withdraw 40,000 men from South Africa. It is naturally inferred in this country that the men will be brought home, but the present intention is to send the greater part, if not all of the troops, to India.

Kruger Approves Murder.

Paris, Aug. 5. — A despatch from Amsterdam says Mr. Kruger's councillors fully approve of the determination of Kritzinger, the Boer commander in Cape Colony, to shoot all Kaffirs found serving in the British army, whether armed or unarmed.

Steyn's Cousin Killed.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, Aug. 3. — Commandant Haermanus Steyn, a cousin of President Steyn, was killed Aug. 1, while fighting at Ficksburg. Boers and rebels are re-entering the Barkly West District of Cape Colony.

Money for Peace.

Paris, Aug. 5. — In the course of the interview with Mr. Kruger, published in The Figaro on Saturday, the ex-President of the Transvaal said:

"We have already once proposed peace directly to Great Britain, and we will not renew the propositions. All we are willing to give for peace is money; if Great Britain asks it; and no price is too dear to obtain independence, and the right to live as a free nation."

Why Is Russia?

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5. — Dr. Leyds, the Diplomatic Agent of the Transvaal, who is here on what he describes as "private business," says there is no foundation for the report that Mr. Kruger is coming to St. Petersburg.

Keeping the Wires Hot.

Ottawa, Aug. 5. — The Militia Department has strong hopes of being able to obtain from the War Office the clasps which go with the South African medals in time for presentation by the Duke of Cornwall and York. Cables are now being exchanged on the subject.

NEVER LIVED SO WELL BEFORE.

Mrs. Kruger and Mrs. Steyn Received Money From the British.

New York, Aug. 5.—General Baden-Powell asserts that Mrs. Kruger, after President Kruger left South Africa for Europe, until her death, had been in receipt of £250 a month from the British Government, and that she also had free use of a Government carriage and Government horses. The despatch from London to The Journal and Advertiser, containing this statement, goes on: "The Mafeking hero also states that Mrs. Steyn, wife of President Steyn, of the late Orange Free State, was paid £100 a month by the Government, and likewise had the use of a carriage and horses. The latter statement is confirmed by a letter from Mrs. Steyn to a niece in Scotland, in which she wrote: 'I never lived so well in my life.'"

Blowing His Own Nose.

When George IV was prince regent, he visited Doncaster, and at the time his royal highness was suffering from a cold.

One day the royal party were showing themselves to the people from a balcony.

"Which is the prince? I must see the prince!" cried an excited old Yorkshire woman who had come to see the "first gentleman of Europe."

"That's him," said a bystander, pointing upward—"him with a handkerchief in his hand."

"Him!" cried the old lady in profound contempt. "That the prince! Why, he blows his own nose!"—London Standard.

THE LIQUOR HABIT.

Rev. A. J. McCallen's Lecture.

On the occasion of a lecture delivered before a large and appreciative audience in Windsor Hall, Montreal, in honour of the Father Matthew anniversary, Rev. J. A. McCallen, S. S., of St. Patrick's church, and president of the St. Patrick's Total Abstinence Society, paid the following grand tribute to the value of Mr. Dixon's new discovery for the cure of alcohol and drug habits.

Referring to the physical craze engendered by the inordinate use of intoxicants, he said: "When such a craze manifests itself there is no escape, unless by a miracle of grace, or by some such remedy as Mr. Dixon's Cure, about which the papers have spoken so much lately, and if I am to judge of the value of the Dixon remedy by the cures which it has effected under my own eyes, I must come to the conclusion that what I have longed for twenty years to see discovered, has at last been found by that gentleman."

Full particulars of this new medicine are sent sealed free to all applicants. Address, Mr. Dixon, 81 Willcocks street, Toronto, Ont.

They All Got Seats.

A pugnacious looking young man with red hair swayed from a strap in a crowded Walnut street car the other evening and glared at a Chinaman who was fortunate enough to occupy a seat. Three or four women were also standing. The red haired young man fixed his gaze severely upon the Chinaman, but the latter appeared unconscious of his surroundings.

After a few minutes the young man tapped the Celestial upon the shoulder and exclaimed: "See here, John, why don't you try to be an American citizen? Get up and give one of these ladies your seat." "Allee light," responded the Chinaman, immediately rising.

One of the women sat down, and then the pugnacious looking young man turned his attention to several other men who were seated, buried in their newspapers. "There are some other American citizens in this car," he remarked audibly to no one in particular, "who haven't the politeness of a Chinaman." One of the men arose and stood on the rear platform, where he was followed by two others, and the women eventually all secured seats.—Philadelphia Record.

OUTLAWS ARE GATHERING.

And Trouble Is Again Feared When Allied Troops Leave Pekin.

Pekin, Aug. 4.—All the French troops which were here, exclusive of the legation guards, have left. It is reported that bands of outlaws are gathering, and more will assemble when the allied troops leave, and Boxers have been discovered drilling in one of the suburbs. Troops are stationed on the walls of Pekin, to prevent an attack by insurgents. Despite this, however, members of the legations assert that quiet has been restored, and that the Chinese are cowed. Everything is quiet at Amoy.

Chinese More Unfriendly.

Pekin, Aug. 4.—American and European residents assert that the demeanor of the Pekin populace is constantly becoming more unfriendly, and that as the allied troops depart the Chinese resume their old habits of jostling and cursing foreigners in the streets.

800 MEN KILLED.

Despatch From Curacoa Tells of Terrible Havoc Among Rebels.

London, Aug. 5.—The Router Telegraph Company has received the following despatch, dated Aug. 4, Curacoa: "Advices from Caracas say that 6,000 revolutionists were defeated after 50 hours' fighting, July 29 and 30, with a loss of 800 men, the Government loss being 300."

The Invaders Repulsed.

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 5.—The Venezuelan Government announces that a force of invaders under Gen. Rangel Garbiras, including 22 battalions of the Colombian army, was repulsed by the Government troops and compelled to fall back across the frontier after 28 hours' fighting, July 28 and July 29. It is officially asserted that the invaders lost 900 men, the Government troops losing 300. The Government has sent reinforcements to the frontier.

TWO SHIPS WRECKED.

Norwegian Steamer Vera Strikes a Rock Near Renews—Steamer Acis in Danger.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 4.—The Norwegian steamer Vera, from London for Quebec, struck on the rocks near Renews. The Vera is in an upright position. She stands well above the water. All her fires are out. Her captain and crew got ashore at midnight and camped on the bank. They have provisions with them. There is no hope of getting her off.

Steamer Acis Wrecked.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 5.—A second shipwreck has been reported, nine miles west of Cape Race. She is the steamer Acis, Captain Tate, from Galveston for Hamburg, with a cargo of cotton and grain. The Acis is in a dangerous position, and has been abandoned by her crew.

Grain Cutting Begun.

Winnipeg, Aug. 5.—Mr. Alex. Scott, manager of the Morris Creamery, reports that wheat cutting has commenced on the Twiss farm. Most of the farmers will put in the binder to-day, and will be able to go right ahead. At Plum Creek, Man., Frank Roff commenced cutting wheat Saturday with two binders. At Nesbitt, Man., David Lockeridge threshed a field of barley Saturday that averaged 51¼ bushels per acre.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

It will be noted that the average scoring of Canadian cheese is very high and uniform. The committee who judged them, A. C. Bryce, Montreal; S. B. Richardson, New York, and H. C. Whyte, Wisconsin, complimented the Canadians on their exceptional success and said that no better cheese are made in America.

BLUNDERS IN FICTION.

The Queer Mistakes That Are Sometimes Made by Authors.

We smile as we read and pass swiftly by the stories of maidens that wander in "lonely woods" at unearthly hours of night, always clad in "a soft, white clinging gown." Now, every girl knows that the average maiden is too much afraid of tramps and snakes to wander in "lonely woods." The weather, too, appears to perplex our novelists, for not infrequently they begin a chapter at dawn, there are a few moments' conversation, and then the "sun sets in lurid banks behind the distant empurpled mountains."

I am reminded at the outset of an English story written by an author of repute where the heroine in one scene was made on one page to stoop down and tie her shoestring, while three pages farther on, directly following, it was said of the same girl that she had remained barefooted the entire day. In another story a blind woman is made to view the hero through spectacles before the tale is ended.

In a French novel—and we generally consider French such literary masters—a heroine is clearly made to go direct from her bed to the breakfast table, out shopping, to an afternoon tea and to dinner in her robe de nuit! Cousins suddenly transformed into brothers without a moment's warning are numerous in this detective's library. Thus one is amused to find the most marvelous mistakes in books which we think we have carefully read.

Golf in the Old Days.

Centuries back golf was a pastime of the royal family, though then usually played in Scotland. The Stuart family was very fond of the game, and the first English club was established at Blackheath in 1608 by James I. His eldest son, Henry, frequently played and on one occasion nearly struck by accident his tutor with a club, whereupon he coolly remarked, "Had I done so I had but paid my debts." Charles I was playing golf when he received the news of the Irish rebellion. James, duke of York, afterward James II, was another ardent player. Golf is frequently mentioned in ancient Scottish records and in the fifteenth century was prohibited because it interfered with the practice of archery. Strutt considered it the most ancient game at ball requiring a bat.—London Chronicle.

The Squirrel Hunter's Weapon.

The cream of squirrel hunting is enjoyed by the man who uses a light rifle of small caliber and medium power. The ".22 long" as now turned out by our leading makers is an excellent weapon—in fact, the best in the world for the purpose. Though not of sufficient range to be dangerous to people or stock at a distance, it throws lead with surprising accuracy to the tops of the tallest trees. Good rifle shots always aim for the squirrel's head both to add to the difficulty of the sport and to avoid spoiling meat. And be it known that a squirrel's head at a range of 40 or 50 yards is no easy mark. If a reader doubts this, let him go to the woods for a day, keep all empty shells, and at the end of the day let him try to make the dead squirrels and the empty shells tally.—E. W. Sandys in Outing.

Early Birds.

The green finch is the earliest riser. It pipes as early as half past 1 in the morning. The blackcap begins at half past 2. It is nearly 4 o'clock before the blackbird appears. It is heard half an hour before the thrush, and the chirp of the robin begins about the same length of time before that of the wren. The house sparrow and the tomtit take the last stage of the list.

Advantages of Port Cities.

The revenue New York derives from the rental of piers to the Cunard, the White Star, the American, the Atlantic Transport, the French, the Leyland, the National and other lines is nearly $1,000,000 annually. The White Star line pays the largest rental, $217,000; the Cunard line is next with $120,000 and the American line third with $88,400.—Ainslee's.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Wonderful Stones.

The brain of the tortoise was supposed to contain a wonderful stone which was efficacious in extinguishing fire and when placed under the tongue would produce prophetic inspiration. Another stone possessing the latter property was to be found in the eye of the hyena. The head of the cat, however, was thought to contain what would undoubtedly have been the most wonderful and most desirable treasure of all could it have only had a real instead of an imaginary existence, for that man who was so fortunate as to possess this precious stone would have all his wishes granted.

The Peterborough Canoe Company's Order From Abroad.

The Peterborough Canoe Company have just received an order from Grand Labour, on the west Coast of Africa, for one of their celebrated canoes. The order calls for a 19 foot cedar rib, solid comfort canoe, cushions, search light, and other equipments. This order is the result of the exhibit made by the Peterborough Canoe Co., at the Paris Exposition, and is only one of a number of orders received by this firm from far away points. The boat will be built at once, and shipped to its destination. This certainly speaks well for the local boat builders.

MR. DEVLIN'S TRIP.

He Returned Last Week From a Two Weeks Outing in the States.

Mr. W. J. Devlin, of town, returned last week from a most delightful two weeks trip to the State of Wisconsin, having taken a run over to see his sister, Mrs. John Fitzgerald, who has been in ill health.

Mr. Devlin speaks most enthusiastically of his trip and the manner in which he was treated by former residents of Peterborough and vicinity. When he reached Chicago he received a very hearty welcome from his old friend, James J. Sheehy, an old Peterborough boy who is prospering in the Windy City, and who appears to be enjoying life on the other side of the line. He is engaged in the management of a large book publishing concern, which is at present placing on the market a publication entitled "Ireland in Pictures," a profusely illustrated book, which Mr. Devlin says is something grand, and whose production entailed an expenditure of upwards of $35,000.

Having a stay of 13 hours in the City of Chicago, Mr. Devlin was shown many of the leading sights, amongst which were the great Masonic Temple, the Illinois Safe Deposit buildings, as well as the Board of Trade building, in which the Stock Exchange is situated. It was a scene of much excitement just then, the corn sensation having about reached a climax. Mr. Sheehy spared no pains in showing his guest around, and they ran across a number of Peterborough people, who are doing splendidly. Among these were Messrs. Bert and James Dolan, who both hold responsible positions, and appear to be filling them with every degree of satisfaction. They were ver much pleased to see their friend from Peterborough. Then there was old and genial Tom Dunn, who is running a saloon, and who is young and pleasant looking as ever.

At eight o'clock the same evening Mr. Devlin took the Great Northwestern for Green Bay to Wisconsin, and thence by the Northern he went to Black Creek. This is a great farming country, and what the farmers make their money out of is in stock raising, butter, cheese and corn. Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald took Mr. Devlin out for a 70 mile drive over what is perhaps the finest farming country he ever saw. He visited Appleton, a place of about 18,000 inhabitants, on the Fox River, on which the great missionary, Rev. Father Marquette, sailed down to the Mississippi. The chief industries of the place are the large paper mills, four to six stories in height, on the banks of the river. Having a few hours to spare they took a run from Appleton to Kuhuhano, an Indian village, where they met Mr. Devlin's old school mate, Mr. Richard Sullivan, who like most Canadians in the States, has built up a flourishing business. He conducts a large blacksmithing business. Black Creek, a village of about 700 population, is a flourishing little place, from which the farmers can ship their produce instead of teaming it to Appleton, as was previously the case.

The settlement here is made up chiefly of Canadians and Germans, the latter being a very progressive people, whilst of course the Canadians are not a whit behind them. Amongst the Canadians there are Mr. Tom. McNeish, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Elliott, formerly of Cavan, and Mr. W. Fitzgerald and Mr. P. Devlin, formerly of Peterborough. The value of land with buildings is $70 per acre. There is also there a Grandy family, formerly of Cavan.

Mr. Devlin came home via Detroit, and he considers it one of the prettiest cities in the west. He went via Port Huron. On his way home he noticed Ringling Bros.' circus at Oshkosh. This is the circus that was in Peterborough last June. He also saw among many other interesting sights a camp of gypsies covering a ten acre field.

Altogether Mr. Devlin's visit was one of the most pleasant two weeks of his life, and he will long remember the kindnesses extended to him by the ex-Peterborough people out west.

EKO UNDER CANVAS.

The Members of the Camp Went up on Saturday Evening.

The annual outing of Eko Camp is now in progress at Stony Lake, the boys having gone up on Saturday evening. They are as usual in camp near McCracken's, and for the next 10 or 12 days they will make things lively for the cottagers. Eko Camp is always noted for being one of the jolliest companies of young fellows that visits Stony Lake, and the boys always look forward to it with much pleasure. It is a time when they meet each other and renew old acquaintances and the out of town members always make it a point to be in attendance.

This year the camp will be composed of the following:—Messrs. J. M. Gemmell, R. M. Glover, W. B. Bletcher, Manson Comstock, Bill Comstock, W. C. Ackerman, Dick Watt, D. G., A. D. Higgins, Jim Marks, Fred Clark, Bob Elliott, Wm. Milne, Jack Milne, Herb Gillespie and J. G. Tate.

A BUSY TIME

There was a great crowd of people at the G.T.R. station on Saturday evening and many of them were not in the very best of humour, either. There were several hundreds including many who were leaving town for Sunday, many going away on their holidays, many there to see friends away and many there to meet friends. But the Toronto train was late, just an hour late, and the crowd became restless and impatient. The people going to Stony Lake were perhaps the most annoyed as they had to wait until the Toronto train arrived and there were a great many off that train who were on their way to the lake. It was just about 10 minutes to seven o'clock when the Lakefield train pulled out with a heavy load of human freight. It was therefore very much later than usual when the cottagers and others reached their destination on Saturday night.

Complaints are frequent that the various trains leaving the station here are not labelled in some manner so that the people may be enlightned as to which train is which.

PICKING THE NOSE is a common symptom of worms. Mothers who suspect their child is troubled with worms should administer Dr. Low's Worm Syrup. It is pleasant, safe and effectual.

'TWAS "PI" FOR THE PATRONS

Delightful Down Sail and Picnic—A Home-Coming Happening—Deluded by a Dredge and Stuck-in-the-Mud—Yachts to the Rescue—Home, Sweet Home in Safety.

That the local printers worked energetically and that they were very successful in their efforts was evidenced by the fact that over three hundred pleasure-seekers boarded the steamer City of Peterborough on Saturday to take in the Printers' First Annual Excursion.

These deciples of Guttenberg seem to be in the good graces of the weather man for the latter fulfilled his promise to them and ordered an ideal day. Old Sol showed a warm interest in their efforts and smiled continuously.

The boat left the C.P.R. wharf at 2.10 p.m. on its twenty-one-mile tortuous run to Jubilee Point. The journey was enlivened with music by the band, also dancing, singing, etc. Jubilee was reached at 5.10. That the sail had given keen appetities was shown by the eagerness with which the lunch baskets were attacked and their contents devoured and also by the determined raid the greater number of the party made upon the dining room of Jubilee House. It might be said, in passing, that the hostess, Mrs. Hull, proved equal to the occasion and served a tasty supper to the entire satisfaction of all, complimentary expressions being heard on all sides.

After "rounding up" a hearty meal and lolling upon the green sward for some time the committee in charge put on the following list of foot races:—

Boys' race—under 15 years—John Seymour.

Girls' race—under 15 years—Mary Carnegie.

Young ladies' race—Miss S. McMahon.

Married ladies' race — Mrs. Cranfield.

Fat mans' race—G. Duncan.

Little girls' race—under 8 years—Vera Peters.

Mens' race, open to all—Fred McGrath.

Each event was keenly contested showing that every person had entered into the spirit of the day's enjoyment.

The winner of the guessing contest for the china tea set will be made known in Tuesday evening's Examiner as before advertised.

While the trip down the river in day light had many pleasures the voyage home in the evening had no fewer, though of a different character. Still the same vivifying breezes for the tired ones; a frequent glimpse of the numerous water-fowl which inhabit these waters lasily getting out of view of the passing steamer, bring a spirit of content and restfulness to the hearts of the weary toilers who had left care behind for the day at least, and last but not least, the beauty of the setting sun as he shed his effulgence across the western sky telling in unmistakable language to the thoughtful ones the story of duty (even in the giving of pleasure) faithfully performed, and emphasizing too, the necessity of being natural in order to be really beautiful. These and many more were the pleasures vouchsafed to those who went near to nature's heart down the picturesque Otonabee on Saturday afternoon—pleasures within every day reach of the poorest citizen and yet not taken advantage of as widely as they should be.

True to the promise of an early return to town the homeward journey had been commenced at 7.10 p.m., but "the best laid plans of mice and men (even printers) gang aft agley," for, about five miles below the locks and just opposite where the steam dredge "Trent" is working, the steamer grounded hard and fast and so remained for nearly four hours, during which time every effort, even to transferring the greater number of the passengers to shore, was made to release her, but without avail. The arrival of the steam launches "Rob Roy" and "The Edison Boys' Launch" en route to Jubilee, proved timely, and by their combined efforts succeeded in floating the "City" by one o'clock. The work of re-embarking the passengers took further time. Fair Luna, too, had by this time come to the rescue and from behind the clouds she sallied and shed a flood of silvery light, making tolerable a monotonous wait and adding greatly to the pleasure of the remainder of the sail.

Home at 2.35, a.m., a sleepy though withall a good-natured and satisfied party.

NOTES.

The printers are stayers.

Ill-natured persons say they are also stick-in-the-muds.

The legend on the printers' excursion badges came true—there was "the ——— to pay."

The rumour that the printers saw two yachts pulling them off the sand bar, whereas there was only one, is a malicious slander. The two yachts engaged in the benevolent work were Roy's "Rob Roy," and the Electric craft, the "Echo."

The rescue of the "City of Peterborough" was begun by Roy's "Rob Roy," who came first on the scene. It was a reminder of Landseer's "Dignity and Impudence" to see the little three and a half ton yacht walk up to the big hulking steamer, seize her by the nose, and yank her bow out into the stream. She then fastened to the stern and every pull eased the "City" out of her mud bed—wouldn't take no for an answer, the only instance of Rob Roy refusing to take a "negative." Then came along the "Echo," another little snorting "Puncks," and by the combined efforts of the gallant little pullers, the mud bound steamer was able in a few minutes to break out in the song, "I'm Afloat." It was surprising to see two little steam yachts of a combined capacity of about half a dozen tons, jerking a 160 ton steamer around like a pair of old boots.

It takes young life, especially of the printer brand, to snatch victory out of defeat — to convert calamity into enjoyment. Among the party which sought the shore was the younger members and five pieces of the orchestra, who supplied piece music to an audience squatting 'round bonfires, roosting on the sinuous line of snake fences, and demonstrating the sweetness of love's young dream by surreptitious hand clasps and the "locking of forms of type"—the beauty type. To many the detention was not altogether unwelcome, and was the greatest fun of the day, or rather two days and a night.

The passengers on the bank made the best of their stay there, and lighted a huge bonfire, around which they sang songs. They evidently had made up their minds to stay for the night, for as the steamer upon being floated, steamed to a safe anchorage farther up the stream, they sang appropriate songs, as "Break the News to Mother," and "We Won't be Home till Morning," "I Don't Care if You Never Come Back."

When the scow loaded with passengers was safely snubbed to the "City of Peterborough," after she had been floated, the apt selection, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," was played by the band.

There are a number of the bandmen whose talent in a vocal direction should be heard more frequently. A number of their songs were first-class.

The Committee in charge of the Printers' Excursion desire to extend their warmest thanks to the band for their services on Saturday afternoon.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

There was a fair-sized crowd on the P.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday afternoon to witness the game between Auburn and the Peterborough seniors. The Auburn team are a pretty speedy aggregation and deserve every credit for their "nerve" in challenging the Peterborough nine. Of course the Auburns were defeated, but the game nevertheless was sufficient to show the excellent material that the northeners have, and which only needs developing. The Peterborough team put it all over their opponents, the score being 16 to 6.

For the Auburn team, McCorry in the box pitched a very reliable game and gives promise of becoming an able substitute for the faithful Danny McCabe.

The following is the score:

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Mr. W. G. Hankinson of Town to Miss Emma T. Thomas of Campbellford.

The Campbellford Herald contains the following account of the marriage of Mr. W. George Hankinson, of Mr. A. W. Cressman's, town:—

"Miss Emma Teressa Thomas, daughter of Mrs. T. B. Thomas, will no longer reside in Campbellford, as on Wednesday, July 24th, she became the bride of Mr. W. Geo. Hankinson, of Peterborough.

It was a quiet home wedding, witnessed by a small company of relatives and invited guests, and the service of both bridesmaid and groomsman were dispensed with. The nuptial knot was tied at 5 o'clock in the evening, at the residence of the bride's mother, by the Rev. W. H. Peake, assisted by the Rev. B. Gnatria, pastor of the Methodist church.

The presents to the bride were varied, being both useful and beautiful. The supper was elaborate, and to it all present did ample justice.

After a short interval of congratulations and social intercourse the happy young couple were conveyed to the railway station and left on the evening train for their home in the pretty town of Peterborough. A number of friends met them at the station and gave them a respectable send off amid showers of rice, etc. With others the Herald extends best wishes for a happy and useful life of wedlock."

A LADY'S COMPLAINT.

Accompanied With Some Good Advice.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir, — Will you please call the attention of the authorities to the conduct of the boys, nearly men, in Jackson Park. No doubt you know the boys' bathing pond is close to the bridge, over which one must pass going east or west. I have of necessity very frequently to go to my daughter's on the opposite side, I living on the west. On week days there is little to complain of, although the boys, in fun, no doubt, make all the noise they can to frighten the horses, but to-day, coming from thence with a gentleman friend we were confronted by a number of large boys entirely nude, they feeling safe on Sunday from the caretaker's vigilance. I do not go this way more than I can help, but on Sundays have to go for a horse to drive to church. I often think that if some of our ministers could make it convenient to hold services in this park, much good might be done. Our Saviour said, "Follow Me, and will make you fishers of men," but how do in the manner in which he did most of his teaching; I think only twice do we read of Him in the temple.

Now, that the eyes of the Empire turned on Canada, a great effort should be made to refine our young and rising generation. Can they not be taught that respect and honour to others also reflects upon themselves and gives them a dignity which rudeness never can? I often think how as children of the common schools of England we were always taught to salute our teachers, in the school and on the street—boys with a lifted cap, girls with a curtesy—why not here? I think this simple matter would soon make a difference and a great improvement. What is education worth without refinement?

COFFEE GRAINS.

One-half of the world's production of coffee berries comes to the United States.

Every week more than $1,000,000 is sent out of the United States in payment of coffee.

Last year Germany and France together only consumed half as much coffee as the United States.

The coffee grain is the seed of a pulpy fruit which resembles a cherry and is very sweet and palatable.

In Abyssinia the coffee plant grows wild in great profusion and derives its name from Kaffa, a district of that country.

The coffee plant is indigenous to Asia and Africa, but the greater part of the world's product now comes from the western hemisphere.

Most of our coffee comes from South and Central American countries. The rest comes from Porto Rico, Java and the Philippines, with a little from Hawaii.

The use of coffee as a beverage began in southern Arabia in the latter half of the fifteenth century. It was introduced into Constantinople in 1554 and into Venice in 1615.

Kept His Umbrella.

The composer Panseron, while driving homeward in his cab during a terrific shower, met the aged composer Cherubini plodding along on foot, protected from the storm only by a shabby old umbrella full of holes. Panseron took compassion on the old gentleman and begged him to make use of the cab, saying that he himself would walk home. Cherubini accepted and took the other's place in the cab. Then Panseron naturally asked the old gentleman for the loan of his umbrella.

"Oh, no, my dear boy!" said Cherubini. "It is a well known fact that a man never again sets eyes on an umbrella that he has lent." And he drove off in Panseron's cab.

Animal Mimicry.

Observers of nature are frequently struck with the singular resemblances of insects to leaves, dried sticks, and so forth, and these likenesses are supposed to have grown out of the necessity of protection against or concealment from enemies. An interesting example of this kind of resemblance was recently brought to the attention of the Entomological society in London by Dr. Chapman, who exhibited a spider found inhabiting some rocks near Cannes, on which were also fastened the cases of a species of moth. When at rest, the spider exhibited almost precisely the same form and color as the moth cases surrounding it.

Realism.

"I took the manuscript of my 'Old Oak Tree' down to that irritable editor."

"What did he say?"

"Advised me to cut it down. I thought he was making jokes at my expense and told him he didn't know his business."

"What happened then?"

"There was a storm, and you could see the leaves of my 'Old Oak Tree' strewn from the sanctum to the street."—Chicago News.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics.

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid damp feet, drink water abundantly and always rely on Polson's Nerviline as an absolute reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than other remedies its power over pain is simply beyond relief. Buy a large 25 cent bottle to-day, test it and see if this is not true. Polson's Nerviline always cures rheumatism.

One Was Enough.

"Was Golsang's marriage a success?"

"I hardly think so. I heard him say the other day that he would never go to the penitentiary for bigamy."

Davy Jones' locker is a combination of Duffy, a ghost or sprite among West India negroes, and Jones, a contraction of Jonah.

RAGS AND THE RAGMAN

Changed Modern Conditions—Decline of the Family Rag Bag.

"The ragman goes about in the city's streets just the same as ever," said a man who has given some attention to the subject, "but he doesn't do the business that he once did. Things have changed.

"There are in these days not so many clippings and odds and ends of new cloth of one sort and another to go into the family rag bag as there once were to begin with, because of the new well nigh common custom in cities anyway of buying already made up many things that formerly were made in the house. Thousands of tons of clippings that formerly were gathered up in small lots by many ragmen are now baled in factories and sold to mills or to dealers in paper stock without any intermediate handling at all.

"Then, what with the lower price of rags nowadays, due to the substitution of other materials in paper making, it scarcely pays the householder to bother with the smaller quantity that now accumulates, with the result that rags are now often thrown away with other rubbish to be gathered by city collectors of refuse.

"Still not everybody by any means throws away or gives away his rags. There are still many people who continue to sell their rags for what they can get to the ragman, and it would not surprise me to learn that there are more ragmen now than ever, but the fact remains that under the new modern conditions the business of the man with the jingling bells is not what it once was.

"In old times in smaller cities and towns the householder, or, more strictly speaking, the housewife, sold her rags to the tin peddler. The tin peddler was an institution. He had a route which he traveled year in and year out. Many a tin peddler came to be personally known and respected by the people with whom he traded, to whom he was not the peddler or the tin peddler, but Mr. So-and-so, and they use to wait for Mr. So-and-so to come around and dispose of their rags to him.

"These rags were carefully sorted out. There were the rather small but valuable lot of white rags tied up in a white cloth and the bigger bundle of colored rags and one perhaps of woolen rags which the peddler weighed severally on the steelyards that he brought in for that purpose. How many times have I seen him, staid man of family, as I now realize him, and perhaps in spectacles, shifting the weight along on the beam until rags and weight balanced, and he made the announcement of the weight, which was almost invariably disappointingly small.

"He would pay cash, but he preferred that you should take it out in trade, and commonly the housewife did so. Many a dishpan and many a dipper and skimmer and I don't know how many handsome Britannia teapots and what else have come through the tin peddler out of the rag bag.

"But now the tin peddler—that is, the peddler who drove a horse to a typical peddler's wagon—has receded from these smaller cities as previously he had receded from the larger ones. He has moved on out into the country, over whose hilly, dusty roads he still pursues his way to the farmhouse door, where he dickers as before. But even there made up garments go now to greater or less extent, and for the rags that do accumulate the modern low prices govern. And so, here as everywhere, the family rag bag, once everywhere looked upon as a little mine of wealth, has fallen from its high estate."

IT COST MONEY.

Many a man has spent all his earnings in trying to get rid of rheumatism. It cost Mr. James Davison, Oconto, Ont., between $1,000 and $2,000 before he tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. He was a helpless invalid for six years but suffered from sciatica in his hip joint for ten years. Six bottles cured him completely and he is now working his farm. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

PHILOSOPHY.

Stroke ye here an stroke ye there;
Smooth the world an tak' your ease.
There's nae use scratchin' a match
Till ye want to rilise a bleeze.

Stroke ye here an stroke ye there;
Smooth the world an keep it quiet.
Folk are like to Tubby's tail—
Ye canna pu' her backward by it.

Stroke ye here an stroke ye there;
It's better rubbin straight than crookit.
Gin ye want to catch a fish,
Ye've got to hae the bait to hook it.

Stroke ye here an stroke ye there;
Folk will stan' a deal o' strokin.
A wee bit crumb that's swallowed wrang
Gars ye do a deal o' chokin.

Stroke ye here an stroke ye there;
Bide your chance an tak' your grippit.
The folk that pu' ag'in the thorns
Are gaen to hae their gairments rippit.

HIS DEAR LITTLE GIRL

The Story of a Recreant Lover Who Changed His Mind.

That was what Terence Dawnay had always called her ever since they had met and loved each other. He was in Ireland now with his regiment, but he wrote very regularly to his dear little girl, and, though there was no question of any formal engagement between them, he had assured her that their understanding was as sacred a bond to him as any public betrothal, and of course she believed him, for she was young and she loved him.

She was thinking of him as she walked down the path to meet the postman. This was her letter day, and Irish letters always came by the midday mail to the Devonshire village where she lived within sight and sound of the moaning sea.

It was late in June, and the summer wind tossed her pretty hair against the cheeks, which were soft and flushed like a peach. The postman was coming up the hill. A smile crossed his weather-beaten face as he caught sight of the waiting figure.

"Two letters, missy, this morning," he said, as he sorted them from his bundle. "That's all, miss."

Two letters!

She went out on the cliff side with them. One was, of course, from Terence. How well she knew his dear, untidy writing! She smiled as she put it in her pocket. That must be kept as a bonne bouche.

The other one was in quite strange handwriting, and she tore it open, looking at its contents with bewilderment. A blank sheet of paper inclosing a small newspaper cutting met her eyes. What could it mean? The color faded from her cheeks.

"We understand that an interesting engagement will be announced before the end of the summer, and we may safely offer our good wishes to the beauty of the year, Miss Sargeant, at the same time congratulating the gallant fiance on his luck. Mr. Dawnay is well known in Dublin, where his regiment is at present quartered."

The little bit of paper fell to the ground. Of course it was not true. It could not be true. Some one was trying to make mischief between them. That was all. Why, he was hers—he had been hers from the very first day that they had met! The newspaper did not know what it was talking about. She eyed the envelope with disgust. Who had done this thing? And who was Miss Sargeant? Terence never mentioned her.

She pulled his letter out of her pocket and opened it, reading it with a sudden chill which quenched the happiness in her pretty eyes.

My Dear Little Girl—I have hardly a moment for a letter, so I am afraid this will be very short, but there is so much to be done here just now, what with polo and goodness knows what else besides, that I have enough to do to get everything done in the day. I'm going down to stay near Cork next week with some people called Sargeant—jolly house and no end of gayeties, of course. I wish [here something had been scratched out] I could have managed to run over to you, dear, but it is quite impossible. You see, there are our maneuvers coming on, and I must be within easy reach of headquarters. I don't know that there is anything of interest to tell you. I have been thinking lately that it's a bit rough on you to be kept hanging on for such an interminable time—not that I've altered, you know that—but, you see, things are not looking very bright for us, are they? It's awfully late. I must stop. Good night, dear little girl. Ever yours,

TERENCE.

The sun was hidden by a thick cloud, the sea moaned on the rocks below, and a light wind ruffled the waves. It looked like a change in the weather. But the girl did not notice the signs of change. Her eyes were fixed unseeingly on the letter in her hand. She stooped and picked up the little paper, which she had allowed to flutter to the ground unheeded. No need to read it again. It was imprinted on her memory for all time. She wondered what there was for her to do. Must it be renunciation?

That was a question to be answered at once, and before she turned her steps homeward she had made her resolve.

* * * * * * *

"Our dance, Miss Sargeant."

The girl looked up.

"Is it? No; I don't want to dance. Do you mind if we sit it out?"

"Do I mind?" repeated Dawnay, with a look in his blue eyes which only amused the beautiful Miss Sargeant. She had seen that look so often that it made little or no impression on her. Had she not danced and flirted through some dozen seasons and received more than her share of attention? Of course Terence was a nice, dear boy, but as to anything else—she laughed at the mere idea. She was striving for a higher destiny than that, in spite of all the society papers and their rumors.

Dawnay looked at her as she lay back in a low chair waving a great feather fan to and fro. He believed in her thoroughly. He believed that here was the lady of his dreams.

"Have you any more dances to spare me?" he pleaded. "I know I was late, but that was not my fault."

"Not one left," she said indifferently.

She talked to him in her low sweet voice, and he was quite content to sit in the cool shadow and listen to her.

"And when do you go on leave?" she said lazily.

"That," he said steadily, "entirely depends on circumstances."

Why had she never written to him? Had she given him up without a word, without even a struggle?

The thought paralysed him.

Truly he was to be sorely punished for his madness.

His eyes fell on a revolver hanging against the wall, but he turned away with a grim smile. He was not the sort to run away from trouble when he found himself face to face with it. He was no coward at least.

Then, with an exclamation, he seized a letter which was stuck up on the mantelshelf, possibly put there by his servant on the previous evening.

It was a letter from his dear little girl after all! For a minute or two he hardly dared open it. Then he tore it open and read its short contents with eager eyes.

"I should have written to you before now, my dearest—for you are always that—only I have been very ill and am only now up on the sofa and can only write you these few lines to say that I love you, dear, I love you so much that I must do what seems to me the only thing left for me to do, and that is to give you your freedom. I don't blame you, dear. I shall never think badly of you. Always believe that I love you better than anything on earth. I sign myself for the last time, Your Dear Little Girl."

Twice he read the little heartbroken letter. A knock at his door awoke him from his miserable thoughts with a start.

"Eight o'clock, sir," said his servant's voice.

"Meaning the little girl you left in Devonshire?" she said, with a mocking smile. "Oh, I know all about her! Lord Carruthers—you know him?—told me he knew her people."

"I don't know what you mean," he said hotly. "There is but one woman in the world for me, and she"—

He broke off. A couple were passing their retreat, talking in light, laughing tones.

"Rhoda Sargeant? Oh, she will end by marrying Carruthers, of course. She is only playing her usual little game with that nice boy, Dawnay. She might spare such a youngster. That sort of woman has no mercy"—

The voices trailed away into silence.

"You heard that?" said Dawnay in hoarse accents. "But it is not true! It can't be true that you have been playing with me all these weeks!"

The woman looked at him for a moment. Some good angel, a rare enough visitor to her, urged her to tell the truth for once. She did so with a curious feeling of pity. The boy was in such earnest.

"It is quite true."

Dawnay staggered to his feet.

For a few terrible minutes he looked at her in silence—a silence which frightened her.

"Then heaven help the man who loves you," he said and turned and left her.

Terence Dawnay sat in his quarters with his head buried in his arms. The cool dawn crept in through the windows on the motionless figure. For hours after his return from the ball he had not moved.

Presently he raised his head and looked about him with haggard eyes. He got up stiffly and drew a long breath.

His infatuation was dead. He had called it love in his youthful ignorance, but the bewildering light of truth had dispelled that idea forever. What a fool he had been! He stood for a moment looking out on the still, gray morning and with a sudden flood of remorse remembered the letter to which there had been no answer—the letter which in a moment of his blind infatuation he had written to his dear little girl. He loved her—loved her. Dear heaven, had he thrown away the substance only to find himself striving to grasp a shadow?"

"Come in, Stevens!" he shouted as a sudden idea flashed upon him. "Put some things up in my bag. I may be away for a day or two. And just get my serge out, will you?"

He was still in his mess dress, but his man paid no attention to that. In a few minutes he was in his usual undress uniform and striding over to the colonel's quarters.

Obtaining three days' leave, he was able to catch the night mail from Kingstown to Holyhead, and the next afternoon saw his arrival at the little house where his dear little girl had struggled back to all the pain of life, which at present seemed shorn of all its gladness.

He walked straight in. There was no one to be seen, and, opening the door gently, he stole into the room where his dear litle girl was lying looking out at the distant blue sea with such sad, tired eyes.

She looked around as she heard the door shut, and a cry burst from her lips—a cry which brought Terence to her side, and the next minute he was down on his knees, holding her to his heart and kissing the cheeks which had grown so thin and white.

"My sweet!" he cried. "Only tell me that you forgive me! Oh, darling, I have been nearly mad since I wrote that letter to you! Can you ever forget me and take it back? You shall know all, dearest. Only tell me that you love me first."

"That is such a very stale story," she whispered faintly, with a smile which told him that the gates of Eden had opened to him once again.—Woman's Life.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS ARE.

The Kidneys, two in number, are composed of a network of blood vessels and delicate tissues surrounded by a muscular coating. They are about four inches long and two inches wide. Their peculiar function is to abstract from the blood, fluid impurities. They act very much like a filter, the heavy portion of blood passing on through the veins and the watery portion draining out and down through the uretha into the bladder. Diseases of the kidneys consist of a lack of tone of the muscles surrounding the arteries and a lack of sensitiveness to the delicate nerves found in these organs, caused either by inflamation or general debility. Kidney diseases manifest themselves in the urine and also by a pain in the small of the back. Merrill's System Tonic exhibits the best form of treatment for any disease of the kidneys. It contains the healing and soothing properties of Bucha combined with the muscle and nerve toning properties of the hypophosphites. Besides it is a blood purifier and will remove from the system uric acid poisoning caused by kidney weakness and resulting in various forms of rheumatism. We don't weary you with testimonials, but we have more of them than most medicines. The use of one bottle will convince you that Merrill's System Tonic is an extremely valuable medicine of extra ordinary merit.

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold

ONE WOMAN

With two faces; one face bright with health, the other face pinched and drawn by illness. Many a woman can take the portrait of herself made but a few years ago, and holding it by her face in the mirror realize a similar change.

Behind this change in form and feature is always disease, and generally disease which affects the womanly organism. The backache and bearing-down pains put a heavy strain on the nervous system. There is loss of sleep, lack of appetite, and, as a natural result, loss of strength and flesh.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases of the womanly organs. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Words cannot tell what I suffered for thirteen years with womb trouble and dragging-down pains through my hips and back," writes Mrs. John Dickson, of Grenfell, Assiniboia Dist., N.W. Ter. "I can't describe the misery it was to be on my feet long at a time. I could not eat nor sleep. Often I wished to die. Then I saw Dr. Pierce's medicines advertised and thought I would try them. Had not taken one bottle till I was feeling well. After I had taken five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I was like a new woman. Could eat and sleep and do all my own work. I would entreat of any lady suffering from female weakness to give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial, for I know the benefit she will receive."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

SOME MILITARY GOSSIP.

Promotions of a Local Military Nature Lieut. Percy Price.

Saturday's Military Gazette contains a number of military orders of local interest. Among them are changes that have been anticipated for some time and are such as will meet with general approval.

In the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons Capt. R. A. Cockburn is announced as being seconded for service in South Africa. As a matter of fact, Capt. Cockburn has been in South Africa for some time. According to the interpretation of the order he may return at any time and receive back his commission. Capt. Johnston, the officer commanding "C" Squadron, as announced some time ago, is appointed Adjutant, and Lieut. W. H. Bradburn, is gazetted captain in command of the Squadron. Lieut. George Hall of the same Squadron is promotad, and the vacant lieutenancy is given to Percy Roberts Price. No more popular selection could have been made, as Percy Price has seen warfare in its most vivid light, and is every inch a soldier.

In the 4th Hussars, Mr. Eddie Sheffield, well known in Peterborough, being a former resident of the town is made a lieutenant.

Veterinary-Lieutenant J. W. Fisher, of the 14th Field Battery, is given the rank of captain.

Captain J. W. Neill, of the 45th Victoria Regiment of Infantry, is promoted to the rank of Major. Major Neill, is one of the most popular officers that goes to camp at Kingston. He is succeeded by Sergt. John McCrea, of South African fame.

In the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, Lieut. Duncan Walker succeeds as adjutant Capt. H. A. Morrow, who goes to the retired list. He is given the rank of captain.

An order affecting the headquarters staff is the appointment to be Deputy Adjutant General of Lieut.-Colonel B. H. Vidal. This well known officer is spending the summer at "Viamede," Stony Lake.

OUR SUMMER RESORTS.

Newsy Items From Stony Lake and Other Points.

Kawartha Lakes are now Alive With Pleasure Seekers—Registrations at the Hotels and Resorts.

There was a big crowd brought up to Stony Lake on Saturday evening, almost two hundred being on the evening train. The popular steamer Empress got the big end of the business, bringing up 175 passengers, which number, by the way, is a record, as received from a regular train.

The Sunday services in the pavilion were very largely attended. In the morning the lessons were read by Rev. Mr. Davidson, of Norwood, and a timely sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Dyer, principal of Albert College, Belleville. Miss Jessie Dennistown presided at the piano. In the evening a song service was held, being conducted by Sheriff Hall. Miss Eva Bradd kindly officiated at the piano, and during the evening Miss Florence Carolyn Hall sang a solo, which was very sweetly rendered. Rev. Dr. Brown, of Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto, gave a brief and interesting address.

Mr. Fred Cameron, who is doing some surveying in Burleigh, had a narrow escape from drowning just off Mount Julian on Friday. His canoe upset and he had gone down twice before he was rescued. Two bright little sons of Mr. Henderson, of Toronto, went out in a boat and with great difficulty succeeded in saving the drowning man.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ferguson, Miss Kate Ferguson and Mrs. Robert Hall came up to the lake Saturday evening.

Mr. W. G. Morrow and Miss Emma Morrow were amongst the Sunday visitors.

The Eko Camp boys arrived at McCracken's Landing on Saturday evening. This year they were unable to secure Gemmel's cottage for headquarters, as the island had been rented for the season. Messrs. Fred Clarke and Bob. Elliote were sent out a day or two ahead of the rest of the bunch to pick of desirable site for a camp. The most suitable spot on the point, just below the Victoria House, was seemingly unobtainable, as a fine crop of oats was growing on the place. It appeared as if the camp would have to be located about half a mile up the shore from the Victoria House, where the boys get their meals. This was too far away to be convenient, but the Eko lads solved the difficulty by purchasing the oats, which they will probably harvest later in the season.

Dr. and Mrs. Bradd spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McAllister.

Miss Effie Best is summering up the lakes.

Miss Ada McBain and Miss Margaret Cox have returned from Lachine and are at Bona Vista, where Eva Bradd, Irene Lackie and Mr. Jim Worts are also visiting.

Mrs. Hunter and Miss Vieva Hunter are the guests of Mrs. J. R. Stratton at Strathormond.

Two young gentlemen who are summering at the Victoria House brought in 31 bass on Saturday, and Mr. and Mrs. Wetherspoon, of the same city, caught 21. This runs up the fish caught by Mr. Morgan's guests this summer, to over the thousand mark.

Mr. H. A. Wilson and children are visiting Mrs. J. B. McWilliams at Tecumseh Lodge.

Mr. Will Hall and Mr. M. Hamilton came up on Saturday to spend a few days with Messrs. L. Hall, Victor Ferguson and Oscar Dumble, who are camping on the shore of Gilchrist Bay. The latter three are going on a paddling trip to Balsam Lake at the end of the week.

Quite a few are expected out from Peterborough to attend the Saturday night dance at the Pavilion this week.

On Friday Mr. Herbert Wood and Miss Helen Hall met with an accident while out canoeing. A sudden gust of wind upset the canoe, which carries a great deal of canvas, and the occupants were thrown into the water. As both were expert swimmers, they were easily able to keep afloat until help arrived.

The annual regatta of the Stony Lake cottagers' Association takes place on Thursday, August 15th, and the committee is working hard to make the affair a bigger success than ever.

WEDLOCK'S HARBORU.

Wedlock's Harbour, Otonabee River, beautiful and picturesque, has been the scene of many jolly fishing parties this season, and the anglers go home feeling that their time has been well and ill assailed spent, and rewarded by large catches of beautiful bass and lunge. They all declare Mr. Wedlock keeps the keys of those little places where the choice fish are to be found. Among the many visitors of this week are, from Peterborough, Mr. C. Turner, Mr. Hay, Mr. Eakins, Mr. Bruce Eakins, Mr. Chas. Butcher. From Cobourg, Mr. Alex. Purser, and from Millbrook, Mr. Alfred Leach, Mr. Wm. Leach, Mr. W. Wood, Mrs. Lefroy, Mr. and Mrs. Doak, Mr. T. B Collins, Mr. A. B. Scott, Mr Eakins and Mr. T. Grandy. From Toronto, Mr. Frank Smith, Mr. J. Leitch, Mrs. W. S Lee, Miss Mabel Lee, Mr. Arthur Lee, Mr. Alfred Lee. From Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allan, from Bailieboro, Mr. J. McBride, Mr. J. D. Perrin.

JUBILEE.

The Jubilee House, Rice Lake, has no reason to complain of the season's business it has done this year. The staff of the popular resort is most complete and includes Mrs. Roger, who was cook at the Croft House in Peterborough for over twenty years. The following are amongst the recent arrivals at Jubilee House:

WOMEN'S POCKETS.

Magistrate Denison, of Toronto, having expressed the opinion that women should have pockets in which to carry their purses, the Hamilton Times intimates that the subject is one on which a mere man's opinion is of no value, and that women will continue to carry purses in their hands and leave them on store counters, car seats, and other places.

Probably Colonel Denison spoke in favor of pockets for women entirely in his capacity as a magistrate, and without any real expectation that women would accept his advice. It would be a good thing if women had pockets in which to carry their purses, so that they would not lay them down and leave them, or expose them and tempt others to engage in theft. The need of a pocket was illustrated not long ago by an estimable Toronto women who met with a very severe accident, and, recovering consciousness, found herself surrounded by doctors and strangers. She weakly whispered in the ear of a woman friend to remove her which difficult feat was deftly performed, to the evident relief of the patient, who seemed to have dreaded that her "bank" would be discovered by the surgeons. A citizen going home at six o'clock on a recent evening found his wife's gloves and purse on the window ledge, where she had left them two hours earlier. The purse contained a round sum of money, and was plainly visible from the street, yet it safely reposed there for two hours. Probably the providence that protects insane persons and drunken men is mindful of women's purses.

But it is all very well for magistrates and men to agree that women should have pockets; women will concede as much. The difficulty is to so place a pocket in a women's dress that it will be handy and safe. It is easy to put in a dress a pocket that will be handy, and it is easy to put in one that will be safe, but none has been invented that is both. Years ago every woman had a pocket in her skirt. The reader, as a boy, may have been sent to his mother's room to get a purse or key from the pocket of her black skirt. He would turn it round and round, but find pocket. Taking the garment down, he would get inside it, and there find the dangling pocket, and seek to trace it to its outlet. If a resourceful youth, he would succeed on his errand by forcing the pocket inside out and spilling its contents on the floor. That kind of a pocket was not handy; even when the dress was worn the owner of it would grope in vain for it at times. There was another kind of pocket used by farmer's wives, who had brought the idea from Europe—a bag tied around the waist, underneath the overskirt. For safety this exceeded all others, being almost equal in security to those saving banks where one cannot draw money without giving notice in writing three days in advance—three days in which the banker can produce the money or reach Mexico.

In fall and winter women might, perhaps, use inside breast pockets in their coats. A belt for the waist made of leather and containing a purse ought to be possible, while another suggestion would be a purse joined by a chain to a bracelet. This would be suitable for summer, and if locked on with a key before leaving home, and the key left at the house, to lose or mislay it would be impossible.

The careful manner in which women don't look after their purses is a temptation to pickpockets. Douglass Jerrold makes one of his characters honest as long as temptation was removed from his eyes and fingers. Women by the way in which they leave their purses exposed to the looter, make robbery easy, and while they naturally are indignant that a thief should take liberties with their small change, they have the consolation that they practically invite the pickpocket to help himself.

"The heart does not grieve for what the eye does not see" may well apply with a difference to women's carefully exposed purse. "The heart won't long for what the eye does not see." Women are quick to take a hint in some matters—the average wife can scent the odor of strong drink on her husband's breath across a twenty-foot floor space. She might easily scent the danger of having her pockets picked when she leaves her purse so temptuously exposed to the depredations of the dishonest, or for the matter of that, the honest, for temptation often makes a rogue out of a man who under ordinary conditions, is inclined to be honest.

ACCIDENT TO IMPERIAL LIMITED.

No One Killed, but Rolling Stock Badly Damaged.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—The C. P. R. Imperial Limited, from Vancouver to Montreal, jumped the track at Rockcliffe, a few miles east of North Bay, on Saturday night.

The train was due at North Bay at 7.10 p. m., but was 14 hours late, and did not leave there until 9.10. It was in charge of Conductor Young and Engineer Pask, and when near Rockcliffe Station left the rails, several of the cars being considerably damaged, but, fortunately, the passengers escaped without any serious injury. The engine, a Mogul, went over on its side, and the tender turned upside down. A car of fish was thrown over the fence, a second-class coach partially derailed and the baggage, mail and express cars piled up across the tracks, forming a "V."

A tramp, who was stealing a ride, sustained serious injuries about the head.

There were several Toronto passengers on the derailed train, and they came through on a special from North Bay, arriving here at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

An auxiliary left North Bay for the scene of the wreck at 4 a. m. Sunday, and succeeded in clearing the track.

Another Railway Wreck.

Stirling, Ont., Aug. 5.—The southbound train from Coe Hill, on the Central Ontario Railway, was wrecked before Springbrook and Harold Saturday. The accident was caused by the spreading of rails. Engineer Lough was killed and Fireman McClennan and Brakeman Sarles are badly scalded.

NEW SURVEYS THIS YEAR.

Government Finds It Necessary to Survey Only One Township.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—Owing to the vigor which the Department of Crown Lands of Ontario has for some years past kept up the work of surveying and opening up new townships in the unorganized districts of New Ontario it has not been found necessary to carry on the work of surveying actively this year. It is fortunate that such is the case, as all the Provincial land surveyors, owing to the general condition of prosperity and development which exists in every direction, are busily engaged in their professional work upon private enterprises. No surveys of new townships have been made since the Legislature prorogued. Surveyors have received instructions to survey the Township of Buck, in the Temiscaming district, but they have not yet entered upon the field. A new survey is being made of a portion of the Township of Conmee, but the surveyors' returns have not yet been received at the department.

Drowned at Deseronto.

Deseronto, Aug. 5. — A sad drowning accident occurred here Saturday night. Hugh McKee, a young man in his 21st year, was accompanied by two ladies, Miss Mackie and Miss Geddes, on the river. While pushing their small boat out from the dock, McKee and Mackie fell between the dock and the boat. For a few minutes they both struggled. When Miss Mackie was going down Miss Geddes caught her hand and saved her. McKee sank and was drowned. The young man had been employed in the offices of the Bay of Quinte Railway during the past few years.

DUTY AND PLEASURE.

The Words of Emilie Arsenault in Acknowledging His Gratitude to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cured Him of Dyspepsia, Like They Have Cured so Many Others—He is Recommending Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to His Friends.

Again comes the news of a cure of chronic Dyspepsia by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, in the Quebec village of Ruisseau Le Blanc.

Emilie Arsenault suffered with all the misery of bad digestion and stomach weakness for many years. He was unable to eat without suffering for it afterwards. No matter how hungry, how much in need of food he was, he knew that whatever he ate would lie like lead in his stomach, and pain him for hours after.

All sorts of remedies and medicines were tried before Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. All sorts of remedies and medicines but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, utterly failed to help him. No wonder he couples the words "pleasure" and "duty" in expressing his gratitude for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the medicine that did help him.

"I feel it at once a pleasure and a duty to say that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proven a blessing to me. I suffered from the miserable malady Dyspepsia for many years, during which I was unable to eat anything without pain.

"I tried all the other medicines and treatments without relief. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets helped me from the first box. I no longer suffered after meals. I found I could digest food which before using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I daren't touch.

"I am now entirely free from any symptom of Dyspepsia, can relish and digest all wholesome food, and can say I am highly satisfied with my experience of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

EMPRESS FREDERICK

Her Imperial Majesty Passed Away at 6 O'Clock Monday.

EMPEROR WILLIAM AND FAMILY

They Were Present at the Bedside When the End Came—King Edward Learned of the Event at Cowes—Will Go to Berlin—Sketch of Her Sad Life—Her Love Marriage—Her Struggle With Bismarck.

Cronberg, Aug. 6.—Dowager - Empress Frederick died at 6.15 p. m. yesterday.

It is said that the immediate cause of death was dropsy, accompanying the cancer. The remarkable vitality of the Dowager-Empress astonished her physicians. She retained consciousness to the end. The death of the Dowager-Empress was somewhat unexpectedly sudden. At 4 o'clock her physicians reported no change in her condition. Emperor William, who reached here at 5.20 yesterday morning, and Her Majesty's other children and the Empress were in the sick room most of the day. They were all about the bedside when the Dowager-Empress passed away quietly. Professors Renvers and Spielhagen were also in the room. The flag on the castle was immediately half-masted.

H.I.M. EMPRESS FREDERICK.

At 8 o'clock last evening Emperor William conducted the members of the Dowager-Empress' household into the death chamber, and led them one by one past the bedside to take a last farewell of their mistress. By her special desire, Dr. Waller, the English Chaplain of Homburg, was summoned. The relatives of the Empress continually arrived here throughout the day. A detachment of one hundred and fifty infantry had come from Homburg to do sentinel and patrol duty around the castle. The eleventh company of the 80th Regiment of Infantry, of which the Dowager-Empress Frederick was honorary colonel, was also ordered here.

Cowes, Aug. 6.—King Edward received the official news of the death on board the royal yacht. The yacht's flag was immediately half-masted. King Edward and Queen Alexandra will leave here for Marlborough House to-day. It is not likely they will start for Berlin until Wednesday.

SHE HAD ONE ENEMY.

The Sad Career of the Late Dowager Empress of Germany.

The death at the gloomy castle at Cronberg-on-the-Main of this daughter of the throne of England, and mother of an Emperor, by cancer, is a sad ending for a life that, though since the days of her marriage to Frederick the Noble, then Crown Prince of Germany, has been passed among the unsympathetic people, has yet been a brilliant one. Through the whole period of her married life she was called upon to fight to maintain her position at the German court. She had to match her strength against the strongest in the German Empire, and no less a personage than the great Bismarck was her enemy, cruel and unrelenting in his warfare against the English woman who had dared invade German domains and aspired to sit as Empress on the German throne.

Nor was it with his consent that she was ever permitted to secure the title of Empress, a title she held but three short months. It was due almost entirely to her own strong will and inexhaustible resources that Prince Frederick was ever crowned Emperor of Germany. Bismarck worked with all the energy of his strong will, and brought to bear all of his wonderful influence to prevent the crowning of Frederick and his English wife as a punishment upon the prince for daring to marry an English woman, who, as he often said, "had poisoned the Hohenzollern blood at its source."

It is the law in Germany that no prince can become Emperor who is afflicted with an incurable disease, but the fact that he is so afflicted must be solemnly proclaimed after an examination by court physicians. Some months before the death of old Emperor Wilhelm all the world knew that the crown prince was afflicted with a throat trouble from which he would never recover, but the court physicians had never proclaimed that fact, nor could they without first having the necessary examination. To secure such a proclamation Bismarck spared no effort. Could he but secure such a proclamation the hated English woman would never sit upon the throne of Germany, as the consort of a German ruler, and at the same time he would punish the crown prince for marrying contrary to his and the wish of the German people. But the court physicians never issued the proclamation. They never made the examination necessary in such a course. With the Iron Chancellor, then just at the height of his prestage, and practically the whole German people against her, the English princess won the battle for a throne. She did it by simply preventing the court physicians from reaching her husband's bedside. The noted English physician, Sir Morrell Mackenzie, attended him exclusively through the days of his illness previous to the death of his father, and when the old emperor died there was no legal reason to prevent his ascension of the German throne, and he was crowned. For three months he reigned as Emperor of Germany, and then he died and gave place to the present Emperor.

But though the Iron Chancellor and the German people may be said to have despised the English princess who, in the past, occupied so prominent a place in the affairs of the German empire for a time, her husband loved her. The marriage that in 1855 joined Prince Frederick and Princess Victoria in wedlock, when the royal bride was but 17 years of age, could not be said to have been a marriage of policy, as so many royal marriages are. The young people were lovers, and continued as such up to the time of the death of Emperor Frederick. To her he was always "her Fritz," and there was an unfailing love existing between them. It was not that she might become Empress of Germany that she waged so strong a battle against the forces pitted against her, but that "her Fritz" might be the Emperor. Her love for him was amply proven by her devotion to him through the many months of political intrigue, when, helpless as he was with a disease that was eating away his life, he had virtually none but his wife to fight the battles his enemies and hers were waging against him.

Nor did she stop with the fight against his political enemies, but fought the disease that was so rapidly sapping away his life as well. She attended him personally for the greater part of the time that he was sick. She studied carefully the medical principles involved in his case, that by so doing she might hasten the recovery which she hoped for but which never came. While her husband lived she had something to work for, there was an incentive to stir her ambition, and she triumphed over her enemies much more often than they triumphed over her in the small battles of court life.

But with her husband dead, and her son upon the throne of Germany, even her enemies soon seemed to forget her. True, the son broke the power of Bismarck as a factor in German politics, and she could, of course, glory in the discomfiture of the man who had made life so hard for her, but it is said that it was not for the sake of the injustice done his mother that the new Emperor had striven to break the power of the old chancellor, but that he might not stand in the way of any of his own ambitious plans. To his mother he was credited with giving but scant courtesy and attention.

In the last sad days she sat beside a great window in the big bare salon of the castle and gazed out upon the little world of which she was then the ostensible mistress. Her servants found her in tears many times, but she did not like to have them notice the fact. She longed for death, and yet the indomitable will that placed a dying man upon the throne of Germany in the face of the strongest opposition that could be brought against her in the German nation, refused to give up the struggle for life. She asserted her intention to live as long as she could, but said that when she did die none would be sorry; she least of all.

But now the aged ex-empress has passed away she is sincerely mourned by at least one Sovereign of Europe, King Edward VII., her brother. Empress Frederick was born November 21, 1840, and her illustrious brother is but one year younger. In childhood they were playmates and companions, and since those childhood days when the stronger will of the sister practically ruled the brother he has never ceased to admire and respect her. He believed her to be the cleverest woman of royal birth of her time, and has never hesitated to say so. His visit to her, shortly after the death of their illustrious mother, was the brightest incident in her life during recent years, and one which she looked back upon with great pleasure. During the days the English King spent at the home of his sister they were together the greater part of the time. He wheeled her in her invalid's chair through the castle grounds and sat with her for hours in the great rooms that have been to her as a prison house.

The News in London.

London, Aug. 6.—This morning's papers, most of which are printed in mourning, refer in terms of deepest sympathy to the death of Empress Frederick. It is generally admitted that she had only one enemy. Prince Bismarck never forgave her for being English by birth and nationality, and he pursued her with intrigue and resentment. It is an open secret that even State papers emanting from the German Foreign Office during Prince Bismarck's Chancellorship contained the grossest and most insulting allusions to her. All social fixtures in London will for the present be abandoned or postponed, and, it is probable, that throughout the United Kingdom mourning for the King's sister will be of six months' duration for the Court and three months for the general public. The coronation festivities will not, however, be affected by the Empress' death.

ROYAL DECLARATION BILL.

Statement by Lord Salisbury—Passed the House of Lords.

London, Aug. 6.—Although no division was challenged at the third reading of the King's declaration bill last evening in the House of Lords, it is generally believed that no further attempt will be made to pass it, either this session or the next.

Lord Salisbury, the Premier, referring to the statement of Catholic people, said the Government now realized that the Catholics did not wish the offensive words of the original declaration to be withdrawn unless the Government at the same time withdrew the declaration regarding the securing of Protestant succession. The Government never had the slightest intention of withdrawing that. The Catholics regretted that they must be prepared to see the declaration stand in its present form.

FACTS ABOUT CONSUMPTION.

The following is "Educational Series, No. 1," issued by the National Sanitarium Association:

Mortality From Tuberculosis.—Among all the infectious, epidemic, or pestilential diseases, tuberculosis is the most terrible destroyer of human lives. The mortality is enormous, estimated to be one-sixth of the deaths from all causes.

Cause.—The tubercle bacillus is the direct cause of all varities of consumption in the human subject, and also of bovine tuberculosis. Besides consumption of the lungs (the most common) it is responsible for almost all cases of running sores from chronic joint and bone affections, such as hip-joint disease, consumption of the bowels, so-called scrofulous affections, many diseases of pleurisy, meningitis, or brain fever of the infant, tuberculosis of the spine, producing curvature of the spine or "hunch back," a large proportion of cases of enlarged and diseased glands, lupus and other tubercular diseases of the skin, consumption of the bladder and other parts of the genito-urinary system.

Infectivity—Tuberculosis in not truly hereditary—a weak organism predisposes the subject to the disease—it is infectious and is transmitted chiefly through the sputum of consumptives, some subjects discharge millions of bacilli daily. It may be spread through improperly cooked meat, milk and its products from tuberculous cattle. Or by means of dirty hands, dirty clothing, long skirts and dusty sweeping, house pets, flies, poultry, pigs, ill-ventilated dwellings, or public halls, etc., where absolute cleanliness is not observed.

Prevention.—No tubercle germ, no consumption. An unfavourable soil for the growth of the germ, no consumption. Kill the germ. Keep in good health and nourish the body well with good food, sunlight and fresh air. No spitting should be allowed in public places or conveyances, schools, factories, work-shops, etc. Rooms, bedding and clothing of sick and diseased consumptives should be disinfected. Isolate and place under treatment those diseased.

Curability.—Treatment of cases in the early stages of the disease, especially in the sanatoria, gives satisfactory results. It consists of sunlight, open air, rest dry soil; a good diet and contentment; an abundance of strong food, which is taken to the limit of digestive power; medication of a constructive character, and very careful watching and nursing by skilled medical attendants.

The time may soon come when more advanced cases will be cured.

"Public health is the foundation on which reposes the happiness of the people and the power of the country."

Consumption is claimed to be the direct cause of more deaths in Canada than all other diseases combined — about 8,000 of our people dying yearly from this scourge. The poor seem to be especially afflicted, and when one considers what a terrible affliction such an illness is in homes where wealth is available to procure comforts and mitigate the sufferings of the afflicted, the efforts of the National Sanitarium Association to procure treatment for those who cannot afford the expense of isolation residence and the accompanying treatment, are entitled to the most active and earnest sympathy. The Association is now building the Gravenhurst Free Hospital for Consumption, which will be supported by voluntary contributions, to meet the requirements of the poor consumptives of the province, who are in the early stages of the disease. It will be ready for occupation about the 1st of November next. It is surrounded by a beautifully wooded park of over fifty-five acres on the shore of Lake Muskoka, and is about half a mile nearer Gravenhurst than the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium, which is now famous throughout the world as an institution in which a very high percentage of incipient tuberculosis patients are cured. The free Hospital will be under the same management and will have the advantage of all the experience and skill so far required. There will be accommodation at first for about forty patients. As soon as these beds are filled more will be provided. It is the intention of the National Sanitarium Association to continue enlarging and increasing the facilities of this institution until the consumptive poor of province are all cared for. Here is an outlet for practical philanthropy, not the least deserving of the many forms which modern practical beneficence takes.

COURTESY AND CHURLISHNESS.

Sir John Macdonald, whatever his political faults, was in private life a gentleman, and would have been the last to appropriate a lady's place and persist in keeping her out of it. He would have lived up to the motto, "place aux dames," especially if the lady concerned had such supreme claims upon his country and loyalty as his beloved Queen. Now that Her Majesty has passed away, it is suggested that a statue to the Queen be placed in Queen's Park, Toronto, upon the pedestal intended for it, and the corner stone of which was late by her late Majesty's eldest son, now Edward VII, during his visit to Canada in 1860. But the churlish city council of Toronto refuses to surrender the place sacred to the statue, now occupied by the statue of Sir John Macdonald. If Sir John could revisit Queen's Park for a short time and saw his statue, there is no doubt that he would with readiest courtesy, tender his humblest apology to the Queen and gracefully vacate the seat of her Majesty, occupied by himself. A man who was a gentleman in private life, and justified his claim to living up to the motto, "A British subject I was born, and a British subject I shall die," would not be churl or clodhopper enough to show such gross discourtesy to his Sovereign, as his hide-bound partisan followers are compelling him to do to-day. When Toronto obtained the park from the University, it was out of dutiful loyalty and respect called Queen's Park, and, as ex-Mayor D.B. Read, remarks, the proper site for the Queen's statue, is "at the very threshold of the park bearing her name," whereas a subject's statue now occupies the place of his Sovereign's. If Sir John Macdonald came to Toronto he would soon settle the matter, for he would not be cad enough to occupy the place set apart by loyal subjects, and made sacred by her son, which belongs to the late Queen.

Two of a kind. Mr. Kruger insists that the Boers will yet be victorious; Mr. Whitney still believes that Ontario will choose him for its ruler.

The harvest has begun in Manitoba, being at least two weeks earlier than that of any preceeding year. The yield promises to be large and the quality is excellent. The wheat fields of Canada are more valuable than her mines of silver and gold.

SEDIMENT IN THE URINE

Sediment in the urine, no matter what its nature, whether it be brick dust, white particles floating through through it, or slimy deposits, is indicative of serious kidney derangement.

There is no remedy can so quickly clear up the urine and cure the kidney trouble as Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets—the modern medicine for backache, kidney, bladder and urinary disorders.

Mr. W. Patterson, electrician, Whitby, Ont., says:—"Permit me to say that the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets I got at the store of J. E. Willis, druggist, Whitby, has done me a great deal of good. I have tried other kidney remedies without result, and find in these just what I want. My water, that used to be dark, bad and full of sediment, is now clear, and my bowels move easily, regularly and gently, with no griping. I have worked steadily and the pain I used to suffer with is gone entirely."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

By the Guelph Herald it is urged that the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the city by John Galt, which occurs on April 23, 1902, be suitably commemorated. The celebrated novelist wielded the axe and cut the first tree in the clearance upon which the enterprising and beautiful city named after the reigning family was built.

The first statue of the late Queen erected in Canada and in the Empire, has been placed on Parliament Hill, Ottawa. This is a record very creditable to the Public Works Department, of which Hon. J. Israel Tarte is the head. The Mail, Hamilton Spectator and Toronto News are called upon for some apropos remarks.

The Mail should remember that the Scriptures promise trouble to him that "maketh a lie." The Mail has contrived to manufacture a falsehood out of the Globe's statement that the "first statue of the late Queen has been erected on Parliament Hill, Ottawa." There are many statues of Queen Victoria living, but the Globe's statement which the organ deliberately misconstrues refers to the first statue of the "late" Queen.

The Mail says that Hon. Mr. Dryden's Dakota enterprise is filling the Government papers with alarm. The alarm is all in the Mail's imagination. If the organ speaks Mr. Dryden fair it might get pasture at the Dakota ranch for the calf with the cough, the Ram Dan, and a site for Mr. St. John's Humber piggery humbug. Might as well have all the discredited cries bunched. Truly the Mail and its party deals in great issues.

The applications from veterans for the land grant voted by the Legislature at last session continue to pour into the Crown Lands Department. As each is received it is docketed, numbered and acknowledged in the regular order of its receipt. No allocation of land is yet being made, and will not be until the merits of applications has been passed upon. When the proper time comes each case will be investigated, and those who are entitled to grant under the act will be allowed to take up their location. In the meantime the routine work of classification and docketing only is being attempted.

CANKER.

There is a mistaken idea as to the cause of cankers in the mouth and throat. Sufferers imagine that they arise from stomach troubles, but it is nothing more or less than the result of impure blood. Numerous so-called remedies have been floated on the market, but experience has proven that there is only one cure, "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills. 25 cents a box at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. "His Excellency the Governor-General has heard with the deepest regret of the death of Her Imperial Majesty the Empress Frederick, Princess Royal of Great Britain and Ireland. Officials in charge of Government buildings are directed to half-mast all flags on them, and it is expected a similar mark of respect will be paid to her memory by half-masting the flags on all public buildings.

A GLIMMER OF HOPE

President Shaffer's Proposed Policy Is in Peace Interests.

NO GENERAL STRIKE ORDER YET.

Will Give Plants Composing the Steel Trust Ample Time to Fully Cement the Declaration of War—Will Delay Issuing Command for Struggle Till Week's End.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 6.—President Shaffer arrived at the Amalgamated Association headquarters at 11.45 a. m. yesterday, and 15 minutes later called the newspaper men to his private office. When asked if a settlement could have been reached in New York Saturday had they waived their rights at the Painter, Lindsay and McCutcheon and the Wellsville plants he said:

"The Amalgamated Association could have settled in New York if they had given up these mills, but we could not do that. Just as long as we can fight we are going to fight for them. They are as much of us now as any of the other lodges. Their fight is ours and our fight is theirs."

"When will you issue the call for a general strike?" was the next question put to the president, and his answer was:

"Within a week."

"Can you say how many men will be affected?"

"I don't know," said he, "how many men the strike order will affect."

"Will the board be called for any more conferences?"

"No; the board has been dismissed and will not be called unless the other side wants peace. They have declared war."

President Shaffer said that the statement in the papers of his stop-off at Washington was true, but that he did not see President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, as he was not in town. Secretary Morrison was seen, however, and he assured Mr. Shaffer that the Federation of Labor would give its financial support.

"I have requested President Gompers to come to Pittsburg this week for a conference," said President Shaffer, "and I expect him here."

Now that the suspense induced by the uncertainty of the outcome in the strike negotiations is over, there is less excitement here than there was last week and the people are looking matters squarely in the face. Everybody is watching President Shaffer, as it is recognized that from him will emanate the next move in this great struggle. Speculation is now rife as to when he will issue the order for a general strike of all the Amalgamated men employed in the mills of the United States Steel Corporation's plants.

A Circular of Information.

Although President Shaffer did not say so yesterday, he explained not long ago that before an order for a strike was issued, a circular letter would be sent out from the general office to all lodges of the organization explaining the situation, giving a complete report of all that had occurred between the members of the executive board and the officials of the trust; of the earnest attempts made by the association to bring about an honorable settlement and their failure.

This circular will be read in lodge meetings in order that the men in the mills can have a clear and comprehensive insight of the entire matter and act intelligently. With this information in their hands, the men will be able to see that the officers have acted carefully and with an earnest desire to avoid an open rupture. The strike order will then follow and will be taken up without the least misunderstanding on the part of the members.

An intimation has been made that there is still one hope of ending the strike soon, and that is by the return to work of the men of the Painter, Lindsay & McCutcheon and Clark mills. These mills were non-union last year. The men went out when the strike was ordered and they are now members of the Amalgamated Association. In the efforts to obtain an adjustment of the strike, however, their status has been an embarrassing factor. It is said that if the men in these mills desire to go to work there will be no objection by the association. The immediate effect would be to eliminate them from consideration of any basis of settlement. Such a course would leave the Amalgamated officials in a position to accept Mr. Morgan's terms with honor.

Employers Will Have Time.

Just a faint glimmer of hope that a great steel workers' strike will be settled was embodied in a statement given out by President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association late last night. When asked if he would pursue the same policy in ordering a strike in the mills of the Federal Steel, the National Steel and the National Tube Companies, as he did in calling out the men in the mills of the American Tin Plate Company, he replied: "If it had not been for this determination on my part, the general strike would have been ordered on Saturday night." It is presumed that the delay in issuing the general order will be at least until the end of the present week.

CAMPS FOR NATIVES.

A New Idea to Deprive Boers of a Source of Food—Important Boer Papers Got.

London, Aug. 6.—The military administration in South Africa, according to various despatches from Johannesburg and Kroonstad has determined to concentrate into camps natives who are outside the garrisoned towns, destroying their kraals and mealies, so as to shut off this source of food to the Boers.

Important Papers Found.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, Aug. 4.—Commandant Froneman, son of the Commandant Froneman, who, it is alleged, shot a peace envoy named Morgendael, has been killed near Winburg, after an exciting chase. Most important papers were found in his pockets.

The British have captured a Boer convoy of seventy wagons near Boshoff, Orange River Colony.

Blockhouses Effective.

London, Aug. 6.—A Standerton despatch reports that on July 20 a party of Boers, supposed to be under Mears, attempted to cross the line from the north between Vlaklaagte and Waterval. Another party from the south at the same time attacked the blockhouses commanding the line where the attempt to cross was being made. Both parties were driven off without any casualties on the British side. The Boer loss is unknown.

Naval Manoeuvres Ended.

London, Aug. 6.—The naval manoeuvres were suddenly terminated yesterday afternoon, by orders from the Admiralty, and the enemy's fleet was declared to be the victor. The final results have not yet been given out, but the defenders are known to have lost a dozen cruisers, two gunboats and eight torpedo boat destroyers. The enemy lost only three cruisers, three torpedo boat destroyers and three torpedo boats, while the enemy captured an endless number of merchantmen.

TO BREAK WITH TURKEY.

Ambassador at Paris to Be Given His Passports.

Paris, Aug. 6.—The Foreign Office here refuses either to confirm or deny the advices from Constantinople, saying the French Ambassador there, M. Constans, has handed over the question of the right of a French company, known as the Quays Company, to enjoin rights claimed under a convention to his Government, at the same time recommending his own recall, and that the passports of the Turkish Ambassador at Paris, Salih Munir Bey, be delivered to him.

The Temps says there is reason to believe the Foreign Office is considering the recall of M. Constans, and giving the Turkish Ambassador his passports.

The Francais thinks that, instead of breaking diplomatic relations with Turkey, the French Foreign Office will suspend them, by giving M. Constans unlimited leave of absence.

An immediate decision is improbable, as M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, and other high office officials are absent on their holidays.

T. Lewis, Toronto; auditors, J. H. McKenzie and James Watt, Toronto; scrutineers, George Bingham and F. W. Flett, Toronto.

Stop After Aug. 15.

Windsor, Aug. 6.—At a special meeting of the directors of the United States Gas and Oil Co., in Windsor yesterday morning, it was decided to stop the exportation of natural gas to Detroit on or about Aug. 15. No gas according to the officials of the company, will be pumped over the river after Sept. 1.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localised conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

SIXTEEN STAGES OF THE SLATER SHOE

No better object lesson can be found to teach how thoroughly a thing may be done when the object is to have it well done, than the exhibit in our south window, of the progressive

16 Stages of the Slater Shoe.

Here one sees the successive several operations from the skin of leather to the finished shoe. It shows the building up of the shoe, its gradual and symmetrical progress, the thorough work, the minute attention to detail, the determination of the manufacturers to produce the best of shoes—the Slater Shoe. There is no skimping of detail, no lack of fitting and finishing, of accurate, systematic work that results in the perfect shoe.

We sell the Slater Shoe. Any up-to-date dealer does. But in addition—for Slater Shoes are only a part of our selling—we have hundreds of excellent and reliable shoes. The variety is not so wide, that sizes so numerous, the differences in shape so important, for there is as much difference in feet as in faces, and we have to carry an ample stock to meet the requirements of all. Nothing that a good shoe store should have is lacking. But where the average dealer stocks fifty pair we stock five hundred. Just a few lines to suggest to men a nice shoe that will be comfortable, shapely, dressy and reliable:

Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, turn sole,	$1.50	Men's Dong. Kid Balmorals	2.50
Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, machine sewed,	1.50	Men's Camping and Boating Lace Balmorals	.85

Men's Dong. Kid Congress, Goodyear Welt,	3.00	Boys' Lacrosse Shoes	.50

Just a mention of Ladies' Shoes. The stock is ample, the variety more than great, and the prices most reasonable.

OBITUARY.

The Late Samuel Jameson, Sr.

In the passing away of Mr. Samuel Jameson, sr., the town loses one of its oldest and most highly respected citizens. His death took place at the residence of his son, Mr. F. J. Jameson, 24 Harvey street, this (Tuesday) morning, and was due to the results of an illness of about six months' duration. Heart disease with a complication of ailments from advanced years, was the immediate cause of death.

The deceased gentleman, who was 84 years of age, was born in the county Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1817. When a young man he came to Canada, settling at first at St. John's, N. B. After remaining there for some years he removed to Cobourg, subsequently taking residence—in 1846—at Springville, where he remained until the year 1864, when he removed to Peterborough, where he resided till his demise. His wife predeceased him thirteen years. He leaves behind him two sons, Francis J., and Samuel, both residing in town, and two daughters, Mrs. Rushbrook, of Toronto, and Miss Jameson. The late Mr. Jameson was a member of the Church of England, and of the congregation of St. Luke's.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, from the residence of his son, Mr. F. J. Jameson, No. 24 Harvey street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ENTERED INTO REST.

The demise occurred last night at her late residence, No. 518 Water street, of Anne Spencer Grundy, relict of the late Henry Grundy. Her demise was due to the diseases and infirmities of advanced years. The deceased lady was born on March 17, 1812, and was the daughter of the late Wm. Spencer Grundy, M. R. C. V. S. She came to Canada in the year 1871 settling in Peterborough where she has since continuously resided and where she has won to her side a wide circle of loving friends. Her Christian life and loving disposition were at all times in evidence, and it may be truly said of her that she lived for others. Her beautiful life was an example which the world might well follow, and she entered into her eternal rest in a peaceful manner.

The late Mrs. Grundy's husband predeceased her 8 years. She leaves to mourn her demise six of a family. The sons are—Messrs. Richard Spencer Grundy, of Toronto; John, of N. Y. City and Rev. Henry, of LaSalle, Ill. The daughters are—Miss Mary, of town; Mrs. Grundy-Jackson, of town and Mrs. Capt. Agustus, of Kingston. In religion, deceased was an ardent member of the Church of England. The funeral will take place from her late residence on Thursday at three o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

ALL SAINTS BOYS' BRIGADE.

The Lads go Into Camp at Jubilee Point To-day.

The Boys' Brigade of All Saints' church, embarked on the steamer City of Peterborough for their fourth annual camp at Jubilee Point, this afternoon, where they will remain for eleven days.

The Brigade, which consists of about twenty boys, will be in charge of Sergt. A. H. Trussler, who will look after their drill—giving them a turn every morning; while Rev. W. L. Armitage, in the capacity of chaplain, will look after the morals of the brigade.

It is expected that the boys will have a pleasant break in camp routine, when All Saints' Sunday school excursion brings down their parents and friends to see them on Thursday next—with a little variation in the bill of fare—always the most important concern with a boy.

THE GUESSING CONTEST.

Miss Teresa Scenes won the Handsome set of Dishes.

Messrs. G. L. Hay and J. T. McCabe, who were entrusted with the work of counting the jar of beans in the guessing competition at the recent printers pic-nic, have completed their task, and have handed out the following:

"We hereby declare that we have counted the beans contained in the jar in the printers excursion guessing contest, and found same to contain 5,059 beans. We also declare Miss Teresa Scenes the winner having guessed 5,050."

In connection with the same Miss Scenes becomes the owner of a handsome set of dishes.

There was a great variation in the guessing, the lowest guess being 385 and the highest guess 40,202. Miss Scenes' guess was 5,050, just 9 below the correct number. The next nearest guess was Lila Hopkins who guessed 5,070. The majority of guesses were between four and five thousand.

IN THE SMASH-UP.

Mr. G. G. Pope of the Federal Life has an Experience to Relate.

Mr. G. G. Pope, of the Federal Life Insurance Company, was in town to-day. He came in on Saturday night having just returned from Coe Hill, on the Central Ontario Railway. Mr. Pope was in the smash up that occurred on the Central Ontario Railway on Saturday about 8 miles north of Stirling, in which Engineer Chas. Lough was instantly killed and Fireman McClellan perhaps fatally scalded. It was a horrible looking sight and one which Mr. Pope will not forget in some time. The accident was caused through the spreading of the rails and the cars consisting of several flat cars loaded with timber were piled one on top of another. The engine is a total wreck.

MR. A. LEACH INJURED.

Serious Accident to a Millbrook Business Man.

He was Thrown From His Carriage and His Back was Broken—Well Known Here.

Mr. Alfred Leach, Druggist, one of Millbrook's most widely known business men, met with a very serious accident on Sunday evening, and that it did not result fatally is most miraculous.

Mr. Leach, accompanied by several of the members of his family had been down to Wedlock's Harbour, on the Otonabee River. The party had returned and Mr. Leach had let the occupants of the carriage out at his residence. When turning the team of horses he cramped too quickly and was thrown out of his carriage. When reached by members of his family he was found to be suffering great pain. Physicians were at once summoned and it was learned that Mr. Leach's back was broken. A specialist from Toronto visited Millbrook yesterday and was in consultation on the patient. He is at present resting as easily as might be expected and no fatal results are now feared.

Mr. Leach's many friends in Peterborough will regret very much to learn of his accident.

AN ASHBURNHAM BOY ABROAD.

How he is Succeeding in Chicago.

A Chicago correspondent kindly send the following in relation to the success of an old Peterborough "boy," Mr. William McCullough:

"I visited a lodge of the Knights of Pythias a few nights ago, and there met Mr. William McCullough, a member of the Order, who made a very nice address. He in turn introduced me to several Canadians — a jolly lot. I called on Mr. McCullough at his place of business, and found him a favourite with everyone who came in; and for a gentleman of 63 years he looks younger than others at 50. He told me the members of his family are all old enough to paddle their own canoes. His eldest son is in business on his own account at Lone Rock, Wisconsin; the second son has a fine position in one of the large publishing houses, and the third is going to England as representative of a large manufacturing concern, a creditable confidence in a young man 24 years of age. The youngest son is married, and the manager for one of the largest coal dealers in the city. You will see here how one Canadian family is pushing to the front. Mr. McCullough himself lives in a beautiful home with Mrs. McCullough and daughter, ten miles out of the city, thirty-five miles by elevated train. I found that this city is full of Canadians, and that they are all holding their own with Americans."

MR. DAWSON'S ACCIDENT.

He was Pitched From a Wagon—Three Ribs Broken—Condition not Serious.

Mr. Alexander Dawson, father of Messrs. Edward and Jas. Dawson, of town, met with a very painful accident near his home in Ashburnham. He was driving a team of horses attached to a wagon, through a gate, when the hub of one of the wheels struck a post, throwing Mr. Dawson out, and breaking three of his ribs just above the kidneys. He is otherwise internally injured, but no serious consequences are anticipated.

BISHOP O'CONNOR AT WHITE RIVER.

An Incident in the Annual Episcopal Visitation.

A special despatch to the Globe from White River, in Northern Ontario, under date of August 2, will be read with interest in Peterborough:

Rt. Rev. Bishop R. A. O'Connor, of Peterborough, was a visitor here from Thursday to Saturday, and attended several services at the pretty little Roman Catholic church. High Mass with choral service, was celebrated on Friday morning, when His Lordship addressed the congregation. His sermon was simple in language, earnest in expression, and in exhorting his people to be guided in all their life conduct by the church; they would then be best serving Almighty God, and death would find them welcomed by Christ to His Kingdom. Confirmation services were held later, and the Bishop took the opportunity of giving the boys recently confirmed some excellent advice. He extracted promises from them that, at least until they reached manhood, they would not touch intoxicants, and in a few grave words warned them against the evil effects of the drink habit. He congratulated the people generally on the pretty appearance of their little church. They were quite right, he said, in making their church beautiful. The house of God should always be the best house. He commended the singing of the choir, and suggested more singing practice with the children. The right reverend prelate was accompanied by Mr. T. J. Crowley, a student, and was the guest, during his stay here, of Mr and Mrs. J. Coughlin. The distinguished visitor left for the east on the Imperial Limited on Saturday.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH,

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

A general meeting of the Peterborough Golf Club will be held in the Bank of Toronto, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, when all the members are earnestly requested to be present, as business of importance will come up for discussion.

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough Baseball Team played in Cobourg yesterday, and suffered defeat. The score is not yet to hand.

The Auburn team is anxious for a game with Millbrook.

LACROSSE.

The sporting public of Peterborough are not going to see the season pass by without witnessing a lacrosse match and from all appearances it is going to be an exciting game of lacrosse at that. The Vaticans have been practicing very hard of late, and are now in good condition—good enough at any rate to challenge the celebrated Orillia team, which will be here on Thursday afternoon. The Orillia team of course is an old rival of the Peterborough boys, and if the game on Thursday on the P.A.A.A. grounds is not exciting and keenly contested the Vaticans will never ask the public to attend another.

Port Hope and Oshawa are at it again. As a result of the last two matches they have worked themselves up at a furious rate. Here is what the Guide of Port Hope says:

"Everybody here reasonably expected that the Oshawa players and supporters would return to their native? hamlet and offer various excuses for the drubbing they received at the hands of the Ontarios, but never dreamed that the press of that town would publish such libelous articles as we reproduce below, and especially implicating the ladies of this town in the use of foul and abusive language towards the visitors. The class of patrons that attend the lacrosse matches in Port Hope is of the best, and it ill becomes the Oshawa scribes to endeavour to cover up that awful defeat—25 to 2 — by scratching off a quarter column of lies, many of which contradict themselves, which proves conclusively that the author was inexperienced in this line of business."

Then here are a few of the references that the Guide takes objection to in the Vindicator:

"Nattrass and Henderson should get a job in a pork packing establishment, they are not gentle enough for lacrosse. Some of the others, including Birt, are purely out of their element in the company of decent players. The ladies in Port Hope, at least those who attend lacrosse matches, are very much given to rudeness. The exhibition of some of them on Wednesday did not tend to impress one with the fact that manners were an essential feature in their home training. One person in female attire called 'pig,' 'bull,' and 'butcher,' but perhaps she might be calling her brothers, or perhaps intended for the slugger from Millbrook. Port Hope is a nice town, but when you wander among the lacrosse enthusiasts you do not find anything to impress you that you are the gainer, either morally or intellectually. We are pleased to say that all the Oshawa players are living at the time of writing."

BOWLING.

The first game in the second draw of the Trophy Competition was played last night. The following was the score:

B M Waddell,	Fred Dixon,
H Rush,	J McIntyre,
H Armstrong,	Alex Elliott,
K Houston, sk'...2	W J English, sk.22

YACHTING.

Good for Canada. For the seventh time in succession, remarks the Bobcaygeon Independent, Canada holds the Seawanhaka Challenge Cup for small yachts. Our American cousins have tired of trying for it, an English boat had a go for it this year, the Grey Friar, sailed by Mr. Currie, but he couldn't do it. No sir, Canada is the stuff. The Canuck may be a little off tone in the gilded salons of titled nabobs, but when it comes to running the Nile with freight boats, scurrying through Africa with artillery, or sailing a yacht for the drinks, Johnny Canuck can land to the front with both feet every time.

A HERO THAT ALL THE OTHER BOYS LOOKED UPON WITH AWE.

Though He Was Only a Fair Fighter and a Duffer at Baseball, His One Piece of Luck Made Him Envied by All His Companions.

"We must have Jimmy," said the small boy who was to give the party.

"Who's Jimmy?" asked his mother.

"Why, he's a fellow at school! His father's janitor over on Forty-seventh street."

The mother gasped under the cold douche of democracy, but put Jimmy's name at the head of the list and wrote the names of the swell little boys her boy knew afterward.

When the party came off, she met Jimmy. He had a shrewd, bright little face, with a snub nose and jolly eyes, and he seemed well behaved, but judging by the standards of an Olympian she could not see anything to account for the deferential admiration which all the boys displayed toward Jimmy.

Where he was there was the crowd. He was not arrogant, but he evidently accepted the homage as his due, and he had the air of easy superiority that a boss politician shows to his faithful henchman. He patronized the youthful heir of the millionaire steel man and condescended to the cerulean blooded scion of the ancient Knickerbockers. They didn't resent it. They were humbly grateful and elated at being noticed at all.

The hostess tried to solve the problem by sounding a little boy whom she captured and held, a restless but polite captive.

"Is Jimmy a great fighter?" she asked cannily.

"Oh, he's fair! Dick Wilson can lick fits out of him."

She gasped. Evidently her theory was wrong.

"Does he play football or baseball?"

"Don't play football, and he's a duffer at baseball."

"Is he very clever in school?"

"Not much. He's no greasy grind, Jimmy ain't."

The butler appeared at the door and looked appealingly at her. She abandoned her Sherlock Holmes tactics and went to decide whether the mountain of cake was high enough and the sea of ice cream broad enough for a crowd of boys.

Later she found the clew for which she had been looking. The boys were tired and very, very full of good things. Active exertion was not to be thought of until digestion had a fair start. The young host appealed to his mother.

"Tell us an Indian story about when you lived on a ranch, mamma." Then he added, with a hopeful tone in his voice, "Maybe if you do Jimmy'll tell us some fire stories."

"What does Jimmy know about fires?"

All the boy faces looked incredulous, scornful. Surely she couldn't be so ignorant as she seemed.

"Know about fires!" echoed the chorus. "Why, he's mascot at the engine house!"

Jimmy looked nonchalantly at the chandelier. He was used to fame. Still he was not beyond feeling proud when his glory was sprung upon a new admirer.

"I don't think I understand," faltered the hostess, much impressed. "What do you do, Jimmy?"

"Oh, I just go to all the fires," said Jimmy in an offhand way.

The crowd of boys drew deep breaths. They never could get used to Jimmy's luck.

"You see," he explained, "I'm at the engine house most all the time, and I know all the men awful well. I've been staying over there ever since I was a little shaver. I always liked fires."

The boys' faces said that they all liked fires, but few were, like Jimmy, favored of the gods.

"The men kind of took a shine to me, I guess. They used to scold about having a kid around underfoot at first, but I got so as I didn't get under their feet, and Billy—that's the bulldog—liked me, and I was awful good friends with the horses. Bimeby the men got to jollying me and asking me to do things for them, and I did any old thing.

"And then they used to tell stories, and I liked the stories so much that that sort of tickled them, and I knew a lot about the engines and didn't forget anything they told me and went to all the fires within running distance. Then I got my bicycle and kept it around at the engine house. The minute a call came in I'd jump on my wheel and go lickety split to the place. Sometimes they let me go on the cart now, and when they're just out for exercise I ride with the driver.

"Gee, it's great! I'd rather be him than 'most anybody. You'd ought to see him go through a crowd. He got upset once. I was racing right along beside him on my wheel, and I thought everything was coming on top of me, but it didn't.

"I've seen lots of people killed jumping out of windows and such fool things. You'd ought to see Dan—Dan's my best friend. He's the fireman that owns the bulldog. You'd ought to see him going up the side of a building with a scaling ladder and carrying women and kids down. He don't care what he does with fire. He says to me:

"'Kid, some day I'll be a fricasseed Irishman, but I'm going to have a hot time while I can.'".

The boys were all listening breathlessly. They had heard it all before, but to be on familiar conversational terms with a fireman, to have a niche in an engine house, to ride on a hose cart—could life hold bliss greater than that?

Dick, the fighter, bent his proud head. Tom Miller, the football captain, took a back seat. They recognized their superior. By the unwritten laws of the kingdom of boyhood Jimmy was king of the gang.

SIGNALING TO MARS.

The Difficulty of Doing So by Means of Light.

The very largest city that this earth has ever known would be altogether too small to be visible to a being dwelling on the planet Mars, even if that being were endeavoring to see it with a telescope as powerful as the greatest and most perfect instrument in any observatory on this globe.

If the whole extent of Lake Superior was covered with petroleum and if that petroleum was set on fire, then, I think, we may admit that an inhabitant of Mars who was furnished with a telescope as good as that which Percival Lowell uses at Flagstaff might be able to see that something had happened. But we must not suppose that the mighty conflagration would appear to the Martian as a very conspicuous object. It would, rather, be a very small feature, but still I think it would not be beyond the reach of a practiced observer in that planet.

On the other hand, if an area the size of Lake Superior on Mars was to be flooded with petroleum and that petroleum was to be kindled, we should expect to witness the event from here not as a great and striking conflagration, but as a tiny little point of just discernible light. The disk of Mars is not a large object, and the conflagration would not extend over the three hundredth part of that disk.

It is sufficient to state these facts to show that the possibility of signaling to Mars is entirely beyond the power of human resources.—Sir Robert S. Ball in Independent.

CHESLEY CASE COMES UP AGAIN.

John Fletcher, a Farmer, Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Chesley, Ont., August 4. — Harvesting is in full swing, and the farmers of this section are hard at it early and late. For two steady months they will be working harder than any other class of men in the country.

Probably no period of the year is so trying to the farmer as the harvest season. The management of a farm, never a light task, becomes trebly heavy. Worries increase. The actual manual labour from dawn to dark and sometimes after, is as hard as a man can stand.

It is not surprising that farmers often break down after the threshing is over. "Plum tuckered out," the system is apt to be in a low, weakened condition which is easily thrown out of order. The kidneys will show the sign of it first. Backache will probably be the first sign of the Kidney trouble, accompanied by a brick deposit in the urine. From this stage is but a short step to Lumbago, which is chronic Backache.

In this connection the letter of John Fletcher, a farmer near Chesley, will be found useful, showing as it does that Dodd's Kidney Pills may be relied upon for cases of this kind.

"I have been troubled all harvest," he writes, "with Lumbago and Kidney Trouble. My urine was of a very red colour. I consulted the best medical doctors in the country, but they could not help me. Finally I got some Dodd's Kidney Pills in Granton and they proved all that I could wish. In a very short time my back was as well as ever and the Kidney Disorder bad completely gone."

True Diplomacy.

Bighead—How do you manage to be so popular with people?

Diplomat—It is quite easy. Instead of trying to show the people I meet how much I know, I make it clear to them how much they know.

Extreme Case.

"Young Mr. Dingle tells me that he is extremely fond of the poetry of Sir Walter Scott," remarked Wintergreen to Tenterhook.

"Yes, I know, but he carries his fondness too far," replied the latter.

"In what way?"

"Well, he's a chicken fancier, as perhaps you know."

"Well?"

"And he has named his best egg producer The Last Minstrel."

"Queer name for a hen."

"I should articulate. But that's Dingle exactly. Gave his hen that name so that he could have the lay of The Last Minstrel every morning for breakfast."—Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Truth Will Prevail.

"My aunt is not dead," began the office boy, "and all the members of the family are well."

The office boy's employer looked up in surprise.

"I am feeling good myself," continued the office boy, "and I could just as well work this afternoon as not, but if you don't let me off to see the ball game I'll throw up my job."

"Thy love of truth hath availed," said the employer. "Go out and root for the home team."—Ohio State Journal.

As It Seemed to Him.

"I suppose," said Broncho Bob to the eminent tragedian, "that you knew what you were talking about when you said that all the world was a stage."

"Have you any doubts on the subject?"

"Oh, no; not worth arguing over. Only, having lived in Crimson Gulch so many years, I must say it reminds me more of a shooting gallery."—Washington Star.

How They Do It.

He had lost his case, and naturally he was disgruntled.

"It's too bad," he said, "that this is not an injunction case."

"Why?" they asked.

"Because," he replied, "if it was an injunction case I could just withdraw it and take it from one judge to another until I found one who took my view of it."—Chicago Post.

Sentenced to Hard Labor.

"Kind lady, kin yer give a pore, deservin man a bite to eat?"

"Here's a good piece of cherry pie for you. Sit right down on the doorstep and enjoy it."

"Oh, lady, yer means well, but eatin cherry pie with the stones in ain't no pleasure; it's work, downright work."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Hay Fever Germs are now Floating About.

They are in the air everywhere, too minute to see, but just waiting for a chance to get into your lungs. Then they will play havoc with your breathing apparatus, and you'll wonder what to do. The doctor will say you had better inhale Catarrhozone for it kills Hay Fever germs and moreover is dead certain to reach them. Catarrhozone cures every time, and absolutely prevents the disease from returning. You inhale Catarrhozone with the air breathed; it goes directly to the source of the trouble and cures it by removing the cause. At druggists, or sent with guarantee to cure, to any address for $1.00, forwarded to Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

DE PROFUNDIS.

Not yet are deeds fruition of my thought,
Nor is this body symbol of my soul,
For evil ever in this life is wrought
That shuns the will and its divine control.
Surely I shall not be forever weak,
Halting and stumbling on the chosen way,
Blinded by the pure and perfect light I seek,
Upon the threshold of eternal day.
I do not mourn discredit to my fame
Who smile at time and his confining shores;
'Tis this provokes the burning blush of shame:
The flesh still grovels, though the spirit soars;
But my heart's anguish who can understand
Or stay my folly with a guiding hand?

—Peter McArthur in Ainslee's Magazine.

The Return Of Mary.

By W. R. ROSE.

The air was growing chill in the early twilight when Mary Hamerton opened the little garden gate and went swiftly down the path to her father's house. How familiar everything looked! How few changes 15 years had wrought! No doubt the greatest change was to confront her within the old home. She slipped through the unlocked doorway into the kitchen. There was a young woman there, a young woman who looked up with startled eyes when Mary entered. But Mary explained her presence in a few words, and the young woman, whose heart was tender, listened with a suspicion of tears in her eyes and gladly seconded her suggestions. And Mary learned that the young woman was the daughter of a neighboring farmer, who had come over to care for Gilbert Blair and his home. No; the old man was not, as Mary had feared, in failing health. He was feeble, it was true, and kept to his chair and his reading more, but he was not ill. Yes, he was in the sitting room now in the old rocker by the fireplace. The young woman had just fixed the lamp for him, and he had taken up his book. Would Mary go to him now? No, Mary would wait a little.

As she looked about the familiar room memories rushed upon her that filled her eyes with tears—the gentle mother who had passed away when she needed a mother most; the aunt whose rigid rule had imbittered the child's life; the father whose iron will had found in her a will fully as strong and whose harsh words had driven her from his door and into the great world beyond. Perhaps she had been wrong to brave him as she did, but her soul rebelled against the narrow limits of her life in the dull little hamlet. She wanted knowledge; she wanted society. There had been a wordy strife, and she had gone forth.

Later on, when she had established herself in the city by the lake and the cruel days of the early struggle seemed passed, she had written to him, but he had not answered. She wrote again. Her letter was returned. He was very hard and very unforgiving. Occasionally she heard of him in indirect ways. Once she met a man from the neighborhood, and he told her that her father never spoke of her and never permitted her name to be mentioned in his hearing.

And so the years passed, 15 of them, and then a great longing to see her father came to her. It came to her after the death of her child. And so she was here.

Mary put a huge apron over her traveling dress and went to work. She had not forgotten her cunning. The abiding places of the dishes came back to her; the recipes of long ago were swiftly recalled. The young woman watched her quick movements with fascinated eyes. Mary wanted to prepare the evening meal alone, and she had her way.

Presently she glanced a little anxiously at the clock. Then she smoothed down her apron and went forward to the sitting room door. The old man did not hear her approach. She looked at him a moment before she spoke. No; he was not greatly changed—grayer and thinner; that was all.

"Father," she said.

He looked around.

"Why, it's Mary," he said. "I was just dreaming of you. I had fallen asleep. So you have come back?"

Mary did not move from the doorway.

"Yes," she said, "I have come back." A whimsical smile fluttered across her face. "Do you want wheat cakes for supper tonight, father?"

The old man stared a little. Then he nodded and turned and looked closer at his prodigal daughter. But she did not wait for him to speak.

"Very well," she said and vanished.

She laughed as she came back to the kitchen. There was a suspicion of sadness in her merriment, but she nodded as if satisfied with her reception.

"It is the right way," she said.

She was busy with her cakes when a slight noise in the doorway drew her attention. She turned and saw her father looking at her.

"I dreamed just now that you came to me and said you had come back," he cried in a querulous tone.

"Yes, I have come back," returned Mary as she bent again over her cakes.

"It's really you, Mary, is it?"

"Yes."

Muttering softly to himself, the old man turned from the doorway and sought his accustomed place by the fireside.

As he seated himself a smile crept over his features. It was a smile of triumph.

He looked up as she paused in the doorway. He had been nodding at the fire. The smile of triumph still lingered on his wrinkled face.

"So you've come back, Mary?" he said again, as if he loved the sound of the words.

"Yes, father."

"I knew you would," cried the old man, "I knew you would! I told you you'd be glad to come back."

"I am glad to come back, father,"

The old man nodded as if with satisfaction.

"It's a bitter world, Mary—a bitter world for those that disobey and rise against their elders and flaunt their foolish pride."

"The world is very much what we make it, father."

"And what have you made of it, Mary?"

"I have tried to make the best of it, father."

"And you have come back?"

"Yes, father."

The smile of triumph deepened and widened.

"You have come back, as I said you would," cried the old man. "You have had your day of pride and folly, and you have come to the husks and the humiliation. Then you thought of the dear old home, the one place where you would find a welcome and a shelter, and you have come back. I knew it; I knew it all these years. I knew the punishment of the prodigal would break your haughty spirit. I knew you would come back."

His voice had risen as his vehemence increased, but it dropped at the closing words, and he sank back in the chair.

Then Mary went around the little table and faced her father.

"Father," she said, and her voice was clear and calm, "you are quite wrong. Your dream has been a false one. Look at me, my father." And she drew herself up before him, and his smile faded as he gazed up at her with troubled eyes. "Do I look like the prodigal supplicant? Do I look like one whom the world has cast off? No, my father; I am an honest woman and a good woman, and there is naught in my past of which I should be ashamed. It is not the story of a prodigal that I am about to tell you. It is the story of a woman who went out into the world and fought her way upward and kept herself unsmirched through the struggle. Your dream was all untrue, my father."

She paused and leaned her hand upon the table. "When I went from you," she resumed, "I was determined that I would not return until I had shown my independence. You called it a wicked pride, but it was that that kept me up and spurred me on. The great city seemed cold and forbidding, but I did not despair. I found a place where honest work was honestly rewarded. I was faithful and loyal, and my services were appreciated. I made friends as I rose, one of them a young man in whose ambitious hopes I became deeply interested. Perhaps it seemed foolish, but we fancied we could be of greater help to each other if we were married. Now we know that we were right." She paused again. "Your dream was all untrue, my father."

The old man's smile had quite faded, and there was no tenderness in his voice.

"Your pride is still your master," he said. "But you are a married woman?"

"Yes, father."

"You have a home?"

"Yes; a beautiful home."

"Children?"

"I had two, but God took one from me. It was that, I think, that turned my thoughts to you. We have a boy, a sturdy fellow of 12. Do you care to know his name? It is Gilbert Blair Hamerton. Some day you shall see him."

The old man winced a little.

"Your husband's name is Hamerton?"

"Yes, father; Philip Hamerton."

The old man nodded his head.

"I shall not forget the name," he muttered. "It is the same as the new senator's."

Mary smiled.

"The same name and the same man, father."

The old man started up.

"Your husband!"

"Your son-in-law, father."

"Your husband," the old man murmured; "the idol of the public, the man who may be president!"

"Yes, father," said Mary. "And when he comes he will tell you that in all he has accomplished I have been his adviser and his faithful helper."

"Coming here?" cried the old man.

"Yes, father. I left him behind at Judge Northmore's, with instructions to follow me in an hour. He will soon be here."

The old man clutched the arms of his chair and stared at his child. The scales were dropping from his eyes. The blindness of prejudice was gone. He saw that she was a beautiful woman, straight and supple of figure, clear of eye, with dignity and character expressed by every movement. A warm wave surged across his old heart.

"Mary," he murmured, "it was a wicked dream—a wicked dream!"

She was on her knees by his side in a flash, with a loving hand caressing his gray locks.

"Yes, my father," she softly said, "it was a wicked dream, and, like all wicked dreams, the sooner we can forget it the better. But, father dear, let me have the prodigal's kiss of forgiveness."

"Mary!" the old man brokenly murmured.

"There!" she cried as she arose. "And now for the supper—the supper that is to show you that I haven't forgotten the lessons I learned in those early years. Hark! There is Philip! I hear his footstep on the graveled walk."

The old man arose as she turned and hurried to the door. There were tears in his eyes.

"Mary has come back," he murmured very softly.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

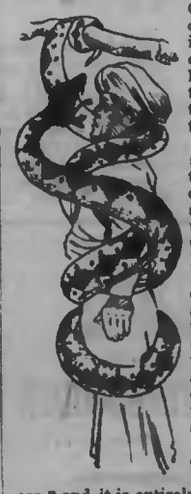
Is like the constrictor which drops its coils around its victim and slowly tightens them until life is extinguished.



Once the coils are drawn tight there is little chance of escape. The one hope of safety is to break loose at the beginning of the attack.

Those who are showing symptoms of lung disease should instantly begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will cure obstinate coughs, bronchitis and bleeding of the lungs. It increases the nutrition of the body, and so restores the emaciated form to health and strength.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"I feel it my duty to give my testimonial in behalf of your great medicine," writes Mr. John T. Reed, of Jefferson, Jefferson Co., Ark. "When I commenced taking Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I was very low with a cough, and would at times spit blood. I was not able to do any work at all, was weak and my head was dizzy. The first bottle I took did me so much good that I had faith in it and continued until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I do not look like nor feel like the same man as I was a year ago. People were astonished and said they did not think that I could live. I can thankfully say that I am entirely cured of a disease from which had it not been for your wonderful 'Discovery' I would have died."

CHURCH CHIMES.

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

The song sermon in Charlotte street church on Sunday evening was one of special interest. The church was filled to the doors, and all present were highly pleased with the excellence of the service. Besides the regular musical service of the church, four numbers were given during the sermon, Messrs. Crossley, Davis and Skitch, and Misses Hendron and Stevens taking prominent part in solos and duetts—the choir joining in choruses.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

Messrs. James Browne and Joseph Legg sang a duett "Ah My Heart" in a very sympathic manner Sunday evening. Mr. Browne sang in his usual style, showing a distinction in expression and articulation. Mr. Legg deserves much praise and promises to have a fine future.

MARK STREET CHURCH.

The morning service was well attended. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Thompson, occupying the pulpit. At the close of the service, the Sacriment of the Lord's Supper was administered. The choir sang "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" by Excell, the bass and tenor solos of which were sung by Messrs. Watson and Whatley, and justice was done the duett by Misses L. Kindred and L. Rightmyer. During the offertory the solo "A Clean Heart" by Byshe, was sung very acceptably by Mr. E. S. Watson.

At the evening service the choir sang "Come Thou Fount" by Excell, the solos of which were sung by Misses L. Rightmyer, L. Kindred, Messrs. F. Whatley and A. Saunders. During the offertory Mr. Saunders pleased his listeners with the solo "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" by Ambrose.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

At St. Luke's church the services Sunday were conducted in the morning by the Rev. E. A. Langfelt, of Omemee, and in the evening by Mr. J. J. Turner, jr. As this was Mr. Langfeldt's first visit to St. Luke's since his appointment by the Bishop to be Rector of the Parish, dating from 1st September next, he took occasion to heartily thank the congregation for their confidence in him, implied by the unanimous call extended him. He said he fully realized how difficult it would be to succeed a man of the scholarly attainments and striking personality of Dr. Symonds. He hoped to be strengthened and sustained by God on whom he implicitly relied for guidance and assistance in carrying on His work here. He earnestly prayed that with the help of God and the hearty co-operation of the congregation he may be, in some measure, successful in ministering to the spiritual needs of the congregation.

Mr. Lansfeldt will officiate at both services at St. Lukes next Sunday, and also at St. Marks, Ottonabee in the afternoon.

It is expected that Rev. Dr. Symonds will conduct the services at St. Lukes on Sunday the 18th inst.

On Magnetic Healing.

Much is spoken and written during these times about this mysterious method of treating disease. The most truly remarkable cases of magnetic healing which have come under the notice of the writer have been those in which Dr. Chase's Ointment was used. This preparation seems to have magical powers in stopping the dreadful itching, burning sensations of Salt Rheum and Eczema, and when used regularly makes the cure thorough and complete.

PERSONAL TAX.

Ontario, remarks the Bobcaygeon Independent, is certainly a much favoured Province. No other province in the world is exempt from direct provincial tax. In British Columbia, the Legislature at its last session levied a tax of $3 on every male over 18 years, and after next January the Lieut.-Governor can increase it to $5. In Ontario there is a Municipal Poll tax, of $1.00 on those who are not otherwise paying taxes, but the tax is generally evaded under some pretext, a proceeding that is unjust and should not be permitted. A tax of three dollars would not be too high, and it should be strictly enforced. In every municipality there are a number of young men who claim the franchise, and as a rule bilk the tax collector of the paltry dollar. A man who is compiled to observe the laws should have a say in the making of the laws, that is perfectly proper. At the same time when he claims a right of representation in the councils of the state, it is only just that he should assume his share of the expenses of the state. Decidedly if he does not pay he should not vote, for obviously it is an injustice to the man who does the paying if he is outvoted and has his opinions thwarted by those who do not pay. The Ontario poll tax might well be increased and certainly should be collected.

Witness My Hand.

In the early days only a few scholars, priests and clerks knew how to write. It was then customary to sign a document by smearing the hand with ink and impressing it upon the paper, accompanied by the words, "Witness my hand." Afterward the seal was introduced as a substitute for the hand mark and was used with the words above quoted, the two forming the signature. This is the origin of the expression as used in modern documents.

Just as Bad.

Educated Egyptian—You have no wonderful hieroglyphics in your country, sir; no mysterious inscriptions, no undecipherable relics of an ancient literature whose secrets the wise men of the world have tried for ages to discover.

Novel Ammunition.

During the sieges of mediæval times it was very common for the beleaguers to throw from their catapults and other military engines dead bodies of dogs, swine, together with pieces of horseflesh and similar carrion into the city or castle besieged in order that the defenders might by the stench of this putridity be forced to a surrender.

Well Concealed.

"What was the matter with Proudfoot that he made such a fool of himself last night?"

"Oh, somebody had offended him unwittingly, and he was standing on his dignity."

"Oh, was he? I wondered what had become of it."

Change the Dictionaries.

There is a teacher in the Brooklyn public schools who has an item of information she thinks may be of interest to lexicographers. This young woman had just been drilling a class of young hopefuls on the variations of the masculine and feminine forms of nouns.

"Now," said she, "who can give me the feminine of horseman?"

Up went the hand of an 11-year-old lad.

"Well, what is it, Johnny?"

"Please, ma'am," he answered, "mare-lady."

An Artist's Nerves.

"I suppose it is a long time since you have had stage fright," said the friend.

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "But I have box office fright every now and then."

GASOLINE EXPLOSION

A Score of Lives Blotted Out in Philadelphia, Pa.

SUFFERERS CROWD HOSPITALS.

Whole Block of Buildings Tumbled Down Over the Heads of Residents —Front Walls Blown Out Into the Street, Hat Floors and Roof Blown Upwards—Rescuers at Work.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 6.—A terrific explosion in a block of six buildings on Locust street above Tenth street last night completely wrecked five of the structures and caused the death of from ten to twenty persons. Over forty others were more or less seriously injured. Some of those taken to the hospital will die. It is estimated that at least 35 persons were in the five buildings when the explosion occurred, and the exact number of dead will probably not be known for 24 hours. The buildings were occupied as follows: Houseman's billiard rooms; Rosenthal's second - hand clothing store, occupied by Rosenthal, his wife and five children; William Jones (colored) restaurant, occupied by Jones and about fifteen boarders; George McClemmy's store, occupied by McClemmy, clerk and servant girl; Patrick Quigley's store, occupied by Quigley, wife and three children and his uncle; Albert Mountain's meat store, occupied by Mountain, mother, sister and clerk.

The explosion occurred about 9.30 o'clock. It is believed a barrel of gasoline in one of the three grocery stores exploded. With the exception of No. 1,008 the front walls of the buildings were blown outward into the street, while the floors and roofs were blown upwards and fell straight to the ground. Almost every building within a radius of two blocks about the scene had windows shattered, and were otherwise damaged. Every building on the opposite side of Locast street was more or less wrecked, but none of them fell.

At 1.30 a.m., the only known deaths are those at the hospitals, that of an unknown colored woman and a two-year-old child. At the Penna Hospital five of the patients will, it is thought, die before morning.

Up to 1.30 the police or fire officials, cannot add to the list of the dead, but are positive that a number of bodies are still buried under the ruins. Large forces of firemen and policemen are at work removing the vast amount of wreckage, but at this writing have found no bodies.

From 40 to 50 persons are lying in the several hospitals suffering more or less severe injuries.

THREE DROWNINGS.

Mrs. F. L. Packard, an Ottawa Baby and Corp. Goulding.

St. John, Aug. 6.—Mrs. F. L. Packard, aged 28 years, of Boston, wife of one of the members of the firm of E. Packard & Sons, shoe manufacturers, was drowned while bathing at Riverside, seven miles from St. John, yesterday afternoon.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—At Fort William, near Pembroke, the two-year-old child of Mr. Arthur Resenthal, jeweler, Ottawa, was drowned yesterday.

Halifax, Aug. 6.—Corp. Goulding of the Royal Canadian Regiment, was taken with cramps while bathing at MacNab's Island last evening, and was drowned. He was 40 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

Malicious Trades Unionism.

London, Aug. 6. — The House of Lords yesterday rendered an important judgment affecting trades unions. The case was brought up on appeal from the judgment of the Irish courts awarding a wholesale butcher damages against the Butchers' Assistants Association, which brought pressure to bear on retailers to boycott the plaintiff until he dismissed a certain non-union employe, threatening otherwise to call out the union employes of the firm concerned, and finally inducing the non-unionist to leave the plaintiff. The Lords dismissed the appeal on the ground that the acts of wrongful and malicious conspiracy were not undertaken to advance the interests of the workmen themselves, but solely to injure the plaintiffs.

Thirty Fighters on a Side.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 6.—A special from London, Ky., says: A party of about 30 men, nearly equally divided, have engaged in a rifle fight on Tanyard Branch. It is said the Stapletons and Hamptons were on one side and the Benges on the other, owing to an old feud. Parry Hampton and Alfred Benges are reported to have been badly wounded. Further trouble is expected.

Wind Prevented a Fly.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Another attempt was to have been made yesterday by the Brazilian aeronaut Santos Dumont to win the prize of 100,000 francs, offered by Mr. Deutsch, for the aeronaut who should sail his flying machine from the Aero Club grounds to and around the Eiffel Tower, and back, within an hour, but the journey was prevented by a strong wind.

Attacked Prince Nicholas.

Athens, via Vienna, Aug 6.—While Prince Nicholas of Russia was at a dinner given in his honor at Kifisia, a fashionable resort near here, the Premier and many other notable persons being present, Prince Muruzi, a former cavalry captain, who was dismissed from the service for drunkenness, burst into the dining-room and throttled Lieut. Palli, the adjutant of Prince Nicholas. Prince Nicholas broke a stick over the head of Prince Muruzi, and the latter tried to seize Prince Nicholas. Finally the infuriated assailant was overpowered by the guests and borne away.

Poison Sent in Fruit.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 5. — A deliberate attempt was made Saturday to take the life of Mrs. Clara Wandell by means of poison that had been placed in peaches, a bag of which was sent to her as a gift. The woman suffered acutely for hours, and narrawly escaped death. Ed. DeForest, an admirer, whose attentions Mrs. Wandell had rejected, has been arrested on suspicion of having sent her the fruit.

Complicated Ailments.

A Remarkable Case of Kidney and Liver Disorders and Extreme Nervousness Cured by the Combined Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food.

The strongest combination in medicines that one can well imagine is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The kidney-liver pills regulate and invigorate the liver, kidneys and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and thoroughly builds up the system.

Mr. Walter Booth, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for some years with kidney and liver disease, and pains in my back, and my stomach was so bad I could not eat hearty food, and had difficulty in keeping any food on my stomach. I was so nervous that I could scarcely take a drink of water without spilling much of it, my hand trembled so, and I lost flesh until my weight fell from 155 to 138 pounds.

"Hearing of a similar case that was cured by Dr. Chase's Remedies, I commenced by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Pills, six boxes of which entirely cured my kidney and liver troubles. I then began Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my nervousness. It strengthened my stomach and whole system, and I gained in flesh. I cannot speak in terms of too great praise for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food, for besides curing me, they did my father, who is an old man, a great deal of good. I have every confidence in recommending these remedies."

Mr. J. J. Ward, J.P., certifies that he knows Mr. Walter Booth, and that this statement of his cure is perfectly correct.

As a spring restorative Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled. If the bowels are constipated and the kidneys and liver sluggish and inactive, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills can be used to advantage, along with the Nerve Food. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Cronberg, Aug. 7.—The body of the Dowager-Empress lies in the bed chamber overlooking the valley of the Main. It has been embalmed by Prof. Renvers, and lies embedded in a mass of tube rose and la France roses. She died in a soft sleep, painlessly, and her features bear the most serene and peaceful expression. The death agony was brief, lasting hardly a quarter of an hour. When Prof. Renvers informed Emperor William that his mother's heart had ceased to beat the Chaplain made a brief prayer, and His Majesty placed white lilies in his mother's hands.

An Imperial Cabinet order decrees that there shall be six weeks of national mourning. All public amusements, including concerts and theatrical performances, are suspended until after the funeral. The bells of the churches in Germany must be tolled daily for fourteen days from noon to 1 p. m.

In accordance with the expressed wishes of the deceased, the funeral services will be as simple as possible under the circumstances. The body will remain on the bed where she died until ready for the coffin.

The roses in which it is almost buried are from her private garden, many of the blooms being from bushes cultivated with her own hands. No one will be allowed to view it, except the members of the immediate family and household.

Emperor William had a long interview with Count Von Buelow yesterday. He drove from Homburg to Friederichschof, and soon after his arrival there the following announcement regarding the funeral arrangements was made:

"On Thursday the royal family will attend the funeral service in the Castle, at which the Bishop of Ripon, who was summoned by the Empress, will officiate. Only the immediate family will be present.

"Saturday evening the coffin will be escorted from Friedrichschof to the Protestant Church in Cronberg by a torchlight procession, followed by the royal family on foot.

"Sunday afternoon a funeral service will be held in the presence of the family of the Empress, her household and a few of her friends and other privileged persons."

It is expected here that King Edward will be present.

The royal family will go to Potsdam Sunday evening, and the body will be taken there Monday evening.

The funeral service in the Mausoleum at Friedenskirche, Potsdam, will be held Tuesday. As it was the Empress' wish that there should be no State ceremony, the service will not be attended by all the German royal personages. It will be as simple as possible.

Emperor William has received a telegram of sympathy from the Pope.

ENGLISH OARSMEN AT RAT PORTAGE

George Towns and Champion Jake Exchange Courtesies.

Rat Portage, Aug. 7.—George Towns, of England, accompanied by Tom Sullivan, his trainer, and Pierce, another oarsman, arrived in town at 9 o'clock yesterday, and were met at the depot by a large number of the members of the Rat Portage Rowing Club, and other citizens, who welcomed the Britishers and escorted them to the Rowing Club quarters, which were placed at their disposal. Their boat was sent to the clubhouse to be unpacked. While the Englishmen were being shown through the clubhouse, Jake Gaudaur came in for his morning work, and was introduced to Towns. Sullivan and Jake are old friends, and their meeting was of the most cordial character. Sullivan's greeting words were:

"Why, Jake, you look younger than ever. What have they been doing to you up here?" Jake's reply was: "Living among the rocks agrees with me."

The three Englishmen had the course on which the struggle of September 4 will take place pointed out to them, and they expressed themselves as delighted with it. Towns is a small man, but of a very muscular type, with long arms and legs and stocky body.

Importing Pure Bred Stock.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Ontario farmers have recently purchased some pure-bred stock in England. Mr. Carpenter, M. P. P., of Simcoe, bought some rams at the Cardiff Exhibition and 20 ewes from two of the finest flocks in Great Britain. Joseph Brethour bought some prize boars and sows, and Robert Miller of Stouffville got some choice sheep and cattle. W. D. Flatt of Hamilton got some shorthorn cattle, and J. Davis selected about 60 head of Yorkshire swine.

Bullet Wound Below Heart.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—Albert Parsons of 74 Blair avenue was taken to the General Hospital about 2 o'clock this morning suffering from a bullet wound just below the heart. Parsons was not in a condition to tell how he received the wound. The shooting occurred at his home. Dr. Hunter was called in and he dressed the wound. Parsons is about 50 years of age and married. His condition is critical.

Attempt at Train Wrecking.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 7.—What appears to have been an attempt to wreck the C.P.R. Montreal express was made here at an early hour yesterday morning. The express was preceded by an engine running light, and just as the latter reached the edge of the town an explosion occurred, which tore off one of the driving wheels. Very little damage was done otherwise, and the express was not delayed.

THE CALL TO BATTLE

President Shaffer Issues Decree on Tuesday Afternoon.

WORK TO STOP ON SATURDAY.

The Order Will Throw About 18,000 Union Men and 60,000 in the Mills, Connected With the Federation of Labor and Unorganized, Out of Work—A Rift in Machinists' Late.

Pittsburg, Aug. 7.—A general strike order from President Shaffer was to be mailed to all the vice-presidents of the Amalgamated Association last night ordering the men out on Aug. 10 unless there is an adjustment of the differences in the meantime. The strike will effect all the Amalgamated men employed by the National Steel Company, Federal Steel Company and National Tube Company. President Shaffer says the manufacturers have had sufficient notice. He does not anticipate any settlement before the strike goes into effect.

The men are ordered out after the last turn on Aug. 10. The order will throw idle about 12,000 union men and about 60,000 in the mills, who are connected with the Federation of Labor and who are not organized, but who will have no work by reason of the strike of the skilled men. Altogether 100,000 men will likely be idle. The order, it is said, will also call out the men at the furnaces owned by the U. S. Steel Corporation, who are not members of the Amalgamated Association, but who are connected with the American Federation of Labor.

Not only are the Federation men in the mills and furnaces directly involved, but there is an ominous threat that structural steel workers will refuse to handle the Corporation Steel in building operations.

A Rift in Machinists' Late.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The Courier says: "The first wedge has been driven home in a great split in the International Machinists' Union. President O'Connell has sent four special agents from Washington to disband the lodges of Buffalo representing 1,400 men, who have been fighting for the nine hour scale. The Buffalonians have rebelled, and knowing that the entire country had machinists' lodges, which were dissatisfied with O'Connell's rule, have sent a call to every lodge in the country to join a new organization, the convention of which will be held in Buffalo next month."

COUNTING THE DEAD.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7. — Seven dead, three or four probably fatally injured, and more than sixty other persons hurt, more or less seriously, is the latest revised record of Monday night's explosion in the block of buildings on Locust street, above 10th street, in this city. How many more victims, if any, are still in the ruins will not be known until the debris has been cleared away. The property loss will amount to about $75,000, on which there is small insurance.

Run Over By Train.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—James Gallagher, 147 Clarence street, met with fatal injuries at South Indian at 11.15 o'clock Monday night. The regular night freight on the Canada-Atlantic going east stopped at Indian Station, and on pulling out the trainmen heard cries from beneath the wheels. Upon investigation the crew found a man beneath the wheels. He had been run over and one arm was severed. His back was badly crushed and he was unconscious. No doctor was available at South Indian, and a special coach was sent to convey the man immediately to Ottawa. An ambulance was waiting, and Dr. Powell accompanied Gallagher to St. Luke's Hospital. But, owing to the great loss of blood on the trip up life could not be preserved. Gallagher died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. James Gallagher is well known in Ottawa, having lived here since his birth, 32 years ago. His occupation was selling patent medicines.

Murder Near Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—News of a murder in one of the quiet parishes to the north of Montreal has just reached the city. It appears that a farmer named Flaherty, living at Morin's Flats, fired at and killed his brother-in-law, one Blais, who had been drinking and creating a good deal of disturbance.

$1,000 for His Dam.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—Hon. F. R. Latchford, Minister of Public Works, stated yesterday that Mr. Everingham, the owner of the Cashmere dam at London, Ont., has signified that he would consider $1,000 a fair price for the structure, and the Government will ask the Legislature to make a grant for the purpose.

THE UTILITY OF CANALS.

Railway proprietors and promoters would have us believe that the days of canals are over. This argument, or rather assertion, has been worn threadbare in the discussion in opposition to the extension of the Canadian canal system — one of the finest systems of the kind in the world. Shippers of all kinds would be at a pretty pass if they were solely at the mercy of railways for the transportation of, especially, bulky shipments. The lesser carrying capacity, and consequent higher rates, would be almost prohibitory of much of the traffic now carried on by our internal canal system. As a striking evidence of the utility and importance of canals, the Morning Leader, of London, England, of July 26th, contains the following:

Ship canals have done vast things. To-morrow a ship of 3,000 tons burden, the Midland Queen, will leave Manchester — 35 miles from the sea —by the ship canal, and traversing the Atlantic Ocean and the River St. Lawrence, enter the great lakes of the North American continent by way of ship canals—the Cornwall Canal (evidently the St. Lawrence canals are meant), between Montreal and Kingston, and the Welland canal, (which dodges the Niagara Falls.) Thence she will go straight through to Chicago, her cargo untouched from the time of leaving Manchester until it reaches the very heart of the Western Continent, thousands of miles inland. Though within the last few months a few vessels have started to run between Chicago and Hamburg, Liverpool and London, the Midland Queen will be absolutely the first to travel by ship canal at each end of the journey. When — as prophets predict — Chicago has become the first instead of the second city on the American continent, the route taken by the Midland Queen will probably be the most important trade route in the world.

It is important to note that the "vast thing" which the Leader records, would have been impossible without the splendid system of internal Canadian Canals, upon which this country has spent nearly seventy millions of dollars. We have spent altogether on canals $81,735,717, and on the canals used by the "Midland Queen," the first to travel the route from the heart of England to the heart of America, we have spent $67,585,068. So that the boast made by the London Leader is solely due, so far as this end of it is concerned, to Canadian canals and Canadian enterprise. This enterprise was far-seeing, for while at present our canals have not, to any considerable extent attained the full measure of their usefulness, nor even been profitable — the total revenue on canals costing 81 3-4 millions being for the 34 years since Confederation, only 12 million dollars — yet the time will come, and is, indeed, rapidly approaching, when they will be one of the highways for the world's bread —from the wheat fields of the North West to the markets of Europe. And we will have to add to them, for at present they are manifestly insufficient for the work that will be put upon them. We shall require the completion of the Trent Valley waterway and the Georgian Bay and Ottawa systems, as portions of the great transportation route that will give the wheat fields of the North West outlet to the seaboard.

WHEAT MARKETTING MEANS.

Certain newspapers which are in the way of belittling the Trent Valley Waterway and pronouncing construction work as waste of public money are very inconsistently giving prominence to the fact that the extraordinary wheat crop of Manitoba and the Northwest will, in the marketting, tax the existing means of transportation beyond their capacity. If the Trent Valley Waterway had been opened as it should have been opened years ago it would now be available for relieving the congestion of transportation media which will result when the time comes for removing the present year's crop of Manitoba to the British markets. And the present inadequacy of transportation will be as nothing compared to what it will be when a much greater area of the great Canadian wheat fields is brought into bearing. As it is, it is safe to say that not one tenth of the Northwest capable of yielding wheat is under cultivation. If it gluts the means of transportation to move 50 millions of bushels of wheat, what would be the result if with existing facilities the attempt is made to move to market half a million bushels? By all means complete the Trent Valley Waterway, and bring into operation the proposed Georgian Bay and Ottawa River Route and other feasible means of transit. Mr. Tarte was right when he declared at a banquet in Peterborough that the one great need of Canada was increased transportation facilities. Those journals which are opposing the completion of the Trent Waterway, are, to the large extent it is a factor in transportation, obstructing national progress. It is not a little surprising that the Montreal Star in dealing with the question of moving the Northwest wheat crop, while properly favouring the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Route, should ignore the Trent Valley Waterway, which promises so much benefit to the Port of Montreal. It can be only ignorance of the part this route would play in the national transportation problem that begets this indifference. It will cost money to provide adequate tranportation, but it will be money well invested and will bring rich returns to Canadian industries, which should have the benefit of the profit to Canadian enterprise and capital involved in the carrying trade, which now goes largely to foreign industries and carrying concerns.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Miss Bertha Hetherington, of Peterborough, has been visiting friends here during the past week.

Mr. Charles Wynn and a force of men are engaged in tearing down the old bridge over the creek and erecting a new one of concrete and iron.

One day last week as Mr. William Douglass was standing on a sleeper of the old bridge watching the men at work below he accidentally slipped into the water below, a distance of about ten feet, escaping with only a wetting and a shaking up.

The threshing season is in full blast but the threshers report only about half of the quantity of grain there was last year.

Mr. Robert Grandy met with a severe loss lately, having lost two valuable brood mares, one of them being an imported one.

Quite a few young men took in the excursion to the Northwest last week, with others to follow next week.

Mr. Bert Campbell was down last week inspecting the new store, which he is to occupy about Sept. 1st.

COLIC.

A contraction of the intestines due to the presence of an acid. You require an antidote,—something that will neutralize this acid and relieve the distress. The oxygen in Powley's Liquified Ozone neutralizes any acid which may form in your stomach from food fermentation or unripe fruit and makes the stomach and bowel functions right.

No matter how long standing may be your disorder, Ozone is almost sure to cure. Maybe your case bears a similarity to that of Mr. Joyce of Sutton, Ont., fireman on the Midland Division of the G.T.R. Better read his story:

I have suffered for over a year and a half with what the doctors call colic of the bowels. I was being treated by the best doctors in the city, but all failed to do me any good. I was advised to try Ozone, which I did. In about two weeks the pains had started to go away. Before I started taking the Ozone I was off work more than half the time, and could not eat or sleep well. After taking two bottles, I am now in good health. If there are any others troubled similarly, I would advise them to take Powley's Liquified Ozone. (Signed) OSCAR JOYCE, Sutton, Ont.

Take Ozone in half a glassful of Vichy, it gives almost immediate relief. This combination of Powley's Liquified Ozone diluted makes a very refreshing drink.

A Surgeon's Blunder.

Artery Severed While Undergoing an Operation—No Longer Necessary to Use the Knife for Piles.

Saturday's paper contains the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every surgical operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only cure for piles, but that day is passed, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its absolute control over every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Physicians who are considerate of the well-being of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a mania for operations claim that cruel method as the proper treatment. By promptly stopping the distressing itching and burning Dr. Chase's Ointment brings quick and lasting relief.

Rev. S. A. Duprau, Methodist minister, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states: "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stool. At this very severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose.

"Now imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men, than any similar preparation the world has ever known. It is the standard ointment the world over, and positively the only actual cure for piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

LONE STAR'S ESCAPE

The Indian Department Takes a Philosophic View of It.

MR. FISHER'S ENGLISH VISIT.

On the Whole His Mission Has Been Highly Satisfactory—Protest Against the Embargo on Canadian Cattle—Discussed Establishing Remount Stations in Canada With Lord Roberts—Horses for Army.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—The Indian Department has received a report from Mr. John P. Wright, its agent at Fort Frances, Ont., giving details of a recent seizure of a gasoline launch containing five Americans, for selling liquor to the Indians, and the subsequent escape of the prisoners in the launch to the United States side. It seems that Mr. Wright seized the launch, which was called "The Lone Star," at the foot of Manitou Rapids, and, aided by a special constable, brought his prisoners to Fort Frances. The boat was tied up to the dock and left in charge of the constable, but while the preliminaries for the trial of the case was going forward the five Americans who had been made prisoners took the craft down the river and escaped. The Canadian constable, who had been overpowered, was landed on the American side about half a mile from where the escape was made. Mr. Wright made the suggestion that efforts be made to obtain the surrender of the fugitives from the United States authorities. The department, however, will not take any action of the kind for two reasons: First of all, it is open to doubt whether, apart from the offence, supplying intoxicants to Indians, the Americans could be successfully prosecuted for the theft of property under lawful seizure. In the next place, the fugitives were not shown by hearing by competent authorities to have been guilty of any offence. A strict watch will, however, be kept in future for parties who cross the boundary in order to sell liquor to the Indians, and, if caught, they will be made an example of.

Mr. Fisher's English Visit

The Minister of Agriculture arrived in the city last evening from his trip to England. On the whole his mission there has been satisfactory. He had several interviews with the Colonial Secretary and other Imperial statesmen, when he urged the removal of the embargo against the admission of Canadian cattle. Such a concession cannot now be granted without an amendment of the law, and this is impossible at present, owing to the unswerving hostility of the domestic agriculturists, who are afraid that diseased animals may be brought in. Of course the British statesmen were quick to try and assure Mr. Fisher that the law, in its present shape, conveys no reflection upon the health of Canadian cattle, and naturally enough Mr. Fisher dissented from this view. He pointed out that the only ground for maintaining the enactment was dread lest diseased animals might be imported, showing that the authorities thought there was danger. The British official opinion was that Canada and the United States, being allowed to land cattle for slaughter, were better off than other countries, and it seemed to be thought that no ground for complaint existed. The last of the matter has, however, not yet been heard, and there will be more formal correspondence. Early last spring Mr. Fisher forwarded a despatch setting forth in detail his views upon the subject of the embargo. An answer to this has been received, and it will elicit a formal reply from the head of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Fisher had an agreeable talk with Lord Roberts upon the question of establishing remount stations in Canada, and he also impressed upon a War Office committee the advantage of relying upon Canada to a greater extent as a source of supply for army necessaries. The committee's decision, if it has reached any, has not been made known, and probably will not be until its report is presented. The Minister, however, deems the prospects good for the purchase in Canada of a fair proportion of the horses required by the army.

Horses for the Army.

The popular impression created by the Boer war is that there is a phenomenal demand for horses for the British army. Ordinarily speaking, it is not by any means large. Previous to the conflict in South Africa the demand for cavalry horses did not exceed 2,500 per year, but the army reforms decided upon will probably greatly augment and perhaps even double this number.

Another matter to which Mr. Fisher directed the attention of the statesmen in London related to Canada's adherence to the Berne convention bearing upon patents, trade marks and designs. There was a difference of opinion between the Canadian and Imperial Governments as to the steps this country should take with respect to becoming an adherent of the convention, but after a personal discussion the matter has been adjusted. Legislation by the Dominion Parliament will be needed in order to give effect to the understanding.

The Minister of Agriculture completed the purchase of a number of very fine cattle for the experimental farms of the Dominion. He found Canadian trade in a very satisfactory position. The dealers are anxious to handle our food products and fruits, and if the quality is kept up there is no doubt of a ready sale. Beyond doubt, Mr. Fisher thinks, Canadians can send to Great Britain all the food products they can produce, without any fear of glutting the market, providing these products are of the highest quality. Mr Fisher obtained large additional orders from the War Office for hay for South Africa—in fact they covered all the hay which it was considered could be got in Canada. The result is that all the hay on hand will be disposed of and exported in September. The new hay will not be fit for export for several months yet.

LORD LANSDOWNE ON CHINA.

Negotiations Declared to Have Made Rapid and Satisfactory Progress.

London, Aug. 7. — Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary, replying in the House of Lords yesterday to a question of Earl Spencer, Liberal, said the Chinese negotiations had recently made rapid and satisfactory progress. The indemnity question was disposed of, with the exception of a few minor points.

There was still some question whether the matter of the commercial facilities in China had not better be transferred to some other place than Pekin, and to some more wieldy body than the present conference. Great Britain was still in favor of the open door throughout China. They could not complain that they had not equal commercial advantages in the Yang Tse Valley.

The Foreign Secretary also said that the final strength of the legation garrison at Pekin would probably be 1,800 men, and that an additional force of 3,000 would be distributed at important points along the route to the sea.

The Secretary regarded the Anglo-German and the Anglo-Russian agreements as satisfactory, but as tending to the maintenance of China's territorial integrity.

British Minister Would Not Sign.

Pekin, Aug. 6.—The Foreign Ministers had arranged to sign the settlement protocol to-day, but British Minister Satow yesterday evening notified his colleagues that Great Britain was unable to sign. He gave no reasons, and the meeting was postponed indefinitely.

Arrival of Waldersee.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—The steamer Gera, with Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee on board, has arrived off Helgoland.

IT COST MONEY.

Many a man has spent all his earnings in trying to get rid of rheumatism. It cost Mr. James Davison, Oconto, Ont., between $1,000 and $2,000 before he tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. He was a helpless invalid for six years but suffered from sciatica in his hip joint for ten years. Six bottles cured him completely and he is now working his farm. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

Blown to Atoms.

Bowling Green, Aug. 7.—Eight hundred quarts of nitro-glycerine exploded 1½ miles southwest of this city yesterday afternoon and blew the driver of the wagon in which the explosive was stored, the team and the wagon to atoms.

Like Father, Like Son.

Halifax, Aug. 7.—Edwin Potter, aged 11 years, was drowned at Annapolis yesterday afternoon while bathing. The father of the boy, U. W. Potter, was drowned at almost the same spot ten years ago.

16 Stages of the Slater Shoe.

Here one sees the successive several operations from the skin of leather to the finished shoe. It shows the building up of the shoe, its gradual and symmetrical progress, the thorough work, the minute attention to detail, the determination of the manufacturers to produce the best of shoes —the Slater Shoe. There is no skimping of detail, no lack of fitting and finishing, of accurate, systematic work that results in the perfect shoe.

We sell the Slater Shoe. Any up-to-date dealer does. But in addition—for Slater Shoes are only a part of our selling—we have hundreds of excellent and reliable shoes. The variety is not so wide, that sizes so numerous, the differences in shape so important, for there is as much difference in feet as in faces, and we have to carry an ample stock to meet the requirements of all. Nothing that a good shoe store should have is lacking. But where the average dealer stocks fifty pair we stock five hundred. Just a few lines to suggest to men a nice shoe that will be comfortable, shapely, dressy and reliable:

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

The Hulls, Fathe and Son Were Committed for Trial.

The case of the Crown vs. Hull, was resumed in the county police court yesterday afternoon before County Magistrate Edmison.

Thomas Hull and his son, Mowat Hull, were charged with having stolen oil cups from a steam yacht engine. It was charged that Hull, the elder, stole the oil cups off Mr. David Breeze's yacht, and that the younger Hull stole a lubricator from Mr. Strickland's yacht.

The case proved to be a very lengthy one and after considerable evidence had been taken the two accused parties were committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction. They were allowed out on bail, each of them furnishing $200, and two sureties of $100.

Mr. R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution, and Messrs. R. R. Hull and O. A. Langley represented the Hulls.

County Magistrate Edmison went down to Havelock this morning to hear a sheep and dog case. J. Murphy, a farmer near Norwood, charges that the dog of Robert Hill did kill one lamb and worry one sheep belonging to the complainant. He asks that the Magistrate make an order that the dog be shot, and that he be compensated for the loss of his sheep.

The Oddfellows of Peterborough have always been know for the success of their excursions, and their annual outing this year should prove to be no exception to the rule. Their annual excursion takes place on Civic Holiday to Stony Lake. As this is the day of the regatta there will no doubt be a big crowd go up.

The 57th Regimental Band is going to run an excursion and in view of the popularity of this musical organization they should draw a large number to Sturgeon Point. There has not been an excursion from here to Sturgeon Point in some years and the trip should prove a big drawing card.

Court Littlejohn, Canadian Order of Foresters, is again to the front, and they will on Civic Holiday run their 14th annual excursion to Toronto.

The Ancient Order of Foresters will on Civic Holiday run an excursion to McCracken's Landing. This is a very popular trip.

PETERBORO' CHEESE BOARD

The Semi-Monthly Meeting was Held Here To-day.

9 3-4 was the Highest Price Paid—The Board was Cleared off—A Salesman's Complaint.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held this morning, when the following buyers were in attendance: Messrs. Cook, Whitton, Wrighton, Fitzgerald, Kerr, Rollands, Squires and Bailey.

Mr. Paul Costello, before the meeting opened, said that he desired to know the rules of the Board. There had been a buyer at the last meeting who purchased cheese from the Myrtle factory, but who afterwards refused to visit the factory and take the cheese.

Mr. Drummond, the chairman of the Board, said that it was the duty of the buyer to visit the factories, as provided for at the previous sale. Continuing, Mr. Drummond said he would read a letter that had been handed him. The letter in question was from Mr. Cooke's inspector to the manager of the Myrtle factory stating that he could not get across the Mud Lake bridge, and would therefore be unable to inspect the factory's output, but asked that the cheese be shipped to Bellevill', where he would take it subject to inspection there. Mr. Drummond said he heard that Mr. Cook had refused other cheese since the last sale, and unless the practice were discontinued the buyers who employ such methods would have to be expelled.

Mr. Cook arose and made an explanation. He did not scee why they should always pick on him. The fact of the matter was that his man could not get across the Mud Lake bridge. He had taken every other factory's cheese as agreed.

Mr. Cook's explanation in a measure seemed satisfactory.

The following factories boarded:

Keene	155
Warminster	132
Shearer	120

Oak Leaf	40
Darlington Union	145
Buckhorn	265
South Burleigh	50

The bidding opened at 9 cents by Mr. Whitton; Mr. Rollins went 1-8, Mr. Fitzgerald 1-4, Mr. Cook 3-8, Mr. Bailey 7-16, Mr. Rollins 9 1-2, Mr. Whitton 5-8. Bidding closed by Mr. Bailey offering 9 11-16.

Mr. Bailey took Ormonde, Shamrock, Melrose Abbey, and went 9 5-8 for further selections. Mr. Rollins and Mr. Whitton both shouted out 9 11-16, but Mr. Bailey surprised all by going 9 3-4, and calling Fleetwood, Bensfort, Oakleaf.

Mr. Whitton picked up Villiers, Westwood, Keene, Shearer, Lang, Cavanville, Norwood, at 9 3-4.

Mr. Rollins went the same figures, taking as his selections Warminster, North Smith, Oakdale, Daisy D., Warsaw, Maple Leaf, Cedardale, North Dummer, Pine Grove.

Nine and three-quarters was still the ruling price and Mr. Cook at that figure took Fraserville, Indian River, Lakefield and Buckhorn.

East Emily, Missing Link, Mount Pleasant, Otonabee Union, Peterborough, Central Smith, Ballyduff, Trewern and Myrtle sold to Mr. Bailey at 9 11-16.

Mr. Cook took Darlington Union at 9 11-16, and Mr. Rollins added to his selection at 9 3-4, South Burleigh and Stony Lake.

The board then adjourned for two weeks.

A STORY ABOUT WHEAT.

Something About Its Introduction Into the Northwest.

Prof. John Macoun is of opinion that the Canadian Northwest can produce more wheat than is now consumed in the whole world, but he figures out that the whole of Canada now produces less than 5 per cent. of the world's wheat supply, and exports only about one-quarter of that 5 per cent. This statement accords with the remark frequently heard that the Northwest is only in its infancy as a wheat producer. That is true from the point of view of quantity, although the estimated crop of this year runs from fifty to sixty million bushels, not a bad showing when one recalls that thirty years ago practically no wheat was grown there except a small quantity in the Red River Valley. However, Northwest agriculture has a history not generally known. In its magnificent forty-page wheat number issued last Saturday, the Manitoba Free Press mentions that the first sod for the raising of food products in the Canadian Northwest was turned one hundred years ago this summer. On the 17th of May, 1801, Alexander Henry, one of the partners of the Northwest Fur Company, having secured a from the company's post at Portage la Prairie, proceeded to a point on the east side of the Red River, near the international boundary, and planted thirty of them. It is further recorded that on the 3rd of October, that year, he took from the patch where they were planted one and a half bushels of potatoes. Continuously thereafter he and others appear to have raised potatoes and other garden stuff in that vicinity, the yields recorded being in some cases so large as almost to excite incredulity.

For instance, the pioneer agriculturist Alexander Henry records that in 1802 he himself took upwards of 420 bushels of potatoes from a patch in which but seven bushels had been sown, and adds that the Indians had stolen upwards of 200 bushels more. An onion raised in the same garden that year measured 22 inches in circumference and a carrot was 18 inches long. A turnip with its leaves weighed 25 pounds. Two years later it is recorded that Henry raised in his garden besides the above mentioned varieties of vegetables, cucumbers, melons, squashes and Indian corn. This is the first reference we find to a cereal having been grown in these regions. In 1806 oats were grown in the same locality, apparently for the first time. In that same year, in the district at the mouth of the Red River, the Indians grew some corn, the seed for which they obtained in the south. In 1812 it is recorded that barley was grown at various posts of the fur trading companies in what is now the Province of Manitoba.

The year 1812 was also notable for a more important event than the first planting of barley. In that year in that country. Lord Selkirk's first party of Scottish emigrants was located in this year and they planted wheat on the land which he had reserved for their use. For several years wheat and the coarser grains and vegetables were regularly sown in the Red River valley. Then came the trouble between the Hudson Bay Company, and the Northwest Trading Company, and agricultural operations were almost altogether suspended for the time. The strife between the companies culminated in the battle by which Governor Semple of the Hudson Bay Company and twenty of his followers lost their lives and twenty of the remaining colonists were driven from the land. Their fields, houses and other property were destroyed and they themselves took refuge in the company's forts at Lake Winnipeg.

WHEAT WAS SOWN FOR THE FIRST TIME

In 1820-21 the rival companies were united, and the settlers went back to their land. In 1826 another disaster overtook them in the shape of a Red River flood, which swept away houses, barns, fences and other property, leaving the settlers without homes or food in consequence of which the majority of them decided to abandon the country, leaving in June for Fort Snelling in the United States. Those who remained set to work at once and despite the lateness of the season put in crops of wheat about the latter end of June and afterwards rebuilt their homes. In the fall, notwithstanding the lateness of the seeding, they reaped a bountiful harvest. From that day to this, wheat and all other suitable grains and vegetables have been regularly produced from the lands of the Red River valley, and the soil then under cultivation is still bearing crops with undiminished fertility.

Such were the beginnings of the great agricultural industry which is now the basis of the wealth and prosperity of the province. Other parts have been found by subsequent experience to be quite as capable of producing wheat as the valley of the Red River, and succeeding impourings of settlers have flooded the various parts until to-day the province is covered with an almost unbroken succession of fields of waving grain, which promise to yield a harvest which for both quality and quantity will be absolutely without precedent in the history of grain raising anywhere in the world.

THE TALE OF A DOG.

A TRUTHFUL NARRATIVE OF CANINE TENACITY AND SAGACITY.

As the Story of the Feat Was Related by a Preacher Who Was a Party to the Incident No Further Testimony Is Necessary.

A certain Nashville statesman is about one of the best story tellers in Tennessee, and his repertoire includes a lot of good ones, fish and otherwise. On the truthfulness of some he will stake his reputation for veracity, but he tells one which he always prefixes with the statement that it was told him by a minister of the gospel, Dr. Bardwell, who will be remembered here by the older inhabitants as the assistant of Dr. Edgar of revered memory, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian church during the latter years of General Andrew Jackson's life and attended the old hero in his last illness. The story teller said:

"Dr. Bardwell used to visit my father's house when I was a boy, and the story I am about to tell you was related to me on the occasion of one of these visits. We were out on the veranda smoking one evening after supper. The doctor was fond of dogs and was a pretty good sportsman and naturally the conversation turned on this subject.

"'Speaking of dogs,' said Dr. Bardwell, 'reminds me of a dog which belonged to a friend of mine in Mississippi. I had been invited to hold services at a church near this friend's house and wrote him to meet me at the station, some six miles from his house, on the Saturday afternoon before Sunday, the day of the appointment.

"'He was on time with horses, and we started to his home. I noticed that a very handsome bird dog followed us, and, having heard that some one in that neighborhood owned an especially well trained trick dog, I asked my friend about it.

"'"That's the dog," at the same time pointing at his dog, which had run ahead of us and was waiting at the forks of the road.

"'I asked him to make him perform a trick. He got down from his horse, called the dog and, taking out his pocketbook, held it to the dog's nose. He then took out a silver half dollar and, walking some distance into the woods, raised up a large rock and put the money under it. We then resumed our journey, and when probably half a mile away my friend called his dog and told him to go back and get the money.

"'The dog, without the least hesitation, started back on a run, and, my friend explained, as the rock was heavy the dog would be unable to turn it over, so would have to scratch under it to reach the piece of money, and he would not probably get home before we reached there, it then being about three miles farther on to his house.

"'However, when we reached home the dog was not there. We ate supper, and still the dog did not come, nor had he put in an appearance when we retired at about 10 o'clock.

"'The next morning we got up about daylight, and, hearing a noise outside, my friend opened the door, and the dog rushed in dragging with him a pair of pantaloons, which he dropped on the floor.

"'Of course we were both mystified, but had not long to wait an explanation, for shortly afterward a man who lived several miles from my friend's house rode up on a mule and inquired if a dog with a pair of pantaloons in his mouth had come into the house. The dog at this moment came out on the porch, and the man said, "Why, there's the dog now."

"'My friend told his caller that the dog had really brought a pair of pantaloons home with him, but he did not understand it himself.

"'The man said that late in the afternoon the day before he found the dog scratching under a large rock near the road and, thinking he was after a rabbit, stopped and lifted the rock up, and, to his surprise, found a half dollar on the underside.

"'He put the money in his pocket, and the dog followed him home. The dog appeared to be friendly, and the man petted him and gave him his supper. At night when the family retired the dog was put on the outside, but he kept up such a racket that no one could sleep on the place, and when the man opened the door to drive the dog off he rushed into his bedroom and at once became very quiet, lying down near the foot of the bed, where he slept all night.

"'Early in the morning, the man said, he got up and opened the window, and the instant he did so the dog seized his pantaloons in his mouth and, jumping out of the window, fled.

"'The man followed as soon as he could get his mule.

"'Hearing this story, my friend got the pantaloons and on searching the pockets found the half dollar which he had hid under the rock the afternoon before.'"—Nashville Banner.

EATING FISH.

It is not good form to ask for a second helping of fish.

It is considered extremely bad form to use a knife in dissecting fish.

A bit of lemon is served with broiled and baked fish, and it is in correct form to use the fingers in expressing the juice.

Potatoes are considered a proper accessory to the fish course.

Sliced cucumbers, with plain French dressing, are also served.

With a boiled fish the potatoes are also usually boiled, cut into bits or scooped out and garnished with a little melted butter and chopped parsley.

Never use the fingers to separate the bones from the eatable portion of fish. The bones must be evaded with such dexterity as one can command without other aid than such as a bit of bread held in the left hand may furnish.

Gambling.

The writer once spent a Saturday afternoon in the study of a dignitary of the church while the ecclesiastic struggled in vain to frame an argument against gambling to be presented to the congregation on the morrow. He abandoned the attempt. Far be it from a literary journal to assert powers the possession of which the professionally religious are fain to disclaim, yet with submission we even venture to believe that at least one cogent and effective argument lies against all forms of gambling—one, namely, based on the truth that wealth, great or small, is a trust and therefore may not be put in risk.

The moralist may declare that the gambler gets, or at least wants to get, something for nothing. Men will laugh. They know better. The winner gave his chance to lose for his winnings. For his losses the winner got his chance to win. But ask the speculator whether he would gamble with trust funds held by him for orphans and then suggest to him the one great truth that is seizing hold of men's conscience, the most hopeful sign in these perplexed days of social unrest, that men are trustees of all that they call their own.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Life Insurance.

It is an interesting fact that, whatever the reason may be, life insurance is much more popular in the United States than in any other country. In proportion to their numbers the American people carry twice as much life insurance as the Britishers, five times as much as the Germans and eight times as much as the French.

This is partly explained by the large number of American policies issued to serve other purposes than mere provision for the families of the insured. The scope of what may be called business as distinguished from family insurance is constantly enlarging. A novel and interesting recent development of it is the insurance of the lives of Protestant ministers for large sums which are made payable at their deaths to their churches.

A VERY CURIOUS BIRD.

The One Young Mark Twain Sprung Upon the Scientists.

Mark Twain's father was an ornithologist. He had several friends who were also enthusiasts on the subject of birds. Whenever any one of them discovered a rara avis it was the custom to have a consultation. Mark had been a witness of several of these bird inquests and had noted the delight the old men took in discussing a new found specimen. One day it occurred to him to provide the Hannibal ornithologists with a real circus in the form of a bird. He killed a crow and also a barnyard rooster. Plucking out the tail feathers of both the crow and the rooster, he substituted the rooster's tail feathers for those of the crow, producing a unique effect. When he had the specimen nicely prepared, he went to his father and, handing it to him, said:

"Here, father, is a very curious bird I shot. I thought you would be interested in it."

The old gentleman gazed upon the specimen with astonishment. That evening the ornithologists of Hannibal were assembled in Mr. Clemens' parlor. The rare specimen was put before them. The discussion was long and learned. The opinions expressed were various. One thought the bird was an offshoot of the bird of paradise family; others had equally ridiculous notions as to its ancestry. But there was one who refused to be swerved by the peculiarity of the bird's tail from the judgment that it was of the crow family.

"Why, just look here," he said, lifting the bird by its tail feathers. He got no further. The feathers came out. There was a quick closing of a door. Mr. Clemens started to leave the room.

"Gentlemen," he said, "please excuse me a few moments. I will see Samuel first and explain later."

CHESLEY CASE COMES UP AGAIN.

John Fletcher, a Farmer, Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Chesley, Ont., August 4. — Harvesting is in full swing, and the farmers of this section are hard at it early and late. For two steady months they will be working harder than any other class of men in the country.

Probably no period of the year is so trying to the farmer as the harvest season. The management of a farm, never a light task, becomes trebly heavy. Worries increase. The actual manual labour from dawn to dark and sometimes after, is as hard as a man can stand.

It is not surprising that farmers often break down after the threshing is over. "Plum tuckered out," the system is apt to be in a low, weakened condition which is easily thrown out of order. The kidneys will show the sign of it first. Backache will probably be the first sign of the Kidney trouble, accompanied by a brick deposit in the urine. From this stage is but a short step to Lumbago, which is chronic Backache.

In this connection the letter of John Fletcher, a farmer near Chesley, will be found useful, showing as it does that Dodd's Kidney Pills may be relied upon for cases of this kind.

"I have been troubled all harvest," he writes, "with Lumbago and Kidney Trouble. My urine was of a very red colour. I consulted the best medical doctors in the country, but they could not help me. Finally I got some Dodd's Kidney Pills in Granton and they proved all that I could wish. In a very short time my back was as well as ever and the Kidney Disorder had completely gone."

Where They Agreed.

At the silver wedding of the Prince and Princess of Wales an English town wished to present an address, but there was a great discussion as to its wording. For some time they could not agree at all. "Conscious as we are of our own unworthiness" was universally condemned, but when some one proposed "Conscious as we are of each other's unworthiness" it was agreed to to a man.

"SHE LOVES ME—SHE LOVES ME NOT."

Tell me, yellow daisy,
Of your subtle art
As you softly whisper,
"Loves me, loves me not,"

Is your message poignant
With fatality
And your answer uttered
Irrevocably?

As I drop your petals
On the soft green sod
Does she truly love me
If the number's odd?

If the number's even,
Do the fates decree
My love unrequited;
We must parted be?

"Loves me, loves me not?"
All I long to know,
Plucking now your petals,
One by one they go.
—Lawrence Brainerd in Boston Journal.

NANCY'S LOVERS.

How They Fought For Her Under Water.

"You didn't forget the widow, did you, Tom, when you paid the lad off? We've been on a pretty long cruise this time, and like enough she'll be in need of many more things than the boy's wages will buy for her."

"Oh, no, Bill, I didn't forget Nancy! I put two ten dollar bills in an envelope, one from you and one from me, and gave them to the young chap for his mother. But I say, Bill, I think that on the next job we'd better 'dress' the boy and let him make a 'dip' alongside of either one of us, while the other 'tends' him. My word for it, he will make a good diver after a little practice, with such men as you and I to teach him the business."

"I guess you're right, mate," answered Bill. "If Neddy has a liking for the work and the widow don't object, the lad might as well commence now as any time. I'll take a walk up to the cottage tonight and see what Nancy has to say about it. She may think it's most too dangerous a business for her only boy; but, Lor', Tom, ain't you and I spent half our lives under water and are none the worse for it now?"

"That's so, Bill. Why, a diver in his armor, with a good 'tender' at the surface, is just as safe as a parson in his pulpit. Yes, you'd better go and see Nancy," continued Tom reflectively, "and have a talk with her. And, say, mate, see if she wants anything, so that we can get it for her afore we go away again."

"All right, old man. So long!"

Bill had just disappeared when the captain of the schooner emerged from the cabin and approached the solitary figure on deck.

"Ah, Tom," he began jocosely; "counting the stars or thinking over your past sins?"

"No, cap; you're wrong about the stars, for I haven't cast an eye aloft for the last half hour, but as for the past—yes, I was beginning to think over that a little. I often think over it. Sometimes I'm pleased with the recollection, and then, again, I wish it had been somebody else that had gone through what Bill and I have and not us."

"Why, man, what is it that you and your mate have done that you dislike to recall to mind? I've known you both for nearly 20 years, and, though I say it to your face, I never saw two squarer men on salt water in my whole life."

"Well, cap'n, I think we have done pretty near what is right since you sailed in our company, but shortly afore you fell in with us there was something that happened which both Bill and I would give all we are worth if it hadn't, although I'm beginning to feel that it might have been for the best, as it brought forth what little there was of good in the characters of two men."

"I have always believed that there was a page in your histories which would prove of deep interest, but one which you have hitherto carefully guarded. Now, if it is not asking too much, I beg that you will make a confidant of me and accept the word of a sailor that I will never reveal the secret."

At this Tom hesitated ere he began.

"Cap, although Bill and I never said that what happened that day we wouldn't talk about, yet we have mutually kept silent on the subject, more because it wasn't real pleasant for either of us to think of than because we were ashamed to let the world know what confounded fools we made of ourselves. Yes, cap'n, I'll tell you. It was way back in '05, when Bill and I were working together on a wreck just inside of Chesapeake bay, between Cape Henry light and Hampton Roads.

"We had come down from New York and were pretty spruce young chaps in those days. Now, it seemed, although neither one of us knew it, that we were both thinking considerable of the same girl. We had been aboard of a wrecking schooner about the size of this one for nearly two weeks when one Sunday I was overhauling my things in the forecas'le and was just taking out a picture of the 'little one' that I'd left up home. Bill came along and, looking over my shoulder, says: 'Hello, chum! Who have you got there?'

"Says I, as honest as could be, handing him the picture, 'That's the woman I hope to be my wife some day.'

"'Your wife!' says he as he took the photograph. 'My God! That's Nancy Stewart!' And, glancing up, I saw Bill staring at the picture with his face as white as a new gaff top'l. Then, thrusting the likeness into his pocket, he hissed through his clinched teeth, 'No, Tom Baxter, she will never be your wife!' And, turning, he sprang up the steps out of the forecas'le before I could stop him.

"As you may imagine, I was boiling mad and surprised as well. I followed Bill on deck and saw him sitting on a water cask, with both hands up to his face. I approached him, and, touching him on the shoulder, I asked as gently as I could for the return of the picture.

"As he looked up to me the expression of his countenance was that of a maniac. His features were distorted with either anger or anguish, I know not which.

"'Come, come,' I said after a pause, during which my chum glared vacantly at me. 'Give me back the photograph.'

"The answer I received was a blow, and down I went as though shot, with Bill on top. I was considerably stronger than he in those days and soon got the best of the affair. I held Bill down on deck with one hand at his throat and with the other pulled the picture from his pocket, but in doing so it was torn in two, and I only secured one-half. At this instant our shipmates separated us, and for the rest of that day we avoided each other as much as possible.

"On Monday morning, as we were 'dressing' ourselves side by side, as usual, ready to go down to work, I could hear Bill muttering under his breath, and just as his 'tender' was screwing on the face piece to his helmet I caught a most malignant look upon his features, but he uttered no threats aloud.

"My companion had scarcely reached the bottom ere I was in the water and rapidly descending. I had made up my mind to give Bill as wide a berth as possible during the day and began my labors, stripping off the copper from the wreck well aft, while he was amidships.

"We had been down perhaps half an hour and I was commencing to feel a little more at ease when all at once I heard a slight tapping on my copper helmet, and a hand was placed upon my shoulder. I had been kneeling, but quickly rose to my feet and, turning, saw Bill standing before me, but his aspect sent a chill to my very heart. He was extending toward me a knife, the blade of which he touched with one finger and then pointed to my weapon, which hung in its sheath at my belt.

"I comprehended his meaning. It was a challenge to mortal combat. But what a place for such an encounter! I am ashamed to admit, however, that after the brief first instant of surprise I began to feel an insane desire to overcome and subdue my rival, even though it was in a struggle to the death.

"So, dropping the short iron bar with which I had been previously working, I drew my knife in turn. On seeing this move Bill reached forth one hand and grasped mine, which he gave a convulsive pressure, and then waved me back to prepare for action.

"Now began the battle. The thrusts, as you must know, were somewhat impeded by the pressure of the water, but still they were given with sufficient force, if they had not been skillfully parried, for any one of them to have proved fatal. In a little while we found ourselves locked, each with his left hand grasping the other's wrist, while the knives waved to and fro above our helmets.

"Suddenly I began to lose my air and was horrified to see a small piece of the rubber hose drop down before my eyes, and I knew that Bill had severed the pipe. But still at that moment I remember thinking that it must have been an accident, as Bill, even in his anger, would not take such a mean advantage over his adversary.

"Suffocation quickly followed, but before entirely losing consciousness I gave the signal to be drawn to the surface, and then I knew no more until I found myself lying upon the schooner's deck, with helmet off and my head resting on Bill's knee, wiping the blood and foam from my nostrils. He was 'dressed' just as he had been when going into the water, barring the removal of the glass 'face piece' in his headgear.

"When I opened my eyes and looked around, I saw him wave the rest of the chaps aside, and then he bent down until the cold copper of his helmet touched my cheek as he whispered: 'Thank God, Tom, you're safe. But don't, for the sake of our friendship, say a word of what's happened to our shipmates. And, oh, if you can forgive me yourself!'

"Forgive him? Why, bless him, I've loved him since that moment. And never from that day to this has the affair been spoken of to any one but ourselves."

"How was it that he cut your hose, willing to take your life, yet still did so much to bring you to?" asked the captain incredulously.

"Bill was quick tempered, and he was in an awful rage. He would not have hesitated to have thrust his knife into my heart, albeit he would have been sorry for it the next instant, but cutting the 'pipe' was an accident, and when he saw the terrible death with which I was threatened his anger disappeared like the mists of morning before the gentle sea breeze. The boys told me that when I came to the surface I was in Bill's arms, and it was his own hands which unlocked the helmet from the 'collar' and gave me air. They also told me that he would not stop to have his 'weights' unbuckled nor his 'headpiece' removed, but just knelt down beside me, calling all the while for me to open my eyes, just as though I had been a brother."

"How about the young woman who was the cause of all this trouble? What became of her?" inquired the captain with much interest.

"Oh, Nancy? Poor girl!" said Tom. "Why, she didn't care nothing for either of us two fools. All the time we were thinking that we might prevail upon her to cruise in our company she had agreed to sign articles with a young mate of an East Indiaman. So when we found that out we both of us took a job which lasted us about two years down in Key West. But when we got back we heard that Nancy had been a bride, a mother and was then a widow, the poor chap whom she married having been lost at sea on his very next voyage.

"Then Bill and I hunted her up, and when we found her we adopted her for our sister. We came out here to Frisco, where business is better than on the Atlantic coast, and she came, too, and we've looked after her ever since."

"Her child? Did it live?" inquired the captain interestedly.

"Well, I reckon it did. Leastwise it was alive a couple of hours ago when I saw it going over the rail yonder with a month's pay in its pocket to gladden a mother's heart," replied the old diver, with a quiet chuckle.

"What! Do you mean that Neddy, your 'tender,' is Nancy's boy?"

"That's just about the size of it, cap'n. And he's a boy that no woman need be ashamed of either, and if his mother will let the lad follow the business into which he's started—and that's what Bill has gone up to the house to find out—I'll wager my gear and 'dress' that within five years there won't be a diver on the Pacific coast who will 'dip' deeper or work longer under water than the same boy."

"But Nancy?" asked the captain. "Will she never marry?"

"Hush, cap!" exclaimed the diver in a low voice. "Not until either Bill or I have 'sounded' for the last time and been laid away in our armor. Then perhaps she might."

As to Charity.

"I'm sorry to hear your late lamented aunt didn't leave you anything. I thought she believed that charity begins at home."

"Well, her charity began and ended with the Home For Aged Women or some such institution."—Atlanta Constitution.

Pretty

Is an adjective which seems to have become monopolized by the young lady at the typewriter. It is astonishing what an array of beautiful women are found in stores and offices. In fact, the typical American beauty will be found sitting at the typewriter rather than lolling in a carriage in the park.

And yet this pretty young girl needs always to be reminded that "beauty is only skin deep," unless it roots in health. When the health is undermined by womanly diseases, the luster soon passes from the eyes, the cheeks grow thin, the body loses its plumpness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases which weaken women and which destroy their strength and beauty. It establishes regularity, stops weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Several years ago I suffered severely from female weakness, prolapsus and menorrhagia, and used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with splendid effect," writes Fannie Shelton, of Washington, Iowa. "Glad I have not needed it for a few years past, but if I should ever have any return of the old trouble would surely try Favorite Prescription.' I have recommended it to a number of my lady friends. I always tell them to try a bottle, and if they are not benefited by it I will pay for the medicine. In every case they have spoken in praise of it."

NORTH DUMMER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The village of Hall's Glen for sports and excitement.

Miss Bell of South Dummer, was visiting Mrs. M. Crowe last week.

Messrs. W. J. Little and N. Payne intend going on an excursion trip to the North West on Monday, 12th inst., where they expect to establish an extensive business.

Miss Merithew is at present the guest of Mr. D. Madill.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins of Sunderland, had the pleasure of extending to them a hearty reception on their arrival in this village last week, where they remained only a short time, due to change of location, for they purpose residing at Napanee, Addington county. We all join in wishing them every success in their new field of labour.

A number of the young men have drilling during the week for the general review at Toronto this fall. A non-commissioned officer is in charge of the squad, under whose direction the men render a cheerful obedience, each one impelled apparently by enthusiastic militarism. May the time soon come when war shall be no more.

On Friday evening, the 2nd, a very interesting and exciting football match was played between the North Dummer team and Stony Lake campers. The latter were composed principally of professionals from Norand Toronto teams. During the game many of the players while contesting at close quarters met with unexpected injuries from falls caused by bucking or tripping, etc. At the completion of the game which resulted in a tie, neither side scoring, the players were escorted to the home of Mr. R. Hunter, where a sumptuous tea had been provided, in which all participated as earnestly as they they did in the friendly match a short time previously.

A large number of the young men of this neighbourhood have bidden adieu to their friends and relatives for a three months' vacation in the harvest fields of Manitoba. Mr. W. Carveth, a prominent resident of this place, is in the company, and he has been commissioned to exercise a parental control over the young men in the party.

The annual debate and ice cream social under the auspices of Zion Lodge, No. 96, I.O.G.T., on Friday evening proved to be a great success. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the hall was crowded. Sister Mrs. M. E. Crowe presided.

The debate, "Resolved, that fire is more useful than water" occupied the first part of the evening's entertainment, and which was thoroughly and ably debated by the two leaders, viz., Sister E. Payne and Bro. A. C. Carveth, and their respective assistants, to the satisfaction of the audience, who were present. Messrs. Mackie, Bennett and Darling, were chosen as judges, the latter as final judge, and Mr. D. Madill was honoured with the office of time-keeper. At the conclusion of the debate, the judges after spending some time in due consideration of the evidence given, brought in a verdict in favour of the negative. Ice cream and lemonade were then liberally distributed and partaken of to the satisfaction of all, after which the meeting was dismissed.

GOLD BRICKS STOLEN.

Vallajo, Cal., Aug. 7. — Gold bricks, valued at $340,000, were stolen during last night from the Selby Smelting Works. The robbers evidently had been working on the job for two or three months. They had dug a tunnel from outside the house, beginning with a shaft about three feet deep. Thence they worked underneath the vault, and, striking upwards, bored a hole in the strong room floor. The hole was shaped like the manhole of a boiler. Part of the hole was bored two months ago, it is thought, and the last was completed during the night. Through that hole they took the gold bricks and carried them to a bank near the mouth of the tunnel east of the works, where they evidently were placed in a coat. In their hurry the robbers left two of the bricks on the bank.

Sheriff Veale of Contra Costa County, and Chief of Police Sanford of Vallejo, have been notified and are now at the works. The police of San Francisco and all the bay cities are at work on the case, but so far there is not the slightest clue to the robbers.

THREE WERE KILLED.

Fatal Result of Construction on Canadian Northern

Port Arthur, Aug. 7.—News has been received here of an explosion on the Canadian Northern in which three men were killed and seventeen injured. The men were at work blasting in a rock cut at Sturgeon Falls. It is supposed one of the charges did not fire and the men went to work when it suddenly went off with the above result. The dead men were buried along the railway and the wounded taken to Aukokan Hospital, where they are being cared for.

Further news, just received, says three men were killed, seven seriously wounded and four others slightly hurt. The men had just about completed work and had put in five blasts to finish the cut, but in the dischargo only four of the five had exploded. They began to clear away rock from the cut, when the dynamite in the fifth hole exploded.

Drowned at Orangeville.

Orangeville, Aug. 7. — Caledon Lake, a pleasure resort about three miles from this town, was the scene of a distressing fatality yesterday afternoon. Little Nora O'Reilly, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. H. H. O'Reilly, manager of the Bank of Hamilton agency at Niagara Falls, Ont., was playing about one of the boathouses in company with some other children. After a time her nurse noticed she was missing and a search was instituted, which resulted in finding the child lying in the lake immediately in front of the boathouse. Dr. Caesar of Toronto, who was in his boathouse nearby, was summoned at once and worked for nearly an hour in a vain effort to restore life. No one saw the child get into the water.

The dead child is a niece of Dr. O'Rielly of the General Hospital, Toronto; Dr. Gerald O'Rielly of Guelph, and Dr. E. B. O'Rielly of Hamilton.

Will Talk About Apples.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—The National Apple Growers' Association's annual convention opens in the Pavilion at 10 o'clock this morning. Two business sessions, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon, will be held, and in the evening a reception will be given by the Canadian Apple shippers.

After an address of welcome by the Mayor, addresses on matters of interest to the trade, will be delivered by Hon. Henry M. Dunlop, Savoy, Ill.; B. W. Snow, U. S. Government Statistician; C. H. Williamson, Quincy, Ill.; F. D. Cummings, Portland, Me.; C. H. Kimball, New York; Dr. Jas. Mills, Guelph; Ed. N. Loomis, New York, and others.

More Canadians Dead.

Ottawa, Aug. 7. — The Militia Department has received the following cable:

Johannesburg, Aug. 2. — Regret to report that No. C. 1410, Trooper James Henry Quinn, died of enteric fever, No. 17 General Hospital, July 30; No. 91,618 Trooper Sergt.-Major William Chalmers, and "A" 1780, Trooper Harry John Sproule, killed in action at Hout Kop, near Vereenging, July 11. Next of kin respectively, J. G. Quinn, father, Brandon; Mrs. George Chalmers, mother, Moosomin, and William Sproule, father, 475 Elgin avenue, Winnipeg. (Signed) High Commissioner.

Scalded to Death

Richmond Hill, Ont., Aug. 7.—The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bovaire, near Richmond Hill, was scalded to death yesterday afternoon by falling backwards into a pail of hot water. Her mother was washing and had the pail of hot water standing in the floor. Mrs. Bovaire removed the clothing from the child immediately, but could do nothing to save her life. The child died shortly afterwards.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

A Youthful Firebug.

Beamsville, Aug. 7.—A small boy, son of L. Karr, was caught in the act of setting fire to a building on Station street Monday afternoon. Two fires started in the afternoon; the first one was in the sheep pens of the Fair Grounds, and the second one the outbuildings of Mr. Tufford's place, Station street. Parties were watching, and young Karr was caught redhanded. He is only a small boy. There is quite an excitement in the village over the matter.

On Magnetic Healing.

Much is spoken and written during these times about this mysterious method of treating disease. The most truly remarkable cases of magnetic healing which have come under the notice of the writer have been those in which Dr. Chase's Ointment was used. This preparation seems to have magical powers in stopping the dreadful itching, burning sensations of Salt Rheum and Eczema, and when used regularly makes the cure thorough and complete.

When Madeline Went Wading.

I saw her wading in the brook;
She did not know that I was nigh.
I smiled at every step she took;
There wading in the sparkling brook.
Her shoes and stockings she forsook
And held her dainty skirts knee high.
I saw her wading in the brook;
She did not know that I was nigh.

She turned; I did not run away,
But stood and watched her wading there.
No screams went up from her that day.
She turned; I did not run away,
And here it may be well to say
That she was eight and didn't care.
She turned; I did not run away,
But stood and watched her wading there.

An Undesirable Boarder.

Some time ago the keeper of a boarding house retired from business after having acquired a comfortable competency in the course of about 20 years. During that period her house became well known in the city and among the women in her own business. She never realized how well known it was until she set out to find a place to live in herself.

She applied first at the house kept by a woman nearly as well known as herself only to learn that there was no room for her. It was not until she had been through the same experience several times that she came to understand that she was not wanted in the establishments of her former rivals. Her reputation for keeping a fine house was too much for the other women, who did not want to submit to the scrutiny of a former boarding house keeper who had made a reputation and a fortune in the business.

She learned, after going to a hotel where her record could not be used against her, that she was not the only woman who had found it difficult to get into a boarding house after having kept one of her own. When they are well known, it is practically impossible for such women to find quarters, for whatever her reasons may be the landlady does not like to shelter her kind.

Unselfish.

"So you proposed to Miss Chillers?"

"Yes," answered Willie Washington.

"You must have known she would reject you."

"Of course. But it is an old saying that women can't keep a secret, and I was afraid she would get to comparing notes. I had proposed to all the other girls, and I didn't want her to feel slighted."

An Outrage.

Mrs. Jones—Are you aware, Mrs. Skinbone, that your dog has just bitten my little Willie?

Mrs. Skinbone—What, your Willie, who has only just got over scarlet fever? Oh, Mrs. Jones, if anything should happen to Fido I'd never forgive you.

Didn't Like Papers.

Alexander William Kinglake, author of Eothen" and "History of the War In the Crimea," was no admirer of the daily press, even in early days. Once, looking at old Mr. Villiers, then father of the commons, he remarked, with his meditative drawl, "A clever man, a very clever man, before he softened his brain by studying the newspapers!"

The Suffering Congregation.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurances in force to the extent of $16,759,355,-92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634,68. The Increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

INTERVENTION TALK.

Strong Influences May Stop the Steel Strike.

RUMORS POINT TO GOVERNMENT

Peace Influences Felt in the Manner of the Steel Men and the Course of Steel Stocks on the Exchange—Some Who Signed Contracts Will Not Strike.

New York, Aug. 8.—The Commercial-Advertiser says:

"As far as can be learned no communication has been received by J. P. Morgan & Company, or by any of the steel companies here, from the labor leaders since the conference of Saturday last. Peace, however, may not be far away after all. It is learned that independent influences are at work which may surprise everybody within the next few days. Mr. Morgan will not say a word, but it is believed in some quarters that he has received important communications from persons strong enough and independent enough to bring about a settlement before Shaffer's orders to strike takes effect. Those who know Mr. Morgan say that he will welcome any move that will hasten the end of the controversy, providing the fundamental objections he urged on Saturday last are removed. Something is being done in the direction of amity is apparent from the manner of the steel men here, and the course of the steel stocks on the exchange.

Refuse to Obey the Order.

Massillon, Ohio, Aug. 8. — President Jenkins of the local branch of the Amalgamated Association, says the men of the local mill will not strike. "We have signed a contract for a year," said he, "and we cannot possibly cease work. The local mill is owned by the Republic Iron and Steel Company."

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 8. — Officials of the Ohio plant of the National Steel Company have announced that their employes will pay no attention to the strike order of President Shaffer. The plant, which is non-union, employs 3,000 men.

THE TRACKMEN'S STRIKE.

Railway Mail Clerks Ask Intervention of Minister of Labor.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The railway mail clerks running on the Canadian Pacific Railway west of Ottawa, have united in a petition to the Minister of Labor, Hon. Mr. Mulock, asking that he interest himself towards bringing the trackmen's strike to a conclusion. The petition says that the mail clerks do not wish to appear to be interferring in the strike as a strike, but they feel, as a result of the strike, that the tracks have become unsafe for travel, and that they, as mail clerks, are vitally interested. The petition asks the Minister of Labor to use his good offices towards a settlement of the strike. The petition was signed by about 15 clerks and was forwarded Tuesday.

Brick Teamsters' Strike

Toronto Junction, Aug. 8.—The teamsters engaged in the brickyards of Messrs. Rutledge, Brown and Wakefield are on strike. Seven men and seven teams are engaged at the Wakefield yard, and two at Rutledge's. The men are getting $3 a day for their services, and that of their teams. They are asking $3.50. William Pears is paying this amount at his brickyard, and Townsley is paying the same. This strike in no way interferes with the making of brick. It merely affects the teaming of it.

Ottawa, Aug. 8. — William Glasneur, a Swede, who is better known as Gleeson, and who resides in Juneville, was arrested by the county police on Monday night, on the charge of attempting to set fire to his house, in which were sleeping his seven children. MR. DRYDEN'S INVESTMENT.

The Weekly Farmers' Sun, a journal published especially in the interests of the agricultural community, and by no means, in general, friendly to the Ontario Government, has the following pertinent remarks respecting what it calls a tempest in a teapot, raised by journalistic purveyors of pea-nut politics:

An investment made by Mr. Dryden some time ago in the shares of a South Dakota ranching company has recently been engaging the attention of a large portion of the Ontario press. Mr. Dryden's action is objected to on the ground that it is unpatriotic for him to invest his money outside of Canada, and also on the ground that by putting it into a ranching enterprise in Dakota he has given a weapon to our rivals, and himself struck a blow at our agricultural interests. Other objections may have been taken, but if so, they have escapsd our attention. It is demanded he now resign his position as Minister of Agriculture.

The Sun is not concerned in the rival fortunes of the two political parties, but it is concerned in the efficient management of the Department of Agriculture. For many years Mr. Dryden has been at the head of that department. It is, we think, admitted on all hands, that in that position he has rendered splendid service to the people of this Province. His programme has not been showy, and he has spent comparatively little public money. His object throughout seems to have been not so much to do things for the people as to teach them to do things for themselves. Thus solid progress has been made, and its effect will be felt long after Mr. Dryden and his colleagues have passed away. Before demanding the resignation from the Government of a Minister with such a record, we should make sure that there is good cause to do so.

We are not aware of the extent of Mr. Dryden's investment, but we fancy that for every dollar invested in Dakota he has at least twenty dollars invested in this Province. The time given to his investment appears to have been three or four days during the holiday season, which is surely a not unreasonable period of absence. The right of anyone to invest his money where he will seems beyond question. The habit of investing in foreign countries is a characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon. It is the habit that makes the whole world pay tribute to England to-day. The investor does not put his money into an undertaking for the benefit of the foreigner, but in order that he may take out more than he puts in. If all the ranches of the Western States were owned by residents of Ontario it would be a good thing for this Province, but quite a ruction might be raised on the other side of the line. While the American investor is getting nearly everything in sight in this country, it is a little refreshing to see Canadians reaching out and securing some of Uncle Sam's good things in return. A short time ago Mr. Alger, the Secretary of War in President McKinley's Cabinet, invested a large sum of money in erecting a pulp mill in Quebec. Politics ran high in the United States at that time, and the attacks on Mr. Alger were terrific, but we do not recollect that a single journal suggested that he should resign his post because he had secured a profitable investment in this country.

The idea that the agricultural interests of Ontario will suffer when it is known that our Minister of Agriculture has some shares in a South Dakota ranching company seems, we must confess, somewhat ludicrous, and it is not easy to understand how it can be seriously entertained. Happily, Ontario is not a ranching country; it is something far more than that, and the wider this fact is known the better for us. That a third or fourth rate State like Dakota, with its blizzards in winter and its hot winds in summer, should ever be mentioned as in the same class with Ontario is a fitting occasion for mirth. When the hot winds were sweeping over the Western States last month, drying up all vegetation before them, we have no doubt that even the stockers on Mr. Dryden's ranch turned their mournful faces to the east and sighed for the green pastures of their native Province. With a reputation for unrivaled fertility and scientific farming firmly established on this side of the Atlantic and on the other, there is no reason why thoughts of South Dakota should occupy our attention. If all of Mr. Dryden's colleagues should join in an exodus to that State we should not make a pound less of butter or cheese, our bacon would retain its high quality, and our land would continue to be farmed with the most approved methods of modern agriculture.

Truly, this outburst about Mr. Dryden appears to be a good deal of a tempest in a teapot, not particularly creditable to us or flattering to our sense of dignity and self-respect.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETING.

The council met in the town hall on Thursday, July 25, at 2 o'clock; all the members were present. The reeve, Mr. T .E. Bradburn, presided.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A communication was received from R. Watt, County Clerk, enclosing a requisition from the county council of Peterborough, for the sum of $1446.95 for county purposes for 1901.

Gravel certificates have been filed from H Brown, 119 yards for Road Division No. 3; S G Bennett, 150 yards for No. 3.

Accounts were presented from:—A McDonald, material for culverts, $7.68 J J Bennett, rebuilding culvert on 9th concession and guard rails, $6.

A report was presented by the Reeve re Lockie's bridge. This included a lengthy report with recommendations from J. Belcher, C. E., fully describing the condition and requirements of the bridge at this point.

Moved by Messrs. Madill and Smith, that the reeve is hereby authorized to investigate the largely increased amount of requisitions by the county council for this year, and to take such action as may be necessary to procure in detail the said requisitions as to the purposes for which the said demand is used. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Smith that orders be drawn in payment of gravel certificates as follows:—H Brown, $11.90; S G Bennett, $15. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Madill and May that the account of A. McDonald, $7.68, and J .J. Bennett, $6, be passed and paid.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs May and Smith that the report of the special committee re Lockie's bridge be received and referred to a committee of the whole council which will meet at the said bridge on Thursday night to decide as to which of the methods of re-building the structure as contained in the report of the engineer, this council will adopt.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Dobbin and Smith, that a committee consisting of Messrs. Madill and Dobbin, investigate and report to this council at next meeting complaint of water lodging at John Brown's gate.—Carried.

Council then adjourned until called by the reeve.

CANKER.

There is a mistaken idea as to the cause of cankers in the mouth and throat. Sufferers imagine that they arise from stomach troubles, but it is nothing more or less than the result of impure blood. Numerous so-called remedies have been floated on the market, but experience has proven that there is only one cure, "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills. 25 cents a box at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. THE DUKE AND DUCHESS AND THE OTTAWA FAIR.

Visitors to the Ottawa Exhibition this year — which from all accounts promises to be bigger and far superior to any show heretofore — will have the opportunity of seeing the Duke of Cornwall, the heir to the British throne, and his charming consort. Their Royal Highnesses are to arrive in Ottawa during Fair week. They have received a special invitation to attend the Ottawa Exhibition, and as the Fair is superior to all others held in Canada, except Toronto, and is fully equal to the fair of that city, it is very likely that the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall will take advantage of the splendid opportunity thus afforded to see what they are greatly interested in, the products of the Dominion's forests and mines, the stock raised, the yields of the field and orchards, and the manufactures of the brightest gem in the British Empire. True, the Duke and the Duchess will be kept busy in the capital but as they will not have the privilege of visiting any other large fair in Canada, and as it is an idea of the people, the resources and capabilities of the Dominion that they chiefly desire to see, it is almost certain that the exhibitors from this portion of the country will have their displays viewed by their Royal Highnesses. Secretary McMahon informs us that a special parade of the horses and cattle, will be arranged if necessary, for the benefit of the Duke and Duchess, to show the splendid quality of the stock raised in this glorious land of ours, than which (pardon the interjection) there is none better on the whole face of the earth! And we are sure it only remains for the Royal Party to see the displays that will be made at the Ottawa Fair to be convinced as we are, that Canadians do not take second place to any other people in anything they undertake.

There will be great doings at Ottawa Fair week — September 13 to 21 — and as both old and young people are already eagerly discussing the matter, the attendance from this locality will likely be a record one. Certainly it cannot be gainsaid that the Ottawa Fair is worth going far to see, and taken with the visit of the Royal party the occasion will be a memorable one.

On Magnetic Healing.

Much is spoken and written during these times about this mysterious method of treating disease. The most truly remarkable cases of magnetic healing which have come under the notice of the writer have been those in which Dr. Chase's Ointment was used. This preparation seems to have magical powers in stopping the dreadful itching, burning sensations of Salt Rheum and Eczema, and when used regularly makes the cure thorough and complete.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurances in force to the extent of $16,759,355,92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634,68. The Increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

AID TO NEW COLONIES.

Land to Be Purchased to Enable Volunteers to Seattle—Native Labor Laws to Be Altered.

London, Aug. 8.—The House of Commons Tuesday night discussed a vote of £6,500,000 ($32,500,000) as a grant in aid of the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. Sir William Vernon Harcourt and others severely criticized the government's measures.

Mr. Chamberlain, replying, said he quite agreed that the Government's first duty was to the loyalist refugees and he declared that money would not be spared for that purpose.

"It is also a matter of Imperial policy," continued the Colonial Secretary, "to give the necessary support to those of our enemies who come into our hands. One million pounds of the vote is for extra rolling stock. A large sum will be devoted to reinstating the Boers on their farms, and an experiment will be made in the direction of agricultural settlements.

"There is no intention of confiscation. We have had offers of land at reasonable prices, and a portion of the vote will be devoted to the purchase of such land, with a view of enabling men who volunteered for the war to settle when the war is over."

Mr. Chamberlain dwelt at great length upon the native question, which, he declared, as "most difficult and delicate." He declared that anything in the nature of slavery ought not to be permitted, that a revision of the "cruel arbitrary native labor laws" was necessary, and that, although the natives must be taught to work, they shou'd have just and humane treatment.

The War Office Leakages.

London, Aug. 8. — The English government has at latt aroused itself to the seriousness of the continued leakage of official information in regard to the Boer war, and is endeavoring to take quiet though vigorous steps to discover the cause. Inspector Melville of Scotland Yard and three expert detectives have been secretly drafted into the War Office and Foreign Office, with instructions not to rest until the source of the leakage has been brought to light.

MR. TARTE'S PLANS.

Conference Mooted to Consider Transportation Questions.

TO DISCUSS THE WHOLE SUBJECT

Minister of Public Works Has Invited the Railway and Navigation Companies to Send Representatives to a Meeting in Montreal Within the Next Few Days—The Census Returns.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Asked yesterday if there was any new developments in the transportation question, Hon. J. Israel Tarte said: "Well, I have invited the railway and navigation companies to send representatives to a conference to be held in Montreal in the course of the next few days to discuss the whole subject. The railway companies say that the navigation companies charge rates so exorbitant that the former have to carry at a loss the business which they receive from the latter, and there is no money in it for them. I have written to the navigation companies, asking if that statement is correct, and, if so, what is the explanation of it. We must get to the bottom of the difficulties that stand in the way of our solving the transportation problem and do our best to remove them. I am hoping the conference proposed will be productive of the very best results. The Harbor Commissioners have been asked to furnish a general plan, showing what improvements they consider to be necessary at Montreal, and this will be of great use to us if it is forthcoming, as I have no doubt it will be. Geographically speaking, we have been wonderfully blessed by Providence. We have within our own territory the great natural waterway to the ocean from the west, and what have we done to avail ourselves of it? We have been blind to our opportunities for many years, but this must not be allowed to continue. This season 40,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain was shipped from the west—Canadian grain, recollect. How many million bushels of that will come to Montreal? A paltry five million. The rest will go by American channels to American ports. What is the remedy?

We must develop the French River route and other available channels. The press can do a great work in educating public opinion upon this question, and I look to the press to help me.

A Non-Political Demonstration.

Hon. Mr. Tarte will attend the great annual festival of the French Acadians at Memramcook, N. B., on August 5th, and will deliver an address there. As the occasion is a non-political one he will be accompanied by Mr. Monk, Conservative member for Jacques Cartier. Messrs. L. O. David, Beique and J. X. Perrault will also be of the party.

Another Canoe Trip.

On his return Mr. Tarte will complete his personal examination of the French River route by descending the Ottawa River from Mattawa in a canoe.

The Census Returns.

The statement sent from Ottawa that the population of Canada is 5,300,000 cannot, according to the census officials, be correct, as the returns from several districts, including remote parts of the Northwest, have not yet been received. The department hopes to give out a statement about the 15th instant, but even that will be subject to later revision.

BECAME ALARMED.

Dundas Farmer Pulled up in Time to Save His Life.

Donald George Ross, a farmer, near Dundas, was travelling down the road that leads to misery and death. For three years he had been on that road, slowly but surely making his way to the certain goal.

Donald Ross had Dyspepsia. For three years his head had ached and his nerves had been racked because his stomach was weak and could not digest his food. And the less nourishment he got from his food the weaker his stomach as well as the rest of his body became, because the stomach receives its strength from the food we eat like every other organ and member.

However, Mr. Ross did not finish his journey on that road. He pulled up in time. He cured his Dyspepsia. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were the means of actually saving his life, for Mr. Ross himself says nothing else would have cured him. Perhaps his own letter will state the case better than anything else.

"For about three years," he writes, "I have been troubled with Headaches and Nervousness caused by Dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. Doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would never get cured. I became alarmed and consulted one of the best doctors in Hamilton, but no use. I could not get help. Then I heard about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I tried them. I found them all they are claimed to be. They gave me a complete cure. I can highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any one troubled as I was."

If you have Dyspepsia try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are only fifty cents a box. They will surely help you.

SIXTEEN STAGES OF THE SLATER SHOE

No better object lesson can be found to teach how thoroughly a thing may be done when the object is to have it well done, than the exhibit in our south window, of the progressive

16 Stages of the Slater Shoe.

Here one sees the successive several operations from the skin of leather to the finished shoe. It shows the building up of the shoe, its gradual and symmetrical progress, the thorough work, the minute attention to detail, the determination of the manufacturers to produce the best of shoes—the Slater Shoe. There is no skimping of detail, no lack of fitting and finishing, of accurate, systematic work that results in the perfect shoe.

We sell the Slater Shoe. Any up-to-date dealer does. But in addition—for Slater Shoes are only a part of our selling—we have hundreds of excellent and reliable shoes. The variety is not so wide, that sizes so numerous, the differences in shape so important, for there is as much difference in feet as in faces, and we have to carry an ample stock to meet the requirements of all. Nothing that a good shoe store should have is lacking. But where the average dealer stocks fifty pair we stock five hundred. Just a few lines to suggest to men a nice shoe that will be comfortable, shapely, dressy and reliable:

Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, turn sole,	$1.50	Men's Dong. Kid Balmorals.....	2.50
Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, machine sewed,.....	1.50	Men's Camping and Boating Lace Balmorals.....	.35

Just a mention of Ladies' Shoes. The stock is ample, the variety more than great, and the prices most reasonable.

REV. FATHER LARKIN.

His Demise Occurred at Grafton To-day —Was Widely Known.

Rev. Archdeacon Casey to-day received a telegram apprising him of the death of Rev. Father Larkin, of Grafton. He has been ailing for upwards of a year and his demise, whilst universally felt, was not unexpected.

The late Rev. Father Larkin was a native of Quebec and was educated at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, and was for some time curate of Lindsay. He was afterwards appointed to the parish of Grafton, with which he has been connected as parish priest for twenty-four years. During his illness his duties have been performed by Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, formerly of town.

The deceased gentleman was widely known as a most sincere, devote, and holy man, and his acts of kindness were everywhere apparent. His enthusiasm in his work was always at a high flow, and he succeeded in the course of his incumbency in erecting one of the handsomest churches in the diocese. He also erected a beautiful Presbytery and a separate school building. He was highly esteemed wherever known, and his demise will be keenly felt.

A SAD DROWNING AT CHEMONG LAKE

Miss Bessie Dixon of Maple Creek, N. W. T., is the Victim.

FELL OUT OF HER CANOE.

Awfully Sad Ending to Young Lady's Vacation—Niece of Mr. A. E. Dixon, Barrister of Town—How It Occurred.

Chemong Lake was the scene of a sad drowning fatality this morning, which has cast a cloud of gloom over the residents of the park. The victim of the unfortunate affair was Miss Bessie Dixon, the 21 year old daughter of Mr. John Dixon, of Maple Creek, N.W.T., and niece of Mr. A. E. Dixon, barrister, town.

Miss Dixon, accompanied by her sister, Miss Ethel, has been attending Albert College, Belleville, and instead of returning west, they had decided to spend the summer vacation visiting relatives in Ontario. This they have been engaged in doing for some weeks, and arrived in Peterborough yesterday morning. They then proceeded to Chemong, where they were to be the guests of their uncle, Mr. A. E. Dixon and family, who are occupying a cottage at the park.

It had been arranged that this morning the two young ladies should accompany Mr. Dixon on a fishing expedition for an hour or so before breakfast. However, Miss Ethel, feeling rather tired, changed her mind, and only Mr. Dixon and Miss Bessie left in the canoe. This was about seven o'clock, and they proceeded up towards the head of the lake. In about half an hour's time, Miss Dixon, who had out a line, hooked a fine big 'lunge. It was the first fish that she had ever caught, and she became somewhat excited. Mr. Dixon suggested that he land the fish, but Miss Dixon desired to do this herself, and had it up to the side of the canoe. In some manner she lost her balance and fell out of the canoe into the water, at the same time upsetting the boat. This was at a point about 150 yards from shore. Mr. Dixon is an expert in a canoe, and in the water in fact, and he immediately snatched hold of his niece. The canoe was turned right side up, and the young lady placed in it, but she was insensible. The fish, the cause of the disaster, was still on the trawling line, and if anything, had a tendency to take the canoe out farther into the lake. After about twenty minutes Mr. Dixon succeeded in reaching the shore with Miss Dixon and the canoe, his cries for help in the meantime not having been heard. He was then about a mile from his cottage, and after emptying the canoe he placed his niece in it and started as quickly as possible to his cottage. Here Mrs. Dixon and the remainder of the family were waiting breakfast, and their feelings when apprised of what had occurred may be more easily imagined than described.

Dr. Morgan of Bridgenorth, was immediately summoned, as was also Dr. Scott of town, but all attempts at resuscitation proved abortive. For several hours physicians, relatives and friends worked in their endeavour to restore life to the young lady.

The late Miss Dixon, as before stated, was 21 years of age, and was the daughter of Mr. John Dixon, of Maple Creek, N.W.T. The family is well known here, Mr. Dixon having some years ago been engaged in business in Peterborough.

Deceased was an exceptionally handsome and brilliant young lady, of cheerful disposition, and was a great favourite. The shock to the younger sister was of course severe in the extreme, and she is completely broken down over the awful affair.

In connection with the fatality it might be mentioned that Miss Dixon was not out of her uncle's grasp the entire time they were struggling in the water, which leads some to think that death was due to heart trouble, brought about by the excitement.

The remains were brought to town this morning but nothing has been given out as to whether or not they will be sent to her home in the west.

GARDEN PARTY.

The beautiful grounds surrounding the residence of Mrs. (Hon.) Hamilton, Auburn, were the scene of much activity last night. The grounds had been placed at the disposal of the Bible Class of St. Luke's church for their annual garden party. The affair was largely attended, and a very enjoyable evening was the result. The place was finely decorated with Chinese lanterns, whilst the 57th Regimental Band supplied a delightful programme. Refreshments were served, and altogether the garden party was a great success.

SPELLING "REFORM."

The Examiner has received a copy of "The Herald," Toronto, "devoted to pronunciation and amended spelling," and has great pleasure in cordially condemning it as an exponent of a chimerical and mischievous fad. The "amended" spelling consists in spelling according to sound, and will involve new dictionaries and a revision of all the literature of the language. Without entering into the merits of the question it is enough to say that the idea is repulsive, preposterous and impracticable. The English language, like the British constitution, is a development, and not a man-made thing. In its present form it is associated with the domestic, the social, the civil and the commercial history and life of the Anglo-Saxon people. The English language is too sacred a thing to be "monkeyed with" by any Caleb Jenkins' style of spelling, which will make it orthographically and etymologically a jargon instead of the language in which is embalmed the most precious literature extant. Fancy for a moment reading the Bible, Shakespere, Milton, Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Tennyson, or any of our great classics in the crass form of sound spelling advocated by latter-day Philistines. We do not want to be "up-to-date," as the phrase is, in our spelling. The modern tendency is too much in the direction of corrupting good old things. In our desire to be "up-to-date," we sacrifice the old fashion of virtue, modesty, courtesy, and many of the graces of social life, to the detriment of our condition. Those who believe in these things have to make a perpetual fight for their retention. The modern tendency is the corruption of, not only spelling, but the forms and use of our language, and it becomes everyone who venerates his native language to be particular in its correct use, even at the risk of being called pedantic, so that it may not be submerged by the corrupt tide of "slang," and vicious colloquialisms, which throw their slimy ooze over modern conversational and "literary" intercourse. 'Up-to-date" iconoclasm has eliminated the "u" from honour, as it has eliminated honour itself, to a very large degree, from the code of morals. Instead of gratuitously corrupting the English language, we have need to fight against corrupting influences that are insidiously and almost imperceptibly being exercised. There is need of this when we see a great newspaper, like the Globe, using, in a heading to an article, the hideous Yankeyism, "mad," in the sense of vexed, angry or displeased. Literary wickedness in high places is perhaps only an example of an unconscious debasement of high journalistic ideals, and should be an incentive to diligent effort in striving to maintain, as Edmund Spenser saw the need of doing, over three hundred years ago, the well of English undefyled,

On Fame's eternal beadroll worthy to be fyled,

The English language is indeed worthy to be preserved from corruption and, strive as we will, that process is bound to come, to a greater or less degree; and the more we yield to the influences of this material, money-grubbing, irreverent and, in many things, anarchistic age, when gain-getting, and the vulgar display of wealth, and the pursuit of sensual pleasures, are regarded as the summum bonum, so that no time is left for wooing the graces of culture and the refinements of life — by taking time to spell "through" properly we may lose a fraction of a second from the stressful search for wealth or the pursuit of some new "fad."

It is urged that English spelling as it is, is difficult of acquirement; so are many good things. If gold and diamonds were as common and as easy to get as wayside boulders, they would be worth as much as wayside boulders. If the divine music of Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, etc., were as easy of learning as the cheap and nasty "two steps," or cantering "cake walks" of the day it would not be the grand treasury of harmony it is. Then it takes too much time to write the English language, according to the proper spelling. We want to do too much in this age to do it well. The art of letter writing is a thing of the past. The present generation will leave few letters to posterity worthy of being printed and read. A man sits down and dictates in a hutried manner crude thoughts in necessarily crude and unconsidered language, to a type-writer, and the result is a production without literary excellence or logical sequence of ideas. We strive to do too much in a given time. The man who maketh haste to do important things brings himself under the condemnation of him who maketh haste to be rich. The "amending" of the English language is a waste of energy. When there is so much good to be done in the world, wrongs to be righted or redressed, suffering to be alleviated, social and moral conditions to be improved, it seems to be a waste of God-given energies to devote one's time, to spend time to save time, by spelling love, "luv." Love for the good of one's fellows might take a much more beneficent way of manifestation.

TWENTY YEARS OF DUTY.

Officer John Sullivan Celebrates His Anniversary To-day.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of a recent date contains the following account of Officer John Sullivan, son of the late J. Sullivan, of Otonabee, and brother of Mr. Jas. Sullivan, of the Canadian General Electric Company, of town:—

"On the 8th of this month Officer John Sullivan, one of the best known men of the police force, will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of his appointment to duty on the force. His record is one of the best, and shows that he has at all times done his duty, no matter how disagreeable or dangerous, and his superiors say he is one of the best men on the force.

It was in 1881 that Officer Sullivan donned the blue and joined the ranks of the city protectors. He was assigned to duty on the Lyell Road which was infested at that time with a notorious gang of toughs and rowdies. Sullivan was strong and hearty, and that he did his duty is shown in the way in which the neighbourhood near the Lyell Road was cleared of the tough element.

At first his beat was a hard one and scarcely a night passed without a fight of some sort. Finally, one by one, Sullivan conquered the toughs until it got so that when they saw him coming they would go around the block to avoid meeting him.

In the Gorham street riot, which caused so many broken heads on both sides, Sullivan was the first man on the spot, and together with the other brave men who participated under Captain McDermott, did his full duty.

Yesterday Officer Sullivan left to enjoy a week's furlough among the lakes of Canada, where he will visit Frank Gratton, ex-captain of the Hays truck in this city. Sullivan has of course grown older in years and weightier in form, but nevertheless he has many a good fight left in him, as his associates will testify."

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough Baseball team returned last night from a three day's trip to Cobourg, Gananoque and Belleville. The boys met defeat in Cobourg and Gananoque, but came out on top at Belleville, the score being 5 to 2.

The Gananoque team are the fastest semi-professional team in Canada, and play a great game, they are open to play any team in Canada for big money. The boys say the umpires in Gananoque and Belleville were fine, but Cobourg—the least said the better.

This game was fast all the way and was played in one hour and twenty-five minutes. The fielding of both teams was elegant, only two errors being chalked up again each side. McCabe struck out seven men and kept the Belleville team popping the ball in the air for the fielders. Kehoe made a remarkable catch in the sixth of a hit that looked good for a three bagger. Peterborough scored four in the fifth on singles by Earls, Kehoe, Connors, McCabe and a double by Graham. The boys had a good time while away.

The score at Belleville was as follows;

A LAST WORD.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir, — No doubt your readers will wonder that I have again condescended to reply to the ignorant and ambigous letter, which was published in the Times of July 24th, and signed as before, "Patriot." It is a composition of rot, with neither head nor tail, which only serves to testify to the weak mind of its writer. As in his letter of the 17th, he dares not to prove anything, but goes on with the same silly talk which a seven year old boy would be whipped for using. He says I attempted to prove nothing; that I will leave to the judgment of your readers. I challenged him to contradict my statement of the 22nd in regard to St. Joseph's hospital, but he dared not knowing that it would only add to the disgrace which he has brought upon himself by his false statements. Instead of contradicting my statements, he has confirmed them by saying that Catholics are adepts in all sorts of government.

In regard to Central Park and the Murray street school grounds, only a few words are necessary. Even accepting "Old Inhabitant's" letter as authorative, who claims that the Central Park and the Murray street school grounds are Government grants, all that can be said is, if the Protestants of Peterborough had a right to do as they wished with their part, have not the Catholics the same right? If the Protestants wished to give their part for park purposes, or at least for the use of the Orangemen on the 12th of July, as it was last year, is that any reason why Catholics should do the same? Not by any means, and if "Patriot" waits until the Catholics of Peterborough give their school grounds for such purposes he will have a long wait.

Now in regard to my quotation from the Scriptures, I will ask "Patriot" to look again and he will find it is no misquotation. If I am not an infallible authority on Scripture, I at least know enough to read it properly, and I wish to say that when I read Scripture I read an authorative version, not such as "Patriot" is accustomed to read, if he reads any. He seems to betray himself in judging me so rashly—"as some are accustomed to judge others by their own actions."

I did not intend to reply to his nonsensical letter, but as such false statements as "Patriot's" were to go unanswered, what would become of our social spirit? We would be as "Patriot's" letter—a failure. I hope this will be the last of this controversy but should he continue I will leave him to the judgment of your readers, who no doubt have passed their opinions before this.

Yours,

A Catholic.

Note. — Without expressing any opinion as to the merits of the controversy, to which the above is a contribution, the Examiner suggests that it is perhaps time it was brought to a close, as very little is gained by discussion on such subjects.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil infuence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

A NERVY BALLOONIST

SHE WILLINGLY RISKED HER OWN LIFE TO SAVE OTHERS.

How a Plucky Woman by Prompt Action and a Feat of Great Daring Averted a Panic Among Twenty-five Thousand Sightseers.

Writing of the adventurous career of the balloonist, Cleveland Moffett tells in St. Nicholas of a daring deed performed by Mme. Carlotta Myers, wife of the noted balloonist, Professor Carl Myers of Frankfort, N. Y.

Some years ago at Ottawa she made an ascension never forgotten by the people of that city. It was a gala occasion in honor of Queen Victoria's gift of the Crystal palace to her loyal subjects, and Canada had rarely seen such a gathering. Twenty-five thousand people, as was estimated, were packed inside the exposition grounds to see the famous aeronaut rise to the clouds.

And there at the appointed time stood Carlotta on a raised platform, with the multitude about her, waiting for the balloon. She wore a short skirt over a gymnasium suit and made an attractive picture with her fine figure and golden bronze hair. So thought various city dignitaries who chatted with her admiringly while the crowd surged about them.

Meantime Professor Myers was anxiously watching the maneuvers of some Indians hired by a committee to tow the balloon from the gas works, two miles distant, where it had been filled. This was rather against the professor's judgment, for the Rideau river, flowing by the grounds, offered an obstacle that could be overcome only by the help of canoes and towlines, and to paddle a big balloon across a river—a fresh filled, hard tugging balloon—is not a thing to be undertaken lightly.

And in spite of all her skill these Indians found themselves presently lifted into the air, canoes and all (oh, they were badly frightened Indians!), not quite clear of the water, but high enough to make it doubtful if they would ever reach shore, and highly interesting to the crowd which pressed down to the river, even into the river, in well meant efforts to help, and dragged the balloon up the bank and along toward the platform with such eagerness that they tore great rents in it that let out the gas in volumes.

In an instant, as happens in crowds, the balloon became the center of a struggling mass of people, who slowly pressed in from all sides to see what the matter was. Now, when 25,000 people are all pressing slowly toward one point, it is apt to fare ill with those at that point, and then had not Carlotta acted on a flash of inspiration there would surely have been disaster in that merciless crush.

She looked over the shouting, swaying multitude and in a second saw the danger—saw women held helpless and fainting in that jam of bodies; saw one way, and only one, to save the situation, and took that way. Stepping off the platform, she ran lightly and swiftly over heads and shoulders packed solid and came to the balloon. Such was the people's fright that they scarcely felt her pass.

"You can't go up," cried her husband. "The balloon is a wreck."

"I must go up," she answered. "If I don't, these people will be crushed to death."

"There's a hole in her big enough to drive a team through," he protested; but already she was in the basket and a cheer arose.

"It's better to risk one life than many," she answered with decision and, turning to the crowd, motioned them to loose the car. In their wonder the mad multitude forgot their fear, and the struggling quieted. All eyes were now on the balloon. One woman's courage had quelled the panic. The danger to the crowd was past, to the woman just beginning.

"Wait a moment!" shouted Professor Myers. "You must have more ballast." But in the din of voices she misunderstood him and cast out a bag of ballast. And with a great heave and a flapping of its torn sides the balloon wrenched itself free and shot upward, a cripple soaring with its last strength.

Up and up it went, higher and higher as the small store of gas expanded. That tattered balloon, with its seams gaping open, raised itself somehow two miles over the city of Ottawa, and then almost immediately began to fall. The gas staid in just long enough to lift the broken bag, and then left it to dash downward. Professor Myers, heartsick on the ground, turned his eyes away, sure that he had seen his wife for the last time alive.

But Carlotta was of no such mind. She had saved the crowd, now she would save herself; and even as the balloon dropped with frightful speed she put her plan in action. Swinging herself up on the netting, she caught the flapping silk above a long tear, and drew it down with all her weight until it reached the car.

Instantly the air rushed in underneath, and bellied out the fabric into a great umbrella, a parachute improvised from a ripped balloon. Now they were slowing up; they had put the brakes on, and now they were soaring easily, drifting with the wind.

Carlotta drew a long breath of relief and looked down. They were still a mile above ground. She had the runaway in hand, but where should she land him? Most aeronauts would have been thankful enough to get down alive anywhere; she proposed to do a feat of steering as well.

No doubt there was some gas in the upper part of the bag to help her, but in the main she was guiding a parachute, and she guided it so skillfully by tipping the footboard forward or back, to left or right, that she landed finally in a clump of evergreen trees some 15 miles from Ottawa that she had selected as the very place she proposed to land. And great were the rejoicings when it was known that she had come to no harm.

The penal code of the Chinese empire is at least 2,000 years old, and under its provisions about 12,000 persons are annually executed.

The first balloon ascent took place in the year 1783.

Tried Dr. Pitcher As a Last Resort.

A Toronto Lady's Experience With This Famous Specialist's Backache Kidney Tablets.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and as professor of Genito-Urinary Diseases in Michigan College of Medicine of that city, Dr. Zina Pitcher gave careful thought and consideration to diseases of the kidneys, bladder, and urinary system.

So profoundedly impressed was he with the fact that many thousands of people suffer from some form of kidney derangement, who were unable to avail themselves of the services of a specialist, that he decided to give to humanity at large his famous prescription for Kidney Diseases, under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

It is of these tablets that Mrs. May Goddard, 332 Adelaide street west, Toronto, speaks in the following terms:—

"After enjoying the most perfect health for many years it was a sore trial for me to realize that my health was failing. I had, in the first place, acute pains in the small of my back, and was losing flesh rapidly. Then other complications arose, which so weakened me that it was only with the greatest amount of determination that I could attend to my work. I tried a number of remedies and consulted several physicians without obtaining more than temporary relief, and as a last resort I thought I would try Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Their beneficial action was almost instantaneous, and the results highly gratifying. The pain in my back disappeared in a short time, and my general health improved greatly. I am now feeling fine, and am glad to have this opportunity of expressing my appreciation of so valuable a remedy.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail, postage free.

A "curse" which everybody is most happy to be blessed with.

That which it is man's mission to get and woman's mission to spend.

A commodity the value of which is best appreciated by those who haven't got any.

That which every one desires to obtain in order to have the pleasure of parting with it.

A most useful commodity, capable of transmitting to its fortunate possessor everything but health and happiness.

Money to a man is like water to a plant, only useful as long as it promotes and facilitates growth; like water in the fountain or water in the tank, keep it flowing and it blesses, keep it stagnant and it injures.

Whether it is brain fag, loss of memory, inability to concentrate the mind, or bodily weakness and general debility, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will concentrate your old time energy and health. Wanted a Tidbit.

The second course of the table d'hote was being served.

"What is this leathery stuff?" demanded the diner.

"That, sir, is a fillet of sole," replied the waiter.

"Take it away," said the diner, "and see if you can't get me a nice tender piece from the upper part of the boot, with the buttons removed."—Exchange.

The Captain of an Ocean Liner.

Nowadays the captain is the host of the ship. He is no longer the gruff, rough seadog in a pea jacket of years gone by. He must observe some of the social amenities; he must talk to the passengers now and then when the weather is fine; he must take his seat at table when he may; he must be a kind of diplomat also and possess wit and tact and a patience sublime; he must see that no jealousies develop among the passengers. I have been told of the very obliging captain who, to please the lady who asked to be shown the equator while the ship was in southern seas, pasted a hair across the large end of a spyglass and told the lady to look. And the lady through the glass declared she could see the equator "as plainly as A B C." One other polite captain I have heard of—one who directed an officer on the bridge to "do as the lady wishes," when the lady requested that the captain steer the ship over to the horizon so she could see what the horizon was like.

A Korean Prison.

The gate was wide open, and the courtyard was full of prisoners, and the surrounding buildings were old and tottering. I asked the chief, whom one of the two or three listless attendants called for us, why the prisoners did not run away. "Oh," he replied, "they would be caught and beaten again and kept longer. Now they will get out soon."

But as I looked at them I saw they did not run because they could not. The life was beaten out of them. The keepers brought the heavy red cord with a brass hook at the end and trussed up a man with it to show how the beating was done and then brought us the stiff rods with which victims were pounded over the shins and thighs until the beaten spots were simply masses of festering rottenness. There was a room, black, foul, leprous, in which the men were fastened in the stocks. The Black Hole of Calcutta was scarcely less merciful than this.

Soapsuds Dessert.

The tribes on the coast of British Columbia hold a festival in the autumn, the crowning item of which is the partaking of a few spoonfuls of a bowl of soapsuds.

They gather in the dingy huts, which are hung with the staple food—dried salmon. For light they stick into the ground, head downward, a silvery fish about five inches long, set fire to the tail, and they have a torch, for the fish burns steadily.

After eating of various unsavory foods there comes the great treat. This is a bowl of a frothy, soapy mixture, obtained by crushing in a not overclean manner the sapolili, or soap berries, and squeezing out the juice. This is as much like soapsuds as it is possible to conceive. The natives sip it from spoons of black wood, neatly carved, of which they think a great deal.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

Bound to Enjoy Herself.

"Now, dear," said mamma, giving final instructions to Elsie, who is going to take tea with a playmate, "when you are asked if you will have something, you must say, 'Yes, thank you,' and if you don't want it you must say"—

"Oh, you needn't bother about that," Elsie interrupted "I don't expect to refuse anything."

Two Faced Babies.

"Not that deceit is a born instinct, but some babies must be two faced in the cradle."

"Oh, that's not possible."

"I don't know. I know a child that looks like its rich aunt when she comes on a visit and is the exact image of its rich uncle when he happens to be there."—Exchange.

No Difficulty.

Phillips Brooks once gave a new version of the Jonah story to a wondering skeptic, who said he doubted whether a whale's throat was large enough to swallow Jonah. "There was no difficulty," said the bishop; "Jonah was one of the minor prophets."

A Long Wait.

Katrine—I was reading this morning of a man who cooked his own breakfast for 15 years.

Max—He must have been very hungry when he finally got it done.—Bombe.

RHEUMATISM
KINDS, CAUSE AND CURE.

Rheumatism of any kind is always attended with pain. There are in reality but two causes, although they manifest themselves in five or six different forms of rheumatism. Muscular rheumatism, in which the muscles in different parts of the body are inflamed, swollen and painful; joint rheumatism, heart rheumatism and lumbago all have their origin in the blood. This indicates a kidney weakness, and demands a kidney treatment. Then sciatica, neuralgia and shooting pain rheumatism has its origin in a vitiated condition of the nerves, from a general run-down condition of the blood. In each of the above forms and for all manifested symptoms of rheumatism there is no medicine which offers such a chance for cure as Merrill's System Tonic. It is not only a kidney medicine, but its blood purifying properties rid the system of all accumulated uric acid. Then, too, System Tonic is the greatest tonic, blood, bone and tissue maker known, and will enrich the blood, feed and revive the starved nerves, thus making a cure for your rheumatism from whatever cause. Several hundred hopeless cases have already been cured, and more are being cured every day. Will you try it?

THE RAILROAD BOSS.

A SAMPLE DAY IN THE LIFE OF THE PRESIDENT OF A ROAD.

The Thousand and One Details That Claim His Attention and Try His Executive Ability—The Half Hour With the General Manager.

After being for a few hours with a railroad president one has a better conception of the magnitude of the Chinese treatise on all things. The president perhaps has just returned from a trip to New York, where he has attended a conference of presidents of allied lines. He has been on the road all night; but, thanks to that businesslike institution, the private car, often erroneously considered a luxury, he appears in his office fresher for work than the suburbanite who has just come in on the commuter's train. While the president is looking over his personal mail word spreads about the big building that "the old man is back." Gradually the private secretaries of the different chiefs drop into the outer office to learn from the president's private secretary what business is most likely to come up first and what chance there is for action on some pet measure. The bell rings, and for a few minutes the private secretary is closeted with the president. Daily telegraphic reports have kept the president informed of events on the line, but in a surprisingly brief time he learns of smaller happenings, of messages left by prominent callers and of the general behavior of his child, the railroad.

Then the president sends for his chief assistant, the general manager, and learns officially some of the things the private secretary has told him as gossip and many others of greater moment, but perhaps of less real interest. The half hour with the general manager may mean decisions involving the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars. It may mean happiness or anxiety to hundreds of homes. For example, it may be decided to move the company's shops from Dan to Beersheba. This means a move for employees, a breaking of home ties and perhaps disappointment to engaged lovers. Again, it may be decided to extend the Utopia branch, which means a fortune to investors in land beyond Utopia and ruin to some in the old terminus.

The president may tell the general manager that the demand for a dividend on the preferred stock is becoming more clamorous and that they must get along another year without the 5,000 new box cars that are badly needed and the building of which would affect many idle men. The president very likely calls the attention of the general manager to the auditor's estimate of last week's earnings and asks why expenses cannot be reduced just a little more.

The president reminds the general manager that the contract for hauling Chicago dressed beef is conditional upon a second morning delivery at the seaboard two hours earlier than that previously given by a rival line. He also observes that the reliability and regularity of the passenger trains is helping the western tourist business, that the delay to the hotel men's special by a freight wreck last week will hurt the winter travel to California and that the new dining car must be made to pay expenses. He asks why the ton mile cost of moving freight has not decreased in proportion to the recent outlay for big engines.

He ventures the opinion that the superintendent of the Slowburg division must have been asleep while the city council of Ringville passed an ordinance requiring the company to erect ten more electric lights at street crossings. He expresses polite astonishment at the failure of the passenger department to book the headquarters train for the next Grand Army encampment. He makes no attempt at concealing his disgust over a competitor securing ten trainloads of agricultural machinery for the western prairies. He then takes up the question of a larger terminal charge for switching cars to connecting lines and suggests to the general manager that the revenue would be increased by more favorable terms in the next contract with other roads.

The patient and loyal general manager, who has taken all this in the Pickwickian sense in which it was intended, now has his turn. From the bundle of papers under his arm he draws a condensed estimate of an elaborate plan for reducing the cost of transportation on a certain division by running around a bluff and locating freight yards near a busy river instead of climbing into the town. The trained eye of the president catches the salient points, and he tells the general manager whether or not funds are likely to be available, whether or not it is politic to antagonize municipal or other interests.

The general manager diplomatically shows the president that the New Orleans cotton traffic is suffering because of the president's order to consider all Minneota flour as rush freight. He asks authority to increase the pay of a superintendent who has a better offer from another road. From the bundle of condensed reports he shows a saving of 100 tons of coal the previous week by reason of better fuel furnished from the new mines. He tells of a new gasolene engine at Pumptown which will cut in two the monthly bills for water supply for locomotives. He reports a conference with the mayor of a big city about the smoke nuisance near the freight yards.

He suggests that it would be well for the passenger department to stop promising dollar excursionists a two hour schedule for a hard three hour run. He urges conciliatory measures toward the city council of Bucktown, which will repeal the speed ordinance as soon as the old morning accommodation train is restored, and "No. 0" (the St. Louis express) can then get through the town on time. In the most nonchalant manner he asks to be excused, that he may catch a train leaving in five minutes, as he has an appointment for the next morning some 600 miles away.

Before the general manager has finished the private secretary is entertaining two or three reporters of afternoon papers.

The president sees them, comes out, shakes hands and tells them rates are to be stiffer than ever, that the stockholders are tired of hunting snipe for the fun of holding empty bags. He then jocosely asks them for news about his road, as he has been in New York helping his wife to do her shopping.

Influenza.

It is very well known that the influenza is not an exclusively modern complaint, but I am not sure whether a curious reference to it by Bower, the continuator of Fordun's chronicle, has been noted. Writing of the year 1420 he says that among those who died in Scotland that year were Sir Henry St. Clair, earl of Orkney; Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith, Sir William de Abernethy, Sir William de St. Clair, Sir William Cockburn and many others, all by "that infirmity whereby not only great men, but innumerable quantity of the commonalty, perished, which was vulgarly termed le Quhew [le Quhew a vurgaribus dicebatur]" (Bower, xv. 32.) Now, "quh" in Scottish texts usually represents the sound of "wh" (properly aspirated.) Therefore it seems that in the fifteenth century the influenza was known as "the whew," just as it is known in the twentieth century as "the flue."

I have refrained from quoting at length Bower's explanation of the cause of the epidemic, but there seems little doubt that the disease was identical with that with which we are so grievously familiar.

Barometric Bees.

Whoever observes these interesting insects finds it easy enough to foretell exactly the kind of weather to be expected. At least this is the opinion of many raisers of bees.

Generally the bee stays at home when rain is in the air. When the sky is simply dark and cloudy, these busy workers do not leave their dwelling all at once. A few go out first, as though the queen had sent out messengers to study the state of the atmosphere. The greater number remain on observation until the clouds begin to dissipate, and it is only then that the battalions entire rush out in search of their nectar. A bee never goes out in a fog, because it is well aware that dampness and cold are two fearsome, redoubtable enemies. We do not mean, however, that the bee is a meteorologist in the absolute sense of the word. Its cleverness consists in never being taken unawares, for it possesses untiring vigilance. Often one may observe the sudden entrance of bees into the hive when a dense cloud hides the sun and even though the rain is not in evidence.

Why We Bathe.

Professor Vivian Lewes, at the London institution, recently furnished the following answer to the question, "Why do we bathe?" Twenty-eight miles of sweat glands in our skin are discharging 26 ounces of water per day and leaving upon the outer surface of the skin a full ounce of solid matter. These are aided by the oil glands of the hair, which facilitate the adherence of external dirt. Hence the refreshing character of the morning bath and the necessity for grease absorbing alkalies in soap.

Softening the Parting.

Twelve was on the point of striking.

"To think," cried the fair girl in anguish, "we will never see each other again till tomorrow night!"

"Bear up, sweet one!" was his encouraging remark. "Time will pass. Besides, I'll write to you when I get home and in the morning."—Philadelphia Times.

Changed Times.

Times have changed indeed from the time when Sydney Smith complacently observed that the United States had so much wilderness clearing to do that it might well take its literature, learning and luxury in the bulk from English factories.

"Why," he had asked, "should the Americans write books when a six weeks' passage brings them, in their own tongue, our sense, science and genius in bales and hogsheads? Prairies, steamboats, gristmills, are their natural objects for centuries to come."

We might almost reverse this and ask, "Why should the English feel ill at ease when a six days' passage brings them our sense, science and genius?"

For the time at least the Rev. Sydney Smith's chief notoriety seems to be that he was the author of certain observations whose truthfulness has proved as brief as it was bitter.

The Irishman's Request.

In the days when flogging was in vogue as a punishment in the British navy a Scotchman and an Irishman, on the arrival of their ship in harbor, obtained leave to go ashore for a couple days, and they overstaid the period of leave granted them. When they did put in an appearance, they were ordered 50 lashes each. On the day of the punishment a parade was ordered to witness the infliction of the flogging.

When all was ready, the Scotchman asked as a favor to be allowed a piece of canvas on his back while he received his flogging. The captain granted his request and, turning to the Irishman, asked him if he required anything on his back while he was being flogged, to which he replied, "If ye plaze, yer honor, I'd loike to have the Scotchman on my back, if ye wouldn't mind."

It Was His Deal.

A mining engineer who has returned from Alaska brings, among other interesting things, evidence that the higher the latitude the greater the latitude. Watching a poker game in which the stakes were heavy he saw a player give himself four aces from the bottom of the pack.

Burning with indignation at such shameless cheating, he turned to a bystander and whispered, "Did you see that?"

"See what?"

"Why, that fellow dealt himself four aces!"

"Well, wasn't it his deal?"

APPLE CULTURE OF CANADA.

Important Address Before Exporters of Apples by President Mills of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Toronto, Aug. 8. — Dr. James Mills, president of the Guelph Agricultural College, made some important statements at the National Apple Shippers' convention, which opened in the Horticultural Pavilion yesterday. He quoted figures to show that Canada exported nearly one million barrels of apples yearly, valued at over two and a half million dollars. Of these about 350,000 barrels come from Ontario, valued at nearly one million dollars. In Ontario alone there were nearly ten million apple trees.

Dr. Mills attacked the system of orchard management pursued by the Ontario farmer. Throughout the whole province the orchards were, for the most part, mismanaged or neglected, he said. In many cases the trees were too close together. They were not systematically pruned. Cultivation and manuring was neglected.

People asked why so large a proportion of our fruit was scabby and wormy. The explanation lay in the simple fact that they were not sprayed. It was impossible to get farmers to understand that orchards needed as much attention as any other part of the farm.

The government, said Dr. Mills, had earnestly tried to remedy this defect. Men representing the Farmers' Institute had been sent through the province to lecture upon the proper management of orchards. The Minister of Agriculture had sent out competent instructors to demonstrate to the farmer the correct method of spraying an orchard. The result had been very discouraging. Even now farmers paid little attention to these important matters.

Dr. Mills placed the remedy in the apple shippers' hand. First, they should suggest and instruct when apple crops were bought; and, secondly, they should take a firm stand in paying well for good fruit and rigorously discounting the price of bad.

The speaker then turned to the question of fraudulent packing, which, he said, had so imperilled our reputation in Europe that honest dealers had made an appeal to the Dominion Government. Accordingly, an act had been passed for the purpose of crushing the fraudulent packer by imposing a fine upon every barrel found packed with intent to deceive. But this penalty was so paltry that it completely discounted the whole value of the act.

A man might put worm-eaten fruit, potatoes or turnips in the bottom of a barrel, mark it triple X and send it off to England. If convicted what was his penalty? Not a fine of $100 or $50, but a maximum of one dollar, and not less than 25 cents.

Dr. Mills advocated a penitentiary punishment for such malefactors. If dishonesty was not stamped out, the Apple Shippers would lose the confidence of Europe.

The doctor was greeted with loud cheers on resuming his seat.

In the evening a musical reception was held in the Pavilion, when the Mayor delivered a neat address of welcome. The association will continue in session to-day.

THE QUICK PACE OF DECLINING HEALTH

Wasted Nerves and Weakened Bodies Give Way to Suffering and Disease The Action of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

There are hosts of people who are susceptible to attack of various kinds of illness. Their systems are ever ready to take on disease. They bend under the slightest trial, and their health is jeopardized by every trivial exposure. They lack resisting power, and health declines because there is no nerve force to make good the waste by disease.

At first slight weakness, stomach annoyance, headache, heart fluttering, trembling of the hands and limbs, restless sleep, indicate something is lacking—that something is nerve force. Until the stock of nerve force is replenished the pace of declining health will increase, until lost vitality is expressed in every move.

Pale, languid, nerve-shattered people find exactly what they require in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It supplies the wants of wasted nerves, rebuilds the wasted cells, and renews the blood. Its wonderful cures are due to the fact that it restores natural nerve force; and it is lack of nerve force that causes most suffering these days. Brain nerves, heart nerves, stomach nerves give out, and all sorts of troubles follow.

Mrs. M. A. McCrea, Troy Hill, Ont., writes: "My system was all run down when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was weak and very nervous, and felt so tired and worn out that I could scarcely drag myself about the house. It seemed impossible for me to get rest or sleep at night, and I felt that I was gradually growing weaker and more nervous and irritable. Since beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I feel altogether different. It has gradually strengthened my nerves and built up my system wonderfully. I sleep well now, and am being thoroughly restored to health and strength. I believe it is the best medicine to be had for the nerves."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

The Fall Killed Him.

Vankleek Hill, Ont., Aug. 8.—A most regrettable accident occurred a few miles from here on Monday evening, when D. N. Fraser, a young man of about 28 years, was fatally injured. He was driving a load of hay from the field, when the wagon upset, throwing him heavily to the ground. His spine was severely injured and when picked up he was paralyzed and had lost all sensation from his shoulders down. He died Wednesday morning.

MOURNING THE EMPRESS.

Imperial Commons Condole With King Edward and Express Sympathy With Emperor William in Bereavement.

London, Aug. 8.—A resolution providing for an address of condolence with King Edward and sympathy with Emperor William on the death of the Dowager-Empress Frederick, their sister and mother, respectively, was unanimously adopted in the House of Commons yesterday.

Mr. Balfour, the Government leader, in moving the resolution, highly eulogized the exemplary life of the daughter, wife and mother, who, throughout her life, strove to the utmost to promote mutual comprehension and sympathy between two great nations upon whom so much of the future of civilization depends.

King Edward, Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria, and Prince Nicholas of Greece, who is the guest of Their Majesties, will start for Homburg Friday to attend the funeral services of Empress Frederick, to be held in the presence of the family, next Sunday.

President McKinley has sent a message of condolence to the King.

Funeral Next Tuesday.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—It has been definitely decided that the funeral of the Dowager-Empress Frederick will take place Tuesday next, August 13. The remains will be deposited in the Freidens Kirche mausoleum near Potsdam.

CANADA LIVE STOCK

Will Be Uniquely Exhibited at the Buffalo Pan-American.

Ottawa, Aug. 8. —E. B. Elderkin, superintendent of the Canadian live stock exhibit at Buffalo, had a conference with the Minister of Agriculture yesterday morning, and explained the character of the live stock exhibit which the Northwest Territories have resolved to make at Buffalo. There will be 50 four-year-old steers, fresh from the ranges, which have never yet been under cover; a carload of range sheep, and about 25 horses. A number of cowboys and a score of Mounted Police will accompany the exhibit. The horses will be picked animals from the Mounted Police stables, and, upon these, guardians of law and order in the Northwest, will give a musical ride. The cattle will be shown in a corral, and the ranchmen will handle them just as they do on the plains. They will also display feats of horsemanship. It is likely that a number of fine shorthorn cattle belonging to Hon. Thomas Greenway will be sent to Buffalo for exhibition. A carload of poultry from Winnipeg will also be on view. The Territorial live stock exhibit will be open to the public from Sept. 9 to 21. It is not unlikely that the Mounted Police horses will be sold after the exhibit is closed, in preference to taking them back to the West. This would be a good way of advertising western horses.

Ontario Cows Lead at Buffalo.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Agricultural Department have received good reports in connection with the cows from Ontario, which are competing in the dairy test at the Pan-American. For the week ending July 30 the Canadian Jersey herd headed the list in the butter fat test. The Holstein herd, also from Canada, led in another competition.

The profit made by the Jerseys on the butter fat was $8.78 and by the Guernseys (American), $8.61. The Ayrshire, French-Canadian, and Holstein Canadian herds, were next on the list, and their profits were $8.-08, $7.31 and $7.28 respectively.

Had His Eye Removed.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—A cable message was handed out by the Militia Department, which has been received by the Governor-General from the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies. It reads: "Please inform S. A. Walker of Brandon, Manitoba, that his son William John Adam Walker, E 2,090, South African Constabulary, has been reported accidentally wounded at Petrusberg, on July 31. Eye removed." (Signed), Chamberlain.

Suicide By Drowning.

Halifax, Aug. 7.—At Westchester, Cumberland County, on Sunday, Jacob E. Purdy, aged 25 years, committed suicide by drowning in an unused well in an out-building at his father's home. He had been despondent for years.

Off for the South Pole.

At Birmingham, Ala., with agonizing screams and his eyes bulging from his head John Wesley Pennington, a negro, was burned at the stake near Enterprise, Ala., before a crowd of 500 enraged and determined citizens of Coffee County Wednesday morning. Pennington had committed a brutal assault upon Mrs. J. C. Davis, wife of one of the most prominent farmers of Coffee County, and had confessed his guilt.

The residence of Mrs. Callaghan, Withrow avenue, Toronto, was the scene of a merry gathering Wednesday night. The neighbors and friends, numbering nearly 200, seized the opportunity of the return of her son, late of Howard's scouts, to express the high esteem in which Lieut. Callaghan is held, by presenting him with an address, and a gold chain and locket suitably engraved. Lieut. Callaghan expressed his pleasure in suitable terms.

Killed By Live Wire.

Chicago, Aug. 8. — Lawrence McGriskin, a teacher in the Gallistel School, South Chicago, was killed last night by a live electric wire, which fell from a post and struck him. Mr. McGriskin was 50 years old, and a teacher of mathematics.

New York, Aug. 8.—A live trolley wire broke in Marcy avenue yesterday afternoon, and the ends fell on a crowded street car. One boy was killed outright, and four other passengers were seriously hurt.

Argued for a Life.

Ottawa, Aug. 8. — Mr. Bethune of Chrysler & Bethune, apdeared before Hon. Messrs. Mills and Scott yesterday and argued in favor of a new trial, under section 748 of the Criminal Code, of the case of O'Brien, the Yukon murderer, because, Bethune claimed, the judge admitted evidence which he should not have done. If a new trial was not granted, then Mr. Bethune asked, under section 744, for a fiat to appeal to the Supreme Court. The grounds on which Mr. Bethune bases his case are purely technical.

WILL THE BOERS KILL

The 25 British Prisoners Captured at Sabi River?

KRUGER'S MENTAL CONDITION.

Specialist in Nervous Diseases Summoned from Berlin—A Small Post Surprised—Twenty-five Men of Steinacker's Horse Captured by the Boers—Reported That Lord Kitchener's Health is Bad.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Isaac N. Ford cabled The Globe this morning as follows: Lord Kitchener has reported a small reverse, which seems to represent the maximum capacity of the Boers for offering resistance to British arms. This is the surprise and capture of a detachment of 25 soldiers at Sabi River. The magnitude of regrettable incidents has shrunk since Nicholson's Nek, Stormberg, Magersfontein, Colenso and Lindley. While as many as sixty British columns are operating in the three colonies, and picking up the enemy by twos and threes, the only chance of success which the Boers have lies in surprising, here and there, small isolated detachments. Interest in this petty achievement at Sabi River will be increased if evidence be offered that the Boers are carrying out their threats and ordering reprisals for the executions conducted among the Cape rebels.

British Captured.

London, Aug. 9. — Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria yesterday, announces that a post of 25 men, belonging to Steinecker's Horse, on the Sabi River, has been surprised and captured by the Boers. Lord Kitchener reports also the surrender at Warm Baths of Commandant Revilliers, who was second in command to Beyers.

Mr. Kruger's Mental Condition.

London, Aug. 9.—A special despatch from Rotterdam says the mental condition of Mr. Kruger, is arousing serious apprehension. A specialist in nervous diseases has been summoned by telegraph from Berlin.

Kitchener Is Ill.

Paris, Aug. 9.—Rappell, in a Cape Town despatch yesterday, asserts that General Lord Kitchener will shortly return to England on account of the serious state of his health.

Victoria Crosses Received.

Ottawa, Aug. 9. — The Militia Department learns that the officer commanding the Imperial forces at Halifax has received the Victoria Crosses earned by Lieut. Cockburn, Toronto; Lieut. Turner, Quebec, and Sergt. Holland, Ottawa, with instructions to distribute them. An effort will be made to have the Duke of Cornwall and York present the coveted decorations.

AT FRIEDRICHSHOF.

Simple Funeral Service Over the Body of Late Dowager Empress.

Cronberg, Aug. 9.—The remains of the Dowager-Empress were placed in the coffin yesterday morning.

The funeral service, held at Friedrichshof, late yesterday afternoon, was simple, but highly impressive. It was performed, at the request of the late Dowager-Empress, by the Bishop of Ripon, her own chaplain, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Teignmouth Shore, Canon of Worcester. The coffin stood in the death chamber, covered with a long black pall, and strewn with white roses. At the foot, with bowed head, and slightly in advance of the other mourners, stood Emperor William, in the uniform of the Black Hussars, the regiment of the late Dowager-Empress. Just behind him, were all the other members of the Royal Family, except Prince Henry of Prussia.

The service was conducted entirely without music. It consisted of a portion of the burial service of the Church of England, the 90th Psalm, a reading from the First Epistle to the Corinthians, and the Benediction. The congregation rendered the responses. Immediately after its conclusion, Emperor William and the Empress drove back to Hamburg.

General Vyron Leaves.

Tien Tsin, Aug. 9.— General Vyron, commander of the French forces, left here to-day. A detachment of British troops was sent as a guard of honor to the station. Gen. Von Lessel, the German commander, leaves Tien Tsin to-morrow.

Given a Gold Watch.

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 8.—Cobourg friends of Mr. Burris Gahan, B. A., last night, on the eve of Mr. Gahan's departure for Toronto to fill a position on the staff of The Globe, presented him with a handsome gold watch.

Labor Department Forwards Petition to the C. P. R. President.

SHAFFER AND COMPERS CONFER

Latter Will Not Say How Steel Strike Situation Strikes Him, a Conference Will Continue—Knights of Labor Active in Re the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Ottawa, Aug. 9. — Immediately on the receipt of the communication from the railway mail clerks on Thursday the Labor Department communicated with Mr. Shaughnessy in reference to the matter, transmitting the message received from the petitioners.

The Trackmen's Strike.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Donald Wilkinson, chairman of the Toronto committee of the C.P.R. striking trackmen, has received letters from Owen Sound, Winnipeg, Port Arthur, McAdam Junction, Quebec and Vermilion Bay, stating that the men are firm.

A representative of the local strikers has returned from a trip over the Havelock division, He reports all the men there are out. In some sections it costs the company $10.35 a day to guard the tracks.

A resolution expressing determination to stand firm was taken over the route and signed by 45 section foremen and men.

THE STEEL STRIKE.

Shaffer and Gompers Confer—Initial Success of the Trust in Starting Mills—Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association devoted yesterday to a conference with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who came here for a personal study of the situation before committing himself or his immense organization in any manner. The conference reached no conclusion, and, unless there is an alteration of plans, will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

President Gompers declined to state the result of their deliberations, and would say nothing other than that he had come here to look the situation over and consult with President Shaffer. President Shaffer also declined to talk about the conference.

Mills in Operation.

The Steel Corporation succeeded yesterday in getting the Farm mill at the Lindsay & McCutcheon plant, and another mill at the Clarke works, in operation. They also received reports that at Hyde Park Wednesday night four of the mills did perfect work and an announcement from Wellsville that the strike was virtually over there. They met with no opposition at any of the four points where they have re-opened mills, and expressed satisfaction at the progress made. The strikers insist that there are not enough men at the Lindsay & McCutcheon establishments to operate the one mill started, and predicted that it would close down during the day. It was kept going, however, until night. It is planned to open another mill at Lindsay & McCutcheon and also to start the Painter mill and Chartier's plant at Carnegie, but just when they will be started remains to be seen.

The Steel Corporation is evidently putting forth its greatest effort at Pittsburg, the headquarters of the strike, for the moral effect elsewhere.

Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Washington, Aug. 9.—District Assembly No. 66 of the Knights of Labor last night authorized its Legislative Committee to bring quo warranto proceedings against the Attorney-General of the United States to show cause why he has not enforced the provisions of the Anti-Trust Law, known as the Sherman Act. This action, which will be instituted to-day, is aimed at the United States Steel Corporation, which will be, it is alleged, operating in violation of the Sherman Act. Labor leaders in this city say this will hasten a solution of the strike now in progress.

MOVEMENTS OF MINISTERS.

Where Members of the Dominion Cabinet Are or Purpose Going.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Hon. Sydney Fisher leaves on Saturday for Brome, and will probably remain there until September. Hon. Clifford Sifton and Hon. F. W. Borden are expected to-day, the former from Gananoque and the latter from Canning, N. S. Sir Louis Davies may be in town on Saturday, and, if not then, is looked for on Monday. Hon. D. Mills goes west to-day to enjoy a short vacation on his farm. Hon. F. W. Borden, Colonel Pinault and Col. Macdonald have been invited to attend the opening of the new rifle range at Point aux Trembles. It is not known yet whether any of them will be able to accept.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is to be noted that the death of the Dowager Empress of the Germans causes the Princess Louise of Wales, the King's eldest daughter, to become Princess Royal of England. The Princess is the wife of the Duke of Fife, whom she married in 1889. She may not be first fiddle but she is certainly first Fife in the Royal orchestra.

It is reported that the honour of of a knighthood is to be conferred upon Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy, the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the visit of the Duke of York to Canada. A part of the ceremony consists in the accolade—striking the investee upon the shoulder with a naked sword. If it is desired to make the job a good one, some of the "striking" C. P. R. trackmen should be employed in wielding the sword — doubtless it would come down on the presidential shoulders like the fall of a spike hammer.

Canada is certainly favoured by Providence. While Ohio, Nebraska and Southern Indiana are having gloomy forebodings for the late corn, the staple crop of these States, the northwestern part of Canada is rejoicing over a bountiful harvest — Scripture measure, running over, shaken down and pressed together. We are sincerely thankful for ourselves and sorry for our neighbours. A short crop is often a greater calamity than appears on the surface. It may decide between the mortgage being lifted, or the happy home of some hard toiling family passing into the hands of the money lender.

Those who claim that the Church of England is far older than since Henry VIII, while others assert it was established during his reign, have their contention strengthened by the following circumstance: A 999-year lease expired in London the other day, and the property reverted to th original possessor, the chapter of Westminster parish. The Church of England regards this fact as unassailable proof that she has lasted as a distinct national organization for a thousand years, though claimed by another great ecclesiastical power to be a comparatively modern creation of a very un-Christian King.

EDUCATED FOR BUSINESS.

Growth of the Business College Idea—Organization of the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario.

In a day marked by the consolidation of business interests perhaps no more important step has been taken than the recent organization under the name of the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, of nine of the most widely known and oldest established business colleges of the province. This Federation includes the British American Business College, of Toronto, Ontario, established over forty years, with Mr. David Hoskins, C. A., principal; Forest City Business College, of London, Ontario, with Mr. J. W. Westervelt, principal; Hamilton Business College, Hamilton, Ontario, with Mr. C. R. McCullough, principal; The Sarnia (Nimmo's) Business College, Sarnia, Ontario, with Mr. W. Brooks, principal; The Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa, Ontario, with Mr. S. T. Willis, principal; The Galt Business College, Galt, Ontario, with Mr. G. E. Wiggins, principal; The Berlin College, Berlin, with Mr. A. W. Young, principal; The Royal Business College, Guelph, Ontario, with J. W. Wiggins, principal; and the St. Catherines Business College, St. Catherines, Ontario, with Mr. T. F. Wright, principal.

Among the advantages that will come to young men and women preparing themselves for the activities of business by putting themselves in close touch with so strong an amalgamation of business educators will be very obvious to students themselves as well as to parents and guardians. It means a combining of business wisdom that must help unmistakably to advance the material interests of young men and women. Located in the leading commercial centres of the province, a wide door of possibilities opens when the student shall have completed his course. It is a rule of the colleges that the student entering one college can at any time be transferred to any other college in the Federation, and they have the choice at any time of the entire nine large and well managed colleges.

A very handsome prospectus of the Federated Business Colleges has just been issued from the press—a piece of work that reflects credit on everyone who has had a hand in the preparation of it—and especially valuable to all who contemplate taking a business education because of the valuable information contained between its handsome covers.

A copy of this prospectus will be sent to anyone who will make application to the school nearest his or her home.

WALLACEBURG SUGAR FACTORY.

What the Machinery and Equipment Cost.

The contract price for the Wallaceburg beet sugar factory buildings, exclusive of the cooperage, is about $600,000. The main building will be 260 x 65, four stories high, with warehouse attached 290 x 65, two stories high. The boiler house will be 150 x 65, two stories high, and the lime house will be 72 x 50, two stories high. The main office will be 60 x 35, two stories, and elaborately finished with all modern conveniences. The buildings are to be wholly of brick, cement and stone, with steel roofs. The storage building for sugar will connect with the main building, and is to be 200 feet long, two stories high, of brick and iron. There are to be ten beet sheds, with a storing capacity of from 15,000 to 18,000 tons of beets, each of which is to be 400 feet long. A complete electric light plant will be constructed on the grounds, the mill and yards to have arc lamps and incandescents. The machinery will include a Corliss engine and eight boilers. One hundred tons of coal will be consumed each day, and the plant will be capable of cutting up daily 700 tons of beets. If the acreage along the rivers will warrant it the company intend building about twenty small barges, so they can be distributed all along the banks where beets are grown. In this way farmers can load twenty or thirty tons in a boat and send them in, thus saving labour and expense. When it is considered that there are fully sixty miles of navigation within a radius of 12 miles of Wallaceburg, and every foot of the adjacent country beet soil it will readily be seen that twenty barges can be operated so as to save an enormous sum in cash for delivering as compared with teaming. The company have made every arrangement to have the factory completed by August 1, 1902. Everything will be in readiness in a week or ten days' time to begin writing contracts for acreage for their first campaign. The Wallaceburg papers say that the indications are that the acreage will be signed in a short time as applications are already coming in from every direction for contracts from growers. Computed in car loads the company expect to handle seventeen hundred carloads of beets during the season.

IT COST MONEY.

Many a man has spent all his earnings in trying to get rid of rheumatism. It cost Mr. James Davison, Oconto, Ont., between $1,000 and $2,000 before he tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. He was a helpless invalid for six years but suffered from sciatica in his hip joint for ten years. Six bottles cured him completely and he is now working his farm. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

FAVORED BY FORTUNE.

Santos Dumont, the Brazilian Dirigible Balloon Man, Has a Narrow Escape from Death at Paris.

Paris, Aug. 9.—M. Santos Dumont, the aeronaut, yesterday morning again attempted to circle the Eiffel Tower. Santos Dumont started from the Parc de St. Cloud at 6.10 a. m., amid hearty cheers. His initial movements were promising, as the balloon turned around the Eiffel Tower nine minutes and 34 seconds after starting and re-headed for St. Cloud. Just over the Avenue Henri Marion, however, a strong gust of wind struck the aerostat, which veered violently to one side, almost simultaneously bounding backwards a distance of 50 yards. The hydrogen gas was forced from the front to the back part of the balloon, creating a sudden expansion, which caused the machine to dip. Her screw touched the steel cords and broke them.

M. Santos Dument immediately stopped the motor, and the balloon began to descend. Unfortunately, the cover of the aerostat struck the corner of a six-storey building. A report like the shot of a cannon followed. The balloon collapsed and fell rapidly. Luckily the frame caught on the coping of the building, and the balloon remained suspended, otherwise Santos Dumont would have been killed. As it was the aeronaut hung in a most dangerous position in midair for half an hour, until by a great effort he succeeded in catching the iron bar of a window, to which he clung until rescued with some difficulty by the use of ropes. He escaped without a scratch and superintended the removal of the machine.

The explosion of the balloon attracted enormous crowds, and the reception of M. Santos Dumont upon reaching the street was most enthusiastic, many ladies clinging to his neck and kissing him repeatedly.

The balloonist said he was quite ready to recommence operations.

M. Deutsch, who offered the prize of 100,000 francs for the rounding of the Eiffel Tower and the return to the starting point within a given period of time, was so affected by the danger that Santos Dumont had passed through that he told him that he would rather present him with the prize at once than see him kill himself with his experiments, but the balloonist replied that he had rounded the Eiffel Tower in such a short period of time that he considered the result too satisfactory to permit the relinquishment of his attempts in the future.

Complicated Ailments.

A Remarkable Case of Kidney and Liver Disorders and Extreme Nervousness Cured by the Combined Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food.

The strongest combination in medicines that one can well imagine is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The kidney-liver pills regulate and invigorate the liver, kidneys and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and thoroughly builds up the system.

Mr. Walter Booth, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for some years with kidney and liver disease, and pains in my back, and my stomach was so bad I could not eat hearty food, and had difficulty in keeping any food on my stomach. I was so nervous that I could scarcely take a drink of water without spilling much of it, my hand trembled so, and I lost flesh until my weight fell from 155 to 138 pounds. "Hearing of a similar case that was cured by Dr. Chase's Remedies, I commenced by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Pills, six boxes of which entirely cured my kidney and liver troubles. I then began Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my nervousness. It strengthened my stomach and whole system, and I gained in flesh. I cannot speak in terms of too great praise for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food, for besides curing me, they did my father, who is an old man, a great deal of good. I have every confidence in recommending these remedies."

Mr. J. J. Ward, J .P., certifies that he knows Mr. Walter Booth, and that this statement of his cure is perfectly correct.

As a spring restorative Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled. If the bowels are constipated and the kidneys and liver sluggish and inactive, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills can be used to advantage, along with the Nerve Food. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurances in force to the extent of $16,759,355,-92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634,68. The Increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

FOOD OF THE GODS.

Prof. Robertson Urges More Scientific Treatment in Cultivation and Care of Apples—Improvements in Storage.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The Apple Shippers' Convention was addressed by Prof. Robertson of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at the Pavilion yesterday afternoon. He said too many people start growing apples without taking the trouble to learn how. It required education to be successful, but not the education of the professor, who boasted of being able to name 150 varieties at sight. One grower boasted that he had 600 varieties in his orchard. This was suicidal, as mixed shipments were not as salable as selected grades. He believed that, in a district, say, as large as from Toronto to Owen Sound, north of St. Catharines, apple growers should devote themselves to not more than 10 or 12 varieties, which would give, in the various districts, over 100 Canadian varieties.

After giving some practical advice to the delegates to act as educators rather than censors of apple growers, he explained the Canadian arrangements now in operation to protect shippers from careless handling of consignments on the railways and steamships.

Prof. Robertson put in a plea for illustration stations, and said that a two-acre lot, under a superintendent, in each district, would be of great value in teaching the best methods of growing, grading, packing and shipping.

He believed the bill which came into effect on July 1 would have a valuable influence in preventing fraudulent marking of shipments.

Canadian officials were engaged in England, watching the unloading and prompt delivery of apple shipments, and, after this month, the names of steamers, in which consignments were negligently handled, would be published in an official bulletin by the Department of Agriculture.

A number of steamers going from Montreal were being provided with specially ventilated storage accommodation for apple shipments, and it only required united effort on the part of Canadian growers, packers, buyers and shippers, to greatly increase the prosperity of this great branch of the agricultural industry.

W. H. Darnes, Secretary of the Kansas Horticultural Society, described the great success of that State as an apple-producing State.

G. T. Powell, Director of the School of Practical Agriculture and Horticulture of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., gave a short lecture on the possibilities of apple culture. He declared it to be a safe, sure and profitable calling for the young men of Canada, and North America.

Committees were appointed and Secretary Patch reported a membership of 215. Treasurer Wagner reported total receipts for the year of $945.57, balance on hand $188.67. He recommended an increase in the fee to $5. This was referred to the Finance Committee.

On a vote for the next place of meeting, Rochester got 26, Boston 3, and Niagara Falls, N. Y., 9.

Papers were read yesterday by E. N. Loomis, New York; D. S. Beckwith, Albion, N. Y.; C. H. Williams, Quincy, Ill., and C. Forester of New York.

The delegates this morning will meet to elect officers and pass committee reports.

On Magnetic Healing.

Much is spoken and written during these times about this mysterious method of treating disease. The most truly remarkable cases of magnetic healing which have come under the notice of the writer have been those in which Dr. Chase's Ointment was used. This preparation seems to have magical powers in stopping the dreadful itching, burning sensations of Salt Rheum and Eczema, and when used regularly makes the cure thorough and complete.

STEAMER KINCORA SUNK.

The Big White Star Liner Oceanic Struck Her Amidships and She Sank Rapidly—Seven Drowned.

Queenstown, Aug. 9. — The White Star Line steamer Oceanic, Capt. Cameron, which sailed from Liverpool Wednesday for New York, via Queenstown, arrived here yesterday morning, and reported having been in collision the night before in the Irish Channel with the steamer Kincora of Waterford, Ireland. The Kincora was struck amidships and sank very rapidly. She had a crew of fourteen men, seven of whom were drowned. The Oceanic brought the seven survivors to port.

The collision occurred this side of Tuskar in a dense fog. All of the passengers of the Oceanic were in bed at the time, and there was some commotion until Capt. Cameron assured them that there was not the least cause for alarm. Headway was kept on the Oceanic after she struck the Kincora in order to give the crew of the latter a chance to clamber on board. Boats were lowered, and the Oceanic remained in the vicinity of the collision until daylight, but nothing was then visible except floating wreckage.

The only damage done to the Oceanic consisted in a few dents to her port plates. She proceeded at 3.50 p.m.

The Kincora was a twin screw steamer of 453 tons, and belonged to the Waterford Steamship Company.

THE CLOSURE APPLIED.

An Exciting All-Night Session of House of Commons.

London, Aug. 9.—At 10 o'clock last night in a crowded and exciting session of the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour's new rule of voting estimates by wholesale closure, came into operation. Lumped in classes more than £67,000,000, were by this scheme voted in a series of divisions before 1 o'clock this morning, the government majorities always exceeding one hundred. The House was still in session at 5 a.m. The Irish members engaged in obstructive tactics with reference to various resolutions incidental to the final stages of the estimates, and Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, frequently moved the closure.

The House adjourned at 6 a. m., after numerous divisions under the closure. The Irish members kept up a continual opposition, but without disorderly scenes.

Sought Relief in Death.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Failure on the part of Dr. Overton F. Macdonald to obtain any relief from an illness which followed a severe attack of grippe, and which left him somewhat of an invalid, caused him to end his existence yesterday afternoon by shooting himself. The shooting took place about 2.30 o'clock at the physician's comfortable home and surgery at 329 College street, and the weapon used was a breach-loading shotgun. Dr. Macdonald, who was 37 years of age, married about three years ago Miss Adelaide Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Robert Sullivan of Trinity Square, and grand-daughter of the late Rev. H. Scadding, D.D. Besides his widow he left one daughter. He was a successful practitioner.

The Causes of Quarrel.

Paris, Aug. 8.—There are two matters pending between France and Turkey—the affair of the Quay Company, and a number of claims of Frenchmen against the Porte, the amount of which was fixed, and payment promised long ago. M. Constans has been unable to obtain satisfaction in either matter, and in May he intimated that he would be forced to ask for his recall if the Turkish Government persisted in its procrastinating tactics.

The French Minister, M. Delcasse, who returned to Paris yesterday, will see the Turkish Ambassador today.

Later in the day it became known that the French Government was seriously considering the question of suspending the Turkish bond quotations on the Paris Bourse, as the best available means of coercing Turkey.

Murder Caused By Jealousy.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 9.—Frederick Schultz, drunk and jealous, Wednesday night shot and killed his wife, and fatally wounded his 12-year-old step-daughter. Schultz had been drinking, and had some words with his wife, during which he worked himself into a frenzy. He secured his revolver and fired at his wife. The daughter was clinging to her mother's neck, and received one of the bullets. Schultz was captured after a long chase. The preliminary trial was held yesterday

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were large—79 carloads all told, composed of 1351 cattle, 892 hogs, 1316 sheep and lambs, with about 30 calves.

The demand for the best cattle in both the shipping and butcher classes was good, and prices for them were no lower. But the same cannot be said for common to medium cattle, as they were hard to sell, and prices were, if anything, easier. And several lots were unsold at the close of the market. Common butchers' cows were a drug, as there was little demand for outside markets.

Sure Cure for Sea Sickness, Nausea.

Maladies of this type yield instantly to Polson's Nerviline, and if you suffer periodically from these complaints, just keep Nerviline at hand. A few drops in sweetened water gives instant relief, and in the course of half an hour the cure is complete. A large 25c. bottle of Nerviline in the house will save doctor bills, and a vast amount of suffering every year.

Captain Found Responsible.

Liverpool, Aug. 9.—The Board of Trade Inquiry into the loss of the Leyland Line steamer Assyrian, June 5, near Cape Race, while on a voyage from Antwerp to Montreal, was concluded yesterday. Her commander, Capt. Dingle, was found responsible for the disaster, and his certificate was suspended for three months.

A Lad and Paris Green.

Kingston, Aug. 9. — A lad named Topping, a Marshmont Home boy, at the farm of Donald Hay, in Pittsburg, scattered Paris green in the cattle troughs and in a well, and then took a dose. He was found out and given emetics. He is recovering in the hospital here. The well and troughs have been cleansed.

SIXTEEN STAGES OF THE SLATER SHOE

No better object lesson can be found to teach how thoroughly a thing may be done when the object is to have it well done, than the exhibit in our south window, of the progressive

16 Stages of the Slater Shoe.

Here one sees the successive several operations from the skin of leather to the finished shoe. It shows the building up of the shoe, its gradual and symmetrical progress, the thorough work, the minute attention to detail, the determination of the manufacturers to produce the best of shoes—the Slater Shoe. There is no skimping of detail, no lack of fitting and finishing, of accurate, systematic work that results in the perfect shoe.

We sell the Slater Shoe. Any up-to-date dealer does. But in addition—for Slater Shoes are only a part of our selling—we have hundreds of excellent and reliable shoes. The variety is not so wide, that sizes so numerous, the differences in shape so important, for there is as much difference in feet as in faces, and we have to carry an ample stock to meet the requirements of all. Nothing that a good shoe store should have is lacking. But where the average dealer stocks fifty pair we stock five hundred. Just a few lines to suggest to men a nice shoe that will be comfortable, shapely, dressy and reliable:

Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, turn sole,	$1.50	Men's Dong. Kid Balmorals	2.50
Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, machine sewed,	1.50	Men's Camping and Boating Lace Balmorals	.85
Men's Dong. Chocolate Kid Bals., an up-to-date shoe in every respect	2.50	Men's Lacrosse Shoes	.55
Men's Dong. Kid Congress, Goodyear Welt,	3.00	Boys' Lacrosse Shoes	.50
		Youths' Lacrosse Shoes	.40
		Children's Lacrosse Shoes	.55

Just a mention of Ladies' Shoes. The stock is ample, the variety more than great, and the prices most reasonable.

A Runaway.

A horse attached to a buggy owned by Mr. J .A. E. Fitzgerald, ran from Mr. H. P. Lindsay's yard in the north end of the town at about noon to-day and made quite a stir on George street. An Enjoyable Voyage Down the River —Sports and Games at Jubilee Point —List of the Winners.

A very good crowd went to Jubilee by the City of Peterborough on All Saints' Sunday school excursion yesterday. The boat left sharp on time, and quite a number were left behind; some caught her at the locks. The day was all that could be desired, and the trip was unanimously pronounced one of the most enjoyable taken in—there was nothing to unpleasant from start to finish. The return began at 5 p.m., and the locks were reached at 7.45. There was a little delay here while the North Star was being locked through.

After dinner the usual races were run off. Messrs. Kingscote and Brown were starters; Messrs. Hopkins and Bell judges; Mr. "Jim" Bell called the several events, and Rev .W .L. Armitage gave out the prizes.

Rev. O. C. Elliott, formerly of the Park street Baptist church, was an interested participant in the enjoyment of the afternoon. He is camping in the vicinity.

THE ORILLIA EXCURSIONISTS

Went Home Well Pleased With the Hospitality of Peterborough.

The excursion of the Orillia firemen and their friends, who must be many, judging by the large figures of the excursion, was the first the firemen of that town have run to Peterborough in five years.

The Orillia firemen and band were well satisfied with their visit yesterday and were loud in their praise of the hearty hospitality that was extended them. They say they could not have been used better, and they will not forget Peterborough firemen and civic officials, who were so kind to them. The excursionists generally were also delighted with their visit to the town. The Orillia people do not forget old friends, and it is a tribute to Mr. Whiten, the photographer, who spent twenty-two years of his life in Orillia, that the band from that town which accompanied the excursion, honoured Mr. Whiten with a serenade, whose appreciation by Mr. Whiten, and the citizens who enjoyed the music, was only equalled by the excellence of the programme rendered. We shall be pleased to see our Orillia neighbours again.

VATICANS WON FROM ORILLIA.

Lacrosse Match on P.A.A.A. Grounds Yesterday.

SCORE WAS SEVEN TO TWO.

Many Citizens Witnessed the Game—Vaticans are a Speedy Little Aggregation—Notes on the Game.

The Orillia Lacrosse Team, Intermediate Champions of the Canadian Lacrosse Association for their district visited Peterborough yesterday, and were defeated by the Vaticans of town by a score of 7 goals to 2. The visitors came to Peterborough with the Orillia firemen, and had therefore their share of supporters at the match. The Fire Brigade Band, which accompanied the excursionists to town, was in attendance at the game, and rendered lively music at intervals throughout the afternoon.

A game of lacrosse in Peterborough has of late been looked upon as a sort of novelty, many having about come to the conclusion that the National Game was becoming extinct. However, if one were to judge from the enthusiasm displayed at yesterday's game there is reason to believe that before long Peterborough will possess a speedy aggregation of stick handlers, and the Peterborough public will be afforded an opportunity of witnessing some exciting games. The attendance yesterday was large, and included a good representation of the fair sex. There were present many of those who in years gone by have won honours for themselves on the lacrosse field, many who have attended lacrosse games as played in the olden times, and many of the younger people, who are longing for a revival of the National Game in Peterborough. A match between an Orillia and a Peterborough team could not help but arouse interest, for the exciting times of some years ago, when the two teams were battling for supremacy in the Intermediate Series of the C.L.A. are fresh in the minds of all. However, a lapse of a year or so has created quite a change. As the two teams lined up there was a marked difference in the personnel of the teams from the days of some years ago. On the home team only two faces were familiar to the older enthusiasts, and these were James McCabe and George Lipsett; they played at inside and outside homes respectively, and whilst they have had little or no practice the benefit of their experience and calm judgment, had a tendency to inspire confidence in the remaining juveniles, while at the same time they bothered the defence of the visitors with telling shots.

Boyle, "Gunner Dick Boyle," as he is more familiarly known, was between the flags and is accountable for only two shots passing into the nets. He played his usual steady steady game, but would no doubt have enjoyed the game better had he had a little more to do. Ed. Dillon, big, strong and mighty, who shows up in all his majestic physique when in lacrosse attire, played at point. His reliable work, bodying powers and relieving were noticeable features of the game. George Mein, Anglesey, Mahoney and Dusty were a great quartette in front of Dillon, and fed the home incessantly. Dunford played centre, and on the home field, Robertson, Morgan and Anglesey were a speedy three. Robertson is a western Ontario player who has located in town, and knows how to play the game if ever a man did. Morgan gets around in the same happy-go-easy manner as he does on the hockey ice, but with telling effect nevertheless. J. Anglesey, the captain of the team, is a promising man, and takes a great interest in his men.

The teams lined up as follows:

Orillia.	Peterborough.
	Goal.
A Areno	D Boyle
	Point.
W Rose	E Dilion
	Cover Point.
E Hinds	G Mein
	First Defence.
J Johnston	T Anglesey
	Second Defence.
J McLean	E Mahoney
	Third Defence.
J Halnds	O Dusty
	Centre.
D Regan	H Dunford
	Third Home.
M Tesky	M Robertson
	Second Home.
J Millichamp	H Morgan
	Third Home.
T Hanley	J Anglesey
	Outside Home.
O Rose	G Lipsett
	Inside.
C Hammond	J McCabe

The Orillia team for the first few minutes appeared to be getting the best of the game but the locals soon got down to business. An occasional bit of combination work on the part of the Orillia team was applauded, but the local men showed the crowd that they could do the same, and they did so before the game was over. The match however was not very brilliant in the ordinary sense as both teams are comparatively inexperienced. The Peterboorugh men need coaching, and until they get that lacrosse of the lightning variety will not be seen. But for a new team, as before stated, the exhibition was good and much appreciated.

In the first quarter no goals were scored; in the second the score stood 2—1 in favour of Peterborough; in the third 5—2 in favour of Peterborough; and at the final 7—3.

The scoring was done by Robertson, Lipsett, McCabe and Anglesey.

It was a clean game, devoid of roughness, accidents or the like, and not a player was even cautioned. The idea of playing the match in four quarters is all right—at least it worked all right yesterday.

The referee was Mr. M. Halpin, whose knowledge of the game is well known. He officiated, as might be expected, in a faultless manner.

Mr. "Pat" Kelly field captained the team, and was as enthusiastic as ever.

Mr. Ernie Taylor, manager of the team, deserves every credit for the manner in which the arrangements were carried out.

MR. LEARY'S NEW VENTURE.

He Has Been Appointed Agent for the McLaughlin Carriage Company.

Mr. W. H. Stevenson, general agent for the McLaughlin Carriage Co., of Oshawa, has been in town for the past few days and has transferred the local agency of his company at No. 383 Water street from Mr. Henry Owens' to Mr. R. H. Leary, Peterborough's well known liveryman. The McLaughlin Agency is one of the best established carriage emporiums in this district, and was until recently conducted by the late Thomas Cochrane. Mr. Leary's obliging disposition and his great knowledge of carriages insures for his firm a continuation of the patronage they have hitherto enjoyed. It is his intention to place in a complete new line of vehicles, and Mr. Con. Clancy will be engaged to assume charge of the ware rooms. That Mr. Leary will make a success of his new enterprise there is no doubt as is exemplified from his success in other lines.

Of course this will in no way interfere with Mr. Leary's present business.

BAND TO-NIGHT.

The 57th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Prof. R. Gliddon, will appear in Victoria Park this evening and will render one of their excellent programmes.

The Bad is All Out.

To be sure you can't take the bad out of everything. But you can out of some things at any rate. Take cod liver oil for instance with its disagreeable odor and taste; in Scott's Emulsion all the bad has been taken out, and you have just the oil without anything disagreeable. It is called "Cod Liver Oil made easy."

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

George Harrison Sent to Cobourg to Appear Before the Judge.

The Campbellford Herald contains the following item concerning George Harrison, well known to the local hockey players:

Truly "the way of the transgressor is hard." George Harrison, a young man of respectable family connections, resided in Campbellford last winter and played hockey. Soon after the season ended he found employment with Mr. Duncan Kerr, proprietor of the St. Lawrence Hall hotel, and his services as porter, bar tender and assisting in the dining room, were for a time satisfactory.

On the 19th of June, however, he became crusty and ruffled in temper on being reprimanded by Mr. Kerr for breaking some articles he was carrying to and from the dining room, and as a sequel to the words which passed between them—as is now well known in Campbellford—Harrison proceeded to his room, picked up a revolver and pointing it at Mr. Kerr, threatened to shoot him.

At 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon Harrison appeared before Police Magistrate Lynch, for preliminary investigation. The charge read to him was for having on the 19th of June attempted to shoot Duncan Kerr in Campbellford, with the intent to do him grievous bodily harm.

The Magistrate committed the prisoner to stand his trial at Cobourg and Harrison was again placed in custody of Constable Smith, and conveyed to Cobourg on the evening train.

FOR WIFE DESERTION.

A Young Man Appeared Before the Campbellford Police Magistrate.

Mr. Charles Dunk, a young man of Campbellford, who has been married only a few years, appeared before the Police Magistrate of Campbellford on a charge of having deserted his wife and child.

For months past Dunk has resided in Cornwall, where he secured steady employment in a woollen mill, and besides being gay and making a dressy appearance, it is said he was paying attention to a young woman, leaving his wife here with a little son of three years, without a home, and struggling against adverse circumstances for a maintenance.

On Thursday afternoon he answered to the following charge: "That he omitted without lawful excuse to provide for his wife the necessaries of life, whereby her health is now and was likely to be permanently injured, contrary to section 210 of the Criminal Code."

To this Dunk pleaded guilty, and consented to be tried by the Magistrate.

Instead of committing the prisoner to jail, Magistrate Lynch used his authority in commuting the imprisonment to a fine of $5, and ordered him to furnish bonds, himself in the sum of $500, and sufficient security of $500, that he would keep the peace and be of good behaviour towards his wife for two years, and in default that he should be imprisoned for one year. An agreement was signed by him and guaranteed by his father that he would pay his wife $2.50 a week each week for the period of one year.

OUR SUMMER RESORTS.

A Budget of News From Stony Lake.

What the Eko Camp Boys are Doing—Visitors at the Various Camps.

The gaiety at Stony Lake this season is surpassing anything in this line in previous years. There is an impromptu hop every evening at the Juniper Island pavilion, and the crowds which attend are unprecedented in size.

If the Cottagers' Association would make some arangements with Mr. T. W. Robinson to leave his lantern burning at the top of the flag pole until a somewhat later hour than eleven o'clock, it would be a great convenience to campers who are returning to their homes between eleven and twelve o'clock. Eleven o'clock is generally the flitting hour and it is at this time that the light disappears. As it is a splendid beacon and of great assistance at night something should be done in the matter.

Alderman John Sawers has made a careful estimate of the number of campers who are at present at the lake, and thinks that three thousand is a conservative number.

The Eko boys had some young lady visitors on Tuesday and Wednesday, and the first evening gave the finest exhibition of fireworks, in front of Victoria House, which has ever been seen on the lake. Wednesday evening they had a big bonfire.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry LeBrun have big party at Belle Chasse. On Saturday all went up to the second falls on Eel's Creek and a set of lancers was danced on the big flat rock, which is one of the features of the locality.

The catch of lunge this week in the neighbourhood of the Victoria House has been something of a record breaker. On Wednesday Mr. Larry Bennett got a nice 15 pounder, Mr. Charlie Bradburn landed one weighing 13 1-4 pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Weatherspoon, of Rochester, secured four very fine ones and Mr. Gordon Campbell, youngest son of Mr. Peter Campbell, of Peterborough, caught a fine ten pounder. Gordon, or "Pete" as he is more familiarly known, had quite an experience with his fish. The big fellow left the water three times in his endeavour to shake the hook from his mouth. He got rid of it in the last jump, but it was this jump which landed him in the boat and a quick blow from a club in the hands of Sheriff Hall gave the fish its quietius and effectually put an end to any further attempts to escape. Mr. K. G. Lech also caught a very gamey lunge the same day.

A big dance is anticipated at the pavilion on Saturday evening, when quite a number are coming up from town.

Mr. Sutherland, of Toronto, formerly general manager of the Temperance Life Insurance Co., is building a very fine cottage and boat house on Eagle Mount.

Hardly a day passes but there is some exciting canoe races held off McCracken's Landing. Mr. K. G. Lech holds the championship up to date.

The following guests have recently registered at Victoria House, McCracken's Landing:—W G Luke, Oshawa; W D Scoefield, L W Wehn, Rochester, N. Y.; Levi J Fallis, Miss Flo Hall, Mrs. W H Armstrong, Miss L Garrow, Willis Garrow, Les Scott, Peterborough; Miss E Blackwell, Glencoe; P F Bocarini, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W G Weatherspoon, Rochester, N. Y.; N J Dingman, Kingston; W Rudkins, A L F Hall, A O Dumble, Peterborough; Victor Ferguson, Toronto; S Holland, F D Allison, R E Wood, Peter Campbell, R M Glover, Mr. and Mrs. J A Paterson, Peterborough; W B Choate, Aurora, Illinois; Mrs. J N Klein, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. J G Tate, Peterborough; Mrs. J B Tate, St. Thomas; Miss H Barker, Peterborough; Jas. Head, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F H Hanlon, Batavia, N. Y.; Miss L Hanlon, Pittsburg, Pa.; G S Smith, Perry, N. Y.; A M Sloman, Milton S Adler, Jesse Kochenthal, Alex Jacobi, Rochester, N. Y.; C E Preston, Lindsay; A Corneil, Toronto.

FROM EKO CAMP.

On Tuesday four ladies, Mrs. Tate and sister, Mrs. Tate, sr., mother of the boys, and Miss Barker, came up to visit "Eko." "Bro. Jim" (Marks) borrowed a suit of clothes and tried to appear respectable.

Yesterday, while some of the boys were in swimming, "Dido" was paddling around in a canoe dressed faultlessly, when "Fat Willie" (Higgins) seized the canoe and upset him. He swam to shore, and emptied his pockets, which contained a beautiful fountain pen (which one of the ladies immediately claimed as hers,) a shinplaster, and a cut of a new style ladies' shirt waist, which he claims he can sell at $9.00 per doz. He is now on the look-out for a chance to retaliate.

The entire camp took in a dance at Juniper on Tuesday and on returning made night hideous for the guests at Victoria House with their camp yell and discharging sky rockets, etc. Some of the residents of North Dummer came in next day saying they had heard a hyena yelling the previous eve, but on investigation we found it had been Bill Comstock clamouring for admittance, as he suspected the boys were enjoying a lunch.

We see very little of Bob and Fred, but we have good grounds to suspect that they are hanging around "Viamede," as they have been seen sailing home from that direction in the "wee sma oors." Bring the ladies over boys, Jim would be pleased to meet them.

The boys are going up to White Lake some afternoon this week for a fish. They intend camping there over night and visiting the Blue Mountains next day. It is a delightful trip.

ALL SAINTS' BOYS' BRIGADE.

In Camp at Jubilee Point—Incidents of the Outing.

In Camp at Jubilee Point. Tuesday, Aug. 6th.

The Brigade arrived at Jubilee Point at 6 o'clock, Tuesday, Aug. 6, and formed up for attack, but the enemy having retired, the Point was taken without any resistance. After a little scouting to see that no enemy was in sight, we pitched tents and made arrangements for supper, and the way the boys charged on the rations was something terrible, "Fatty" Webb being the hero of the day.

After rations we had prayers in which the boys all joined heartily. Prayers being over we prepared for sleep, but daylight next morning found us still awake, and telling of the awful things we were going to do, and fighting mosquitoes.

Wednesday was wet, and consequently little was done, but the Brigade was in good humour; we are a fine lot of well behaved and manly fellows. In the afternoon it cleared a little and some of the boys went fishing. "Skin" Gilbert came in carrying a small whale, which weighed eight pounds, and felt as if he were entitled to a Victoria Cross, which will have to be considered.

Thursday, Aug. 8th.—The boys asked to be excused from drill as friends and relatives from Peterborough are expected on that day, with stores and provisions for the warriors to enable them to finish their campaign.

The City of Peterborough arrived at 11.20 a.m., and was given a Royal salute—visions of good things make boys lusty and strong. Very soon the red coats dotted the many tables, for the boys had "engagements for dinner." The members of the Beavers' baseball team were also entertained prior to their game with the Brigade. After the races of the Sunday school, in which some of the boys were winners, the game of baseball was played, resulting 15 to 10 in favour of the Beavers. Mr. T. H. Hooper was a most unbiased umpire. In this attack upon the enemy the brigade was not well supported by the "battery," the regular pitcher was absent. However, a large amount of "stores and mealies" were taken, which Sergt. Trussler says is a good result in modern warfare. The Brigade lost one man, not killed, but invalided home. The enemy seeing the Rainbow coming, escaped by the river route to the north. Needless to say, the camp so far has been most successful.

CHEMONG LAKE.

Long may thy waves lap soft,
Sweet water, with the sweeter name,
Long may thy pines breathe health,
Kissed by thy sunset flame,
Chemong, fair lake and shore.

Give me thy love, fair lake,
The love that smiles upon thy breast,
Turn tears to smiles, and take Care and fear, leave all the rest,
Chemong, dearest and more.

Priceless thy gifts, sweet queen,
Thy stars my gems, thy moon my crown,
Thy waves my organ note;
Thy shadows are thine own,
Chemong, as oft they lower.

Tell all thy fairy tales
For me, my sweet, thy tales of old;
Tell me with mournful wails
Thy secret, while I fold
Thee to myself once more.

Tell me how braves and maids
Breathed love beneath thy pines,
Tell me how war songs clanged,
How victory wrought its lines,
Chemong, upon thy shore.

Tell me, sweet spirit of the lake,
How time has sped, and years have gone,
How braves and maids of old and now
Have worshipped at thy throne,
Chemong, forever more.

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

DREAMS WHICH HAPPEN.

A Robbery That Was Witnessed by a Woman During Sleep.

A lady spending the summer in the country, some 20 miles from her city residence, dreamed that the latter was robbed, she herself being a witness of the robbery. In her dream she saw two men, one of whom limped, in the act of rummaging some trunks in the hall. A candle stuck by means of its own wax on the newel post illuminated the scene with a dim light.

After finishing their work with the trunks the men went up stairs to a closet, from which they removed curtains and hangings stored for the summer months. The dreamer observed that they overlooked her most valuable curtains, which had been placed well back on upper shelves.

Suddenly she seemed to be transported to her birthplace at Auburn, N. Y., where she especially noted the bronze figure of an Indian which surmounts the prison edifice.

At breakfast the next morning she related her vivid dream to those present, five of whom are now living and vouch for the fact. Subsequently it was found that the city house had been entered and robbed. On the newel post were the marks of the candle. The curtains had all been taken but the best set, which were found where the dreamer had seen them.

Suspicion was directed to a painter who had been at work on the house, who was lame and who disappeared immediately after the robbery. Investigation of this man's character showed that he had served a term in the Auburn penitentiary

BECAME ALARMED.

Dundas Farmer Pulled up in Time to Save His Life.

Donald George Ross, a farmer, near Dundas, was travelling down the road that leads to misery and death. For three years he had been on that road, slowly but surely making his way to the certain goal.

Donald Ross had Dyspepsia. For three years his head had ached and his nerves had been racked because his stomach was weak and could not digest his food. And the less nourishment he got from his food the weaker his stomach as well as the rest of his body became, because the stomach receives its strength from the food we eat like every other organ and member.

However, Mr. Ross did not finish his journey on that road. He pulled up in time. He cured his Dyspepsia. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were the means of actually saving his life, for Mr. Ross himself says nothing else would have cured him. Perhaps his own letter will state the case better than anything else.

"For about three years," he writes, "I have been troubled with Headaches and Nervousness caused by Dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. Doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would never get cured. I became alarmed and consulted one of the best doctors in Hamilton, but no use. I could not get help. Then I heard about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I tried them. I found them all they are claimed to be. They gave me a complete cure. I can highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any one troubled as I was."

If you have Dyspepsia try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are only fifty cents a box. They will surely help you.

A Shepherd Bird.

The yakamik, a species of crane, is said to be one of the most intelligent birds known. The bird is used by the natives of Venezuela, South America, in the place of shepherd dogs for guarding and herding their flocks of sheep. It is said that, however far the yakamik may wander with the flocks, it never fails to find its way home at night, driving before it all the creatures intrusted to its care.

GODS FOR PLAYTHINGS.

The Strange Significance of Dolls Among the Moqui Indians.

It is a curious feature of the religion of the Moqui Indians, the "snake dancers" of New Mexico, that during one of their famous dances dolls representing katcinas or gods are distributed to all the village children. In the Peabody museum at Harvard university there is a collection of nearly 100 of these grotesque idols which were once the playthings of children, but now form an exhibit of peculiar interest to the student of ethnology.

The dolls, although they appear to be of all sorts and sizes, are nevertheless shaped and painted according to an unvarying rule applicable to that particular one of the 60 or 70 katcinas which each is intended to represent. On them are depicted a great variety of arbitrary signs indicating, for example, the lightning or the thundercloud or the hail or the rain storm or some animal. Often the rainbow is carved over their heads, and many of them bear a curious headdress in the form of a thin tablet of wood, which is cut in an archaic but symmetrical pattern of much elaboration and ornamented with eagles' and owls' feathers.

Most of the special symbolism is to be looked for in the carving and making of the masked heads, while the bodies belong to more or less general types. Sometimes they are painted on both sides alike and sometimes differently. Some of them are naked and some of them wear blankets or the dance kilts. Most of them vary in height from six inches to a foot and a half. But there are several in the Harvard collection which are nearer four feet. One of these latter is a composite figure, one doll bearing another on its head, with a third above the second.

Not only does the religion of the Moqui appear in the universal masking of the dolls, but also in the selection of the tree from which they are made, the cottonwood being sacred since it grows along the water courses, the most precious possession of the Indians. The dolls are carved from the root, which is very light and so soft that it may be cut with the greatest ease. The dolls are now whittled out with jackknives, but in the old days before the white man came stone knives were used, and even now the smoothing and polishing of the dolls is mainly done with a piece of sandstone. On account of their religious significance they are treated more respectfully than most dolls, and doubtless the little Moqui girl would often be glad of a less solemn toy for her plaything.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

The Chinaman's Dress.

Those who understand the subject have to admit that when it comes to the question of rational dress the Chinaman has very much the best of it. American clothes are not made for the performance of much stooping or domestic gymnastics, but the Chinaman, in his loose, easy fitting clothes, is as free to stoop, jump, run or turn handsprings as a small boy in bathing. In a Chinese suit of clothes you can lie down and sleep with the same amount of comfort that you can stand up and walk.

Comets of the Past Century.

During the nineteenth century 235 new comets were discovered as against 62 in the eighteenth century. The nineteenth century also beheld a greater number of large and brilliant comets than did its predecessor. The finest of these were the comets of 1811, 1843, 1858, 1881 and 1882. In the year 1800 only one periodical comet was known, Halley's. Now many are known, of which at least 17 have been seen at more than one return to perihelion.

Any one troubled with boils, pimples, rashes, festering sores or any chronic or malignant skin disease, should use Burdock Blood Bitters externally and take internally. It will cure where others fail. f

Concession to Superstition.

"Thirteen dollars and a half seems a high price for such a comparatively short trip," said the man with the traveling bag in his hand.

"We thought people would rather pay that than $13," replied the agent of the steamer line with an explanatory and apologetic cough.

"Some people," said Uncle Eben, "doesn't seem to take no special interest in tellin de troof 'ceppin when it's sumpin disagreeable."—Washington Star.

THE INTESTINES AND THEIR USE

Few people understand that it is in the intestines, which are about 25 feet long, that food is transformed into chyle, which being absorbed into the general circulation, is formed into blood. The intestines are composed of a spiral coil of muscles surrounded by a coating resembling celluloid and filled with millions of glands. The muscular walls serve to keep in motion the food which has been previously dissolved in the stomach, until the glands have absorbed all the chyle to sustain the human body, and finally force into the rectum all the waste or valueless material. The chief disease of the intestines is constipation through lack of muscular power. Then again many people are thin and emaciated, because the glands of the intestines are insufficiently active to abstract the food matter, hence much valuable nutriment goes to waste. In both these cases Merrill's System Tonic is a most valuable remedy. The alterative properties strengthen the glands and thin people find themselves taking on flesh without any apparent cause and the valuable tonics contained in System Tonic permanently cure constipation by strengthening the muscles of the intestinal walls. This is vastly a superior method to taking irritating pills or physic of which the use of one dose creates a greater necessity for another. If you are unreasonably thin or pale and troubled with irregularity of the bowels, Merrill's System Tonic is the only remedy that guarantees you a perfect cure in a reasonable time.

A TOAST.

Here's to a pair of sunny eyes
That laugh as I go by,
Yet, when I try to look in them,
Hide behind lashes shy;
But, ah, they're thieves! I saw them steal
Their blue from yonder sky.

Here's to a pair of tiny ears
As pink as any rose
Or like the lining of a shell,
But what do you suppose?
They stole my secret yesterday;
Now, everybody knows.

Here's to a pair of cherry lips
That smile in roguish glee,
Then when I come do swiftly pout,
But, oh, so temptingly!
They, too, are thieves, for, do you know,
They stole a kiss from me.

SLIPS OF THE PEN.

Queer Errors Perpetrated by Authors Who Knew Better.

When Mr. Anthony Trollope pictured Andy Scott as "coming whistling up the street with a cigar in his mouth," he not only proved that he had never made personal experiment of the double feat of smoking a cigar and whistling a tune, but he was unconsciously following in the steps of still greater writers who made their heroes do amazing and impossible things.

Those who remember their Robinson Crusoe may recall a most wonderful feat of this hero of childhood. When he decided to abandon the wreck and try to swim ashore, he took the precaution to remove all his clothes, and yet by some strange magic, of which the secret has been lost, the author makes him, when in this condition of nature, fill his pockets with biscuits.

The great Shakespeare himself had a peculiar facility for making the impossible happen in his plays. One of the most remarkable of these feats occurs in the fifth act of "Othello," when Desdemona, after she has been duly smothered by the Moor, comes to life again and enters into conversation quite rationally, even inventing a generous falsehood to shield him from the consequences of his crime before she decides to die. The improbability of a person recovering consciousness and speech after being smothered and of dying after performing such a feat scarcely needs pointing out.

Shakespeare, too, had a trick of introducing the most glaring anachronisms—so glaring, in fact, that there is more than a suspicion that they must have been introduced consciously for some unknown reason.

For instance, he makes a clock strike in ancient Rome at a time more than a thousand years before clocks were invented, when such an event would certainly have been the eighth wonder of the world.

Quite regardless of the evidence of geography, he transports Bohemia to the seaside, and he introduces a printing press long before the days of Gutenberg. He calmly introduces a billiard table into Cleopatra's palace and makes cannon familiar to King John and his barons.

Thackeray was no mean rival to Shakespeare in vagaries of this kind, but in his case they appear to have been the result of pure carelessness and forgetfulness. The most flagrant case perhaps is where, after burying Lady Kew and effectively dismissing her from the story, he brings her to life again to help him out with his plot, and in other cases his capacity for mixing up the names of his characters is as confusing as it is wonderful.

Emile Zola, in spite of his carefulness, makes the astonishing statement in one of his novels ("Lourdes") that the deaf and dumb recovered their hearing and sight, an event which savors very much of the miraculous.

The moon has innocently been the cause of much blundering on the part of authors. Wilkie Collins in some mysterious fashion made it rise on one important occasion in the west. Rider Haggard, in "King Solomon's Mines," contrives an eclipse of the new moon for the benefit of his readers, and Coleridge ingeniously places a star between the horns of the crescent moon as she rises in the east.

His Passport.

On one occasion Gustave Dore, the artist, lost his passport while on a tour in Switzerland. At Lucerne he asked to be allowed to speak to the mayor, to whom he gave his name.

"You say that you are M. Gustave Dore, and I believe you," said the mayor, "but," and he produced a piece of paper and a pencil, "you can easily prove it."

Dore looked around him and saw some peasants selling potatoes in the street. With a few clever touches he reproduced the homely scene and, appending his name to the sketch, presented it to the mayor.

"Your passport is all right," remarked the official, "but you must allow me to keep it and to offer you in return one of the ordinary form."

Why It Wouldn't Cook.

At a gas cookery exhibition an old farmer entered who, having listened to the merits of gas cooking stoves, ordered and paid for a cooker, which was duly sent to his home, a country village.

About three months after the said farmer called on the manager, complaining that the gas cooker was a fraud and that he had tried everything and nothing would cook in the "bloomin thing." The manager asked if anything was wrong with his gas, to which he replied:

"Gas! What's gas?"—London Answers.

An Obedient Patient.

An old doctor, whose memory was beginning to fail him, was called in to see a young man who was ill. On arriving at the house he found his patient in bed with nothing the matter with him but a slight cold. After prescribing the usual remedies, he said;

"Now, my dear sir, you must stay in bed till I come again."

He went away and forgot all about his patient. The time flew by. One day the doctor came across the young man's mother in the street. The sight of Mrs. Jones brought his patient to his mind, and with a start he said:

"By the bye, how is your son getting on?"

To his amazement Mrs. Jones replied that he was still in bed, obedient to his commands. He had been there three weeks!

Bankruptcy Humors.

Even bankruptcy has its humors. In London a solicitor appeared in the bankruptcy court recently with 7 pence to his credit, less than 1 penny per £1,000 of his debts. There was a touch of humor, too, in the notice which was sent out some time ago from the bankruptcy court at Dover, in which it was stated that a distribution of dividends was to be made of 15-16 penny in the pound. A tradesman whose debt was 25 shillings was informed that if he would call at the office, which meant a journey of 15 miles, he would, on presenting the proper form carefully filled up, receive the sum of 1 penny, or the amount would be sent by postal order or check if the necessary requirements were complied with.

The Errors of Others.

The little I have seen of the world teaches me to look upon the errors of others in sorrow, not in anger. When I take the history of one heart that has sinned and suffered and represent to myself the struggles and temptations it has passed through—the brief pulsations of joy, the feverish inquietude of hope and fear, the pressure of want, the desertion of friends—I would fain leave the erring soul of my fellow man with him from whose hand it came.

Big Advance in Animal Surgery.

The animal world has today a surgical science quite its own, says a London newspaper. There are dogs with artificial teeth, pigeons and cows with wooden legs, dogs with glass eyes and other animals with false hair, false tails and false limbs of all kinds. There is indeed hardly a limit to the possibilities of animal surgery.

After the Reconciliation.

Dooley—Say, Hooley, gin me a punch on th' jaw opposite phwere yez kicked me.

Hooley—Phat for?

Dooley—I want yez to straighten out me face.

Irving's Intensity.

The piercing eyes and intense expression of Henry Irving once had the effect of making a fellow actor altogether forget that he was on the stage et all. It occurred in Manchester during a performance of "Macbeth," and in the scene where Macbeth says to one of the murderers, "There's blood upon thy face!" Irving put so much earnestness into his words that the murderer forgot his proper answer ("'Tis Banquo's, then") and replied in a startled voice: "Is there? Great Scott!" He fancied, as he afterward said, that he had broken a blood vessel.

Unknown to the Lawyers.

Judge ——, one of the great lawyers of the last generation, charged a client a retainer of $1,000 in an important case, but the parties got together next morning and settled the suit before the judge had opened a book or written a line concerning it. His client called to see if he would not refund part of the money. The lawyer seemed surprised at the suggestion. "Refund!" he exclaimed. "Refund, did you say? My friend, that is a kind of fund unknown to the legal profession!"

BIG ENOUGH TO HIT.

So Thought the Small Boy, but the Man Thought Differently.

He wasn't very big, but he was a sturdy little chap with a face that bore the marks of much thinking and premature responsibility. I learned afterward that he was supporting a crippled mother and an invalid sister who had been left helpless in the world by the death of her father. He might have run away from home and evaded the responsibility, but he didn't think of it. He just sold papers.

At the loop on Fifteenth street a crowd was gathered, waiting for the evening cars. A ragged young girl was selling flowers at the Fifteenth street end of the waiting station when a man, rushing to catch his car, knocked her against the side of the building. Without stopping, probably not having noticed what he had done, he continued his rush, when the boy stepped in front of him defiantly.

"Say, what do you want to knock a girl down for? Hit me. I'm big enough."

The man paused in surprise and then glanced around. He saw the flower girl picking up her wares and understood. Without a moment's hesitation he went back to her, gave her enough money to make her eyes sparkle with joy and said:

"I'm sorry, my dear, that I hurt you. I didn't see." Then, turning to the boy, he continued: "You said you were big enough, young man, but you're a great deal bigger than you think. Men like you will have a lot to do with keeping this old world in a condition of self respect."

Then he caught his car, and the boy and the girl stood there wondering what he meant.

The Bladderwort.

The aquatic plant, the bladderwort, feeds on animal life. The tiny bladders attached to the leaves and leaf stalks are each furnished with a door, the whole acting on the eel trap principle. Any small water creature that ventures to peep in is seized in the clutches of the murderous plant and is at once swallowed and assimilated.

Two Happy Mortals.

He—If Herr Schulderowsky marries the rich banker's daughter, there'll be two happy people!

She—Indeed? Do you think they'll be so happy together?

He—I don't know about them, but his shoemaker and tailor will get their pay at last!

As a rule, a man's relatives will let him make almost any kind of a fool of himself without interference until he begins to give his money away.

Young Mothers

Stand in special need of help while the baby is being nursed. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only strengthens the woman for motherhood and makes the birth hour practically painless, but it increases the nutritive secretions on which the child is fed. It soothes the nerves, encourages the appetite and rapidly restores the mother to robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.

"I wish to let you know the great benefit my wife derived through taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. Robert Harden of Brandon, Manitoba, 1 236. "It was a case of childbirth. We had heard so much of it that my wife decided to try it. (I may say my wife is thirty-three and this was her first child.) She commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' five months before her child was born. We have a fine, healthy girl, and we believe that this was mainly owing to the 'Favorite Prescription' taken faithfully according to directions. We shall certainly recommend it wherever we can."

IRRELEVANT QUESTIONS.

Some Examples of Old Tests For Examinations of Lawyers.

Many men, even successful members of the profession, hold that as a good examination does not necessarily make a good lawyer it is better to make the conditions of admission easy and thus allow the fittest of the lot to survive. This sentiment has been less since the American Bar Association took up vigorously the work of raising the standards of legal education. Many good anecdotes are told of the old tests. An able southern lawyer still living has a good story about his examination by Reverdy Johnson, one of the greatest lawyers of the last century. Mr. Johnson knew the young man, but apparently he did not allow his familiarity to influence the case. He asked him one or two questions as easy as the alphabet or the multiplication table and then very severely demanded:

"I think I can, sir," was the reply.

"There," pointing to the sideboard, "are the ingredients, sir. Now, let me see what you can do."

The candidate approached and used his finest touch and sense of selection in compounding the tonic. Then, topping it off artistically with a fresh mint, he presented it to his examiner. Mr. Johnson gave the case his best care and patience, and finally, when the bottom of the generous glass had been reached, he looked at the young man admiringly and announced that he had passed.

Another story is told of a judicial district in Florida where, before the era of railroads and owing to the numerous creeks and rivers, there had to be frequent fording of streams in order to make good time between the country towns. The candidate presented himself before the judge, who, after looking at the young man a few moments and taking in his measure, asked:

"Can you ride?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you own a horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can he swim?"

"Yes, sir."

Whereupon the judge bowed gravely and remarked:

"I am very glad, sir, to welcome you to the practice of law in my district."

Since those days, of course, law has changed. More statutes are passed every year than existed when Chief Justice Marshall brought order out of American legislation. The lawyer has not only to be possessed of wide information and accurate knowledge, but he must be trained in the processes of the state so as to be able to master the facts and details of new problems. The rising of the standard means the improvement of the bar.

Why We Yawn and Stretch.

During sleep the respiration is shallow, and the expansion of the lungs is insufficient for active movement. It is necessary, therefore, to fully expand the lungs on waking before or as soon as active movements commence. This is effected by a yawn, which is a deep inspiration assisted by the wide opening of the mouth. The depth of the inspiration is often assisted by raising the arms above the head and by throwing forward the chest, and thus yawning and stretching are only parts of one inspiratory effort.

Stretching also aids the return of the blood to the muscles. During sleep the circulation is feebler, and the skin seems to be supplied with blood at the expense of the muscles, and on waking the limbs are stretched to insure their being in working order and to restore to them their normal waking blood supply. Toward night it is not uncommon for a similar reduction in the depth of the respiration and slowing of the circulation to take place, and this is corrected by a similar yawning and stretching as on waking.

Disinterested.

Lord Monboddo, an eminent member of the Scotch judiciary and one of the clear cut figures in Boswell's immortal "Life of Johnson," was a great beau in his youth and in his later years a brilliant and learned, if whimsical, man.

He was a friend of the Garricks and one day was their guest at their villa at Hampton Court when Hannah More was also visiting there. They were walking together in the garden when his lordship astonished the fair and sprightly Hannah by a declaration of love and an offer of his heart and hand. Meeting with a positive refusal, he soon returned to the house and made a clean breast of it to Mrs. Garrick.

"I am very sorry for this refusal," he said in conclusion. "I should have liked so much to teach that nice girl Greek."

A Durable Varnish.

To make jet black varnish that can be used for furniture or for small wood handles that will make them smooth, shining, hard and solid so that they will not get dim by handling or lose their gloss take of asphaltum 3 ounces, boiled oil 4 quarts, burnt umber 8 ounces and enough oil of turpentine to thin.

The three first named ingredients must be mixed and incorporated by the aid of heat; then take the mixture out of doors and away from the fire, and before it cools gradually add the turpentine. The work is given several coats, each one allowed to dry perfectly hard (it is best, if possible, to harden it in a japanner's oven), and the last coat is rubbed down with tripoli, applied with a soft cloth, then with a few drops of oil.

Dead Sea Fruit.

"Dead sea fruit" actually exists, and not in metaphor only. A recent traveler in the Sahara took a photograph in the desert within a few miles of the oasis of Biskra, and his picture shows a group of "dead sea fruit" or "apples of Sodom," as they are sometimes called. The fruit grows upon the ground on a straggling stalk and is about the size of an orange, golden colored, with bright green stripes, the skin being smooth, like that of a melon. It is a strange irony of nature that the fruit, which is so beautiful to look at, should be a deadly poison. It is interesting to note that the camels which graze upon the aromatic shrubs discriminate between them and this fruit of most tempting appearance.

TRUSTS AND STRIKES.

Combination of Capital Caused Combination of Labour.

(Globe.)

Not long ago it was the fashion to describe the American trust as one of the means by which the United States would gain the industrial supremacy of the world. This was pointed out particularly in the case of the iron and steel industries. From the getting out of the ore to the highest forms of manufacture everything was under one management, there was no waste of labour, no miscalculation, no duplication of officers. This view was accepted not only in the United States, but in England, where Lord Rosebery ascribed the growing industrial power of the United States in part to great industrial combinations. Amid this chorus of approval a warning voice was raised by The New York Post:—

"When the United States Steel Company was formed we took occasion to point out the dangers which so gigantic a combination involved—the unsettlement of men's minds, and the spread of socialistic ideas, which it would almost certainly bring about. Flinging millions into the air is always an unsafe experiment. It causes a scramble, turns people's heads and makes some persons crazy and upsets among others the habits of old-fashioned industry and economy as the means of livelihood. 'Why should we toil and sweat for a mere subsistence when others make fabulous riches by a stroke of the pen' is the question which thousands of men ask themselves. The steel combination was an incentive and an inducement to a labour combination, and if we get off with nothing worse than a labour strike we may perhaps consider ourselves lucky. No doubt the promoters of the steel combination were themselves controlled by events. So, too, President Shaffer may say that he has been controlled by them. It is to be hoped, however, that some other mode of settlement of the conflict may be found than that of the endurance of pain which must fall upon thousands, if not millions, of poor men, women and children."

The Post's remarks are the more significant because it is very conservative on labour and economic questions. It simply lays down the rule that the men have the right to do just what their employers are doing. "We cannot say that the men are to blame for seizing all the power they can lay their hands on. That is what men do in Wall street. They have the same right to consolidate that the steel mills have." If the owners had not set the example of combination there would probably have been no strike.

Now it seems clear that if there is to be a great international competition in industry, employees and employed must be united. A country in which all the men are liable to throw down their guns when war is declared and leave the officers "chasing around" for others to take their places would not be very formidable to its neighbours. We do not regard this as an argument against the workingmen fighting for their rights; we are simply pushing the war analogy to its conclusion. If the chief aim of the American manufacturers is to fight the British manufacturers and vice versa, it is clear that in both countries labour and capital must be organized in the sense that there is perfect understanding and agreement between them. But as a matter of fact, national rivalry is not pushed so far. The American workingman is thinking of his own wages, hours and conditions of life, and he is not likely to consent to any change for the worse in order that his country may enjoy "industrial supremacy." There is usually sympathy between workmen in different countries who are engaged in like struggles for better pay and general conditions. The war is more likely to be between classes than between nations, and a conflict between a gigantic trust and its host of employees is in danger of developing into war in grim earnest.

CANADIAN PULP.

Canada's Exports Increasing in Quantity.

There is a steady growth of Canada's export of wood pulp to Great Britain. The following figures show our relative position as compared with other sources of supply for the requirements of the United King:dom-

	Tons.	Value.
Norway...	128,455	£550,630
Sweden...	49,271	401,045
Canada...	33,757	162,822
United States	6,741	54,400
Other countries	6,454	52,003

The shipments from Norway and Sweden have fallen off very materially their reduction in quantities being respectively, 12,759 tons and 6,390 tons from the 1900 figures. The depreciation in the value of Norway's export was over £90,000, though Sweden's showed an addition of over £24,000, which is accounted for by the higher range of prices obtained. Canada has shipped nearly 15,000 tons more during this period at an increased value of over £88,000, which amount practically balances the falling off in Norway's. In May, 1899, Canada's exports were five per cent. of the total quantity imported by Great Britain; in May 1900, they were 7 1-2 per cent. of the total, and in 1901 they were 13 1-2 per cent.

TO END THE BOER WAR

New Policy Adopted by Government to That End.

THE LEADERS TO BE BANISHED

Cost of Feeding Their Families to Be Charged Against Their Property —Text of Lord Kitchener's Proclamation to the Boers in the Field—Grace to Sept. 15.

London, Aug. 10. — A Parliamentary paper has been published containing a proclamation issued by Lord Kitchener August 7 in accordance with instructions from the Imperial Government, the Governments of Cape Colony and Natal concurring.

The reasons of the Government for the proclamation are set forth in a preamble to the proclamation as follows:

"Whereas, the late Orange Free State and South African Republic have been annexed to His Majesty's dominions; and,

"Whereas, His Majesty's forces are and have been for some considerable time in complete possession of the seat of government of both the aforesaid territories, with their public offices and the whole machinery of administration, as well as of all the principal towns and the whole of the railways; and,

"Whereas, a great majority of the burghers of the two late republics to the number of 35,000, exclusive of those who have fallen in the war, are now either prisoners or have submitted to His Majesty's Government and are living peaceably in towns and camps under the control of His Majesty's forces; and,

"Whereas, the burghers of the late republics still in arms are not only few in number, but have lost almost all their guns and munitions of war and are devoid of regular military organization, and are, therefore, unable to carry on regular warfare or to offer any organized resistance to His Majesty's forces in any part of the country; and,

"Whereas, these burghers who are still in arms, though unable to carry on regular warfare, continue to make isolated attacks upon small posts and detachments of His Majesty's forces, to plunder or destroy property and to damage railway and telegraph lines; and,

"Whereas, the country is thus kept in a state of disturbance checking the resumption of agricultural and industrial pursuits; and,

"Whereas, His Majesty's Government is determined to put an end to a state of things which is aimlessly prolonging bloodshed and destruction and inflicting ruin upon a great majority of the inhabitants who are anxious to live in peace and earn a livelihood for themselves and their families; and,

"Whereas, it is just to proceed against those still resisting and especially against those persons who, being in a position of authority, are responsible for the continuance of the present state of lawlessness and are instigating their fellow-burghers to continue their hopeless resistance to His Majesty's Government."

Therefore Lord Kitchener issues his proclamation.

The proclamation says:

"All commandants, field cornets and leaders of armed bands, being burghers of the late republics, and still engaged in resisting His Majesty's forces, whether in the Orange River Colony, the Transvaal or other portion of His Majesty's South African dominions, and all members of the Governments of the late Orange Free State and Transvaal shall, unless they surrender before September 15, be permanently banished from South Africa. The cost of the maintenance of the families of all burghers in the field who have not surrendered by September 15, shall be recoverable from such burghers and shall be a charge upon their property, removable and immovable, in the two colonies."

The preliminary correspondence shows that the proclamation is based upon suggestions which the Government of Natal forwarded to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain July 24, and that the date, September 15, was recommended by Lord Milner.

Kitchener Wounded.

London, Aug. 10.—There is an unconfirmed rumor current here that Gen. Lord Kitchener has been wounded in a skirmish outside of Pretoria.

London, Aug. 10.—The War Office has received no advices giving color to the rumor circulated by a news agency in the United States, that Lord Kitchener has been wounded in a skirmish with the Boers. The rumor is officially discredited. Lord Kitchener's customary despatches reached the War Office yesterday afternoon and contained no reference to any accident to him.

THE CENSUS OF 1901

Guessers' Results Are Untrustworthy and Unreliable.

THE PADDED FIGURES OF 1891.

The Probable Disappointing Results of the Census of This Year Due to the Undue Inflations of the Returns of a Decade Ago—Evidence of Padding Secured.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Any statement which purports to give the population of Canada as determined by the last census is untrustworthy and unreliable. So declares the Chief Census Commissioner, and he should know what he is talking about. Mr. Blue says that he is still in the dark as to the population, and so is every one else on the census staff. He asks how it is possible for the population of Canada to be known when the returns are not complete for a single Province save Prince Edward Island. The complete figures will not be available for some days yet. In the meantime, Mr. Blue is at a loss to understand where the practical advantage of guessing at the population comes in, but doubtless it affords amusement to persons who have lots of leisure. There is no doubt if the guessing is continued long enough some figures may be hit upon which will by good luck come somewhere near the mark. That the census returns will be disappointing cannot be denied, but this is believed to be due to the undue inflations of the returns for 1891. If there are many more dwellings and families to-day than there were ten years ago, it stands to reason that there must have been an even greater gain in population. But such is not apparent from the returns as partially compiled. Taking 67 Ontario census districts out of 82, they show an increase over 1891 of about 36,000 in dwellings, 38,000 in families, and 31,000 in population. Will anyone explain how this extraordinary result can be reached except by the fact that the figures of 1891 were so padded as to be utterly worthless for purposes of comparison? Preliminary analyses go to show that the census returns of ten years ago are utterly unreliable, and the conviction is gaining ground among the members of the Government that such is the case.

APPLE CROP SHORT.

In Ontario Only One-Third of the Average Will Be Picked.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—There was a long discussion at the concluding session of the apple shippers yesterday, regarding this year's apple crop in Ontario, that only 35 per cent. of the usual crop would be picked in the Province, though Mr. Smith of Burlington declared that the yield would not exceed 10 per cent.

The yield will be small all over the United States, except in Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington Territory, where excellent crops are in sight.

Tried on Manslaughter Charge.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 10. — Halstead Longhurst, the driver of the 'bus which ran over and killed John Richardson, on July 25, and who was exonerated at an inquest held by Coroner Goodman, on Tuesday last, was arraigned before Magistrate Aikins here yesterday, charged with manslaughter. The case took up the whole day. At the conclusion the magistrate reserved his decision until Thursday next. Longhurst was admitted to bail in the sum of $4,000.

Arraigned for Murder.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 10.—Last night Frederick Lindley was arraigned before Mayor Thompson for preliminary hearing on the charge of the murder of Bertha Craig.

Prisoner was then remanded for eight days to allow the Crown to secure the evidence of Mary Craig, who was wounded by shots at the time he shot Bertha, who, the doctors say, will be strong enough in three or four days to allow questioning.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Conservative papers are asserting that the Liberals are very anxious as to the results of the coming general elections. Possibly; and naturally, too. If the Conservatives have not a similar anxiety, it must be because the weakness of their leaders render their want of success in the elections a foregone conclusion.

"Go west, young man, go west," Mr. Horace Greely's advice, so far, is good, but the continuation of the injunction, "and grow up with the country," would work out inconveniently; for the young man that undertakes to grow up with the Canadian west would become an unwieldly giant. Especially this year, when everything is growing. In Manitoba and the western territories, the field crops have, responded to the obligations the "growing time" of Canada has thrust upon them. Going farther west, even the fish of British Columbia are in the swim. Never before has Manitoba and the Northwest Territories had such tremendously great crops, and never before this year has British Columbia had such a run of salmon up the Fraser River, and it is said that at certain points the fish are so plentiful that fish jams form after the manner of log-jams in our local streams. Five hundred fish in a night are not an unusual catch for a boat.

The press in opposition to the Ontario Government, remarks the Globe, not being able to find fault with the Administration and the laws which they have given to the people, are commencing to manufacture purely imaginative stories of dissensions within the Cabinet. It is now stated that the Hon. Richard Harcourt and the Premier are at loggerheads, when it is a well-known fact that that the Minister of Education is carrying out the policy of the Premier. It is also said that there is a division between Mr. Stratton and the Premier with regard to the license law. This statement is equally a pure fiction, as the Premier and Hon. Mr. Stratton are one in the effort to secure the strict enforcement of the license laws, and to provide that any amendments made in the law shall be with a view of limitation and restriction rather than to any widening of the provisions. The whole Cabinet are a unit as to the Hudson Bay Railway project, and it is recognized that Toronto will reap great advantages from the opening of the Temiskaming country.

Dr. Pitcher's

BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS.

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M. D., Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genito Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.)

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Backache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised medicines combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these Tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Bevan, of Port Hope says; "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known very little comfort with Backache or Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicines and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good. I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain are gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get well."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are put up in wooden bottles, with green wrapper, bearing the portrait and signature of Z. Pitcher, M. D. Each bottle contains fifty tablets; price 50c per bottle. Manufactured by the Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

FREE SCHOOL BOOKS.

How the Hot Weather Affects Mr. Smiff of the Bobcaygeon Independent

The Opposition in the Provincial Parliament lose no opportunity of finding fault with the Government. It is their business to do so, and they do it with much energy. But there is not much with which to find fault, and the Opposition in consequence not infrequently finds fault where none really exists. Such is the case in the matter of printing school books. The Opposition asserts that there is a ring existing for the printing of school books and that this ring has formed a monopoly. Clearly this cannot be true, when the Ontario Government declares that any publisher is free to print the school books on complying with the usual conditions of the department; that is, that he must use good paper, and the printing and binding must be up to a fixed standard, otherwise the books would be badly printed on cheap papers and through poor binding would fall to to pieces.

The contention that the Ontario Government permits a school book monopoly to exist is without any foundation, but that the present arrangements are all that could be desired is also untrue. There might be great improvement made, and the books are decidedly too dear. Whether there should be any change for them at all is the real matter for consideration. Should not the Government have all books required in schools printed at its own cost, and supplied free to the pupils, the school trustees bearing a portion of the expense? Our Ontario schools are free, why not have free books? The views of this journal extend farther than free books for free education in free schools, and would add to the list free dinners. The pupil should have a dinner prepared and served at school paid for by the whole body of ratepayers in the municipality. The effect of the pupils taking dinner together, under proper superintendence, would be excellent in developing politeness and consideration, whilst the preparing and cooking of the dinner would give the female pupils an extremely valuable means of acquiring household knowledge. Which is most conducive to family happiness: that the wife should have a knowledge of Algebra, or that she should have a knowledge of the art of cooking? Which would a working man prefer — macaroni soup or Euclid? Most decidedly give this journal the soup. All these subjects should be freely and fully discussed, for there certainly is much room for progress and improvement in our educational system, but attacks on the educational department of the Government should not be made without good reason and a thorough foundation.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

This Big Organization to Assist Steel Strikers—The Trust's Plans—Plant at McKeesport Will Be Moved.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10. — There were gravely important developments in the strike situation yesterday. The U. S. Steel Corporation moved decisively in its strike campaign with a peremptory order directing that the great Dewees Wood plant at McKeesport be dismantled and removed to the Kiskimenetas Valley.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, after a two days' conference with President Shaffer and his associates, issued a formal statement last night, specifically pledging the Federation to morally and financially support the Amalgamated Association. His written review of the train of events leading up to the industrial quarrel sustains the course of the Amalgamated Association, and declares that nothing remains for labor but to battle for the cause of unionism.

The official announcement of the order to dismantle the Dewees Wood plant came this afternoon toward the close of another uneventful day, and its importance was such that it its importance was such that it claimed the serious consideration of the men on either side of the great industrial conflict now being waged here.

33,970 Men Will Obey Shaffer.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 10. — The best reports received indicate that in Saturday's greater strike the following named mills will be the principal ones involved. The number of Amalgamated men in each is given:

National Tube.
McKeesport	8,500
Riverside (near Wheeling)	6,000
Republic (Pittsburg)	1,510

Strikers Refused.

Toronto, Aug. 10. — N. S. Dunlop of the legal department of the C. P. R. has returned home from a holiday trip to Western Ontario. He states that many of the striking C. P. R. trackmen sought employment on the Canadian Northern, but Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann refused to take them on, because they were strikers. Most of the men were from the Port Arthur division.

An Early Settlement Predicted.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—One of the striking trackmen stated yesterday that an early settlement of the strike was likely. There were representatives from all the railroad orders at Montreal in consultation on the matter, and they were awaiting the arrival of Messrs. Pope and Shaw of Rat Portage before coming to a decision as to the action to be taken. There is no change in the situation locally, and the men claim to be getting all the work they require. Many of the section foremen have left the company's houses, and there has not as yet been any evictions.

Thorold Strikers' Victory.

Thorold, Aug. 10. — About 20 French-Canadians arrived Thursday morning from Montreal with the intention of going to work in the quarries, but when they learned that there was a strike on they refused to go to work, and will return home. They were offered $1.75 a day for nine hours, which the strikers are holding out for.

PALE AND DEJECTED.

The Trying Condition of Many Women.

Subject to Headaches, Dizziness and Heart Palpitation. They Grow Discouraged and Prematurely Old.

From the Review, Windsor, Ont.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that ever gave me any real benefit," says Mrs. R. K. Harris, a well known resident of Windsor, to a representative of the Review recently. "I do not know exactly what my trouble was; doctors seemed unable to tell me, though I thought myself it was consumption. I had a constant racking cough, and a constant feeling of languidness. My blood seemed to have turned to water, and I was very pale. I had a feeling in my chest as though some foreign substance was lodged there. The slightest noise made me nervous; I was dejected all the time and could not scarcely do any household work. I tried medicines, but they did not help me in the least. Doctors did not seem able to help me or tell me what ailed me, although their bills increased with alarming rapidity. I grew so weak, and so despondent that finally I decided to take a trip to Colorado to see if a change of climate would benefit me. While contemplating this trip I read in a paper one day the testimonial of a person whose symptoms were almost identical with my own, who was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to give them a trial and purchased a box. When that box was done I got another, and found gradually that the pills were helping me. The trip to Colorado was abandoned, and I continued using the pills until I had taken eight or nine boxes when I felt like an altogether different person. From a pale, thin, listless person, I became the picture of health, and felt it too. It is several years since I used the pills, and I have not had any return of the trouble. I am positive Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved me from an early grave, and I cannot recommend them too highly to those who are afflicted as I was."

It is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to make rich, red blood, nourish the nerves, tissues and various organs of the body, and thus by reaching the root of the trouble, drive disease from the system. Other medicines act only on the symptoms of the disease, and when such medicines are discontinued, the trouble returns — often in an aggravated form. If you want health and strength, be sure the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is on the wrapper around each box. If your dealer cannot supply you the pills will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Prince of Orleans Dead.

Saigon, French Cochin China, Aug. 10. — Prince Henry of Orleans died at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. He was the eldest son of the Duke of Chartres and a cousin of the Duke of Orleans. He was born in 1867, and was not married. The Prince has been dangerously ill for some time past. While his cousin, the Duke of Orleans, with whom he was in open enmity, aspired to be King of France, Prince Henry aimed at becoming President of the Republic. At his death he was bankrupt.

IT COST MONEY.

Many a man has spent all his earnings in trying to get rid of rheumatism. It cost Mr. James Davison, Oconto, Ont., be seen $1,000 and $2,000 before he tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. He was a helpless invalid for six years but suffered from sciatica in his hip joint for ten years. Six bottles cured him completely and he is now working his farm. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

SENSATIONAL ELOPEMENT.

Princess Olga Somonowski Fled With a Gipsy and Was Caught.

Vienna, Aug. 10.—An elopment like that of the Princess Chimay, with the exception that its ending was quick and tragic, has been reported here. The Princess Olga Somonowski, the daughter of a Russian magnate of royal blood, recently eloped with a gypsy musician at Ballanton, Hungary. The Princess visited the restaurant in which the gypsy performed, fell in love with him and they eloped after the musician had completed his work of the day. The father and brothers of the Princess started in pursuit of the couple, and on the second day, caught them. The elopers were dealt with summarily. The gypsy was thrashed and the Princess, who had disgraced her family, was handed a revolver, with which she shot herself.

A Surgeon's Blunder.

Saturday's paper contains the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every surgical operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only cure for piles, but that day is passed, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its absolute control over every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Physicians who are considerate of the well-being of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a mania for operations claim that cruel method as the proper treatment. By promptly stopping the distressing itching and burning Dr. Chase's Ointment brings quick and lasting relief.

Rev. S. A. Dupras, Methodist minister, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states: "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stool. At this very severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose.

"Now imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men, than any similar preparation the world has ever known. It is the standard ointment the world over, and positively the only actual cure for piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Wait Till He Sees You.

A Zulu chief, when you enter his hovel, remains silent for some moments and seems quite unconscious of your presence. At length he says in a tone of grave dignity, "Ge saku bona" (I see you), to which you reply in the same way. The longer he takes to "see you" the greater man you are supposed to be, and until you are thus "seen" you must keep silent and appear as much as possible not to be there at all.

SIXTEEN STAGES OF THE SLATER SHOE

No better object lesson can be found to teach how thoroughly a thing may be done when the object is to have it well done, than the exhibit in our south window, of the progressive

16 Stages of the Slater Shoe.

Here one sees the successive several operations from the skin of leather to the finished shoe. It shows the building up of the shoe, its gradual and symmetrical progress, the thorough work, the minute attention to detail, the determination of the manufacturers to produce the best of shoes—the Slater Shoe. There is no skimping of detail, no lack of fitting and finishing, of accurate, systematic work that results in the perfect shoe.

We sell the Slater Shoe. Any up-to-date dealer does. But in addition—for Slater Shoes are only a part of our selling—we have hundreds of excellent and reliable shoes. The variety is not so wide, that sizes so numerous, the differences in shape so important, for there is as much difference in feet as in faces, and we have to carry an ample stock to meet the requirements of all. Nothing that a good shoe store should have is lacking. But where the average dealer stocks fifty pair we stock five hundred. Just a few lines to suggest to men a nice shoe that will be comfortable, shapely, dressy and reliable:

Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, turn sole,	$1.50	Men's Dong. Kid Balmorals.....	2.50
Men's Dong. Oxford Shoes, machine sewed,.....	1.50	Men's Camping and Boating Lace Balmorals.....	.85
Men's Dong. Chocolate Kid Bals., an up-to-date shoe in every respect	2.50	Men's Lacrosse Shoes.....	.85
Men's Dong. Kid Congress, Good-year Welt,.....	3.00	Boys' Lacrosse Shoes.....	.50
		Youths' Lacrosse Shoes.....	.40
		Children's Lacrosse Shoes.....	.35

Just a mention of Ladies' Shoes. The stock is ample, the variety more than great, and the prices most reasonable.

Band in the Park.

Notwithstanding the very cool and damp condition of the weather, the 57th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Prof. R .Gliddon, appeared in Victoria Park last evening, and rendered an exceptionally delightful programme. A feature of the programme which appealed very strongly to popular appreciation was the trombone solo, "The Holy City," most effectively performed by Mr. Harry Clarke. The attendance, as might be expected, owing to the state of the weather, was not quite up to that of former concerts of the kind, and as the grass was somewhat wet nearly every person had to stand.

One Man's Prediction.

"The excursion to Toronto on the C. P. R. will take the largest number of people out of town on Civic Holiday."

"What makes you think so?"

"The price is so low for a two days' trip that many who have not yet been able to visit the Pan-American will be likely to take advantage of this excursion. The low steamboat rates across Lake Ontario to Niagara Falls and Buffalo will also be an inducement. Besides, the weather is to be fine and cool, making a rail and lake trip to the cities a greater attraction to people who want to get out of town to see something away from home. Business men will also take advantage of this cheap excursion to Toronto on Civic Holiday."

OUTRAGING VICTORIA PARK.

Whose Fault That it is Not Protected?

Last night during the band concert in Victoria Park, some very mean and malicious injury was done the flower plots. In the central flower plot, composed of clustered coleus, some person has apparently laid down and rolled about, completely destroying almost a yard square of the beautiful plants, that cannot at this season be replaced. It was not the work of boys, for the tracks of boots made in the mould belong to an adult. The wire netting around the plot was crushed down, and from another bed a blooming geranium was plucked up by the roots and thrown aside. In previous seasons, on band nights, a policeman has been detailed to look after the safety of the park, but this season, it is said by those who should know, not a policeman has been seen on duty in the park. Even during the day dissolute and disorderly persons of both sexes often make this beautiful resort an impossible place for ladies and children to visit, and there is no police supervision to bring them to order. After the shameful manner in which the park was treated last night, some action should be taken. A dispute as to jurisdiction or responsibility should not prevent the park from receiving proper protection. The police force personally may not be to blame; they doubtless take their orders from the local authorities. Certainly some means should be taken to prevent one of the prettiest parks in the country from becoming the resort or spoil of toughs and disorderly characters. If the authorities will not take action, the public, in whose interest the park is maintained, should assist in preserving the park from outrages such as were committed last night.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

LACROSSE.

The Montreal Star of yesterday says:—"Dick" Kelly, the former star player of the Shamrock Lacrosse team, and Mrs. Kelly, are stopping at the Windsor Hotel, having just returned from a three months' honeymoon trip through Europe. Mr. Kelly was at both Epsom and Henley, and saw the two big races of the year at those places. They were a great sight, he says, and there is no doubt in his mind, but that the fact of the Pennsylvanians being too sure of themselves had something to do with the latter's defeat. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will in all probability take up their abode in Montreal." "Dick" figured as centre fielder on the local twelve about sixteen years ago, when they were champions of Central Ontario.

THE PETER HAMILTON CO. EMPLOYEES' EXCURSION.

A Most Enjoyable Outing at Jubilee Point.

The Men and Their Families Meet Together in Social Intercourse and for a Day's Play.

The Fifth Annual Excursion of the employees of the Peter Hamilton Co. was held at Jubilee Point on Friday, and proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the series.

The whole staff of the company, from the president to the most humble employee, have well earned a holiday, and it came very fittingly at the end of a very busy and successful season. A very large make of harvesting machinery was completed and placed upon the market, and the excellecne of its quality, and its superior adaptability to the wants of the farm, are shown by the fact that practically every machine and implement made for this season's use, has been sold. The Bonnie Binder was a prime favourite. It is automatic, so to speak. That is, it is so well made and turned out so thoroughly adjusted, that when one of the Bonnie Binders is sold to a farmer, it is not necessary to send a deputation of expert mechanics with it to set it up and coax it into getting to work. The "Bonnie" is turned out ready for work, and it enters a harvest field and does its work without coaxing or coddling. The staff of the company having had their holidays after the harvesting machinery season, are at work to-day as busy as nailers, on machinery to make more harvests — machinery for putting in more crops— ploughs, harrows, drills, etc., etc., in which another busy and successful season is anticipated. A reputation for good, honest work is the best part of the capital of an establishment.

The commodious steamer City of Peterborough was secured for the occasion and when she left her wharf carried fully 250 excursionists on board. It was an interesting and animating gathering, made up of the bone and sinew of the Company's different work shops, with their wives, and sons and daughters, all combining for one general holiday together. Although quite a number of the employees were absent, the gathering was a forceful muster roll of one of Peterborough's oldest and most progressive industries. Mr. Hamilton, the respected head of the works, accompanied the excursion, his presence among the men being a source of gratification. There were also present the heads of the various work shops, as follows:—

General Superintendent—Mr. Alex. Gillespie.

Foreman of the foundry—Mr. G. Minorgan.

Foreman of the wood shop — Mr. T. Gillespie.

Foreman of the paint shop — Mr. Wm. Savigney.

Travelling representatives — Mr. Robt. Nicholls and Mr. James Galvin.

The steamer was locked through promptly, and her performance was so good on this occasion that a record of her time was taken as follows:—Locks, 8.30; Hales, 9.30; Bensfort, 10.00; Wedlock's, 10.30; Jubilee, 10.45. Making the trip in 2 hours and 15 minutes.

The clear cool weather made the sail additionally delightful. Arriving at Jubilee the excursionists took their baskets and hampers, stored with refreshments, on to the green park where tables were erected in cool and prettily situated spots. Quite a number took dinner at the Jubilee House, where Mrs. Hall had prepared bountifully in anticipation of the event. After a hearty meal had been enjoyed, the afternoon amusements were commenced.

RACING CONTESTS.

The following events were contested for in a spirited manner:—

Boys' Race, under 5 years—1, Harry Carr; 2, K. Galvin.

Girls' Race, under 5 years—1, Ruby Carr; 2, Elfie Law.

Boys' Race, 5 and 8 years—1, A. McWilliams; 2, E. Gross.

Girls' Race, 5 and 8 years—1, A. Drury; 2, Viola Booth.

Boys' Race, 8 and 12 years — 1, Evans White; 2, Earl Downie.

Girls' Race, 8 and 12 years—1, Effie Jackson; 2, Bessie Gillespie.

Boys' Three-legged Race—1, Booth Patterson and Willie Rose; 2, Eddie Kimball and E. Carr.

Smokers' Race—1, W. Moncrief.

Consolation Race—1, Sidney Rush.

Base ball match—Between the boys of All Saint's Guild and Hamilton employees boys—Won by the boys of All Saint's Guild. Score—10 to 5.

MUSIC AND DANCING.

In the pavilion a merry crowd enjoyed themselves "tripping the light fantastic" to their heart's content. Spirited music was furnished by Professor Hodgson's orchestra, composed of the professor, with violin, flute and oboe; Mr. W. S. Hodgson, clarionet; and Mrs. Hodgson, organ. The music was lively and inspiring, keeping the dancers constantly on the floor. It was quite evident that the men who make high-grade mowers, binders and ploughs, can also dance complex quadrilles, waltzes and step dances. Mr. R. Nicholls, one of the Company's popular travelling agents, was among the most conspicuous of the ardent devotees of the terpsichorean enjoyment. He was a "stayer," and couldn't be downed. Although he is not a "light-draft" by any means, his agility, steadiness and durability for handling all kinds of mixy step dances, enabled him to distance all competitors.

THE RETURN TRIP.

Shortly before the hour of departure, the excursionists spread their tables again for the evening meal, and after satisfying their keen appetites, boarded the City of Peterborough for home. At 5.05 the steamer cleared her wharf, and at the sound of Capt. Fee's bells, the plucky engineer, Andrew Lajeneese, better known as "Andy Young," opened her throttle for all he was worth. The City put on a great spurt and went like the cars all the way up, without a hitch, doing the distance from Jubilee to the locks in exactly 2 hours and 20 minutes. Arriving at the Peterborough wharf at 7.45. The jolly excursionists, during the interesting run up the river, enjoyed themselves immensely. Prof. Hodgson and his mother, Mrs. Hodgson, entertained them with dancing music, and the dancers kept the musicians busy. The ladies did their share in contributing to the pleasure of the day, and the best of harmony and good feeling prevailed throughout. The energetic committee, who are entitled to much credit for bringing off this annual event so successfully, was as follows:—Messrs. Robt. Mulligan, W. H. White, John Hart, John S. Logan, Geo. Benton and D. Hamilton.

JOSEPH BRENNAN

Drowned in Alaska—Had Friends in the Vicinity of Peterborough or Lindsay—Leaves Behind Him an Interest in Mines—Who Knows Him?

Mr. H. C. Rogers, Postmaster of Peterborough, has received the following letter, whose contents are self-explanatory:

Nome, Alaska, July 23rd, 1901.
Postmaster, Peterborough, Canada.

Dear sir,—A friend of mine by the name of Joseph Brennan was drowned last Wednesday, July 17th, while crossing a stream called Fish River. I have known Brennan since 1888. We have have been together more or less since that time. He has often spoke of relatives living at Lindsay and Peterborough. I don't know the initials of any of them, so I take this means of finding his people. If you will publish this letter, or you may know his folks. He has one-third interest in some property, in the Council City District, that he was going or taking an outfit to, to prospect. The Fish River is quite a stream. The body has not been recovered as yet. He had a team of horses and a general outfit of groceries and tools that are required for prospecting. He also had on his person $300 or $400. The property will be sold at the Administrator's sale. This is all the particulars I can give you at this time. I wish you would find if any of his people live there. I have addressed a letter to the Postmaster at Lindsay. His people can address the Nome Nugget and get full particulars. Respectfully,

O. ROBERTS.

MR. DICKSON HALL'S TRIP.

He Had Quite an Experience on the Way Home.

The Steampship Majestic Took Fire Twice and the Passengers Became Excited—Fire was put out.

Mr. S. Dickson Hall, of Messrs. Richard Hall & Sons, town, arrived in Peterborough last evening after an absence of about 6 or 8 weeks, during which time he visited the largest English and European markets. Mr. Hall came home by the steamship Majestic which arrived at New York on Wednesday. He had a most enjoyable trip and was accompanied by Mr. Dundass, of Messers. Dundas & Flavelle Bros., of Lindsay, and several other Canadian buyers.

The most exciting portion of Mr. Hall's trip was when near New York Harbour on the return voyage when fire broke out in the vessel. Concerning this the New York Tribune of Thursday says:—

With her saloon and 'tween decks pungent and almost nauseating with the odor of burnt linen, planking, marine glue and tar, the big steamship Majestic, of the White Star line, reached her pier late yesterday afternoon. 267 first-class passengers had twice during the day experienced the sensadu'ing the day exp rienced the sensation of being aboard a burning steamship, and were not slow in reaching the pier as soon after her arrival as possible.

Although knowledge and particulars of the fire were kept as close as possible by the officers and the crew, the fact there was a fire aboard did not escape the many theatrical people who were among the passengers, nor was John D. Rockefeller, jr., the son of the multi-millionaire, also a passenger, unaware of the danger.

"Had it happened a day earlier," he said, "there is no saying what might have occurred. The proximity, however, of the vessel to port greatly influenced the passengers in the belief that no worry was necessary." Mr. Rockefeller was loud in his praise of the action of the officers of the Majestic in keeping the matter secret and explaining to those who knew, that the fi was of a trifling nature.

AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

The fire was discovered in the linen-room, on the forward part of the orlop deck, shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The vessel was still a considerable distance from shore, but there were only a few passengers about. Those who knew anything about it were advised not to say anything which might tend to excite the other passengers, and in less than an hour the flames had been extinguished.

Meanwhile, about a dozen of the crew, under the orders of several officers, had emptied the room, and after playing water on the walls and flooring, were satisfied that the danger was over. Rain and damp air caused many of the passengers to remain in their cabins until almost almost 8 o'clock, and by that time all evidences of the fire had been eliminated.

Consequently many of the passengers upon leaving the ship yesterday afternoon were unaware of the early morning blaze through which they had slept.

By the time breakfast was announced at 8.30 o'clock, the burnt linen had been disposed of, and the remainder returned to the linen-room.

SECOND FIRE IS DISCOVERED.

Almost a hundred passengers were breakfasting in the main saloon when the second fire was discovered. This was about 10.30 o'clock. Fire-fighters were again promptly at work. They went about it calmly, not intending to alarm the many passengers, and expected that the fire would be no more serious than the first.

They found their mistake when they again opened the door of the linen-room. The room appeared to be a mass of flames. A hose was attached at once to the hydrant cock at the foot of the 'tween deck companionway and the water turned on the blaze.

Meanwhile the dense smoke had made its way to the saloon deck and soon forced the passengers out of the aft entrance to the dining saloon and to the upper deck.

After dragging out the burning linen it was found that the planks, seamed with marine glue and tar to make them water-tight, were smouldering. The smoke from this broiling mixture of glue and tar made the air stifling and almost sickened a number of the passengers as it swept in clouds up the companionway to the 'tween and saloon decks overhead.

It was not until most of the planking in the room had been ripped up that the officers and crew could extinguish the flames. Some of the passengers were still suffering as a result of their anxiety over the second fire when the Majestic reached her dock.

The fire was variously ascribed to overheated boilers and to an imperfectly insulated electric wire.

REGULAR MEETING.

Of the Local Labour Union Which was Held Last Night.

The regular meeting of the local branch of the American Federation of Labour Union, was held in the Sons of England Hall last night. The attendance of members was quite large and a number of new members were enrolled.

The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. W. Henry, and speeches setting forth the advantages of the Union were made by a number of prominent local labour men. The membership of the local Union is now over one hundred, and the greatest enthusiasm prevails amongst the members.

The principal object of the Federation is to organize unskilled labourers so that they shall have the advantages of union like the trades societies. Mechanics are eligible for membership. The initiation fee is 50 cents, and the dues are 25 cents per month, of which 5 cents goes to the headquarters of the Federation, and 20 cents is retained by the local branch. In the event of a strike in any branch the members are entitled to benefits from all branches throughout the United States and Canada, and in view of the large membership, the tax to meet these benefits would in any ordinary case be very light.

GOUGH BROTHERS.

REVIVING THE APPARENTLY DROWNED.

The appalling frequency of drowning accidents should direct especial attention to the means for their prevention. And the frequency with which measures for the resuscitation of the apparently drowned are unsuccessfully employed, emphasizes the importance of more widely spread popular knowledge of the means generally recognized as the most effectual in restoring animation, and of the proper employment of these means. It is not probable that one person in ten one might meet has a practical knowledge of the simple measures approved of by physicians necessary to be employed in cases of apparent drowning.

For the information of the public generally the course to be pursued in such cases is here given. This method is called the Sylvester method, and the directions given for restoring the apparently drowned are as follows:

If no sign of life can be observed, nor the heart's action heard, lay the patient flat on the back and place a roll of clothing under the shoulder-blades.

Immediately release all tight clothing around the neck and chest, especially the braces or corsets, and at once proceed to clear the mouth and throat.

To do this, turn the patient's face downwards, the head resting on one of the arms, and wipe the mouth and nostrils.

Replace the patient on the back, and place the roll of clothing under the shoulder-blades.

Draw the tongue forward, and keep it projecting beyond the lips by fastening it in position with a piece of handkerchief or string tied under the chin, (or elastic band passed under the chin.)

Kneeling at the patient's head, lean forward and grasp the arms below the elbows; draw them steadily upwards at full length above and level with the head.

Having held the arms in this position for about two seconds, carry them back to the body, folding them on each side, and press them firmly against the sides and front of the chest for about two seconds.

These movements must be repeated carefully and deliberately about fifteen times a minute, and perserved with until natural repiration is established, upon which cease to imitate breathing and proceed to induce circulation and warmth.

After natural breathing has been restored, rub the limbs upwards with firm pressure, using handkerchiefs, flannels, etc.

Dry the hands and feet, and as soon as dry clothing can be procured, strip the patient and reclothe or cover.

Continue friction over dry clothing or under blanket.

After respiration has been restored, carry patient to a house.

Promote warmth by the application of hot flannels, bottles, heated bricks, etc., to pit of stomach, arm-pits, thighs and soles of feet.

If swallowing powers have returned, small quantities of warm water, warm brandy, and water or coffee should be administered; the patient kept in bed and sleep encouraged.

General Note on Resuscitation.—The treatment to restore animation should be presevered in for at least three or four hours.

These instructions should be cut out of the paper in which they appear, preserved and committed to memory. They, or something very similar, appear, we believe, in some of our school books, but the question is, are they given the prominence they deserve by teachers. Every pupil should be made to commit them to memory, and frequent occasion should be taken by the teacher to impress their extreme importance upon the pupil's mind. More than this, they should be frequently exemplified practically. We have in some schools, sometimes, fire drills—practice in the steps to be taken by pupils in leaving a school building in case of fire, in order to prevent panic and, possible disaster. Something thing like this should be done in the case of impressing upon pupils the directions for reviving the apparently drowned. Let some pupil be selected to represent the patient, assumed to be rescued from the water in an unconscious condition. Under the teacher's guidance, let a sufficient number of pupils undertake the application of the directions above given, or similar approved directions, varying on each occasion of the drill the pupils so employed, so that in course of time all will have had practical experience of this important means of saving valuable lives. Let the above be undertaken seriously, not as an amusement or recreation, but as a serious part of school exercise, having therein the issues of life and death. Impress upon pupils that the intelligent and persevering employment of the directions in question may some time save valuable lives—their own or some of the school mates associated with them in the exercises. These drills would not only impress the directions given upon the minds of pupils but would practically teach their application and give, in time of accident the confidence in an ability to do something, that contributes to giving the presence of mind and coolness which are so generally wanting in time of peril or emergency. While a knowledge of the art of swimming is of the utmost importance, the knowledge of the means of restoring the apparently drowned, and practice in their employment is, perhaps, more important. There are no doubt many persons now in their graves who, if proper means had been persevered in to restore them after being apparently drowned, would now be living. Instances are on record where persons who have been under water for a half hour to an hour or more, by the proper and persistent use of proper methods, such as those printed above, have been resuscitated. It is within the power of the bumblest of us to perform miracles — to bring to life the practically dead — who seem to be drowned, and would be dead, indeed, if the necessary means for fanning into flame the smouldering spark of life, were not employed.

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental wrecks than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee bond to that effect. We would warn you sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

CLOGGING THE PIPES

A SENSIBLE SERMON ON HOUSEHOLD SANITATION.

Some Suggestions About the Plumbing and the Care That Should Be Exercised In the Avoidance Both of Expense and Disease.

Nowadays the plumber and his bill are your true household specters. Like other specters, careful common sense will put them to rout and confusion nine times in ten. Wise men have been studying this subject ever so long to devise plumbing that would take care of itself, but they have not yet succeeded. Neither are they likely to without a revolution in mechanics whereby the tendency of fluids always to seek their own level may be eliminated and other things as wonderful brought to pass. So long as knowledge remains nearly static so long will it behoove every housemistress to look well to the usage of her pipes and her traps.

A bit of rag or even string, a burnt match, a wisp of hair, seems a very little thing, one that the pipes can carry off with no possible hurt, but the rag, by hanging over the bend of the trap, may serve as a siphon to take away the water seal, which is all that stands between the household and unlimited sewer gas. And the rag may keep on doing it for weeks and weeks until deadly disease is rampant.

A string snarled and twisted may work the same ill. The match end, of course, ought to float away harmless, but is very much likelier to be caught in some eddy of the flush water, jammed into a crevice and there to take to itself other solid particles until they form a clot both offensive and dangerous.

As for hair, there is no end to the harm it harbors. A wisp quickly forms itself into a sort of strainer, catching and holding all that passes. Aside from that, it has a trick of lodging in the most inconvenient places, catching upon the least roughness inside the pipe and staying there until by accretion it has clogged the whole space.

Hair has special affinity for bits of soap. Solid soap, by the way, should never be sent down the pipes. Very strong soapsuds even is objectionable unless you follow it with a flood of clean water, preferably hot water.

Coffee grounds and tea leaves either clog a pipe very soon or else, if the flush water prevents that, wear it through quickly, partly by mechanical action, partly by chemical. Neither should ever be permitted in a sink. Even if you are wise enough to keep out all grease, and thus make sure that the grounds shall get safe away from your own pipes, in the sewer they may come in contact with grease from pipes less carefully kept and cake and clog your whole pipe system, making necessary costly and inconvenient unclogging.

Every kitchen ought to have its grease can, emptied once a week in winter and in summer every three days. All sorts of refuse fat should go into it, even the scrapings from plates and dishes. Greasy water, as from boiling hams or corned beef, should be allowed to cool thoroughly, then have the grease carefully taken off before it goes down the pipes. Skillets and frying pans ought to be filled with very hot soda water and let stand half an hour before washing. This gives time for the soda to partly saponify the grease and keep it from sticking to the pipe or caking on top of the trap.

In scouring faucets be careful to keep the scouring grit out of the joints. Even the finest particles cut away screw threads turning many times a day. After scouring also take care to let the water run at least a minute before catching any for use. In washing sandy vegetables, as spinach, turnips, potatoes, use a big pan and drain off the dirty water, so the sand may be caught. Even a spoonful of sand going down a pipe will cut and wear it more than a hogshead of water.

Milky water is one of the hardest things to manage. Even a small quantity daily fouls pipes unless the milky water is followed by a flushing of soda water moderately strong, with a limewater flush about every three days. The limewater is made more effective by adding salt to it. Sea salt is best. Put a lump as big as the fist in an earthen or wooden vessel along with twice the bulk of quicklime and cover with four gallons of hot water. Stir well and let settle. Pour the clear liquid down the pipes and follow it in half an hour with a flush of clear water boiling hot. Thus every kind of a sink may be kept sweet and fresh.

Sure Cure for Sea Sickness, Nausea.

Maladies of this type yield instantly to Polson's Nerviline, and if you suffer periodically from these complaints, just keep Nerviline at hand. A few drops in sweetened water gives instant relief, and in the course of half an hour the cure is complete. A large 25c. bottle of Nerviline in the house will save doctor bills, and a vast amount of suffering every year.

Figs.

After figs have been collected they are dipped in boiling brine and then dried on trays for from two to four days, according to the weather. The dipping is supposed to bring the sugar to the surface and hasten the drying. After being dried the figs are placed in "sweat boxes," holding 2,000 pounds each, where they remain for two weeks. Then they are washed in cold salt water to remove all dirt and are packed by women and girls in half pound, one pound and ten pound boxes in layers, being split preliminarily with a short bladed knife.

PERFUMED CIGARS.

The Ones General Rosecrans Once Offered to a Friend.

One of the stories told by old employees in the treasury department at Washington is of the time when General Rosecrans was register. The general never smoked and knew nothing about cigars. He determined, however, to have a box of good cigars handy for the benefit of friends who might drop into the register's office. The general accordingly purchased a box of expensive cigars, put them in a drawer and forgot all about them for some time. Then, one day, when a friend was calling, the general remembered the cigars and brought them out.

"I know nothing about cigars," said Rosecrans, "but I am told that these are very fine."

His friend lighted a cigar, and a look of pain and horror instantly overspread his face. He tried to conceal his feelings and puffed manfully at the cigar for several seconds. Then Rosecrans, noticing that he was growing pale, asked what was the trouble.

"General," said the visitor, "I don't want to be ungrateful, but I'm afraid it's this cigar."

"Impossible!" exclaimed Rosecrans "Why, when I bought them I was told that they were the finest cigars on the market."

"Well, general, you were deceived. The cigar tastes and smells exactly as if it were made of camphor."

"Camphor!" stammered Rosecrans, looking chapfallen. "Why, I never thought, but perhaps camphor does injure a cigar." And, reaching into the drawer, he brought to view several garments filled with camphor balls. "Do you suppose that can be the trouble?" he inquired.

BECAME ALARMED.

Dundas Farmer Pulled up in Time to Save His Life.

Donald George Ross, a farmer, near Dundas, was travelling down the road that leads to misery and death. For three years he had been on that road, slowly but surely making his way to the certain goal.

Donald Ross had Dyspepsia. For three years his head had ached and his nerves had been racked because his stomach was weak and could not digest his food. And the less nourishment he got from his food the weaker his stomach as well as the rest of his body became, because the stomach receives its strength from the food we eat like every other organ and member.

However, Mr. Ross did not finish his journey on that road. He pulled up in time. He cured his Dyspepsia. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were the means of actually saving his life, for Mr. Ross himself says nothing else would have cured him. Perhaps his own letter will state the case better than anything else.

"For about three years," he writes, "I have been troubled with Headaches and Nervousness caused by Dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. Doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would never get cured. I became alarmed and consulted one of the best doctors in Hamilton, but no use. I could not get help. Then I heard about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I tried them. I found them all they are claimed to be. They gave me a complete cure. I can highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any one troubled as I was."

If you have Dyspepsia try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are only fifty cents a box. They will surely help you.

A Railroad Man's Story.

"One of the worst starts I ever had," said an engineer the other day, "was due to a large, lazy pig that had got on my mind. Nothing will slide a train more easily and destructively from the rails than live pork. This particular specimen had a habit of burrowing alongside the track, and it was a fair presumption that sooner or later he would find something to interest him between the rails and somebody would go down the bank.

"I was coming down a hill one day at high speed and craning my neck for a comforting sight of piggy in his accustomed place when, as I popped around the curve, a bright red flag assaulted my anxious gaze. The connection between that flag and the pig was only a bit of mental aberration on my part, but it was very vivid. I shut off and grabbed the whistle cord, but before I could even screech for brakes I saw that the flag was only a red flannel shirt which the good woman of the shanty to which the pig belonged had hung on an improvised clothesline between the telegraph poles.

"That may not sound like much of a scare, but it represents a type that turns the railroad man's hair to a delicate ash color."

When Herrings Were Plenty.

In former days herrings were so abundant in Newfoundland waters that the most wanton slaughter of them was permitted without any restriction whatever. Seines were allowed to retain 1,000 or 2,000 barrels of the fish until they perished, and then the net was freed, and the whole contents fell to the bottom to pollute the ocean for miles around. When a poaching smack was captured, the herrings it had on board were all thrown into the sea, and frequently boats when chased resorted to the same means to get rid of incriminating evidence. The fish then fetched only 50 cents a barrel of 500 herrings, or ten for a cent.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs — prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgment in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure hay fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and the United States. Sent to any address for $1 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S.; or Kingston, Ont.

France and the Potato.

There was much difficulty in introducing the potato into France. It was only toward the end of the reign of Louis XIV that it began to be used. The learned had opposed its introduction systematically, saying it produced leprosy, and the common people refused to test it even on their live stock.

A trick at last established it. Fields were planted all over France with potatoes and carefully guarded until the tubers were ripe, it being given out that these fields were growing a new thing specially for the king and that trespassers would be prosecuted. Now, the laws at that time were severe. A man might be hanged when he hunted in the wild forest, for the game was the seigneur's, almost each one of whom kept his private gallows. Trespass against the king implied, therefore, terrible punishment.

The danger of the punishment proved itself an alluring bait. As the contriver, wise in foresight, had seen, the fields that were purposely left unguarded were pillaged right and left, the potatoes eaten, some kept and planted and the tuber at last effectually introduced in France.

On Magnetic Healing.

Much is spoken and written during these times about this mysterious method of treating disease. The most truly remarkable cases of magnetic healing which have come under the notice of the writer have been those in which Dr. Chase's Ointment was used. This preparation seems to have magical powers in stopping the dreadful itching, burning sensations of Salt Rheum and Eczema, and when used regularly makes the cure thorough and complete.

BETRAYAL.

Out of the chilling rain and fog
That hid the mountain from our sight
A dusky cloud came floating down
At early dawn of light.

The cloud dropped softly to the lake
Amid a sound of whirring wings
And spread into a graceful line
A host of living things.

We hailed this burst of joyous life;
The sunless day seemed dark no more,
When suddenly a shot rang out
And echoed round the shore.

The waterfowl were nature's guests,
But they were doomed, and all that day
The shots pealed forth, and on the waves
The dead and dying lay.

At last into the brooding mist
There vanished, softly as it came,
A broken flock, with plumage torn,
After that day of shame.

—Mary Thacher Higginson in Youth's Companion.

UNINHABITED ISLANDS.

There Are Thousands of Them In the Indian Ocean.

If you should want an island—that is, an uninhabited island—for the purpose of occupying it alone, Robinson Crusoe like, or to use it for romantic fiction or for any other purpose, to the exclusion of all others in the world, you need have no trouble in finding one if you see fit to make a journey to the Indian ocean. In the waters between Madagascar and India you can find more than 15,000 of them, where there is not a human being and where you can, if you will, be monarch of all you survey.

An English traveler has recently been among the small islands that dot the western end of the Indian ocean to make an inventory of them and reports that he counted 16,100 and found only about 600 of them inhabited. Now, there is a good chance for any one who may want an island.

These particular islands are not large, as islands go, but very many of them are sufficient for the purpose of a Robinson Crusoe or any other novel hero or for even a small colony of shipwrecked mariners or other persons who might be cast on one of them or seek for the purpose of making a home pretty much out of the busy world.

Some of them are only an acre or two, well elevated above the tide, while others are a quarter of a mile in diameter and running from that up to a mile or two in length and a quarter or less of the length in breadth. Many of them are granitic structures that rise steeply from 20 to 100 feet, well covered with rich soil, through which small fresh water streams hurry to the sea, which they reach after flowing over beaches of glistening calcareous sand that are begirt by coral reefs, which form walls about the islands.

How He Saved His Dinner.

In the little town of Arundel there is a taxidermist who is gifted with wonderful presence of mind. Here is an instance:

Some time ago a gentleman called at his shop with a cock pheasant, which he desired to have skinned, stating at the same time that he did not require the body. This quite suited the taxidermist, who thought the pheasant would do for his dinner on the morrow.

However, later in the day the gentleman called again and said that he would take the body away. The taxidermist replied that it was unusual for customers to take the bodies away, but that he had no objection, and he fetched the bird, which his wife had put on a plate and covered with flour.

"Ah!" exclaimed the gentleman. "It looks very nice. But what is this white powder with which it is covered?"

"Oh, that," replied the taxidermist quietly, "is arsenic. I always cover the bodies with that until I can dispose of them."

"Ar-arsenic!" stammered the gentleman. "Why, I thought that the bird would be good to eat. Thank you, I won't trouble to take it away with me. Good day."

The taxidermist had saved his dinner.—London Answers.

Rude Justice.

A certain Arizona justice of the peace, whose knowledge of the law was never gained from books or actual practice before the bar, was hearing an assault and battery case. The lawyer for the defense was shouting his arguments when the court said:

"That will do. Sit down."

He then adjusted his spectacles and sagely observed:

"Prisoner, sthand up! Accordin tah th' law an th' evydince—an there is no evydince—OI found yez guilty, sor, an foine yez $50. If yez air guilty, faith, it's a very light sintince, an if yez are not guilty it'll be a mighty good lesson for yez!"

The Prudent Scotsman.

A cautious Scotsman, 85 years old, had saved enough to purchase a piece of freehold land upon which he had had his eye for some time. He repaired to the freeholder and opened negotiations for the purchase. The freeholder, however, informed him that for some reason or other he could not part with the freehold, but said he would give him a lease for 999 years. This, he was informed, was practically the same thing. "Na, na," said the aged one, shaking his gray head; "time soon rins awa'."

The Bill All Right.

"My dear sir, it strikes me that this is a pretty round bill."

"Yes, I have sent it around often enough to make it appear so, and now I hope to get it squared."

In its native habitat the shell of the oyster is always a little open, and microscopic waving hairs set up currents which carry the food plants to its mouth, where they are engulfed and afterward digested.

Beauty's Influence on Children.

A teacher in Chicago fitted up a little hallway as a "beauty corner" for her pupils. It had a good, though small, stained glass window, a divan covered with an eastern rug. Braun carbon photographs of a few fine paintings and a few other artistic trifles.

The children rejoiced in it greatly, and one day she asked them what they would keep if they could have one thing left of the corner. The decision was almost unanimous for the stained glass window. "What next?" she asked, and they thought they would like to keep the beautiful drapery on the divan. They expressed the love of color that is instinctive in humanity. A little Italian who had been almost unmanageable changed greatly in a short time, and the teacher asked him how he had become such a good boy. He pointed to a picture of the Sistine Madonna, saying, "How can a feller do bad things when she's lookin at him?"

The First Stove.

The first step in the development of the stove was an open hearth. In some nations it has never advanced beyond that stage. The Eskimo to this day—and the Indian, too, for the matter of that—heats his dwelling by building a fire in the center of the room or hut and permitting the smoke to escape through a hole in the roof. The consideration of light requires that this hole should be large enough to give easy egress to the vapor, and the larger it is, of course, the more heat will escape. At the same time the inmates of the dwelling will have the same trouble that tormented the life of Kit Carson's pioneer. If he have fire enough to warm him, he will burn; if he have not enough, it will do him no good.

Golden Horseshoes.

Roman writers inform us that Commodus caused the hoofs of his horse to be gilded. Nero, when he undertook short journeys, was always drawn by mules that had silver shoes, and those of his wife, Poppæa, had shoes of gold. From a passage in Dio Cassius there is reason to think that the upper part only was formed of those noble metals or that they were perhaps plated out of thin slips. When Boniface, marquis of Tuscany, one of the richest princes of his time, went to Beatrix, about the year 1038, his whole train was so magnificently decorated that his horses were shod with silver. The nails were even of the same metal.

How an Ostrich Hatches Eggs.

It is a curiosity to watch the male ostrich assist the hatching out process. As soon as he sees the beak or toe sticking through the shell he will take the egg up by the protruding bill or foot, lift it two or three feet and drop it on the ground until it breaks. I have seen him release two chicks at once by dropping one egg upon the other in this way.

Plausible.

"Science has proved," said the professor of astronomy, "that there is no water at all in the moon. Now, Mr. French, what do we deduce from that?"

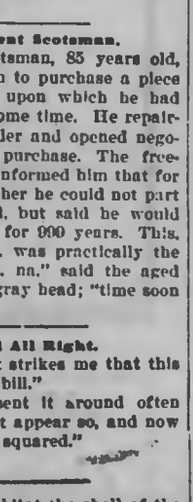
"That there is some excuse for its getting full so readily," replied Mr. French.

The bright scarlet seeds of Adenanthera pavonina are used as jewelers' weights in India, each being about four grains. They are also strung and made into necklaces. In the West Indies they are known as Circassian seeds.

The place of honor at a Chinese banquet is at the host's left hand.

"Don't Speak

To the motorman," is a sign to be seen on the front platform of many cars. It requires all his thought, all his energy and all his strength to pilot his car through crowded streets. The strain tells on him, and some when he gets "rattled" and has an accident. The surest way to sustain the physical strength and nervous force required by the motorman or railroad man is to keep the stomach in a condition of sound health. When the stomach becomes "weak," food is imperfectly digested and the body is deprived of its necessary nourishment. The nerves are "unstrung" and the body is weakened.



The timely use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery when the stomach is "weak" will reestablish the body in vigorous health. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, nourishes the nerves and purifies the blood.

"I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at times I couldn't work nor eat," writes Mr. Frank Smith, of Granite, Cheffee Co., Colo. "I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results. I only used four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and must say that I am entirely cured, and feel like a new man, and I can highly recommend your medicine to any sufferer."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WOULD YOU BE REALLY HAPPY?

Then You Must Find Your Happiness In Yourself.

The unhappy man is he who stands with his nose against the plate glass in the jewelry store longingly or he who watches with envy the carriages, yachts and private cars of the very rich.

A man is really happy who can feel as did old, barefooted Socrates when he looked at the articles of luxury offered for sale.

He turned up his snub nose philosophically and remarked, "How much there is in the world I do not want," and went on his way in search of some one whom he might overwhelm with his everlasting questions and answers.

We write this to suggest to fathers and mothers that they impress on their children old enough to understand it that they apply to themselves this idea:

Happiness to be found at all must be found in ourselves.

If your children are studying French and German, get them to translate these two short quotations:

Le bonheur n'est pas chose aisee; il est tres difficile de le trouver en nous, et impossible de le trouver ailleurs.—Chamfort.

(Happiness is not an easy thing; it is very difficult to find it within ourselves and impossible to find it anywhere else.)

Volk und Knecht und Ueberwinder
Sie gestehen, zu jeder Zeit,
Hoechstes Gluseck der Erdenkinder
Sei nur die Persoenlichkeit.
—Goethe.

(People and slaves and conquerors admit at all times the greatest happiness of earth's children is personality.)

The father of all wise men, Aristotle, divides life's blessings into three classes—those of the body, those of the soul and those that come to us from the outside.

Teach your children to rely in life on the pleasures of the soul or, as Goethe puts it, the pleasures of personality.

The pleasure that comes to you from the outside world depends on the favor and approval of those whom you cannot control.

The pleasures of the body depend on youth, on health, and are very easily exhausted.

The pleasures of the soul are within your own control; you can only lose them through your own fault. Inside yourself you are master, and nothing can touch you except your own foolish ambitions, vanities and lack of self reliance.

Of course if you talk to young people in this strain, with dry quotations and every indication of an offensive intention to do them good, they will promptly say:

"This is a sermon. Let's go out for a walk."

Remember that sermons and other kinds of medicine can be made palatable. In talking to your children of the importance of developing themselves, of finding happiness in themselves, point out to them the fact that every great man has found in himself the seeds of his greatness. Give them special instances to fire their ambition, detailed accounts of success. Then impress upon them the fact that in every case the successful and happy man found happiness in himself.

CONSTIPATION

The Greatest Factor in the Death Rate

This trouble has been well named the foe of mankind. More unpleasant symptons, disease and deaths can be indirectly traced to constipation than to all other causes combined. But strange to say, as true and alarming as the above statement is, the majority of people afflicted give themselves but little concern. And just here is wherein the great danger lies. People do take physic, it's true, and relieve the present symptoms, but they do not press on diligently in search of a cure. By cure we mean restoring the natural healthy movement of the bowels day in and day out the year round without the aid of physic. Now this result is positively and absolutely guaranteed if you take Merrill's System Tonic. The alterative effects of Sarsaparilla, Red Clover and Burdock contained in it restore the glands, and more fluids are secreted in the stomach and bowels. Then the muscular toning effects of Hypophosphites therin restore natural muscular power to the muscles of the bowels which control evacuation. This is the scientific and correct way and differs altogether from the pill or physic idea, in which some irritating principle causes a movement in such a way as to make more necessary a repeated dose. Clear skin, buoyant health, active brain and vivacity follow the permanent cures of this trouble made by Merrill's System Tonic.

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold

BEAUTIFYING LAKEFIELD SUBURBS.

Buckley's Lake Bog in Douro to be Drained and Reclaimed.

The enterprising people of Douro practically contemplate the draining of the disfiguring and unsightly bog dignified with the name of Buckley's Lake, lying in the Township of Douro, near Lakefield. A survey of the situation has been made by Mr. E. R. Blackwell of Lakefield. This survey has demonstrated that the scheme is feasible. A fall of 10 feet exists from the lake to flood water in the river, and the cost is estimated at $5,798.80. The excavation will need to be of a depth of 8 feet and a width of 30 feet. This, with a continuation through the swamp area, will, it is estimated, effectively drain a present swamp area of about 1,500 acres, and convert them into first-class meadow and pasture lands, and will convert an unsightly and unwholesome area of landscape disfigurement into a scene of pastoral beauty, probably unsurpassed in the country. The completion of this important work will place another item to the credit of the Ontario Government and the Ontario Drainage Act. This Act has been of the greatest benefit to many parts of the province, bringing waste lands under cultivation, and giving them a value far beyond the cost of reclamation. Under the Act the cost of such work is not burdensome; it is divided into instalments payable during a period of twenty years. Thus the instalments by which the loan is repaid, at the low figure of 4 per cent., are very small. In addition to the benefits derived by making now useless land valuable, the work will cost Douro practically nothing, for nearly the entire cost of the drainage will be spent in labour, whose price will go into the pockets of the young men of Douro, and the farmers, who will have profitable employment, once the busy work of the harvest is over.

JULY WEATHER IN CANADA.

Warm Wave Extended Pretty Well Over the Dominion.

Last month in Ontario was one of the warmest months on record. The monthly weather map, issued by the meteorological service, states that the temperature was below the average from 1 to 3 deg. in the western and northwestern portions of the Territories, also over British Columbia, and above the average elsewhere throughout Canada, except in the extreme northwestern portion of Quebec, where the average was just maintained. In Toronto the mean for July of this year (73 deg.), which is 6 deg. above the average, has only been equalled once during the past sixty years, namely, in 1887, and only exceeded once, namely, in 1868, when a mean of 75 deg. was recorded; consequently it is fair to assume that as over the greater portion of Ontario the mean was from 5 to 6 deg. above the average. July, 1901, in Ontario, was one of the warmest Julys on record. The mean in Manitoba was also as much as 3 to 4 deg. above the average, as was also the case in several portions of the Maritime Provinces.

The highest and lowest temperatures at the various stations in Ontario were: Port Arthur, 84, 42; White River, 97, 33; Southampton, 92, 51; Parry Sound, 91, 56; Port Stanley, 89, 50; Toronto 93, 53; Kingston, 85, 55; Blesett, 99, 37; Ottawa, 98, 50; Welland, 96, 55; Peterboro', 96, 53; Paris, 98, 49; Barrie, 96, 52; Stratford, 96, 48; Owen Sound, 97, 48; Orillia, 94, 48; Lucknow, 100, 50; Stony Creek, 100, 58; Windsor, 91, 52; Beatrice, 92, 47; Bala, 91, 53.

The rainfall was much below the average over the greater portion of Quebec, and throughout the Maritime Provinces. In Manitoba it was for the most part just about the average, but in all the other portions, except in a few isolated localities, it was above the average, and in many localities to a large amount. In Alberta, Edmonton reports the phenomenal rainfall of 11.1 inches, being no less than 8.1 inches above the average. Regina also records an abnormal rainfall of 7.6 inches, and Gatesgarth of 6.13 inches. In Ontario the rainfall was excessive in many districts, more especially in the Georgian Bay and Muskoka regions, where generally the waters of the small inland lakes are reported to be higher now than they were at the spring freshets. Parry Sound recorded 7.9 inches, which is 5.3 inches above the average. The excessive rainfalls in these districts are more remarkable when it is considered that farther to the northward in the Temiskaming and northern Ottawa River localities the country suffered from drouth and disastrous bush fires. In the Maritime Provinces, Chatham, N. B., was 2.7 inches below the average, Halifax 2.4 inches below, and Charlottetown 2.3 inches below.

Gave Life For Her Boy.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 10. — Mrs. Fred Shepherd lost her life at New Glasgow yesterday in an heroic effort to save her boy from drowning. The boy fell into an old quarry in which was ten feet of water. The mother plunged into the water after the boy, and she managed to hold him up until assistance came. The boy was saved, but the mother's strength was exhausted and she was drowned.

King to Leave England.

London, Aug. 10.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria, Prince Nicholas of Greece and a distinguished official party left London last night for Port Victoria. All will sleep on board the royal yacht that awaits the King, and sail for Flushing this morning. The royal party will proceed to Cronberg and thence to Potsdam for the funeral next Tuesday.

A Reckless Man at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—A. D. Viau, a young man 20 years of age, was arrested last night for firing three shots from a revolver at T. Loyeu and a boy of 12 years of age. One of the balls struck Loyeu in the arm. Viau was in a bean dive, and was drinking. It is said some boys were annoying him, which was his only apparent reason for firing the shots.

A Lad's Brave Act.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 10.—While Willie Johnson, aged 11, was swimming on the Canadian side of the whirlpool Thursday afternoon, he attempted to reach a log, and was being drawn into the vortex when a Queenston lad named Cooper swam out after him and towed him to shore. Cooper's act was a daring one, and he deserves some recognition.

A Manitoba Man Dead.

"Johannesburg, Aug. 7.—Regret to report A 1,826, Trooper Nelson Hill, S.A.C., died of enteric fever, Krugersdorp, Aug. 3. Next of kin is Thomas Hill, father, Virden, Manitoba."

Many Are the Workers.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10. — There has been a busy scene at the C.P.R. during the past 24 hours, owing to the arrival of Ontario harvesters. Four more trains arrived last night, bringing in nearly 3,000. These men are being distributed all over the province as quickly as possible.

WHAT AUSTRALIA WOULD DO.

Second Reading Given to the Commonwealth's Defence Bill.

Melbourne, Victoria, Aug. 10.—The House of Representatives yesterday passed the second reading of the Australian Defence bill.

Edmund Barton, the Premier, made a speech, during the course of which he said the standing army contemplated was only a sufficient force to guard the depots and to serve as military instructors for the levies to be called out in case the first line of defence, the navy, was broken.

The clause providing for calling out men from 18 to 60 years of age was simply inserted to demonstrate to the world what Australia would do in time of emergency.

The cost of the navy would be about $1,000,000 anuually.

THE CURE OF DEAFNESS.

(From the Journal for the Deaf)

"In addition to the inconvenience inherent to the infirmity itself, Deafness has a marked influence on the development of the individual when the latter has been attacked by it in youth. Men who in early youth have suffered impaired hearing have in many cases, as a consequence, something unstable, confused, or undecided and faltering in action, illogical and changeable in thought and speech, their answers often not being to the point. An experienced observer can thus, in many cases, after a short conversation, even from the speech and manner of a man, discover that most probably he had in youth defective hearing.

For a long time Deafness and chronic affections of the ear have been considered almost incurable. Most of these affections attack, as is well known, the internal parts of the organ, the middle ear or the labyrinth, and these parts are inaccessible. In one direction the tympanum forms a partition which closes the auditory tube; in the other direction, if the Middle Ear communicates with the nasopharyngeal region by the Eustachian tubes, the passages are beyond beyond reach. Under these circumstances the aural operations still in vogue, involving the use of somewhat complicated instruments, such as probes and catheters, and of special appliances—air-bags and the like—have but small chance of success. Through the nose one can operate only very imperfectly on the Middle Ear, and as to the Inner Ear or labyrinth, it is absolutely out of reach.

But recently a very simple means has been found of bringing to bear on even the most inaccessible parts of the ear remedies capable of overcoming their inflamed or inert condition, and of restoring them to their normal functions. For this purpose we utilise the well-known absorbent properties of the skin. A plaster, in the shape of a crescent covered with a medicated compound, is slightly heated and applied to the prominent part which is to be found behind the ear (the mastoid process). The chemical elements forming the compound on the plaster are progressively absorbed by the skin, and the work of regenerating the organ commences."

This is the basis of the Drouet treatment, which has lately been so much talked about. On reading of the remarkable results which have been obtained by this new process, it really seems as if this time the secret of a cure for that terrible complaint, deafness, has been discovered. Experiments, carried on now for several years, have shown that neither the duration of the malady nor the age of the patient has any serious influence on the success of the treatment. Several cases are quoted of complete cures in patients of sixty to eighty years of age, who no longer recollected the beginning of their infirmity. In the same way, cases of obstinate discharge have been cured in a few weeks. Many persons declared incurable by aurists have finally regained their hearing through Drouet's external applications. From this point of view, "The Journal for the Deaf" is extremely interesting; in it are given particulars of some two hundred recent cures. Those who are interested in the subject will be glad to learn that "The Journal for the Deaf," an analytical review of the diseases of the Ear, Throat, and Nose, published monthly at the Drouet Institutes of Paris, London, and Brussels, is sent free to any persons applying for it. To get the English edition they need only write to the Secretary of the London Institute, 72, Regent's Park-road, London, England. We may add that it is not at all necessary for them to come to Europe to try the application of the new treatment. The Drouet Institutes treat their numerous patients abroad by means of a pathological report form which enables the patient to give a faithful description of his case, and by which the Institute is able to prescribe for him. Let any of our readers, then, desiring to undertake this cure, write direct to the English Drouet Institute, of which we again give the address, 72, Regent's Park-road, London, England, and they will receive gratis from the Secretary all the needful information and instruction. And now it only remains for us to wish them a speedy cure.

Sliding to Happiness.

Old Lady—And so you expect to get married when you grow up?

Little Girl—Of course. Everybody gets married. I won't say "no" like Aunt Lucy did and be an old maid. No, indeed.

"Perhaps you won't like those who ask you."

"Oh, yes, I will. I feel sure that when a real nice little boy—I mean man—comes to ask me to get married I'll be so happy I won't wait to run down stairs to meet him. I'll just slide down the balusters."

Rheumatism is a Constitutional Disease

The pain and localized conditions are mere results of constitutional conditions. Poisoned blood sends its evil influence to various parts of the body, and cure permanently you must treat it constitutionally. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons from the system as Ferrozone. It makes new blood. It imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off the poisons that engender rheumatism. Ferrozone also fortifies the system against the weakening effects of rheumatism, and cures, not simply relieves as most medicines do. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

FOILED BY HIS OWN TRICK.

Scheme For Selling a Farm and Its Dramatic Climax.

"Some years ago," said the narrator, "an oil boom hit Litchfield, Ills., and everybody for miles around was seen sniffing for oil and every stranger suspected of being an expert looking for a good thing. An old farmer named Loomis had a big place three miles out of town, which would have been a fortune for him had he not been possessed of a mania for swapping, manifest in a perennial attempt to trade off his land for twice its value.

"When the boom was at the top notch, Loomis received a visitor who took so much interest in the farm, so liked its appearance, location, etc., that the old farmer scented a petroleum man and saw visions of incalculable wealth; but, being a shrewd man, Loomis did not care to take any unnecessary chances with Providence, and on the quiet he sent the hired man out the back way with orders to dump the kerosene can into the well. The visitor liked the entire place, inspected the barn, the chicken yard and then, as if by chance, asked for a drink of water.

"Loomis was waiting for that and hauled up a brimming bucket before the man's own eyes and poured him out a gourdful of liquid with a fine, opalescent scum upon it. The visitor smelled the stuff, tasted it, made a wry face and asked if the water was always like that. 'Oh, yes,' said Loomis, 'but you soon get accustomed to the taste, and our doctor says this is the finest water on earth for the stomach.' 'Well, I am ding danged if I'll ever get used to it,' was the unexpected response. 'I am looking for a farm, not an oil well, and if I have got to haul my drinking water three miles from Litchfield I guess I'd rather buy nearer town.'

"It took Loomis six months to get the taste of oil out of his well, and by that time the boom was over, and nothing was left of the oil craze but rotting derricks and abandoned shafts."

CANKER.

There is a mistaken idea as to the cause of cankers in the mouth and throat. Sufferers imagine that they arise from stomach troubles, but it is nothing more or less than the result of impure blood. Numerous so-called remedies have been floated on the market, but experience has proven that there is only one cure, "Climax" Iron Tonic Pills. 25 cents a box at all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price. BOOK MAXIMS.

It is better to give a book than to lend it.

Do not bite a paper knife until it has the edge of a saw.

It is rumination to a good book to cut it right through into the corners.

Books are neither card racks, crumb baskets nor receptacles for dead leaves.

Never write upon a title page or half title. The blank fly leaf is the right place.

Do not turn the leaves of books down. Particularly do not turn the leaves of books printed on plate paper.

If you are in the habit of lending books, do not mark them. These two acts together constitute an act of indiscretion.

Books were not meant as cushions, nor were they meant to be toasted before a fire.—Arthur L. Humphreys in Private Library.

Where He Forgot Himself.

"We are seven," laughingly quoted the man who was an applicant for life insurance when asked to give the number of children in his father's family.

"And their names?" asked the examining surgeon.

"Well, there's Albert, Addie, Henry, Laura, William and Dora and—and"—

The surgeon looked surprised, and the applicant looked foolish.

Then he began again, "There's Albert and Addie, and Henry and Laura, and William and Dora, and—and"—

The surgeon announced that these were only six. The applicant acknowledged the corn and went over the list again and again, invariably balking after the sixth name. Then a bright office boy looked up from his work, with a grin, and said:

"Say, haven't you left yourself out of the count?"

The surgeon seemed relieved, the applicant seemed more foolish than ever, and the office boy grinned on at his work.

"That certainly was one time," finally commented the applicant, "that I completely forgot myself."

Making It Clear.

The London Spectator tells a funny story of a definition given by a well known public speaker in an address to children.

"Now, children," he said, "I propose to give you on the present occasion an epitome of the life of St. Paul. Perhaps some of you are too young to understand what the word 'epitome' means. 'Epitome,' children, is in its signification synonymous with synopsis."

Having made this simple and clear explanation to the children, the speaker went on with his story.

The Diplomat's Solution.

"And if an irresistible force meets an immovable body?" suggested his friend.

"The situation, indeed, would be critical," admitted the eminent diplomat; "but, with mutual restraint and reasonable concessions, I see no reason to despair of an amicable settlement."—Puck.
